Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, June 8; Agra, June 5; Calcutta, June 4; Madras, June 2.

The Bombay papers lead off with tales of accidents and disasters at sea. The steamer Cheduba, on her way from Calcutta to Rangoon with mails and passengers, was caught in the cyclone of May 16, and no tidings of her fate have since been heard. It is feared that she must have foundered with all on board, though it is just possible that she may have drifted helplessly down the Bay of Bengal. On the Bombay side we hear of the wreck of the Bucentaur on the 4th June in Bombay Harbour, and of the wreck of the Great Northern, twenty-eight miles off, at Bassein. The captain and crew of the former were all saved, and part of her valuable cargo may yet be recovered. In the other case fifteen lives were lost and the captain badly hurt.

THE P. and O. Company's steamer Golconda had a very rough passage from Aden to Bombay. Her engines broke down, but the Krishna coming to her aid took her in tow. A violent storm however soon parted the two ships, and the Golconda, after lying to for a whole day and seeing no more of her friend, had to make the best way to Bombay under canvass through a heavy sea. Her voyage from Suez took more than sixteen days.

FROM Madras we learn by a telegram of June 7 that a sepoy of the 35th Native Infantry had just shot the adjutant, Lieutenant Brooking, and then put an end to himself. His victim was still alive, but there seemed little hope of his recovery. It seems that the sepoy had been passed over for promotion, and in a fit of fury took this way of wreaking his revenge.

THE intense heat in various parts of India was still the topic of complaint and the cause of much illness. Deaths from heatapoplexy and sunstroke were continually occurring. Cholera had once more broken out among the 58th at Allahabad so threateningly that the regiment has been moved out and split up into detachments distributed all about the European lines. At Lahore no such heat has been felt for many years. On the Western Coast the monsoon had fairly set in, but Madras was loudly complaining of the heat and dust at the beginning of June. Lord Napier however had not yet been driven away to the Hills.

FAMINES and pilgrimages are excellent things for keeping down the surplus population of India. One year a million people die of hunger or consequent disease in Orissa. In the next a pilgrimage to Hurdwar slays its tens of thousands on the road, or strews the seeds of cholera in a thousand towns and villages. With regard to the latter source of evil, Dr. Smith, Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal, has supplied some useful information in a report on what he saw last year during a visit to the shrine of Jaganath. He has much to tell of the Pandahs or pilgrimtouts, who travel about India picking up recruits, chiefly women, for the next pilgrimage. Numbers of decent women are lured by their lying representations to bring themselves and all their worldly wealth to Pooree, where these Pandahs own all the lodging-houses. Once arrived at Pooree, the luckless dupes are crowded into wretched dens where disease or demoralisation marks them for its own. Eighty persons sometimes pass a July night in a room thirteen feet long, ten and a-half broad, and six high. In 1865 twenty thousand women were thus crammed into houses subject to no kind of police-inspection, with results easier to imagine than describe. Those who escape an early death live for the most part to become slaves or prostitutes. Stripped of her money and jewels for the benefit of the shrine and those who live by it, the devotee is reduced to buy from the Pandah the means for her homeward journey at the price of her virtue, or with the loss of her freedom in the event of failure to repay the debt. Against the unholy influence of the priests and pandahs of Pooree these wretched women have no outward protection. There is no sort of police supervision over the houses and their inhabitants; no attempt to check overcrowding or enforce due sanitary precautions. The Bengal Government did once take in hand some measure to that effect, but all action seems to have been suspended during the progress of an official inquiry into the whole question of pilgrimages. Yet so crying a grievance might surely be remedied to some extent by provisional enactments. Cannot something be done at once to improve the sanitary condition and check the rampant profligacy of Pooree by means of a heavy tax on those who now thrive upon the weaknesses and superstitions of their countrywomen? Jaganath can afford to spare a tithe of his ill-gotten gains. An establishment of 600 attendants, 120 dancing girls, 400 cooks, besides 3,000 priests and Pandahs, would bear a good deal of practical disendowment for the good of the multitudes who insist on flocking yearly to so renowned a shrine.

THE rebuilding of the Madras Pier has at length been taken earnestly in hand, so that early next year voyagers may once more avoid the delights of plunging in boats through the Madras surf. Nothing more has been heard of the scheme for a harbour and breakwater; but there is a loud demand for some improvement in the drainage of the city, which seems to vie in badness with that of Simlah and Calcutta. Often have the Government and the Municipality been urged to abate the evils of the reigning system which annoys the living and multiplies the dead; but the only answer is that some general scheme of drainage is "under consideration," and meanwhile not even the simplest precautions seem to be taken against disease.

THE Relief for 1869-70 has been published. It will be found in another page. We are told that the movements of many of the troops are so ordered as to fit in with the arrangements for the great Agra Durbar, which is expected to come off at the beginning of next January, in honour of Prince Alfred's visit to India. The troops thus indicated for that event seem to be the C Battery of F Brigade R.H.A.; the 21st Hussars; the 11th, 19th, 79th, and 93rd Foot; the 2nd and 14th Bengal Cavalry; and the 8th, 13th, 14th, and 22nd Native Infantry.

READERS interested in Indian cotton may like to hear that the order for beginning the Khangaum branch railway through the Berar cotton district went forth on the 1st June. The move is said to have been strongly supported by Mr. Saunders, the Resident of Hyderabad, and the cost of it is to be defrayed out of the surplus revenues of the Berars. That is probably the best way of turning to local account the fruits of English guardianship over a part of the Nizam's nominal dominions.

MR. MAXWELL MELVILL, who has just succeeded Mr. Newton in the High Court of Bombay, was for some time Registrar to the High Court on the Appellate side, before he became Judicial Commissioner of Sindh. His appointment on the Bombay Bank Commission will be remembered in his favour by those who care to read the abstract we have elsewhere given of the the Commissioners' Report.

NOT content with remodelling his army, the Ameer of Kabul is about to reform his police and attempt the disarming of his people. Against this last proceeding the Kabulies are said to have raised an indignant outcry, while some of the Afghan clans are described as meditating armed resistance to a measure so discordant with their natural weakness for strife and bloodshed. Like Peter the Great, Shere Ali seems bent on warring against his countrymen's dearest prejudices. He has not yet shaved off his subjects' beards, but they are sorely exercised by his attempt to dress them in European uniform among other things. His sons and nephews however appear to be on his side in this matter. He has also given up the old practice of dispensing justice in the streets. Henceforth his subjects are to lay their disputes before officers appointed for the purpose.

THE alleged Mussulman plot at Vellore seems to have dwindled into a kind of squabble between Mohammedans of opposite sects or parties. Whatever are the facts of the case, the Governor of Madras seems to think very lightly of it. Plotting against our rule will long be a chronic amusement among the more turbulent spirits of India, especially those of the Mohammedan faith. But to live in a state of chronic shivering at every shadow would make life intolerable anywhere. By all means let us keep a good look out; but there are Mohammedans and Mohammedans. No doubt the Wahabi colony in the North-west Frontier gains a steady supply of recruits from British India, and preachers of a crescentade may be found in every large city. Some of the Wahabi ringleaders are now undergoing trial at Patna, and the disclosures they may make will be worth hearing. But we have yet to learn that the great mass of Mohammedans in India, divided as they are among themselves, have any active sympathy with the new fanaticism imported from Arabia.

MR. ALISON, our Minister in Persia, is now at home. It is not unlikely that during his present stay the Government will be helped by his advice towards forming some conclusion on the propriety of allowing British officers to be employed as of old in drilling and officering the Persian army. Other questions also touching the extension of our friendly relations with the Shah will probably be settled in due course. No time perhaps could be better than the present for such a purpose, seeing that Russia has some heavy work on her hands in Central Asia, where not only the Kirghese of the Steppes, but their western neighbours, the Bashkirs, are now in active rebellion against a yoke which somehow appears to press as hard as our own. To complete the revival of old friendship with Persia, we ought to replace the mission under the Government of India.

It was the good old practice of the East India Company to keep up a friendly intercourse with their servants by means of dinners and other social attractions. As a sort of substitute for such splendid hospitality, might it not be feasible for the Secretary of State to hold occasional levées, which gentlemen of all classes connected with India would be free to attend? The cost and trouble of these little ceremonies would not be great, while the means of cultivating a nearer acquaintance with the leaders of Anglo-Indian life and industry would be open at any rate to their official masters.

WE understand that her Majesty hopes to preside in person at the approaching investment of the new made Knights of the Star of India.

THE Secretary of State for India has made good choice of a successor to Mr. Maine as Law Member in the Governor-general's Council. Mr. W. Forsyth having elected to continue in his present career, there can hardly be two opinions as to the fitness of Mr. FitzJames Stephen for the post to which he has just been named. Like his predecessor, he is a lawyer and something more—a masculine thinker, with a wide range of ideas and no small power of expressing them. India is fortunate in getting such a man to forego good prospects in England for a few years of trying labour in a remote dependency.

WHATEVER holes we may sometimes have been tempted to pick in the methods of competition applied to the Indian Civil Service, the practical merits of the system seems to us beyond dispute. It has sent into that service a body of men well up to the mark in point of mental culture, all animated with great zeal and public spirit, most of them as worthy to be called gentlemen as they are to fill the high offices already shared among them. It is not too much to say that the Haileybury system never educated in ten years so many capable men as the system of competition has already done. Since the Mutiny of 1857 immense demands have been made on the ability and energy of the Indian Civil Service—demands which could hardly have been met under the old system of selection. Even the Indian Bar has not yet proved itself superior in professional ability to the gentlemen of the rival service. We must however admit that competition sends into the service not a few men of a class somewhat defective in social manners. They are apt to be sometimes awkward and unpolished. This defect might be remedied either by limiting the competition to candidates from public schools and universities, or by sending the passed civilians at once to the larger Indian stations, where social influences would go far to mend the manners which life at small stations would only make the more uncouth. Much too might be learned from intercourse with natives of any position, whose natural politeness and refinement of manner could not fail to have a refining effect on their white friends.

THE "Indian Army and Civil Service List" for July has just been issued from the office of this journal.

MHOW.—TIGER HUNTING.—Our correspondent at Mhow, under date the 19th inst., informs us that Colonel Gibbard, R.A., has bagged no less than twelve tigers, and expects to return to the station from his exploits about the 10th proximo. The weather, it appears, still continues very warm there, although the citizens were favoured with a heavy downpour of rain between 6 and 7 P.M. on the 18th, which continued for about half an hour, the quantity gauged being half an inch.—Our Paper, May 28.

PAY OF A MAJOR GENERAL ON FURLOUGH.—The Government of India have intimated that, whenever a major-general, entitled to Indian pay as having been unemployed less than three years, spends a portion of that time (up to two years) on furlough or leave of absence to England, he is entitled, under Govt. G.O. No. 1,131 of Dec. 1 last (Madras G.O.G. Dec. 15 last, No. 450), to 50 per cent. of his Indian pay, and not to 25s. a day.

CASUALTIES BY DEATH IN THE ARMIES OF INDIA REPORTED SINCE LAST PUBLICATION.

H.M.'s FORCES.—Lieut. Hugh Berkeley Griffiths, of the 4th (Queen's Own) Hussars (announced by telegram from India); Mr. Griffiths entered the service on March 15, 1864, and became lieutenant on Oct. 5, 1867. Serg. major Medley, 15th Hussars, at Secunderabad, May 18, suddenly, of sunstroke. Capt. F. E. Medhurst, 2-12th Regt., at Jubbulpore, May 20.

BENGAL.—Lieut. Charles B. Fyers Wainwright, 8th Brigade R.A., at Sectapore, Bengal, May 29, of hydrophobia, caused by the bite of a dog. Lieut. M. McGrath, Veteran and Pension Establishment, at Agra, May 27.

PASSENGERS ARRIVED AT MARSEILLES.

From BOMBAY.—Mr. M. Massey, Mr. Scaly, Mr. J. W. Scott, Dr. Scott.

EXPECTED AT SOUTHAMPTON.

Per str. Pera, July 8.—From BOMBAY.—Mrs. Morant and infant, Major Knight, Lieut. Day, Capt. Leggatt.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The pressure on our space has compelled us to defer to our next issue Sir S. Cotton's letter, and some other matter that will keep.

All Letters for insertion in Allen's Indian Mail should be legibly written on one side of the paper only, and accompanied with the real name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous letters will not be inserted. The columns of the Indian Mail are open for free, but temperate discussion on all Indian topics of public interest, and especially all matters regarding the Services, Civil, Military, or Uncovenanted. The Proprietors and Editor wish it to be distinctly understood that they do not hold themselves in any way responsible for the opinions that may be expressed in the Correspondence Columns.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

REPORT OF THE BOMBAY BANK COMMISSION.

THE Report of the Bombay Bank Commissioners has come out at last, and very damaging are its conclusions to nearly all concerned. The appointment of Sir Charles Jackson as President of the Committee seemed to furnish sufficient guarantee for a full and impartial inquiry into a strange and dirty business, and the way in which he conducted it gave yet stronger assurance of equal will and skill to elicit the whole truth. And our trust in the committee has been amply justified by the tenor of the Report now published. It strikes more or less hard in all directions, sparing neither the Bombay Government nor even the Secretary of State himself for the time being. The fatal clauses in the Act of 1863 which opened the door to every form of mischief must have been read by Sir Charles Wood, for "there is a pencil-note in his hand-writing in the margin opposite Clause 7," and yet he afterwards informed the Governor-general that the Home Council had sanctioned the Act as it then stood. We are reminded by the Report that only a year before he had specially warned the Bombay Government to regulate the Bank's operations by the principles followed in the Bank of Bengal.

What regard was paid to that warning the Report clearly shows. After reading and revising the Draft Act for Bombay, Mr. Bickersteth, the Government solicitor, admitted in his letter to his Government that the powers contained in the new Bill were "more extended in some respects than those of the Bank of Bengal as at present constituted." To this admission no heed seems to have been paid by Mr. A. D. Robertson, Secretary to the Bombay Government, though he called the attention of the Bank Directors to the "verbosity" of the Act as compared with that for Bengal. Nor did the Advocate-general, Mr. Lewis, see any reason to follow the wording of the Bengal Act. The Directors having also declined to remodel the Act, it was laid in February, 1863, before the Bombay Legislature by Mr. A. D. Robertson, "in a speech remarkable for its omissions." He was not "aware," it seems, of the difference between the Bombay Act and that for Bengal. He made no sort of allusion to the clauses which directly or implicitly empowered the Bombay Bank to accept securities in any public company in India, even if the calls on shares were not all paid up, to advance money on a promissory note signed by one person only, and to lend out more than three lakhs on such security to any one firm for a longer period than three months; all which provisions were absent from the Bengal Bank Charter.

A Committee, composed of Messrs. Lewis, Robertson, and Tristram, having considered and slightly amended the Bill, it was read a second time on the 24th March, received the Viceroy's assent on the 4th July, and was published by the Bombay Government on the 1st August. Sir C. Wood's assent was given in December of the same year. In the clauses which stood thus unchallenged—save by Mr. Hobart, of the India-office—the Committee find "the chief cause of the Bank's failure." The chief share of the blame they ascribe to the Bombay Legislature; but of the remainder a part must lie between the Bank Directors who framed the measure and the Bombay Government who disregarded Sir C. Wood's directions; and who, with the Government of India and the Secretary of State, "either failed to detect, or failed to expose, the dangers with which the Act was pregnant." With such conclusions it is not for us to quarrel, since they are essentially the same as those to which we expressed our adherence a twelvemonth ago.

To what "laxity of practice," to how "ruinous a system of banking," the new Act led, the report proceeds to show. No bye-laws, to begin with, were made for the regulation of the bank's practice. Between August 1863, and May 1865, the only permanent check placed on the secretary's powers was the resolution forbidding him to make certain advances without the board's leave. Mr. Blair, the secretary, at once began to make cash advances on promissory notes alone, signed by one or more borrowers. In so doing he seems never to have consulted any of the directors, save perhaps Cowasjee Jehangheer. All the other directors now alive at any rate deny that he ever did consult them; and it is certain that these cash credits were omitted from the application-book which the directors at their meetings had to inspect, and that they were so omitted by Mr. Blair's order. They were inserted, indeed, in a "small informal" kind of ledger which the directors were not likely to ask for. He also discounted promissory notes signed by a single borrower, and backed by no other security, on the plea that these came under the head of cash credits. When one of the directors, Mr. Mangles, protested in March 1864 against such an infringement of the Bank Charter, Mr. Lidderdale, another director, pleaded that "it was the custom of the bank to discount bills of that sort," and Mr. A. D. Robertson "thought that it could be done under the Charter." Mr. Blair also never kept a reference list of the merchants and traders of Bombay, and he soon gave up consulting the weekly committee of three on the extent of credit he should grant to applicants for loans. Mr. Ryland, the under-secretary, was not less forward in availing himself of the powers involved in the new Charter. As for the directors of this period, which extends from August 1863, to June 1864, they carried on the business without any immediate loss, but their neglect to make bye-laws and to overhaul the secretary's doubtful proceedings lays them open to deserved censure.

On the allotment of shares to Messrs. Robertson and Inverarity, two of the Government Directors, the Commissioners do not lay much stress. The allotments were too small to "excite suspicion," but in taking them, the directors "set a bad example" to their successors. Nor is there anything to say against the first and second augmentations of capital, but the third was unwise, for the Bank already "had more money than it could safely invest."

The next and most eventful period in the Bank's history ranges from June 1864, to April of the following year. The share-gambling was then at its height. Everybody almost went mad on that point. Companies were started "for every imaginable purpose," and a general rush was made for early shares to be sold again at high premiums. Mr. Blair lost no time in getting the Directors to sanction advances of money on no security save the borrower's credit, in accordance with what he had the face to call the Scotch system. Thenceforth he had it all his own and his friends' way. Lakhs upon lakhs of rupees were advanced on the mere promissory note of the borrower, for much longer periods than three months. Mr. Birch, a Government Director and President of the Bank, was "not too ill to attend at his office or at the Bank when he chose to do so," or to make handsome profits on the shares he managed to have allotted to him in the best companies going. But he never thought of checking his secretary in his mad career, or of laying before the Board any irregularities of which he professed to disapprove. The rest of the then Government Directors knew nothing whatever of the business done or the right way of doing it. Mr. Blair himself became a supple tool in the hands of Premchund Roychund, the luckiest speculator of the day, and the most widely courted of bank directors. This monied Mephistophiles "was not slow to fathom the imbecility and weak moral character" of his obliging Faust, whom he or his father, Roychund Deepchund, supplied with large and frequent loans, as well as allotments of shares in the many companies he helped to call into brief existence. The two went partners in several large speculations. "The result was that the Bank became Premchund's. If Premchund had a friend to oblige who wanted money, he recommended him for a loan. If Premchund had shares to sell, he would suggest to an acquaintance that he should buy, offering at the same time to finance the purchase-money by procuring him a loan from the Bank of Bombay. If Premchund wanted money for a speculation, he would suggest to some friend to join him in it, and then procure a loan in his friend's name for the money required." Widely trusted and widely known, he succeeded in owing the Bank as much as £420,000 on his own account. In the name of friends who wanted to buy shares from himself he borrowed £669,000, of which £131,547 has never been recovered. Of the £295,893 he managed to borrow for partners in speculation, £130,240 have vanished for ever. But his charities were munificent and his credit at that time unbounded.

To show how "the Bank's money was lent during this disastrous period," a few typical instances are detailed in the Report before us. They all tell pretty nearly the same tale. Mr. Blair's absence for five weeks at Poonah, and afterwards for two months at Ajmere, made no difference in the downward course of things, for Mr. Robertson, the deputy secretary, trod steadily in his superior's steps, giving away advances all round with a generous disregard for proper securities. Between these two gentlemen the Bank's affairs were so brilliantly managed, that when Mr. Blair retired at the end of April 1865, he left the Bank involved in a maze of unsettled accounts, of which a balance, including the advances made by the Branch Banks, of £1,531,340 has never been recovered. It was a mere chance that any of the money got repaid. Mr. Fleming, for instance, borrowed and paid back a sum of ten lakhs; but his request for the loan was granted without a word of inquiry, in spite of his own express desire to explain his reasons for wanting so large an advance at such a time. Mr. Bullock, manager of the Kalbadevi Branch, was equally generous at the Bank's expense. He never inquired at the Head Office touching those who came to him for money, so that money was often lent to applicants already rejected or quite sufficiently accommodated by Mr. Blair. His management involved the branch in an ultimate loss of more than nineteen lakhs.

At the end of February 1865, Mr. Birch resigned the presidentship. For his "long and valuable services," in presiding at board meetings once a week and ignoring the mischief doing in the directors' name—he was requested to sit for his portrait at the bank's expense after his return home. Mr. Hannay succeeded him as president, and two months later Mr. Blair was replaced by Mr. Robertson. Against the other directors of that time the commissioners bring a charge of "culpable negligence," but, with the exception of Messrs. Tracey and Premchund, they are acquitted of using the bank's money for their own purposes.

The next period in the bank's history extends from May 1865, to April 1866. The new directors began to scent disaster. They tried to restrict the powers of the new secretary. But, thanks to the opposition of Messrs. Hannay and Tracey, all they got was a compromise forbidding the secretary to advance more than three lakhs to a new applicant without special leave from three directors. Very little improvement took place under such a secretary as Mr. Robertson, who "was not much more scrupulous than his predecessors." A sudden panic in June, caused by the failure of a large debtor to the bank, was allayed by the timely interference of the Bombay Government. But the lesson of better management was learned too late. Events in America looked ill for Indian speculators in cotton. Premchund, the evil genius of the bank, was in want of more money; and in April, 1866, his tottering credit was propped up with a last loan of £250,000, Sir Bartle Frere himself having sanctioned the fatal step. Under Mr. Robertson's management the bank added £515,558 to its previous losses.

The doom now impending had been hastened and assured by the close of the American war. With the fall in cotton company after company collapsed. The great Bombay bubble burst with a wide crash. Between May and December 1866, the ruin of the Bank was completed; and nothing remained but to put it into liquidation, a process ending in the ghastly discoveries that led to the Commission of last year. We have seen how the Commissioners deal with the chief actors in the tragical farce. Their final verdict on the evidence before them is short, but sufficient. They find that the causes of the Bank's failure were—1st. The Act X. of 1863, which allowed the Bank to transact business of an unsafe character. 2nd. The way in which "weak and unprincipled secretaries," spurred on by "a designing native director, Premchund Roychund," abused the powers conferred by that Act. 3rd. That the presidents and directors from 1863 to 1865 were nearly all "negligent and failed to do their duty," in respect of bye-laws and other things. 4th. That the times, being so exceptional, "required more than ordinary vigilance and care" on the part of all concerned. 5th. That the presidents and directors were neither "conversant with banking business," nor equal to the particular occasion. 6th. The absence of sound legal advice and assistance.

But what were the ruling powers about meanwhile, in Bombay, Bengal, and London? We have seen that the Government Directors were themselves deceived or powerless for good. Nor does the Bombay Government seem to have known or done better. The returns forwarded by the Bank were too misleading to awaken any tangible alarm. But early in 1865 some words of warning from Sir C. Wood drew Sir B. Frere's attention to the need of greater watchfulness. He consulted the Government Directors, but they, as we have seen, could do little to counteract their secretary's influence, even if they had been more conversant with their nominal duties. Mr. Lushington, one of the shrewdest among them, could only protest against the granting of loans on personal security. After the occurrence of the panic of June 1865, the Viceroy in Council demanded from Bombay a categorical answer to seven questions concerning the state of the Bank; and Sir C. Wood directed the Bombay Government to lose no time in restricting the business of the Bank in accordance with the rules observed at Calcutta and Madras. No direct reply was ever given to the former; but Sir B. Frere forwarded to the Indian Government a reassuring despatch addressed to the Secretary of State, and enclosing a report, no less inaccurate and misleading, from the Government directors. Of the Viceroy's seven queries one only was answered in the despatch; an omission which the Commissioners greatly regret, for "if the whole of them had been carefully answered, the crippled condition of the Bank would at once have been ascertained." Why they were never answered, the Report does not explain; but its silence cannot be taken as anyway flattering to Sir Bartle Frere and his colleagues. It is curious indeed to note how disquieting are the rumours that prevail in Simlah and London, while Bombay itself is still basking in its fool's paradise, serenely deaf to the moaning of a storm already at hand. Wherever else they may have been at fault, both Sir C. Wood and Sir J. Lawrence seem at any rate to have done their best to avert the catastrophe which the negligence of the Bombay Government helped to bring about.

A QUERY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Will any of your readers (who may be in a position to do so) obligingly solve this question through the columns of your paper—viz., Is a person in the invalid pension establishment in India amenable to military usages, such as trial by court-martial or military censure, for behaviour which would call for such procedure in the case of one in the service? For instance, could an officer, feeling himself aggrieved, apply (i.e., would it be the proper course to apply) to the Commander-in-Chief with the view of obtaining redress in the supposition of his Excellency having the power to enforce the delivery of an ample apology? But has the Commander-in-Chief, or the Commander-in-Chief of the Presidency, the power to do this in the case of an individual borne on the invalid pension establishment? That is the question, and I should feel obliged if any officer of experience would kindly give the desired information. I am myself rather of the opinion that there is no redress in such a case.—Yours, &c.,

AN INQUIRER.

The Buckhurst Volunteers. By J. M. Capes, M.A. Three Volumes. London: Tinsley Brothers. 1869.

In these days the demand for novels is so great, that the temptation to throw one's ideas and experiences into the form most likely to attract the largest audience leads many a writer into a path for which his former essays seemed hardly to indicate his special fitness. In some cases the result has justified the endeavour. Mr. Kingsley, for instance, almost persuades us to forget the preacher in the novelist. As a rule, however, the novel with a purpose wars against nature as much as it sins against art. You see the purpose, but you fail to detect the presence of any natural connection between the ideas and the mode of expressing them. It is one thing to have the gift of telling a good story, and quite another to write a suggestive essay on some topic of moral or political importance. In forsaking the sphere of an essayist for that of a novelist, the author of The Buckhurst Volunteers may be said to challenge a certain comparison between his former and his present self. We are led to expect much from a writer of his acknowledged abilities. This is not indeed his first appearance as a story-teller. In the Mosaic-worker's Daughter he had already broken ground in the new direction with a success to which several of his critics bore ungrudging witness. Of his second essay in the same line we are inclined on the whole to speak favourably. It is not, indeed, a book which takes hold at once of the reader's fancy. Dealing as it does with the every-day affairs of an ordinary country town in its most modern aspects, it neither piques curiosity by an intricate plot, nor commands attention from the first by brilliant dialogue or poetic scene-painting. The characters, also, do not readily distinguish themselves from each other to the reader's mental eye, and it takes one some time to discover the real heroes and heroines of the novel, if indeed one ever does solve that interesting problem with perfect satisfaction. Is Mary Grey the leading heroine? At first you think she must be, and your interest in her is mildly encouraged by evidence of the interest her neighbours take in the doings of the brave lady who prefers making her way by selling books and stationery to going out as a governess, the part usually chosen by the daughter of a poor or dead clergyman. All through the book her name is continually turning up; people fight about her as if she were the real centre of their daily interests; and from time to time she re-appears on the scene as a kind of beneficent fairy who disentangles knots and charms away impending hurricanes. Yet somehow, as so often happens in otherwise good novels, she never paints herself distinctly on the imagination. There is a want of outline about her for which all her reported virtues fail to compensate. She is not even guilty of falling in love with anybody, a weakness which, to the average reader, will often cover a multitude of shortcomings on the author's part. But Mr. Capes has evidently wished to do for once without much love-making—a very good idea, if some other passion or sentiment of equal force had been offered us in its stead.

George Harcourt again, though a very good fellow, seems even less lifelike than Miss Grey, although he has the advantage of falling among gypsies and getting a bullet wound in his leg. His chief use seems to be that of a lay-figure clothed in sundry scraps of the author's own philosophy, and useful as the mouthpiece of opinions which have not yet become current in ordinary society. In spite of our sympathy with much that he says in his pleasantly bumptious way, we could sometimes wish that, in the interests of art, he had kept a discreet silence, because in some parts of the book the purpose of its writing would then have been less obtrusive than it is now. And this undue prominence of the purpose interferes with the author's presentment of Captain Harcourt himself. The impression which his character was meant to convey differs greatly from the impression actually conveyed by his deeds and sayings. He is proud perhaps and disagreeable, but nothing he really does seems quite to justify the hatred felt for him by the volunteers in general, and yet more by the author himself. The ferment caused by his conduct has too much the character of a storm in a butterboat, and the thrashing he gets from Hugh Maurice has to our minds no adequate reason for its infliction.

The fuss made about Mary Grey in a town of thirteen or fourteen thousand inhabitants seems to us quite as improbable as the abduction of her two fellow-townsmen by a gang of gypsies of whose hiding places no one has the faintest suspicion. But we may excuse the improbability in either case for the sake of certain scenes to which it furnishes the occasion. It is unlikely that many people in so large a town would have troubled their heads about the propriety of a lady turning shopkeeper. But if they were to do so, we should have much the same kind of picture as that here presented, of vulgar curiosity, narrowmindedness, tittle-tattle, envy, and all uncharitableness. A vein of quiet comedy mixed with sly satire pervades most of the chapters devoted to the elaboration of such a picture. Wherever the Pethertons, the Leightons, the Misses Manby, are brought upon the scene, we are sure of getting some quiet fun out of the talk that goes on amongst them. Mr. Petherton, the pompous embodiment of clerical cant and conventional twaddle, is well contrasted both with the clear-headed rector of St. Bede's, and with his own wife, who treats his grandest utterances with delicious contempt, utterly ridiculing the idea of her being included in the apostolical injunction about wives being subject to their husbands. This lady indeed is the raciest personage in the book, and the way in which she keeps her husband in order behind the scenes, snubbing him without mercy and stripping him as it were of all his peacock's plumage, is delightful to contemplate. In chapters like that on "Conjugal Discussions" the author's dialogue shows him at his best, and his best is really very good. Sometimes, especially in the first volume, the dialogue would be improved by greater condensation. The commonplace talk of commonplace people ought, as a rule, to be left to the reader's imagination, or boiled down into a convenient compass. It is a mistake in art to be too natural in the reproduction of very small details. Mrs. Maurice's talk is quite another affair. In its wonderful discursiveness and long-winded incoherence, it forms too characteristic a feature to bear mutilation. We must have all of it or none. But no such excuse can be pleaded for some of the passages to which we refer, the speechmaking of the Volunteers not excepted.

In the latter half of the novel we are taken out of the region of everyday life into scenes of romantic interest. Apart from the question of probability, the adventure with the gypsies is related with much spirit, and leads up to an appropriate climax in the wrestling match between Hugh Maurice and Black Will, which crowns the athletic sports at Buckhurst with a glorious surprise, and secures for the winner a happy issue to his wooing. The more stirring interest of this part of the book is agreeably relieved by passages of domestic comedy, which evince no small capacity for playful humour and delicate observation.

MAGISTERIAL POWERS.—Under the provisions of sec. 445a of Act 8 of 1869, the Hon. the Lieut. governor of Bengal is pleased to invest all officers now exercising the powers described in Act 15 of 1862 with the powers described in the said section 445a of Act 8 of 1869, with effect from June 1, 1869.

THE TRADE OF CALCUTTA.

The Englishman thinks that the question lately raised by the correspondent of the Friend of India as to the effect upon the trade of Calcutta of the completion of railway communication between Allahabad and Bombay is a more important one than the comfortable silence with which it is received seems to indicate. It would be folly to conceal from ourselves the fact that, as regards certain classes of goods, Calcutta must to a great extent cease to be the port either of export or import for a great part of Upper India; and the importance of this fact will not be under-rated when it is remembered that of this class of goods piece goods are an item. Were it a mere question of railway traffic there would be nothing very serious about it, for the goods which will be diverted to the Bombay line do not form so considerable a proportion of that traffic that the deficiency will not be more than compensated by the natural increase of other classes of freight. But it is essentially a question of commercial prosperity; and looking at it in this light, we must say that the class of goods that will be diverted from Calcutta hold a comparatively much more important position. The value of piece goods as an item in our import trade, for instance, is almost in inverse ratio of their importance as a source of income to the East Indian Railway. As the correspondent of the Friend points out, the choice between the two ports will, until other lines of railway come into play, be determined by other considerations than that of mere distance. In point of mere distance Calcutta would still have the advantage over its younger rival; but the difference is not great enough to outweigh any considerable disadvantages. Do such disadvantages exist? The dangers of the Hooghly certainly do constitute a very serious drawback; but the expensiveness of the port is a still more serious consideration. Yet it is at this critical juncture that it has been determined to double the port charges on all ships frequenting Calcutta. Serious enough, under any circumstances, the additional impost is at this time a matter which demands the most anxious consideration at the hands of the mercantile community of Calcutta; and we must admit our surprise that its announcement has been received with the utmost apparent apathy. We still hope to see some movement made to protest strongly against a measure so fatal to the interests of our trade. If it be persisted in, the hopes of Port Canning ought not to revive; and we trust the Bengal Government will see the necessity of adopting a more vigorous and sympathising policy with reference to its encouragement. Let Canning be made as convenient, safe, and cheap a port as possible, there are still ample grounds for our looking about for the means of recouping ourselves for some necessary falling off in our trade on the opening of the line between Jubulpore and Nagpore. For such means we must look to the improvement of our communications with Northern and Eastern Bengal, and of our relations with Nepal and Bhotan, and to the development of Assam. In these matters we have omitted to take time by the forelock, and must pay the penalty by being left for some period at least in the lurch. The Friend's correspondent certainly somewhat exaggerates the amount of the loss with which we are threatened, when he represents one-third of our traffic to be at stake, since, with regard to heavy goods, Bombay can never compete with Calcutta, since it would not pay to carry them by rail; but the loss with which we are really threatened needs no exaggeration to invest it with the most vital importance. As far as regards passenger traffic, we suppose Calcutta must make up her mind once and for all to lose her position as the rendezvous of travellers to and from Europe, and this will, in itself, be a heavy loss.

STATION TALK.

SIMLA, May 28.—An extraordinary report has got into circulation that Lady Mayo is going shortly to England, and the Viceroy to Barrackpore. It is a pure invention, wholly untrue, and never had a shadow of foundation. News has reached the Government of India that Azim Khan and Abdool Rahmaan Khan have turned back from Meshed to Teheran, and are the guests of the Shah. The opinion in official quarters is that their fortunes are so broken that they will not make any attempt on Turkestan. Their presence at Teheran is, however, suggestive of two very opposite, though equally pregnant considerations. The Shah may have invited them to that capital in accordance with the advice of the British Envoy, Mr. Alison, and their status there may be that of political detenus. Or they may have gone to Teheran to plot and arrange a Persian descent on Herat, which, under their leadership, the Shah might defy the British Envoy to prove he had had anything to do with. That the Persian regards with longing eye not only Herat, but a far larger slice of Western Afghanistan, is beyond question. The troops of the Shah have long been in Seistan, and their most advanced post is on the River Helmund, about 200 miles east of its debouchure into Lake Seistan, and at about an equal distance southwest of the important Afghan town of Ghirishk, on the road to Candahar. Neither Lord Mayo nor Shere Ali, if report speaks truly, regards this vicinage of the Persian with satisfaction; and should they insist on his going to the right-about, and abandoning Seistan, the Shah will be forced to obey. The Simla season of 1869 is to be a "very, very," lively and pleasant one. The Countess of Mayo, it is said, is determined that the viceregal festivities shall be frequent, brilliant, and agreeable to all. Private theatricals and amateur concerts there are to be periodically, and flower shows, fancy fairs, archery meetings, are things whose poster advertisements greet you in every Simla shop you enter. The place is very full, and yet a large number of ardent young men, and incorrigible grey beards, have been leaving this daily for long trips into the interior, with thirty coolies each to carry their necessary luggage, and an additional ten, heavily laden with pots of jam. Cashmere, at any rate, will be crowded this year, and the gondoliers of Sirinuggur and the hill coolies generally will do a thriving trade. Men are now in the Valley who have gone there from the far southern parts of the Madras Presidency, for—a season's fishing.

GHAZEEPORE, May 21.—Cholera and small-pox are to a great extent still prevailing in the city and its suburbs, and during the past week upwards of twenty cases were brought to my knowledge, of which five or six were fatal. The weather is extremely hot, owing to the incessant easterly wind. Thanks are due to Mr. Pasley, magistrate, who has made all sanitary arrangements for the location of the koerees (opium cultivators), who came in numbers into the station to deliver their produce, and are now returning to their homes. There being no rain as yet, a thing which is greatly needed by the cultivators, who are daily on the look-out for a shower, the prices of eatables have greatly risen, and the poor are suffering very much. Mr. Wilton Oldham, LL.D., the joint magistrate of this district, who was entrusted with the preparation of the statistical account of the district, is busily engaged in getting through the work. It is expected that the report will be an excellent one, as the pains which he takes in its preparation clearly shows that the work will be one highly deserving of his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor's commendation. Such a valuable and painstaking officer must be well-suited to write the account of a large city like Benares, where there are so many relics of antiquity, requiring inquiry and description.

DALHOUSIE, May 31.—This year we have about 500 European soldiers, made up from the 92nd, 38th, and 85th Regiments, who are working at the military road in three different parties. They presented rather a seedy appearance as they marched up, but I notice in the short time they have been up here that the climate as well as manual labour has improved them wonderfully. A deplorable accident happened to a soldier of the 38th a few days back. It would appear that a portion of the bank he was working at fell on him, mutilating the lower portion of his body frightfully. The poor fellow died shortly after in great agony. I must not neglect to mention an entertainment, the only one up to the present that one might consider public, the boys of the Dalhousie School gave on the night of the 28th inst., and to attend which I received an invitation. It was graced with nearly all the beauty and fashion of our little station, among whom I noticed our much respected General's wife. Considering it is the first time that any of the boys had come before the public in such a manner, I think that the performance was on the whole a success. I am informed that a party of fifty men from the 92nd Highlanders are to clear the site for the new church. This looks something like business, and it is to be hoped that no time will be lost in filling up what has long been a crying want. The General has left for Dhurmsala on his tour of inspection, and, as the heat has been unusually great, I am sure he deserves great praise for his indefatigable devotion to duty in such trying weather. The barracks, since the arrival of our new and energetic Executive Engineer, are being pushed on to completion rapidly, and they will be a welcome treat to the soldiers to remove into. The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner are both here, and will probably remain for the season, as they have taken houses.

CHUNAR, June 2.—A funeral procession from beneath the Fort, which conveyed to its final repose the remains of Mr. William Burke, superintendent of coal mines in the Rewah territory, was seen wending its slow course athwart the plain towards the cemetery during a violent storm, which considerably retarded their progress, slow as it generally happens to be; notwithstanding this serious impediment to their attendance, the neighbours, with their wonted kindness, congregated, and, buffeting the storm, performed the last offices to the dead with as good a will as could be expected of them. Although Mr. Burke had been suffering from some chronic disease up to the time of his decease, I fancy this was not the immediate cause of death, which in my opinion was accelerated in consequence of the unprecedented heat which has hitherto prevailed. There have been several deaths in the station from heat apoplexy, and a singular one is related of a native being found dead in a recumbent posture by a passer by somewhere near the fort. By the side of a frequented road a peon, with badge on, was observed leaning against a post, as if taking a nap. This being no uncommon sight during such trying weather, when over-exertion or exposure is invariably attended with serious results, no notice was taken of him for some time. At last a humane individual passing by, not being satisfied with a cursory glance, stopped to contemplate the scene, and actuated by motives of brotherly feeling went to arouse the unfortunate individual from his lethargy, as he thought, when to his great surprise, on shaking the body to awake the sleeper, he found it a veritable corpse!

JUBBULPORE, May 31.—This month has closed without rain, though we needed it sadly, for the heat that we have had has been unprecedented and unbearable. The night before last hot winds from the north-west set in about twelve o'clock, and kept up for twenty hours. There have been a few deaths of Europeans, but none from cholera, which was rife here not long ago; one of the Europeans is said to have died from heat apoplexy. Our pauze, Mr. Willis, got a touch of cholera a week or so ago; but I am happy to say is at his work again, and long may he be spared to his endeared little flock. The public offices here are held from 6 A.M. to 12 noon, and I am told everybody prefers the change but the native employees, who prefer to attend from 10 to 4, as they are the hottest hours of the day, and they would then get the use of the office punkahs and tatties, two luxuries which are now denied them; as they enjoy tatties only from 10 to 12, and have to grill at home the rest of the day, none of their houses having been built so as to admit of the use of tatties and punkahs. Suitors like the change in hours, as they are not kept in the sun all day. Mr. Morris, the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, has come in, and is going on a tour to the famine-stricken tracts in the Jubbulpore district, "to see what he can see." I am told he will be startled at the sad state of things. Lieutenant Boyes, adjutant of the 2-12th, has gone on leave to Cashmere; Captain Way, station staff, will soon go to the hills, Simla, and Captain Baker, of the 2-12th, will act for him.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CLERICAL.—The Rev. Charles Edward Wheeler has been appointed to officiate as chaplain of Cawnpore, during the absence on leave of the Rev. M. E. Mills.

DEATH OF MR. WOODS.—We regret to learn that Mr. David Woods, the deputy secretary and treasurer of the Bank of Bengal, died suddenly at Calcutta on the 3rd ult., of apoplexy.

JUBBULPORE.—Captain Ward, Deputy Commissioner, rather astonished Jubbulpore the other morning by knocking over a tiger near the tomb of the late Mr. Boddington.

DURBAR TO BE AT AGRA.—There appears, from a Calcutta contemporary, to be a rumour that the 2nd January has been fixed as the date for the great Agra Durbar; but that this arrangement is subject to confirmation by the winds and waves of the Eastern seas.

ENGLISH OFFICERS IN CHINA.—It is said that the Chinese authorities are offering large sums to Europeans of military experience to join the Imperial forces. The Peking Government is, it is believed, in great fear of further encroachment by Russia.

SUBATHOO.—The silver mine which has been discovered at Subathoo has now been found to yield one part of silver to four parts of lead. This is even a more encouraging result than was anticipated.

SIMLA.—The Viceroy intends shortly, it is said, to make a trip into the interior, and may possibly proceed as far as Cheenec, if the weather permit. The distance from Simla to Cheenec is 141½ miles. The Countess of Mayo started from Simla on a short trip to the interior on the morning of the 25th May, accompanied by Mrs. Bax Ironside. They were to go only as far as Nagkunda, it is believed.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE FURLOUGH RULES.—It is expected that the Committee appointed to revise the Uncovenanted Service Furlough Rules will shortly submit another report. The Committee, our readers will remember, consists of Mr. E. C. Bayley, President, and Messrs. G. H. M. Batten, G. S. Fagan, G. W. Kellner, and Kumar Hurrendra Krishna.

THE GREAT HEAT.—A letter from Jhansi, dated the 31st May, says:—"A soldier of H.M.'s 93rd Highlanders died from heat apoplexy on the 29th, and another man fell down dead yesterday while on sentry, from coup de soleil. Among the natives—both in the city and in the district—deaths from these two causes are numerous. If it does not rain soon I do not know what will become of us."—The heat is said to have been greater lately all over the Punjab than it has been for some years back.—We notice an announcement of the death at Allahabad, from heat apoplexy, of Mr. F. Flouest, a well-known indigo planter.

THE RHEEA PLANT.—It appears from the proceedings of the Agri-Horticultural Society of India, at the recent meeting in Calcutta, that it is almost hopeless, at least in the absence of suitable machinery to clean the fibre, to make the cultivation of the Rheea plant pay in India. There can be no question of the value of the fibre as a material from which textile fabrics of the finest and best quality can be manufactured, but the cost of cleaning and preparing the fibre is represented to be so great as to render nugatory all other advantages, although when cleaned the fibre would command a price of £70 per ton in England.—Pioneer.

THE EX-AMEER OF CABUL.—News is stated to have reached the Government of India that Azim Khan and Abdool Rahman have turned back from Meshed to Teheran, where they are the guests of the Shah. Their fortunes are so broken that it is probable they will not make any attempt on Turkistan.

ORIENTAL MSS.—Government has sanctioned the grant of 1000 rupees, to aid in the preparation, by Mr. J. H. Blochmann, of a catalogue raisonné of the collection of Arabic and Persian MSS., bought at Delhi (from the Prize Agents, by Major Nassau Lees) on account of Government, after the capture of the city in 1857, and now deposited in the Calcutta Madrisa.

SHERE ALI AND THE HILL CHIEFS.—The Amcer Shere Ali has, says the Pioneer, agreed to restore their allowances as of old to the Mullicks of the Khyber and to Meer Akhor Ahmed Khan of Jellalabad, on condition that they keep the Pass open. The allowance is to be given as soon as two or three caravans shall have passed backwards and forwards in safety. Sooltan Mahomed Khan of Lal-poor is to have a share of the Khyber duties.

BOKHARA.—According to the Pioneer it is reported that the King of Bokhara has consented to pay an annual tribute of 70,000 gold tillas to Russia. The King is at present, however, suffering from a tightness in the chest. A Russian agent had arrived for the tribute, and the King made over to him 20,000 tillas, the amount then in his treasury, and referred him to the merchants of Bokhara for payment of the remainder. The merchants refused point blank, and the King was compelled to have recourse to his army to raise the amount by a forced contribution from his subjects, in addition to the ordinary revenue.

THE WAHABEE CONSPIRACY.—We (Friend of India) believe that Lord Mayo has determined to deal effectually with the Wahabee conspiracy. The ringleaders, caught by Mr. W. H. Reilly some months ago, are now being tried at Patna—the third State trial of the kind in five years. So long as General McCleverty commands the Madras army he will probably continue to provoke panics like that which lately excited Vellore, by prophesying smooth things. But Government ought to direct its attention to the Wahabees, who now find a sympathising asylum in the feudatory States. In Tonk, for instance, there is a powerful Wahabee faction disaffected to the core.

OPIMUM.—The cultivation of poppy, says the Indian Daily News, is to be largely increased in the Bengal Presidency, and at once, in consequence of the proclamation of the Emperor of China, prohibitory of opium cultivation in any part of the imperial dominions, the issue of which we lately notified to our readers. The abandoned agencies of Seetapore and Rohilkund are to be immediately re-opened at a net increased charge of Rs. 4,000 a month. The fixed annual quantity of provision opium is to be 48,000 chests, with, in addition, a reserve of 10,000 chests to be gradually provided. The consequent necessary orders have been issued in time for the cultivation of 1869-70.

CIVIL.—Sir Donald McLeod left Lahore, on the 25th May, for Murree. The capital of the Punjab, such as it is, is now deserted, a dozen officers, whose work compels them to stay in the plains, alone remaining, and the heat is described as extreme and prostrating. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces left Nagpore on a tour through the districts on the 28th May. His presence is, we believe, required at Jubbulpore. Mr. Chisholm is to be appointed pucca Deputy Commissioner of Raepore, to fill the vacancy caused by the lamented death of the late incumbent, Captain Twyford.—Central India Times.—Sir William Muir was to leave Allahabad for Nynce Tal on Saturday, May 29, and to halt at Cawnpore, Meerut, and Moradabad on the way.—It is stated that Mr. Bax Ironside, C.B., has been selected to fill the appointment of Third Judge of the Chief Court of the Punjab.

A LOOSHAI DEFEAT.—Particulars have been received of an attack recently made on a camp of armed Looshais by a party of friendly Kookies of the Khoongjai tribe, who were sent by the Rajah of Manipore towards the Looshai country to gain information of what was going on; the number thus sent was 110, and they had ninety muskets with them. The Khoongjais started from Moiraug to the south-west of the Manipore Valley, and proceeding by what is called the Cheklapye route, saw no traces of the Looshais for four days. Very early in the morning of the fifth day, before daylight, they came up with a body of about 150 Looshais encamped, and all fast asleep with the exception of one man. After a brief consultation the Khoongjais determined upon at once attacking them, and it was arranged that the whole number should fire two volleys of musketry and then rush on the enemy with their daos. This was done, and so complete was the surprise that the Looshais were perfectly paralysed, and tried to save themselves by flight. In all, forty of them were killed, including, it is supposed, two chiefs; many also were wounded, but escaped into the jungle. The Looshais have threatened to invade Manipore after the new moon, but the loss inflicted on them by this party—men of their own blood and language—will no doubt have a salutary effect, inasmuch as it will show that, after raiding and murdering inoffensive men, women and children they must expect reprisals. Every preparation has been made to meet the Looshais in the event of their being rash enough to invade the Manipore Valley.

PRESIDENCY COLLEGE.—The appointment of a Professor of English Literature and Mathematics at the Presidency College at Madras, on a salary of Rs. 1,000 a month, rising to Rs. 1,200 by an annual increase of Rs. 50, has been sanctioned by the Government of India.

A PERSIAN RAID ON CANDAHAR.—We (Pioneer) have received some particulars of the late Persian raid on Candahar. It appears that some 3,000 Persian sowers who were encamped in Seistan made an incursion into Candahar territory, and carried off 1,000 head of cattle and sheep. Sirdah Sher Ali Khan, Governor of Candahar, then addressed the commandant of the sowers, and represented that unless restitution were speedily made hostilities would ensue. The Governor's request was being complied with when Azim Khan and Abdool Rahman made their appearance on the scene. They persuaded the commandant not to restore the plundered cattle, on the ground that the Ameer Sher Ali had become subservient to the British Government, that he had gone to give his bond to Lord Mayo, and that Afghanistan had become a land of infidels in consequence.

RANGOON.—Letters from the capital up to May 9 state that the Burmese officials seem to have set their minds against the establishment of Captain Sladen's Court, and neither the King nor Government will move now to co-operate with the British Agent in opening it. Captain Sladen arranged everything on the faith of Royal promises, he having understood that he would be seconded in every way, but the King, whose broken faith was made so manifest when Captain Sladen's expedition started for Western China, now says that his Ministers are not agreed amongst themselves as to details, and that they cannot select a proper person to sit with the British Agent for the trial of mixed suits. The Rangoon Gazette thinks we ought to resent this conduct, as well as the perfidious treatment of our Bhamo expedition, and trusts that Earl Mayo will pursue a more vigorous policy with regard to Upper Burmah than his predecessor, Sir John Lawrence. The King is known in Mandalay to be collecting as many of his troops as he can on the British frontier, and all along the course of the Irrawaddy. His Ministers are astounded at the gradual growth of British influence in the country, and advise the King strongly to oppose us advancing further in any way. The King, it is added, is no fool, but he may be led away by the unprincipled villains by whom he is surrounded.

LOSS OF A STEAMER.—The loss of the steamer Vulcan is reported from Rangoon. She towed the ship Lancashire Witch to sea on the afternoon of May 13, and after casting her off, anchored for the night near the light-vessel. Towards morning of the 14th it began to blow fiercely from the S.E.E., and a heavy sea got up, which, running fair on the broadside of the vessel, caused her to roll and lurch fearfully. One of her planks under the sponson started a butt, and the water poured in at such a rate that the fires were extinguished, and eventually the vessel filled and went down 4½ miles S.W. of the light-ship. Some of the crew escaped in the steamer's boat, and the remainder were picked up in the light-ship's boat and sent to town, where they arrived on the evening of the 15th. Messrs. Todd Finlay and Co.'s steamer Nagpore also met with an accident, having got "hogged" slightly while being launched from the patent slip. On the morning of the 12th May Rangoon was visited by a short but very severe thunderstorm. The weather for some days before had been most oppressive, and at about 6 A.M. on the 12th the storm burst over the town. The only serious accident reported has been the entrance of two bolts into the house occupied by Mr. M. R. Cowie, who was just thinking about "getting up," when the noise and uproar, usually accompanying "electrical operations," threw him over from his back on to his face.—Madras Times.

MILITARY.—Captain the Hon. H. J. L. Wood, 10th Hussars (a son of Lord Halifax), has joined the personal staff of Lord Mayo, at Simla, as A.D.C.—One or two deaths from cholera having occurred in the 2-12th Regiment at Jubbulpore, a portion of the corps has been sent into camp.—We regret to hear of the death, at Hazareebaugh, of Major Gordon Higgins, of H.M.'s 107th Regiment.—Again cholera has laid hold of H.M.'s 58th Regiment at Allahabad in the new barracks. The regiment has, in consequence, been broken up into detachments, and quartered in the Clydesdale, Mansfield, and Chatham lines.—The following transfers in the Quartermaster-General's department are ordered:—Major B. H. Pottinger, Acting Assistant Quartermaster-General, from Ahmedabad to Poona; Captain J. G. Watts, Acting Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, from Poona to Ahmedabad.—Which statement are we to believe? We saw it stated in an up-country contemporary the other day that the troops at Peshawur were remarkably healthy; now, the Delhi Gazette hears that sickness is on the increase there, and that the 104th Regt., lately returned from the Hills, have upwards of 100 cases in hospital.—A most melancholy occurrence is reported from Seetapore. On May 28 Lieut. Wainwright, F Battery, 8th Brigade R.A., died of hydrophobia. His sufferings were very great, but he is said to have "borne them like a soldier and a Christian." Lieutenant Wainwright was a very promising young officer, and his death will be widely regretted.—We learn that the annual reliefs have been so ordered that the movements of many of the corps will dovetail in with the arrangements necessary for the great durbar at Agra, on the first of January, 1870, at which it has been resolved that there shall be present six batteries of artillery, three regiments of British cavalry, three of Native cavalry, six of British infantry, and eight of Native infantry.—The Lucknow paper records a very sad accident to Captain Thackwell, of the 5th Lancers, while out tiger shooting at Bulrampore. The following is our contemporary's account:—A short time ago Captain Chaffey, of the same regiment, accompanied Captain Thackwell out tiger-hunting, and having met with no success for some days, they were rather disheartened. But they were not long kept so, when they got information of the vicinity of a tiger, and, in their eagerness to get a shot, they dismounted from their elephant to seek the monster on foot. They discovered the brute in some thick jungle, when Captain Thackwell managed to put two bullets into him, but this not proving sufficient for him, and he becoming maddened with the wounds he received, sprang on the pair and succeeded in fastening himself on Captain Thackwell, injuring his shoulder and thigh very severely. Captain Chaffey in this emergency behaved very pluckily; going up to the tiger he shot him dead, though not without greatly risking the life of his unfortunate friend, who lay helpless in the clutches of the furious beast. We hear that Captain Thackwell is being conveyed into Lucknow. We hope this disaster is not so great as it is given out." The Pioneer mentions a very serious accident which occurred to Dr. Dillon, garrison surgeon of Allahabad. The accident is said to have occurred in this way:—Dr. Dillon was going out for a ride; his horse, a rather restive animal, began to jump and prance before he was fairly in the saddle, and threw him to the ground. The doctor fell on the back of his head with much force; he has been insensible ever since (adds our contemporary), and is still, we regret to say, in a precarious state.

STATION TALK.

VELLORE, May 24.—The intense excitement which lately prevailed in our agitated little station has partly subsided, and reason has once more asserted her sway over intellects which fear had previously paralysed. A few days ago we had only too much food for correspondence, now there is nothing to write about. The affair which caused so much consternation in our burgh originated, as I told you before, in a row between the two rival Mahomedan sects of the place; the more fanatic taunting the quieter portion of our Mussulman population, saying that the latter were afraid of the Feringhees, and dare not join them in exterminating the hated foreigners, until at last the feud ran so high that one sect "reported" the other. Then there has been a strange subadar, who never reported his arrival, living in the lines of the 28th Regiment, together with a moulvie from Madras, and these two worthies have been doing their best to unsettle the minds of the sepoys. The subadar was simply walked off, and the moulvie was made to give bail. The proceedings of the Court of Inquiry have been kept a mystery, though why there should be this secrecy no "feller" knows. As a natural consequence curiosity has been busy with her version of the story, which is to the effect that several of the men of the regiment are deeply concerned in the fanatical movement that was to have exterminated us. All, however, appears quiet now. The Pensioners have returned their arms into stores. But, for all that, we feel that we cannot be too watchful.

YERCAUD, May 29.—We are having glorious weather up here, and our "season," though uneventful, is still a very pleasant one. We take our pleasures in a more quiet way than the dwellers in larger and more ostentatious hill stations, but, for all that they are none the less real. As far, therefore, as people are concerned I have nothing to chronicle that would interest any one else. As regards the weather, I am glad to be able to record that we had three splendid downpours on the nights of Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday last. You cannot tell how gloriously green everything looks, and how cool—if not positively cold—every one feels. But what can you poor dried up Madrasians know of such things? It is as cruel to talk to such torrid beings of coolness as it would be to expatiate on the beauties of sunshine to a blind man.—Athenæum Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

THE BAR.—Mr. Henry Gordon Atkinson has been enrolled an attorney of the Madras High Court.

BACHELOR STUDENTS.—Three bachelor studentships, of the value of Rs. 70 a month, and tenable for three years, have been sanctioned by the Madras Government, and ordered to be established at once. Lord Napier is of opinion that it may fairly be expected that some of the wealthy and enlightened natives of the Presidency will follow the example set by the Government.

THE CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—The anniversary of this institution was held on the evening of May 31, in the hall of the college. The Right. Hon. the Governor presided, and a large number of gentlemen were present. The proceedings were begun by Captain Edgecombe reading his report, from which the following facts are taken:—At the commencement of the session there were 118 students on the rolls of the college, and at its close 98. Of this number sixteen are military students. The average number on the rolls monthly has been ninety-four, and the average daily attendance eighty-eight.

DEATH OF SERGEANT-MAJOR MEDLEY.—A correspondent writing from Secunderabad says that Sergeant Major Medley, 18th Hussars, died suddenly on the night of the 17th May from sunstroke. He was in his usual spirits, and parted from his comrades in apparently good health. This melancholy event happening so suddenly has thrown a gloom over his brother sergeants, by whom he was much esteemed and respected. The whole of the staff sergeants and sergeants of the 2nd and 2-25th attended the funeral, to pay the last tribute to their departed comrade. The weather in Secunderabad is insupportably hot, and during the last ten days the thermometer has risen daily to 104 degrees in the shade.

THE REV. J. BAMFORTH.—A meeting was held on Wednesday, May 26, at Bishop Cotton's School, Bangalore, for the purpose of presenting an address and a piece of plate to the Rev. John Bamforth, who, for the last two years, has been Principal of that institution, and has successfully presided over it, and promoted its interests during that time. A fairer field and brighter prospects allure him to his native country, which, if not so sunny, is more congenial than the one he leaves. He takes with him about a dozen of his pupils, whose parents are anxious to continue them under his care. In him the Madras University will lose one of its most sedulous examiners; the pulpits of Bangalore will lose an attractive preacher, who was always ready to assist his clerical brethren in time of need; the scholars of the Cotton School will lose a wise preceptor and a warm friend; the social circle in which he moved will lose a courteous and an accomplished gentleman.—Athenæum.

MILITARY.—The Madras Athenæum hears from Coonoor that his Excellency General McCleverty is seriously indisposed. He is said to be suffering from fever, the result, it is fancied by some wiseacres who will have a reason for everything they hear, of the severe shock which he experienced when he was thrown from his horse the other day.—We regret to announce the death, at the Presidency yesterday, of Surgeon H. C. Brodrick, the Acting Superintendent of the Eye Infirmary. Doctor Brodrick entered the Medical Department fifteen years ago, and saw some severe service with the Central India Field Force in 1858. He was attached to the Rajpootana Brigade of that force, and, with it, was present at the battle of Kotahka-serai, and the subsequent operations which ended in the battle and capture of Gwalior. He was afterwards placed in charge of Mayne's Horse, and served with the Malwa Field Force under Sir John Michel at the general action of Sindwaho and the skirmish of Korai. Sir Robert Napier's flying column was then placed under his charge, and he served with it during the operations against Tantia Topee, Feroze Shah, and others, and was present at the action of Nainwass, and at several other minor affairs. During the pursuit after Tantia Topee he was struck with coup de soleil, from the effects of which he never quite recovered. About twelve days ago he was suddenly and hopelessly attacked by paralysis, and succumbed to the disease yesterday morning. He was buried in the evening in Saint Mary's Cemetery, with military honours, and was followed to his last resting place by a large number of the officers of the garrison, and by many of his old comrades.—Athenæum, June 2.

THE GOVERNMENT NORMAL SCHOOL.—The anniversary of this institution was celebrated on the evening of May 29th. Lord Napier presided, and there was a good attendance of visitors. The proceedings were begun with an address by the Director of Public Instruction. A criticism lesson was then given. One of the Normal students taught a class lesson, and when it was over the other students criticised his manner of teaching. Mr. Bickle wound up his part of the proceeding by making his remarks on the teaching of the student. The subject which the student was called upon to teach was English. Considering the circumstances under which he gave the lesson he acquitted himself very fairly. After the prizes were distributed, his lordship congratulated Mr. Powell, Mr. Bickle, and the masters of the institution upon the fact that the Normal School had improved, and was in a satisfactory condition. It would be idle of him to talk of the importance of this and other Normal Schools. The importance was sufficiently felt. Could his lordship reflect on the measure by which it was proposed to extend the work of education without feeling that when the development of popular education should take place, there would not be a lack of funds or a want of teachers, but the difficulty would be to obtain able teachers; therefore, it behoved all those connected with the Normal Schools to see to their advancement. Thanks were due to Mr. Powell for having communicated the facts with regard to the establishment of a Female Normal School. The scheme Mr. Powell had alluded to had not come before his lordship officially. He could not, therefore, make any engagements, but he was certain that when the scheme should come before Government Mr. Powell's suggestions and opinions would receive a careful consideration. His lordship was thankful for the opportunity that had been afforded him to preside at the meeting, which then broke up.

ARRIVAL OF THE MAIL STEAMER "GOLCONDA."

The P. and O. S. N. Co.'s steamer Golconda, Captain Charles Wilkinson, bringing the English mail of the 14th May, arrived in the harbour this (Tuesday) morning about eight o'clock. She left Suez at 4.20 A.M. on the 23rd May, arrived at Aden at 4.50 P.M. on the 28th, and resumed her voyage at 11.44 P.M. the same day. The voyage has thus taken sixteen days four hours. The Golconda came in under sail by herself. The Behar, which went out yesterday morning in search of her, has not yet returned.

We learn that it was 3.13 A.M. on the 3rd, while the ship was in lat. 16 N. long. 60 E., that the after crank broke. The Golconda then proceeded under sails. At daylight she saw the Krishna; and there being very little wind, and that from the N.N.E., she signalled the Krishna, who came alongside and took her in tow. The hawsers however broke three times. At five in the afternoon it came on squally, and there was a very heavy sea. At half-past ten o'clock both the hawsers parted, when, the weather being very hazy, the Golconda hove to, with the object of waiting till morning for the Krishna to take her in tow again. About three o'clock on the morning of the 4th the Krishna burned a blue light, which was answered, but the Krishna was not seen after that. At half-past seven Captain Wilkinson tried to get the ship before the wind, when a heavy squall struck her and blew away the foretop-sail and foresail. The ship broached to again. The weather being still very unsettled and the barometer not rising, Captain Wilkinson determined to lay to till the weather should clear up. During the night the weather moderated, but there were still very heavy squalls. At four o'clock on Saturday morning the weather cleared; the maintop-sail was shifted forward, close reefed, and the fore-sail and foretop-mast stay-sail reefed. The ship was then got before the wind. At ten A.M. out reefs; the sea was striking the ship from the quarter. In the afternoon the weather moderated, and on Sunday there was fine weather. From the time the accident occurred till late last night the engineers were at work day and night, assisted by two passengers, named Head and Simpson, who were coming out for the Government Dock, in preparing a strap for the crank. The breakage was patched up by ten o'clock, but as there was a strong fair wind the captain did not deem it prudent to run the risk of using the engines, and came in under sail. When the ship got up to the buoy in the harbour, the engines were tried, and went well.

The Golconda has experienced extraordinary weather throughout the whole voyage. It had been very hot, with a tremendous swell, but she did not come into the south-westerly wind till they got into the gale.—Times of India, June 8.

STATION TALK.

KURRACHEE, May 29.—The number of our monetary institutions is getting small by degrees and beautifully less. At one time we boasted of no fewer than seven banking establishments, namely, the Sind, Punjab and Delhi, which was established under the auspices of Mr. W. P. Andrew; the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China; the Agra; the Comptoir des Comptes de Paris; the Punjab; the Oriental, and the Bank of Bombay. The first named closed in 1866 on its amalgamation with the National Bank of India; the Chartered withdrew in 1868 owing to expectations being disappointed; the Agra collapsed during the cotton mania; the Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris Agency is no longer heard of; and now the Punjab, which not long ago fell into bad odour through the misdeeds of its cashier, has determined to withdraw and extend its operations elsewhere. Next month we shall only have the newly-constituted Agra, which commands general confidence and a first-class business under the able administration of its popular manager (Mr. Marescaux); the Oriental, which now confines itself to simply exchange operations and the receiving of fixed deposits; and the new Bank of Bombay. It must not, however, be supposed from this that the Province is retrograding. Taking everything into consideration, we have abundant reason for congratulation. The state of our general trade is satisfactory, and the Port holds a high reputation in the commercial world, whatever our detractors may say to the contrary. As soon as the long-talked of "missing link" is established, the tide will begin to set in in our favour in right earnest, and our prosperity will then undoubtedly advance further than it hitherto has done.

May 29.—Thanks to the energetic manner in which the operations in connection with our harbour works are being carried out, the difficulties of ingress and egress are already disappearing, and before long there is no doubt vessels of heavy draught will be able to cross the bar without the slightest danger. Last Wednesday the Louisa—a ship drawing 20 feet 4 inches—was towed into harbour with the greatest ease through the inner channel, which had 24 feet of water in it at the time. This, it is officially declared, is the first attempt of the kind with a ship of such heavy draught, and may be received as satisfactory evidence of what is being done to improve the harbour. If the works in progress continue to improve the inner channel, there will probably be no necessity hereafter to use the eastern channel for the purposes of navigation. The former has an advantage over the latter by being protected from the monsoon swell by the Manora rocks.—Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

MILITARY.—His Excellency Lord Napier of Magdala left Poona on the 28th May for Maunader Deo, where he arrived on the morning of the 29th, to inspect the place, and if possible decide upon a site for barracks for a British regiment, an object his lordship has had constantly before him for now three years. Paunchgunny is regarded by some people as being preferable to Maunader Deo, so his Excellency rode over to that place on the 30th and minutely inspected the sites available there. We believe his Excellency the Governor would also have visited Maunader Deo had the heavy storms that came on not prevented him. From Paunchgunny his lordship proceeded to Poona, where he arrived on the morning of the 2nd ult., and must have travelled all night under a heavy rain. How he managed to cross the Krishna at Waiee, deep and swollen as that river must have been, we are not aware. Animals at least must have been made to swim across. With the Commander-in-Chief were Colonel Dillon, Colonel Gell, and Captain Scott. Major-General the Hon. A. Gordon, C.B., Commanding the P.D.A., has returned to Poona, and the whole of the divisional staff are now in Poona.

IRON NEAR MAHABLESHWUR.—Not everybody knows that iron ore is dug and worked in the Ghats near Mahableshwur, yet we are assured such is the case, the excessive cost of production notwithstanding. Some of our geologists should look into the matter again, for it is possible that the native metal might be produced cheaply enough for common agricultural purposes. The other day a gentleman at the head of one of the Poona colleges happened to discover the metallurgists at work on the Ghat, and was able to suggest a change in the method of working—the use of some chemical agent, we believe—the adoption of which at once increased the yield of metal from ore by twenty-five per cent. on former results. Now we take it this incident is, in little, an illustration of what an all but unworked field there may be in India for the triumphs of the practical chemist. Chemistry is one of the Western sciences to which the Hindoo, for some cause or other, has not as yet taken kindly, and there is no knowing what valuable secrets are waiting the touch and the prying eye of the native experimenter.—Times of India.

ALLOWANCES ON PROMOTION, C.S.

May 25.—No. 743.—The following letter to the secretary to the Government of Bengal is published:—

"I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 1,226, dated March 30, 1869, and, in reply, to state that the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to sanction the following addition to the rules contained in the letter No. 3,429, addressed to you from this department on December 8, 1868:—

"When an officer who is temporarily promoted from a lower to a higher acting appointment is relieved of the higher, and, within the time allowed by the rules, rejoins the lower acting appointment from which he was promoted, or joins any other acting appointment of not inferior emolument, his allowances, from the date of his being so relieved to the date of his so joining, shall be passed at the rate at which he was drawing in the officiating appointment from which he was taken to officiate in the higher appointment."

No. 788.—The Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to concede to junior covenanted civil servants, uncovenanted officers selected for offices in India by H.M.'s Secretary of State for India, and all other officers paid by the civil department, the indulgence of drawing, on their first arrival in India, an advance of pay for the current month, and one month more up to a maximum of Rs. 1,000, subject to recovery by monthly instalments of one-third of salary.

Advances issued by the Home Government to officers in the civil department returning to India from leave, or coming out on appointment to the public service, shall also be recovered by monthly instalments of one-third of salary.

DRESS—EQUIPMENT.

Head Qrs., Simla, May 5.—No. 120.—With reference to G.O. No. 114, dated April 2, 1868, the C. in C. is pleased to notify that the Government of India has sanctioned the following alterations in the dress and equipment of the 2nd, 3rd, and 13th Bengal cavalry regiments:—

2nd Bengal Cavalry.—The European officers are permitted to wear a green patrol jacket, and green overalls.

2nd, 3rd, and 13th Bengal Cavalry.—Horse Appointments.—The tips, slides, buckles, bosses, &c., of the horse appointments to be of white plated metal, instead of brass, as laid down in the order above quoted.

This alteration will take effect when the existing equipment is worn out and requires renewal.

PAY—COMMANDS.

Head Qrs., Simla, May 5.—In modification of G.G.O. No. 156 of 1848, and G.G.O. No. 720 of 1854, the following letter from the military department to the controller of military accounts, No. 476, of April 22, 1869, is published for general information:—

"I am directed to acknowledge your letter, No. 1,909e, dated March 19, 1869, submitting a reference as to whether a brigadier-general, transferred for the public service from one command to another, is entitled while in transit to his full staff allowance.

In reply, I am to acquaint you that the Government of India in the military department concur with you in thinking that an officer so situated is entitled to full staff salary in transit, the period reckoning, however, as part of the tour of five years.

"The above decision will of course govern the claim of * *."

PRISONERS.

No. 123.—In continuation of G.O. No. 41 of 1869, and with reference to para. 796 of the Queen's Regulations, a report is to be made to the adjt. gen., for the information of H.E. the C. in C., in all cases of prisoners having to undergo extended sentences of two years' imprisonment by district court-martial.

STAFF EMPLOYMENT.

No. 572.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 836 of Aug. 28, 1862, exempting one-half of the military staff of governors or commanders-in-chief at the three presidencies from the operation of the rule which prohibits the employment on the staff of any officer who has not passed the prescribed examination in the native languages, H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to extend the provisions of the above order to the military staff of the lieutenant governors of Bengal, the Punjab, and the North-Western Provinces, subject to approval of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India.

LOST CURRENCY NOTES.

The Under-Secretary to the Government of India, financial department, writes to the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, under date March 24, in reply to letters submitting rules for the payment of damaged and lost currency notes, and says:—

"I am directed to observe that it is impossible to lay down any fixed rules as to the conditions under which payment can be refused for a mutilated currency note. It is always a question of the degree and kind of mutilation.

"The Gov. gen. in Council is of opinion that, so far as the public are concerned, it is decidedly the best plan to prescribe no fixed rules, but simply to declare that, when any doubt arises as to the payment of any note, it will be considered especially by the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, who will exercise his own discretion whether to pay or not to pay, and will prescribe the conditions of payment, availing himself of legal advice whenever necessary.

"H.E. in Council, however, desires you to make provision for the guidance of your subordinates at out-stations by drawing up instructions to be approved by Government, showing, as far as possible, under what circumstances Government is legally bound to pay a note. The currency officer should pay notes under no other circumstances without special orders.

"As regards lost notes, H.E. in Council is of opinion that Government should not pledge themselves by any rules to pay them. Whenever a case occurs in which you think that the notes should be paid, you should submit the circumstances and your proposals for the orders of the Government of India in this department.

"The present plan by which the paper currency department takes upon itself a great deal of trouble in circulating lists of stopped notes, is, it appears, not only unnecessary, but practically useless. Persons who lose notes should be left to advertise them in such manner as they think best, and should themselves give information at such offices as they think proper.

"The term 'stopped notes' is inaccurate and misleading. Payment of such notes cannot be refused, unless there be good reason for supposing that the presenter is not a bona fide holder.

"The system which has hitherto been in force was no doubt devised for the benefit of losers of notes, but in practice it is found to increase the distrust of notes. Natives of this country dislike taking currency notes, if they know that it is possible for them to be put to trouble and detention should the note happen to be what is called a 'stopped note.'

"The Gov. gen. in Council observes that the real aim of Government is to make currency notes approach, as much as possible, to the status of coin. If a man loses a currency note, he must ordinarily take his chance of recovering it, precisely in the same way as a lost coin. If Government attempts to put currency notes on a better footing than coins, by restrictions on their payment, it may be found that they really put them in a worse, by giving further grounds for the natives of this country to dislike taking them."

ACCOUNTREMENTS ON GUARD.—The C. in C. has been pleased to sanction that, during the present hot season, the men of British regiments serving in the Bengal Presidency may be allowed to leave off the cross belt and pouch when mounting guard, and wear the waist belt and ball bag only; the latter to contain ten rounds of ammunition, and to be worn in rear.

ARRIVALS FROM EUROPE.—The undermentioned officers of the topographical branch of the survey department, reported their return to duty from Europe on the dates entered opposite to their respective names:—Capt. ## Official Papers.

G.O. 71.—MEDALS—NORTH-WEST FRONTIER OF INDIA.

Extract from General Orders by H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C. W. O. Letter, April 10, 1869, No. 7,636-360.

July 1.—Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to command that a medal shall be conferred on every surviving officer, non-commissioned officer, and soldier, who was present at any one of the various military operations which took place between the years 1849 and 1863 inclusive, on the North-West Frontier of India, as detailed in Appendix A.

The medal with the ribbon will be the same as was granted for the second Burmese and the Persian campaigns, with a clasp for the operations alluded to, and a second clasp for Umbeyla.

In cases when troops were present at Umbeyla only, the medal with clasp for that service alone will be given. Officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who may be already in possession of the medal will only receive the additional clasp or clasps.

Officers commanding regiments or corps at home, which may have participated in any of the operations in question, will forward rolls of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers entitled to receive the medal or clasps, to the Adjutant-general of the Forces, Horse-Guards, London, S.W., or the form shown in Appendix B.

Officers and men who have left the service must apply through the officer commanding the regiment in which they were serving at the time they earned the distinction.—By command,

W. PAUL ET, Adjutant-general.

COLONELS IN THE ARMY.

The Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the question of the supersession of British colonels by colonels of her Majesty's Indian Army has been issued. It is signed by Colonel C. R. Egerton, president, Major W. Marvin, and G. E. Cochrane, Esq. The Committee find that—

The generals now in course of promotion on the Indian list were colonels of the year 1863, and lieut. colonels of 1858-59. The last Indian general promoted (there are at the present time some vacancies unfilled) passed over and superseded no less than 230 colonels of the British service, the seniors of whom date as colonels of 1854 and 1855, many of whom distinguished themselves at the head of her Majesty's regiments in the several actions in the Crimea, at Alma, Inkermann, and Balaklava, and were mentioned in despatches. More marked and more anomalous still are the cases of the colonels of the British army who commanded brigades or independent columns, or filled high staff situations during the Indian mutiny, and who are now in course of supersession by officers of the Indian army (many of whom no doubt took part in the same field services), who, at that date, held only the rank of major. Had it been provided (in April, 1855, when the rank of the Indian officers was declared by Lord Hardinge to be good in all parts of her Majesty's dominions), that the rank of the Indian colonel promoted to major-general should be local only until his senior as colonel of the British service had been likewise promoted, and had the system of local rank to the British colonels in India been continued, the difficulty now complained of could not have arisen. Any condition tending to this result is now, however, not to be thought of. On the other hand, to augment the British list of general officers to such an extent as would completely equalise the promotion in the two services must be held to be impossible, so great would be the expense which such a measure would entail. Although complete equalisation of promotion in the two services cannot at present be secured, the committee recommend, as a partial amelioration of the present condition of the colonels of the British army (including the staff corps colonels on the Amalgamated List) that forty-five additional major-generals be forthwith created, in anticipation of the promotions (about eight annually) which, under the operation of Article 23 of the Warrant of Feb. 3, 1866, would become due to the British establishment in the years from 1871 to 1877, on account of the Indian staff corps. The immediate expense of such a measure amounts to about £32,486. 6d. a-day. This, however, would only be a temporary charge on Imperial funds, as probably in the year 1871 the first eight of these additional general officers, at 25s. a-day each, amounting in the aggregate to £3,600 a-year, would become chargeable to Indian revenues, so that, in little more than three years, commencing in 1871, it may be expected that the Imperial funds would be entirely relieved of the proposed additional charge. That, simultaneously with these promotions, the dates of the commissions of all the present major-gens. of the British army whose colonelcies bear date on or after Nov. 24, 1854, should be so altered as to place them in the same relative position with the general officers of the Indian army as they held with such officers in the rank of colonel. If, as the committee have recommended, forty-five colonels on the British list be at once promoted and added to the establishment of major-generals, the following result would be obtained:—1st. That the number of the senior colonels will be relieved at once from supersession, including those who have been referred to by name as having high commands and positions in the Crimea, India, and elsewhere. 2nd. The difference of rank between colonels of the Indian list and those next or near them on the amalgamated list, on their becoming major-generals, will be shortened from twelve to nine years. 3rd. The promotion will go on with an establishment increased by forty-five major-generals; and when the major-generals of the staff corps come on the British list, in about three years, then promotion will proceed at once on a total increased establishment of ninety-five major-generals.

THE VICEROY OF EGYPT.

A fete, attended by 33,000 persons, was given at the Crystal Palace on June 29th, in honour of the Viceroy, who attended in company with the Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Arthur. The arrangements for distinguished visitors and the general public being in all respects the same as on previous occasions, we shall not describe them, but pass on to the concert, which began at 4 o'clock. The first part, entirely sacred, was gone through before the Royal and Viceregal party arrived, and was heard with an attention by the Nawab of Bengal and suite, who occupied chairs in front of the State boxes, but partially distracted. The second part began at six o'clock with the overture to Masaniello, in the midst of which the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Viceroy, and party arrived. Their reception was, consequently, less demonstrative than otherwise might have been the case. For this, however, handsome amends were subsequently made. The great fountain played at eight o'clock, and the pyrotechny was exhibited at ten, both being witnessed by the illustrious visitors from the "Queen's corridor" (turned for the occasion into a Royal Dining-room). After the concert the Duke of Sutherland entertained the Royal party to the number of forty-two at a banquet in a dining-room extemporised for the occasion. An accident, happily unattended with any serious consequence, occurred about a quarter past eleven, as the Royal party were returning from the Crystal Palace. The carriage containing the Viceroy's sons was proceeding rather slowly along the near side of Halfmoon-lane, Dulwich, and that containing the Prince of Wales, which was going at a smart pace, in the endeavour to pass the former ran into it, and completely overturned it on the path. The Prince, on perceiving this, ordered his own carriage and those of his suite to stop, and he alighted and went back to the scene of the accident. Fortunately, the Egyptian princes were unhurt, but the coachman was severely bruised. The overturned party having been taken by the Prince of Wales to his own carriage, which was uninjured, the Prince, after having made special inquiries about the injured man, ordered him to be attended to by a surgeon, and he and his suite proceeded. The gentleman opposite whose house the accident occurred rendered every assistance, and lodged the horses and the shattered carriage in his stables. The injured man was conveyed to town in a hansom cab, in charge of Colonel Gamble, of the Prince's staff.

The Viceroy, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Sutherland, on June 30 inspected the Fire Brigade in the gardens of Buckingham-palace. Eighteen of the largest steam fire-engines, one manual engine, two fire escapes, and nearly 100 firemen in full uniform were on the ground. The Viceroy, attended by Nubar Pasha, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel Stanton, afterwards visited the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Turkish Ambassador, the French Ambassador, the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Duke of Argyll, and Earl Granville. In the evening the Countess (Frances) Waldegrave and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., entertained his Highness at Strawberry-hill, Twickenham. The Prince and Princess of Wales were invited to meet his Highness. The Viceroy and numerous retinue left Buckingham-palace on July 1 for Brussels and Germany.

SIND RAILWAY COMPANY.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the proprietors of the above company was held on June 29, at the London Tavern.

Mr. W. P. Andrew, the chairman, presided, and moved the adoption of the directors' report and statement of accounts. In doing so he said that he must congratulate the shareholders upon the favourable report made by the late Governor-General of India upon the opening of the Meerut and Umballa section of the Delhi Railway. His Excellency expressed his satisfaction at the steady progress towards completion of the system of railways undertaken by the Sind Company, and his appreciation of the labours of those by whom the construction of the Delhi line had been so far and so rapidly advanced. The Viceroy particularised the agent, Major-General Sanders Abbott; the chief engineer, Mr. Harrison, on whom for a long time the duties of agent had devolved; the contractors, but more especially their able managing partner, Mr. Henfrey, who had been the first to introduce into India many mechanical contrivances for the saving of labour, and under whose personal inspection the whole of the works had been completed. It was not only the principal persons engaged in the works that the Viceroy had complimented, but the subordinates also received the thanks of the Government of India for the good services rendered in carrying on their labours to a successful termination. He (the chairman) could bear testimony to the satisfaction experienced by the London board as to the manner in which the duties of the various officials had been performed. He was pleased to be able to announce that the Delhi Railway was proceeding towards completion. On some portion of the line three trains were running daily. The goods traffic was increasing, but no great augmentation of traffic could be expected until the union with the Punjab line. Owing to the famine and stagnation of trade in India, as elsewhere, the gross receipts had fallen off during the year, but the deficiency had been more than compensated for by the great reduction that had taken place in the working expenses. He thought that ought to be regarded as a good omen of what might be obtained under more favourable circumstances. Since the commencement of the flotilla it had earned £161,395. The last half-year had been most lucrative; no doubt the Abyssinian war had helped to increase the returns, but Captain Wood, who was now undertaking the duties of agent to the Sind Railway, in addition to his duties of agent to the flotilla, was of opinion that the traffic by the flotilla would continue to increase. Mr. Rawlinson, the agent to the Sind Railway, was about to retire, after being connected with the company for fourteen years, during which time he had won the respect of all in authority in India. His retirement would afford the directors an opportunity of placing the agency of the Sind Railway and of the flotilla under one management. He thought that, eventually, the whole system of the railways and flotilla would have to be brought into one undertaking, and it was with that feeling that Captain Wood had been appointed to both agencies, and the directors hoped that the appointment would meet with the approbation of the shareholders.

Sir T. Herbert Maddock seconded the motion for the adoption of the report and accounts.

Sir R. Temple, Financial Minister of India, although not a shareholder, thought the proprietors would be glad to know his opinions respecting the future prospects of the company. With respect to the officials, he believed they were fully entitled to all that had been said in their favour; he considered that but for the famine the receipts would have been much larger than they had been. Had the line been completed the famine would not have seriously injured the traffic, as considerable quantities of produce must have been carried by the railway to succour the natives. The net revenue from working the line was certainly but a small percentage upon the paid-up capital; but as most of the Indian lines were earning from 3 to 5 per cent., he saw no reason why that should not be the case with this line. As Financial Minister he was precluded from saying much as to the intention of the Government with regard to extensions, but if such measures should be carried out he hoped this company would come in for their proportion. He considered the management of railways in India complicated. They might be considered to have four boards to deal with; there was the Government in India, the Government at home, and the boards of directors in England and India. Up to the present time all had worked in harmony, and it was most important that they should continue to do so. Extreme economy in the working expenses he considered most important. He believed £3,500,000 was expended annually in making the Indian lines, and if £500,000 of that could be avoided, the shareholders would be greatly benefited.

Mr. Henfrey, the contractor, said he had just returned from India. When he left fifty miles were ready to be opened, but as it was then the rainy season it was thought prudent to postpone the opening till later in the year.

The Chairman thanked Sir R. Temple for the opinions he had given with respect to the line.

The report and statement of accounts were adopted.

Mr. Thomas Williams and Mr. Harry Borradaile, the retiring directors, were re-elected.

The retiring auditor, Mr. Edward Thornton, was also re-elected, and the meeting separated.

THE "MISSING LINK" IN THE SIND RAILWAY COMPANY'S SYSTEM.

We have heard a rumour that the Government propose themselves to supply the "Missing Link" between Kotree and Mooltan, but we can hardly believe it. There are certain reasons why the Government should make some of the Indian lines recently projected; such, for instance, as that from Lahore to Peshawur; but none of those reasons apply to the line between Kotree and Mooltan. The Lahore and Peshawur line is a line which is complete in itself, and it runs up to a frontier which it is of special importance to defend. But the case is very different as regards the Indus Valley line. That line, far from being complete in itself, is part, and the central part, of a trunk line, the extremities of which are in the hands of one company. Being part of a great through line, leading to an important shipping port, it is destined to form the great commercial artery of North-Western India. There is no reason whatever why the Indus Valley line should be constructed by the Government, and such an arrangement would be manifestly opposed to good sense. It would entail serious delay in the completion of the trunk line of the Indus, for the timidity and dilatoriness with which public works in India are carried out by Government is a matter of notoriety all the world over; and it would thus inflict a serious blow on the future prospects of the company which has done so much for the prosperity of North-Western India. It would entirely neutralise the advantages of the unity of management which has been virtually, and soon will be, legally adopted, and it would affect a much more complete and injurious severance of the company's existing undertakings than that which it is the object of the amalgamation to remedy.—Money Market Review.

There is one objection to the proposal that the Government should make the remaining portion of the Sind's Company's line which is unanswerable. It would involve what would practically amount to a breach of faith with the company, who many years since projected, and upwards of five years ago surveyed the line, under the authority of the Secretary of State, and who have been waiting patiently ever since, until the Government should be of opinion that the time had arrived when financial considerations of State policy would justify the commencement of more active operations. It would, moreover, be a direct interference with private enterprise. Now, if there be one thing more than another which it is desirable to encourage in India it is the application of private enterprise to works of public utility. One of the advantages of the present guarantee system is that it adds largely to the interest taken by the public in this country in matters relating to India. The advantages of a policy which produces this effect must surely be sufficiently apparent to the statesmen composing a Liberal Government; and we cannot believe that they seriously entertain a policy of such a retrograde nature as has been attributed to them in some quarters. There is every reason, therefore, not only as regards a fair recognition of existing interests, but as regards economical policy, why the Government should allow the Sind Railway Company themselves to complete their undertaking, while there is no good reason, in the interests of the public or of commerce, why the Government should undertake the work.

Miscellaneous.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.—June, 1869.—The following are the names of the successful candidates, with the number of marks obtained by each, at the recent examination at Chelsea Hospital, for admission to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, nominated by the Secretary of State for India:—H. J. B. Sparks, 4,815; C. H. M. Smith, 4,011; W. G. Dunsford, 3,934; P. E. Henderson, 3,366; R. Van-Cortland, 2,429; A. Wapshare, 1,939; G. H. B. Coates, 1,663; J. D. Fullerton, 1,650.

THE CONTROL DEPARTMENT.—We (Army and Navy Gazette) fear that those who are looking forward anxiously for the promulgation of the new Control scheme will have to wait for some time longer. So far as the War Office is concerned, everything has been done. But the Chancellor of the Exchequer is understood to see grave objections to some of the features of the plan initiated by Sir Henry Storks, and it is a question whether the work of reorganising the Supply Departments of the Army may not have to be begun de novo.

DEPUTY JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL.—It is rumoured that a gentleman has who for some years given his attention to literature, not unconnected with military subjects, is to receive a full reward for his devotion, having been selected to succeed Mr. Lushington as Deputy Judge Advocate-General. As the gentleman in question is a barrister-at-law, we congratulate the Government on being able to secure him for a post which requires for the efficient performance of its duties an acquaintance with military matters, combined with a knowledge of law. The appointment is worth £1,100 per annum.—Broad Arrow.

MILITARY.—If the report be true that Colonel Adye is to be the new Deputy Adjutant-general of Artillery, we can only express our belief that the best man has been selected for this important post.—Captain Sussex Vane Stephenson, of the Scots Fusilier Guards, and now Brigade-major of the Guards, will accompany Lieutenant-general Sir A. Spencer to Bombay as his military secretary.—His Royal Highness the Field-marshal Commanding-in-Chief approves of the system of allowing weekly instead of daily payments to "good-conduct men" and "well-conducted married men" being put in force in India. Why not at home also?—Army and Navy Gazette.

SICK AND WOUNDED SOLDIERS IN WAR TIME.—The Prussian Association for the Relief of Wounded and Sick Soldiers in Time of War has offered a prize of £85 for the best essay upon the means of extending the operations of the society to maritime combatants. The authors are to base their conclusions upon the experience of former wars, especially those of recent date. No restrictions are placed on the arrangement or extent of the essay, and the language employed may be German, French, or English. The prize will be awarded on the 30th September, 1870, the birthday of the Queen of Prussia.

WEHNER v. THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.—This was an action in the Court of Queen's Bench, on June 29, on four bills of exchange, drawn by Nathoo Pussoo on the defendants, payable to the order of Sleeman and Co., and endorsed by the latter to the plaintiff, and the bills were accepted by the defendants under a letter of credit conditionally on certain shipping documents being handed to them. There was a plea of fraud upon the record. Sir J. Karlake was opening the case for the plaintiff, when Mr. Hawkins intervened, and said that he did not impute moral fraud, but that the plea of fraud was the technical way of raising the defence that agents at Bombay knew to be untrue what principals in London stated to be the fact, and proposed to withdraw the plea of fraud if the plaintiff's counsel would allow a plea which the defendants' counsel had ready, stating the actual facts. The Lord Chief Justice asked the learned counsel if it was not one of the chief questions between the parties whether invoices were shipping documents within the meaning of the letter of credit. This appeared to be the case, and there being now no suggestion of fraud, there was no question left for the jury, and it was agreed to state a special case for the opinion of the Court, with liberty for the plaintiff to amend the pleadings if the Court should think fit.

THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The annual general meeting of this company was held on July 1; Mr. R. W. Crawford, M.P., the chairman, presided. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that he and his colleagues were confident that it would be considered satisfactory. Their expenditure on capital account was drawing rapidly to a close, their traffic receipts were increasing, their working expenses diminishing, and they had had nothing in the shape of accident except the destruction by fire of property at the Howrah station; but they had no accident to life or limb to record. The capital expenditure was drawing to a close; there were only some works to complete, such as doubling parts of the line near Calcutta, and the extremity of the Bengal division near a large river; they had also the works on the Chord line to complete. In reply to a question, it was stated that the company had obtained thirty locomotive engines from foreign makers, and they were found as effective for all purposes as the locomotives made in England. Their access to foreign manufacturers had enabled the directors to exercise a control over the makers at home that was beneficial to the company. Resolutions were passed adopting the report, re-electing the retiring directors and auditor, and authorising the directors to convert paid-up shares into stock.

REFORM IN MILITARY ACCOUTREMENTS.—We are informed that some valuable alterations in the knapsack accoutrements of the army have been sanctioned, and are now being carried out. A waterproof valise, without frame and of light weight, is to supersede the present knapsack. This valise is supported on the lower portion of the soldier's back in the following manner:—From the waist-belt a short strap on each side passes to a ring, from which a broad strap, passing over the shoulders, crosses with its fellow on the upper part of the back, like an ordinary pair of braces, and, catching the corner of the valise by a buckle, runs under the arm to the opposite ring from which it started. Another short strap passing posteriorly from the ring to the lower angle of the valise secures it to the man's body. In front, upon the waist-belt, is carried the pouch for ammunition, which can be shifted to one side so as to allow the waist-belt to be opened. This equipment is very easy, and leaves the chest perfectly free. It supplies many of the most essential requirements of military duties—simplicity and durability, lessened risk of damage, and facility for removal or readjustment. The soldier can put it on and off like his coat, by simply unfastening the waist-belt, or it will remain like a garment on his shoulders, although left open in front. The great-coat is carried above the valise, and in no way interferes with the general arrangement. By this equalisation and arrangement of weights the position of the soldier for drill, heavy exertion, or personal conflict is materially improved. In the latter case, the weights being below the centre of gravity, an extra steadiness is obtained which was so evidently deficient in the case of the old equipment, "the monkey on the back," as old soldiers term the knapsack. On active service two pouches are carried in front, to contain each twenty rounds of ammunition, and a ball bag is also supplied to hold loose cartridges for rapid firing, whilst in the valise there is accommodation for twenty extra rounds. An infantry soldier in time of war now carries something over fifty-six pounds in weight. This is, of course, lessened during peace, but it is strongly recommended by Professor Parkes still further to reduce the articles ordinarily forming part of the "kit," and his views, if accepted, would diminish the weight to thirty-six pounds, whilst the soldier would yet have everything necessary for his comfort. It is also determined to issue to each man a separate canvas bag for surplus articles of clothing and necessaries, in lieu of the present "squad bag," which is available for twenty-five men. This, it is anticipated, will encourage the soldier in habits of care and neatness.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, June 29.—RETIREMENT FROM THE NON-PURCHASE CORPS.—Colonel JERVIS asked the Secretary of State for War when the Bill regulating the retirement of officers from the Non-Purchase Corps would be laid upon the table.—Mr. CARDWELL said he believed the Bill to which the hon. and gallant gentleman referred was the Bill relating to which the resolution was passed last night. It would be laid on the table to-day. It was not quite correctly described in the question, inasmuch as the object of the Bill was not to alter the rates of retirement, but to provide for the commutation of retirements. Both these things were parts of one scheme in the report of the Committee on Retirement, to which, no doubt, the hon. and gallant gentleman referred.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, July 1.—MAJOR M'GWIRE'S CAMPING SYSTEM.—Mr. KNIGHT asked the Secretary of State for War

whether reports had been received from the military authorities of the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras highly commendatory of Major McGwire's camping system, with field hammocks, as calculated to add greatly to the health and efficiency of troops in the field and on the line of march; and, if so, whether it was the intention of the Government to extend the full benefits of such system to British soldiers in India and the colonies.—Mr. CARDWELL said the reports from Madras and Bombay in regard to these hammocks had been favourable, but they were not approved by the commander-in-chief in India, and were not recommended by the Government of India. Until they were approved in India, it was not probable they would be generally adopted.

PETITIONS PRESENTED DURING THE PAST WEEK.—By Mr. Noel, from Major Wiggins, for compensation for loss of regimental bonus; by Mr. Elliot, from Lieutenant-colonel G. Atkinson, Retired List, Madras Army, with similar prayer; by Mr. Mills, from the widow of the late Colonel Beatson, for compensation for loss of retiring bonus, in consequence of the amalgamation of the Indian army; by Colonel Sykes, from Brevet-major George, late of the 17th Bengal Native Infantry, praying for compensation for loss of bonus, consequent on the amalgamation of the Indian army; Mr. Somerset Beaumont, from the Wakefield Chamber of Commerce, praying for certain amendments to the Government of India Act Amendment Bill, and that one-third of the members of the Council may be representatives of the commercial interests; by Mr. C. B. Denison, from fifty-five firms and tradesmen in Heckmondwike, praying that one-third of the future Council of the Secretary of State for India may be composed of gentlemen conversant with British commerce and manufactures.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, July 5.—INDIAN RAILWAYS.—Mr. GRANT-DUFF stated, in reply to Mr. KINNAIRD, that he hoped to be able shortly to lay on the table the despatch recently received from the Government of India, regarding the construction of new lines of railway in the three Presidencies, and the reply of the Government thereto.

THE NEW LAW MEMBER FOR INDIA.

The Spectator sincerely congratulates India upon the selection of Mr. Fitzjames Stephen to succeed Mr. Maine as Legislative Member of Council, a selection which is the more creditable because it would, we believe, also have been that of the late Government. A clear speaker, a most accomplished writer, a sound lawyer, Mr. Stephen possesses a special recommendation of the highest value in India, a quality best described as masculinity of mind. He will, perhaps, among such a people get rid of his peculiar temptation, over-severity, a sort of notion that "it is better wrong if law should be hanged than no law," or will use it to secure the grand reform now required in India, namely, a machinery for making sound laws work sternly. Suppose the Courts decree that such a house is yours; in England you get the house; in India, you don't, but only a right to plead for execution of decree. If any human being is sure to correct that state of affairs, it is Mr. Fitzjames Stephen.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

The Pall Mall Gazette thinks that in his reply to Sir C. Wingfield, Mr. Grant Duff administered a neat rebuke to the House of Commons on its apathy in regard to Indian business. He was ready, he said, to produce the Indian budget at any time, but there was a constitutional practice that it should not be brought forward till late in July or early in August, "that is, at a period of the year when the heat of the weather and the lassitude induced by a long succession of morning sittings enable hon. members in some degree to realise the condition of our countrymen in the East." Besides, "while the Park-gate Chapel Marriages, &c., Bill, and other measures of almost equally transcendent and world-wide interest" were before the House, it would be pity to fritter time away "over such insignificant matters as the balance-sheet of an empire." The spirit of this reply will be universally applauded throughout India. It is very disheartening when officials, who work hard to get their accounts in proper order, discover that people at home are only bored by their reports; but if the Government of which Mr. Grant Duff is a member chose to have the Indian statement brought on before the House became thoroughly jaded, it could easily do so, and thus obviate the necessity of Mr. Under-Secretary's sarcasms. The people of India are quite shrewd enough to be able to judge for themselves how little interest the English Parliament takes in the details of Indian government. Perhaps the inferences they draw do not tend to render the work of government in India less difficult. We hope Mr. Grant Duff will even yet succeed in altering an arrangement which puts out of the question a searching discussion in England of Indian finance.

MAILS TO INDIA, ETC.

The Mails to all parts of India, via Southampton, are now made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday at 8 A.M., and those via Marseilles every Friday, at 6 P.M.

For Ceylon, China, Straits Settlements, &c., the dates of despatch up to the end of September will be as follows, viz.:

Via Southampton, at 8 A.M., on the Saturdays, July 10 and 24, August 7 and 21, and September 4 and 18.
Via Marseilles, at 6 P.M., on the Fridays, July 2, 16, and 30, August 13 and 27, and September 10 and 24.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE OF FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.
"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

QUINTESSANCE OF JAMAICA GINGER AND CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

Princess Augusta, Duchess of Gloucester, the late Louis Philippe, and ex-Royal Family of France, &c. At home from Eleven till Four.

64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

NEW PATENT. ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS, &c.

The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

UPWARDS OF FIFTY YEARS' experience has fully confirmed the superior reputation of these Lozenges in the cure of ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSENESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PULMONARY MALADIES.

RECENT TESTIMONIAL. August 23, 1868.

Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India, I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely with the best results.

W. B. G.,
Apothecary H.M. Indian Medical Service.

To Mr. Thomas Keating.
Sold in boxes, tins, and bottles, of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLET.—A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, both in appearance and taste, furnishing a most agreeable method of administering a well-known remedy for INTESINAL or THREAD WORMS.

Agents—CROSSE and BLACKWELL, London, and Sold by all dealers in Sauces throughout the World.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

BILIOUSNESS—DISEASES OF THE LIVER.—Through imperfect drainage or uncleanly habits the hot summer's sun will cause the atmosphere to be surcharged with deleterious exhalations, which produce fevers and irritations of the bowels. To check the undue action of the liver, usually the first indication of febrile complaints, the Pills invented by Professor Holloway stand unrivalled. These Pills are so cheaply and easily procured that none need suffer from nausea, indigestion, disordered liver, dizziness, or torpid bowels, or, in a word, from any functional irregularity. These Pills produce a more happy effect on the digestive organs than any other medical compound, whether mineral or vegetable. By these means any person can secure robust health.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, June 15; Agra, June 12; Calcutta, June 11; Madras, June 9.

The papers of the week are full of the heat, the last cyclone, and the shipwrecks. The Jhelum, originally built for the Indus Flotilla, but since turned into a coasting steamer between Broach and Gogo, broke her back on the bar near Gogo, and of one hundred and fifty passengers ten at least are known to have been drowned. The ship James Childs, from Bombay to Bushair, caught fire on the voyage, and soon after reaching the latter port had to be abandoned, the crew and baggage alone being saved. The City of Lahore, an iron ship, laden with cotton, from Bombay to Liverpool, was caught by a cyclone about the 5th of June, and had to put in at Carwar to repair damages. Nothing more has been heard of the Cheduba, which must have met the cyclone of May 16 on her way to Rangoon from Calcutta. A gleam of hope, indeed, was shed by the news of another ship having spoken the Chebuba on the 26th May, near the Aguada reef, sailing eastward. But ships which left Rangoon some days later have reached Calcutta without seeing or hearing of the missing vessel, and Rangoon telegrams are equally silent. The belief in Calcutta is nearly universal that the captain of the Vanguard must have really hailed the Madras, which probably hoisted the Cheduba's number to attract attention and obtain some tidings of the lost steamer. General Faunce, commanding the Pegu Division, is said to be among the passengers.

PARTICULARS of the loss of the Great Northern have come to hand. On the night of June 5 the captain sighted the Colaba Light. Unable to put in that night he stood out to sea. A second attempt the next day was baffled by a heavy storm, with tremendous seas and very thick weather, which left him all abroad. Unaware how much his vessel had drifted, he mistook a hill at Bassein for Malabar Hill, and, steering for it, drove the vessel unwittingly ashore. In an hour the Great Northern had broken her back. On trying the boats one was stove in, a second upset in the heavy rollers. The lifeboat then carried the crew safe to about two miles from shore, when she too upset, and the men had to struggle as they best could to the beach. Some who could not swim clung fatally to their comrades, and so it happened that fourteen only reached the land, while sixteen were drowned. Among the saved was the captain, who had been much hurt, but was dragged safe on shore by some of his men.

ANOTHER ship, the Innisfallen, with coals from Liverpool to Bombay, is supposed to have been utterly lost. She left Liverpool on the 27th November, and has never been heard of since. Her commander, Captain Gibson, is well known in Bombay as an experienced sailor, who has made many voyages to that port.

THE Calcutta papers for the first time mention the second cyclone of the 8th and 9th of June, which the telegraph announced to us some weeks ago. It began on the night of the 8th, and raged for twenty-four hours over Calcutta itself and the neighbouring country. Happily for the city the centre of the cyclone passed outside it on the east, and the damage done has been comparatively small. A good many of the smaller craft on the river have been wrecked, hundreds of huts and small trees levelled with the ground, the verandahs and venetians of some brick houses have been more or less injured, and not a few doors blown in. The only lives known to have been lost were lost by the falling in of the roof of the temporary Lock Hospital, which at the time contained one hundred and six women. Two of these were killed on the spot, and nine more were injured, three badly. In the height of the storm the remainder had to be transferred with great difficulty to a safer building. Some little injury was done to the Doveton College. In the native town one old woman was killed by the fall of a hut. The storm was severely felt at Port Canning. No trains started for several hours from Calcutta, and all business was suspended there during the 9th. It was midnight before the hurricane calmed down.

No loss of life on the river has yet been reported, though at least a hundred cargo-boats of all sizes have gone down. A few ships parted from their moorings and ran into other ships, but no great damage was done. No accounts have yet been received from the districts eighty or a hundred miles north-east of Calcutta, where the hurricane must have raged its worst. With regard to the previous cyclone a Dacca journal estimates the loss of life at ten thousand, a figure which is generally thought to be too high. Fortunately neither of these hurricanes was accompanied by the dreaded storm-wave. Towards the end of the latter one a slight shock of earthquake was felt in Calcutta. Three days before a similar shock was noticed in Singapore.

THE heat was still reported as intolerable all over Upper and Central India. As the Pioneer truly remarks, no one who has not lived in the North-West can fully realise the fierce heats of those provinces. The last mail records the deaths from heat-apoplexy of two officers, several privates, a clergyman, two or three railway guards, and a number of railway passengers, mostly native. The mortality among these last may in part be ascribed to the native practice of starting on long journeys in the last stage of illness. But for much of it the discomforts of crowding in hot weather into third and fourth-class carriages must be directly answerable. So many indeed have been the deaths on some lines, that the East Indian Railway Company have "resolved to lay in a supply of coffins at each of their stations." The statement reads like a bad joke, but if meant in earnest, it bears sad witness to what has been going on.

IN Sindh the great heat has bred much fever, especially among the troops at Kurrachee. Cholera too has been carrying off its victims at Nusseerabad, Allahabad, Raipore, and some other places. Among its victims at Deolie was Captain Bruce, Political Agent for Harowtee.

AMONG the latest efforts of modern ingenuity has been the invention of "sola topies" for the horses of Calcutta. The poor brutes will feel grateful for this addition to their comforts, but the look of these white sunshades waving over their heads must be rather comical, reminding one by a sort of contrast of the black plumes worn at funerals by horses at home.

ONE of the Bombay papers seems to think that the India-Office will take its time in filling up the vacancy left by Colonel Haines, late guardian to the young Prince of Mysore. The presumption however is already at variance with the fact. Whether the young Prince might "do very well for several years more without an English colonel to superintend him," there is no need now to consider, because, to the best of our knowledge, an English colonel has already been appointed to that end. Will our contemporary be glad to hear that the successor to Colonel Haines—now arrived in England—is Colonel Malleon, author of the "Red Pamphlet," the "French in India," and other historical works, and lately a member of the Bengal Sanitary Commission?

THE Lieutenant-governor of Bengal has made his arrangements to guard the Sylhet and Cachar Frontier during the rainy season. Along the whole length of one hundred miles there are nine posts, each held by about thirty constables under two or more inspectors. The strongest, at Julnacherra, is garrisoned by fifty constables.

LORD MAYO is hard at work. He has ordered the making of experiments in Oudh, with a view to ascertaining whether a good trade in salt might not be started in that province. He has also resolved to open out the Sultanpore Salt Fields by a railway from Delhi through Goorgaon, to Rewah and Jeypore. This will be the first section of a line which in due time will connect Delhi with Bombay.

WE are sorry to hear that Captain Sladen's continued illness, which has now taken a paralytic turn, obliges him to leave Mandalay for an uncertain period for change of air. Dr. Suffrien, at Moulmein, has been ordered to take temporary charge of the Political Agency at the Burman capital.

THE Madras papers give full particulars of the murderous attack by a sepoy on Lieut. Brooking, Adjutant of the 35th M.N.I. The Havildar's bullet passed through his liver, and his death took place the next day, some hours after that of his murderer. He was only twenty-eight years old, and has left a widow with two children.

What sort of progress India has been making for some time past, from the commercial point of view, may be gathered from the first yearly report of the Statistical Committee. Of the five great Indian ports, two—Kurrachee and Bombay—are unluckily grouped together; so, to make things equal, the returns for Rangoon should be grouped with those for Calcutta. In 1834-5 the whole trade of Bengal amounted to £6,803,955; that of Madras to £1,648,891; of Bombay to £5,889,446. In 1843 the figures were for Bengal £13,613,548; for Madras, £2,045,357; for Bombay, £8,637,248. About 1852 the trade of Kurrachee began to tell in the returns for Bombay, while that of Rangoon first appears in the Bengal returns for 1861-2. During the five years ending in 1863-4, Bombay shot ahead of Bengal, the relative figures being £44,283,386 and £33,097,797. By that time the trade of Madras had risen at the same pace as that of Bengal to £7,975,205. In 1864-5 Bombay culminated at £68,262,269, and in the following year the trade of Madras rose to £12,263,280, falling back the next year to less than the figure for 1863. Calcutta meanwhile was steadily improving, until in 1866-7 it showed a total of £43,827,409, against £45,287,282 for Bombay. The particulars for 1867-8 are not given, but the total value for the three Presidencies amounted to £101,038,621, or about twenty-two millions under the total for 1865-6. These later fluctuations are at once accounted for by the variations in the price of cotton at Bombay and Madras, and the general depression of trade since 1867. It is a wonderful stride however which the foreign trade of India has made from about fourteen millions and a third in 1834 to more than a hundred millions now. Sindh has hardly yet taken its right place in the competition, for in 1867-8 the value of its foreign trade was but four and a-half millions against the six and a quarter millions set down to Burmah. When the Indus Valley Railway, which Mr. Grant Duff has virtually promised us, is once completed, and Kurrachee Harbour has been made "as good a port as modern engineering science can make it," Sindh, including the Punjab, will doubtless win and keep an easy lead of British Burmah.

OF the whole Indian trade about three-fifths deals with Great Britain. The trade with China amounts to £13,382,478. France comes next—longo proximo intervallo—with £3,031,842, or only two-thirds of a million more than the Arabian and Persian Gulf, and a million more than Ceylon. North and South America represent little more than a million between them, and Australia deals only for £361,262 at present, while Mauritius stands at nearly a million, and the Eastern Settlements at nearly two. The normal export of cotton has increased in value fivefold since 1850. The export of indigo has fallen off. That of grain has risen from three quarters of a million to about four millions. The coffee exports are eight times as valuable as they were in 1850. The demand for jute has risen from £196,936 to £1,310,545. A like advance has been made in the export of seeds, silk, and wool; but sugar has gone down to a very small figure. The opium exports on the other hand have more than doubled themselves. Of cotton twist and yarn the imports have multiplied nearly threefold; those of cotton piece goods nearly fivefold; of manufactured metals about sixfold; of raw silk, silk goods, and woollen goods, about two, four, and three-fold respectively. On all kinds of foreign strong drinks the consumption has increased from about half a million in 1850 to a million and a half in 1867, which means of course a large increase in the number of European consumers.

SOME hitherto unpublished correspondence, regarding the treaty of 1867 between the Indian Government and the Court of Ava, and the alternative routes to Western China by Bhamo and by Hyang Hung, has just been printed in a Parliamentary return. In October of last year the Indian Government, as the Secretary of State acknowledged some time ago, reported against continuing the survey of the southern road from Rangoon across the Salween to Hyang Hung, as involving too heavy an immediate outlay, with much probable risk to the lives of the officers sent out on the exploring party. The Duke of Argyll however has not been disheartened by the adverse tenor of the despatch. On the 29th of last April he wrote to inform Lord Mayo that her Majesty's Government would readily promote any measure likely to establish the needful intercourse between India and China. He would therefore gladly see the proposed survey carried out, always provided that the needful measures can be taken without causing the Indian Government any undue expense or inconvenience. With regard to the question of outlay, his Grace calls for an official estimate.

BRITISH APATHY ON THINGS INDIAN.

MR. GRANT DUFF's sarcastic allusion to the apathy with which the House of Commons postpones the affairs of our great Indian Empire to the discussion of a Park Gate or a Chapel Marriages Bill, gives fresh point to an old accusation, the broad truth of which nobody, we imagine, would care to dispute. It is not in average human nature to take the same interest in things distant and comparatively obscure, as in those which lie about our daily path and have some tangible bearing on our personal welfare. Private sorrows, as Burke was by no means the first to remark, concern most people far more than public tragedies. Besides lying thousands of miles away, India makes no demands on the British tax-payer, and consequently very few Englishmen have any direct interest in acquiring knowledge about a country thus circumstanced. And this fact may be held in some degree to justify the indifference of which so many people complain. Ignorant indifference will do less harm than ignorant interference. Until the bulk of Englishmen come to have a good working acquaintance with Indian affairs, it is perhaps as well that they should refrain from constant meddling with the details of Indian administration. Parliament moreover can always plead in its excuse the ever-growing mass of local business which continually blocks the way to a fair consideration of imperial questions. How can a Legislature, the greater part of whose time is usually devoted to petty parish affairs, be expected to prolong its sittings for some imperial purpose, when the grouse are waiting for the sportsman, and the yachts are lying ready-manned in the harbours?

Still the ignorance of which we are so often reminded is a positive misfortune, whether it concerns the affairs of a great dependency like India, or of an English-peopled colony like Australia. When things go smoothly, it tends to produce a feeling of undue carelessness, which in times of disturbance begets an undignified panic, and legislation in a panic is not a thing to look back upon with complacency. Something of this kind has more than once occurred in respect of India, and under present circumstances its recurrence is always possible, however greatly to be deplored. The same rash interference which laid its reforming hand for the worse on the old Indian army may at any moment be brought to bear on questions yet more vitally affecting the future of British India. Another blind burst of Russophobia may land us some fine day in a strait as perilous as that from which we were only half delivered by the achievements of Nott and Pollock. A hasty concession to the demands of Liverpool and Manchester for the abolition of Indian duties on English manufactures might lead to unwelcome reforms in the fiscal system of India, and to the consequent widening of the gulf that already parts us from too many of the subject peoples. It is easier however to point out the evils of ignorance and half-knowledge, than to suggest a practical remedy. Ought India to be more strongly represented in the British Parliament? If so, how could that be managed? Would it be advisable to let members of Council stand for seats in the House of Commons? Even then it is questionable how far a dozen old Anglo-Indians would either lighten the mass of British apathy, or really represent the millions of Hindustan. A few more gentlemen like Sir C. Wingfield, Mr. Eastwick, and Colonel Sykes, would of course bring very valuable additions to the ranks of enlightened statesmanship. If their powers of exposition were always equal to their special knowledge, the influence they could wield over their hearers would undoubtedly be great. But it would still to some extent be one-sided, and uncontrolled by the criticism of properly enlightened judges or opponents. For want of an audience at once numerous and well-informed, their opinions would either be taken too readily on trust, or fail of securing the kind of attention they deserved. And how few Anglo-Indians there are whose special knowledge transcends the limits of a particular presidency or a particular province! In the India Council we get or ought to get a fair conspectus of experiences gleaned in many different quarters, and so far as Englishmen can speak for the natives of India, the collective wisdom of the Council ought to furnish an intelligent Minister with ample means for supervising the policy of the local governments.

In the Upper House there is always a certain number, small but select, of pretty competent critics on Indian affairs; and under some improved system of recruiting that House the number might be considerably increased. A standing Indian Committee of well informed Peers would probably deal more calmly with Indian questions of the day than a like committee of the Commons. But from any such arrangement we are still very far off. Meanwhile, pending the general diffusion of sounder knowledge and a keener interest on Indian affairs, we may be content to rub on pretty much as we do now, leaving India to be governed for the most part in India, and looking to the India Office for ultimate guidance on points not easy to settle out there. British apathy does less harm than British energy misdirected would be sure to do.

CENTRAL ASIA IN PARLIAMENT.

THE discussion started last Friday by Mr. Eastwick had the one especial merit of eliciting from the Under-Secretary for India a clear and masterly exposition of the policy which England means and ought to pursue towards the States on the North-Western frontier of British India. The duty of making such an exposition could not have been entrusted to abler hands than those of Mr. Grant Duff. And his speech leaves nothing wanting to satisfy the public mind on a question which late events have helped the journalists of England and India to clothe for the moment with a peculiar interest. It is something to get the facts concerning Russian progress in Central Asia and the arguments in favour of a trustful policy on our part so clearly and convincingly stated by one who has studied the question from many points of view. In blowing off the foam from the story of Russia's latest doings, Mr. Grant Duff enables us to see how slight are the provocations to that alarm, which has lately been expressed in many quarters at the seeming danger to British rule in the East. We may take his word for it that the Russians have "never been within many days' march of Charjui," and that they have never come within several hundred miles of Gumah, on the road from Yarkand to Khotan. As for the alleged appearance of a Russian officer with a surveying party in Afghanistan, it rests on no other foundation than the arrival of such an officer without a surveying party in Kashgar, which is much as if a foreign officer's appearance in Galway were to justify the assertion that a surveying party had been examining the Chiltern Hills. In the Khanate of Bokhara the Russians have never advanced beyond Bokhara and Karshi. After restoring the latter to the Ameer, from whom it had been wrested by his rebel son, they fell back to Samarkand and two small places near it. Samarkand being divided from the Jaxartes by a tract of difficult desert, it is far from unlikely that they will fall back for a time to Khojend. For some time to come Samarkand may be taken as the limit of Russian progress from the west. On the side of Eastern Turkistan they have no post nearer Cashmere than a small detached fort on the Narain, at the head of the river Syr, the classic Jaxartes, about a hundred and sixty miles from Kashgar, with the Tian Shan Mountains rising between. This same outpost lies so far away from all support "as really not to be an advanced post in the ordinary sense at all." Between Samarkand and the Narain stretches the whole of still independent Khokan, besides "a huge mountain knot of thinly-peopled country."

To talk of such a position, held at the utmost by a few thousand troops, as if it meant serious danger to British India, does seem a little absurd. To use Mr. Grant Duff's comparison, it is just as if Italy were threatened with invasion, because some other Power had 2,000 troops quartered at Clermont in the heart of Auvergne, 1,000 men at Zurich, and 1,000 more keeping up a roundabout communication between those two posts by way of Augsburg, the point corresponding to Fort Vernoi on the river Ili. Under such conditions may we not for a long time to come sleep the sleep of the secure and the well-doing? What earthly reason have we to be afraid of 25,000 men, "for the most part scattered in lonely outposts" throughout the huge province of Turkistan? There is no need in this case to brag by way of keeping up one's courage. Russia no doubt is very strong, and might even hope some day to rival the Indian achievements of Alexander the Great. But only look at the vast difference between now and then. Behind the strongest frontier in the world are ranged the whole resources of a united Empire. So long as we have the strength to govern India, we have absolutely nothing to fear from any Power beyond the North-West. Russia on the other hand has still to get through the tedious business of consolidating her conquests in Central Asia, and how long she may be about it we may judge from the present temper of her revolted subjects in the Kirghiz Steppes. But suppose all that done, Samarkand would still, as Mr. Grant Duff observes, be more than six hundred miles from Herat. From Herat through Candahar and "the weary Bolan Pass" into Sindh would be a journey of eight hundred miles more, to end in meeting "a large and well-appointed army, able to choose its own ground." The shorter road from Bokhara, through Balkh and Cabul, to Peshawar would be still less practicable. As for the road from Khojend through Khokand, Kashgar, Yarkand, over the Kuen Lun mountains by the Chang-chen-moo Pass, "it might not be wholly impracticable to a man of the temper of Alexander the Great or Charles XII.," if every conceivable condition were in his favour. In other words, Russia has to all appearance the choice between three impossibilities; and so for at least another century we may sleep as soundly as we choose for all her desire or power to disturb our slumbers.

Has Russia even the desire? We have always expressed our scepticism on that point, and it is gratifying to see that both Mr. G. Duff and Sir C. Wingfield are of the same opinion. With regard to what Russia thinks aloud on the subject, it is enough to know on the best authority that our relations with her are just now of the most cordial kind, that she has no more desire to interfere at Kabul than we have, and that she has even thrown out some project for securing the neutrality of the States on our North-Western Frontier. The last piece of information came direct from Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Grant Duff's explanation of the motives which led to the meeting at Umballa should leave the Russian Government no decent grounds for suspecting us of undue interference in Afghan affairs. All we ask for is a quiet Afghanistan. There is no thought of "erecting Shere Ali into a bulwark against Russia or against anybody else." Mr. Eastwick's objection to throwing away arms and money on the faithless ruler of a faithless people is fairly answered by a reference to the advantage of securing peaceful trade with the country of a neighbour strong enough to maintain order at home, and to help us in overawing the turbulent tribes along our common frontier, as well as in paralysing the arm of Mussulman fanaticism in the Ganges Valley. And it is impossible to deny that a non-aggressive Power, as British India now is, has everything to gain from the neighbourhood of peaceful, well-governed States. Only a Power bent on aggrandisement would welcome the continuance of such anarchy as that which provoked us into conquering the Punjab, or that which Shere Ali has now quelled, let us hope for many years, in Afghanistan. If a renewal of the terms which kept Dost Mohammed true to us in 1857 can help Shere Ali to keep Afghanistan quiet for some time to come, we shall have no reason to regret the meeting at Umballa, still less to see in it any departure from the policy theretofore pursued. As for taking Afghan faithlessness for granted, we are inclined to doubt, with Mr. Grant Duff, whether a fair review of our dealings with Afghanistan in the last forty years would leave so very large a balance of good faith on our side.

Another good result of Mr. Eastwick's motion was the declaration it drew from the Under Secretary as to the drift of England's future policy towards Persia. For our part we cannot see why the Persian Embassy should not be replaced under the Indian Government, with which Persia has many more points of contact than with England. But the next best thing to such an arrangement is to recognise the wisdom of friendly relations with a Power which can always affect us for good or evil, whether on the side of India or of Turkey. It may be doubtful whether Herat is more of a Persian than an Afghan city. But it is clear that the quarrels between Persia and Afghanistan are a source of annoyance to British India, and that misunderstandings between India and Persia must tell against English interests in the Persian Gulf. The increase of our trade with Persia depends on what help we can give her towards the maintenance of peace and the development of her resources. If India can spare officers to drill the Shah's troops, and if the Shah will pay them suitably, Mr. Grant Duff can "see no reason against letting them go." It is a pity that we have taken six years to find out the reasonableness of the Shah's request, and many more years to discern the wisdom of renewing a friendship which ought never to have been rent in twain.

Correspondence.

THE WAHABIES ON THE FRONTIER. TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The remarks in the Indian Mail of the 30th June, 1869, on the subject of the Wahabies, lead me to offer, for insertion in your journal, a few observations on the same subject, which may or may not be useful.

First of all, the Mahomedan conspiracy against our rule, which exists and has for a very long time existed from one end of our Indian Empire to the other, is of very serious importance; nay, much more so than many people consider it to be, and whether plots be discovered to be existing at Vellore in the Carnatic, or in the Cis-Sutlej districts, or in the Deccan, or Ghewkies (as we have already seen), it behoves our Government to be continually watchful and on the alert. The discovery of a plot, here and there, with the consequent punishment of offenders, will not serve to extinguish a partially smothered flame, which will be ever ready to break out, and we should be prepared for it, more especially at times when we are engaged in foreign wars, and with so weak and unsettled a frontier on our North-west as we have at present.

At the termination of my command on the North-West Frontier of India in 1862, intercepted correspondence, which fell into my hands, disclosed the intercourse then being carried on, of a most incendiary nature, between the old sepoys of the rebellious army of Bengal and the subjects of the Nizam at Hyderabad, and by secret intelligence, from time to time, disaffection on the part of the Mussulmans of India towards our Government had been revealed.

The "pooh-poohing" system, in opposition to what is wrongly considered, in very many instances, the "alarmist's uneasiness," generally prevails, and so we jog on with a rod for ever hanging over our heads.

As regards the colony of Hindustani fanatics (to which allusion is made in your article referred to) on the Eusufzai border of our territory, with whom and with whose proceedings I have been so intimately acquainted, I will briefly explain how it happened that our army had to encounter the very dangerous conspiracy which led to our disastrous losses in 1863 in the Umbeylah Pass, of which we had previously received due and ample warning.

During the prevalence of the Mutiny of the native troops, in 1857 or in 1858, I proposed to Major James, the Acting Commissioner of Peshawar, to join me in establishing a passport and espionage system on the river Indus, which was for a time strictly carried out. With enemies long established in our front, and on both flanks, I had discovered that our weakest and most dangerous point in our very weak position at Peshawur (as it always must be under existing circumstances) was in our rear; as the emissaries of our disaffected subjects in Hindustan were crossing the Indus from thence, and were not only hovering about our disaffected forces on the frontier, but were proceeding beyond our territory, in support of the colony of fanatics on the Mahabun Mountain, with a view to a general rising against us of the hill tribes. An effectual stopper was put, for the time, on these deep-laid schemes of our enemies by the passport and espionage systems; but unhappily these necessary precautions were removed by order of the then Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, who stated that the passport system was anti-English, and could not be permitted. The passport system was accordingly taken off, but the espionage remained (as far as I was personally concerned), and I received intimation that no sooner was Sir John Lawrence's order to abolish the passport system carried out than our enemies set busily to work, and arms, ammunition, money, and men, as I was informed, were crossing the Indus to support and reinforce the fanatics on the Euzufzai border.

I sent off spies to the hills, and obtained certain information as to what was going on, and I strongly urged on the Government of the Punjab the necessity for immediate action. I had intended to move, if I had been permitted, with a very small force (1,500 men) into the Mahabun ranges, and by a surprise, as I had done before on a former occasion, nip in the bud a very dangerous conspiracy; and so confident was I that the Government would or must act, that I made my personal arrangements at Attock for the purpose; but nothing was allowed to be done; masterly inactivity prevailed, and the golden opportunity was lost. The colony of Hindustani fanatics, at or above Satana, was daily augmenting, and I was credibly informed that the Afghans, Swatees, and others were in communication with them, and all were combining for a general rising, which came off when our army encountered such unprecedented difficulties in the Umballa Pass in 1863.

I attribute the expenditure of blood and treasure in that sad affair, with the deplorable loss of prestige which ensued, to the delays which occurred in referring to the far distant Governments of India, to the want of energy or disloyalty of the Punjab police, and especially to the withdrawal of the wholesome restrictions (by the Punjab Government) which had been placed on the Indus by Major James and myself.

The Hill tribes on our North-West Frontier of India, and our fellow-subjects in general in India (more especially the Mussulmans), are as hostile as ever to our rule, although, as I am informed, the civil authorities of India are positively asserting the contrary. It is wicked in the extreme, as well as dangerous, to slumber and sleep in an Empire of such magnitude, because the "masterly inactivity" policy (as it is termed) infallibly tends to the destruction of friends as well as foes.

That a wide special Mussulman conspiracy against our rule in India exists at present throughout Asia few will deny. It prevails everywhere, and is promoted and encouraged by those who place implicit confidence in our present system, and who cannot bring themselves to believe that our mild and amiable rule is unsuited to races who have for ages been bound together by despotism alone.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

SYDNEY COTTON, Lieutenant-general.

FIELD OFFICERS AND THE STAFF CORPS.

The Friend of India, commenting on the rejection of the retiring scheme for field officers, remarks that the Secretary of State does not seem to have referred the very serious difference between Colonel Broome and General Hannington to a civil actuary. Even if General Hannington be correct, and if there be now many retirements, India will still be saddled with a large and excessive military expenditure for field officers, who give no adequate return, solely because of the military muddle which the abolition of the local army has caused. These officers are not to blame. So far from that they are to be compassionated for the folly which neutralises their great experience, and unnecessarily keeps them on in idleness in a tropical country. General Hannington is too able and conscientious to shut his eyes to the truth, as the Secretary of State does, on the principle that sufficient for the day is the evil thereof. He distinctly says—"I do not mean to under-rate the financial pressure that is approaching." Year by year, he tells us, the expenditure will go on increasing up to 1896—more than a quarter of a century, and only then a "rapid diminution will begin and continue until the corps falls into a normal state." That is a pretty prospect, in addition to the burden which we already bear every year. No wonder that in spite of a serious and excessive reduction in the effective strength of the English army in India every year the military expenditure rises above sixteen millions sterling. We want fighting men and regimental officers, and we are presented with old generals and colonels, who are tempted to stay on in idleness at a vast and annually increasing cost. And after all we are coming back to the very system of a local army, which was extinguished by Sir C. Wood, to humour the "imperial" prejudices of the Court, in spite of all the warnings of General Durand and Lord Canning. The Blue-book which publishes the correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State on the subject of field officers contains minutes in which Sir W. Mansfield and General Norman, while discussing the Staff Corps—the latter somewhat apologetically—make serious statements regarding the paucity of officers and the unpreparedness of the army, in this respect, for a campaign. Nothing more condemnatory of the irregular system of seven English officers per regiment has ever been written by its greatest enemies. When the Commander-in-Chief complains, as he does elsewhere, that in past campaigns it has been difficult "to fill up the additional staffs which are immediately required;" that if the Abyssinian war had continued not another officer could have been sent from India; that if thirty or forty officers had been put hors de combat in the Hazara district, he did not know where men could be found to replace them, it is high time for the Government to act. Even the British regiments have been so straitened for officers, since Lord Hardinge reduced the establishment, that his Excellency a year ago urged the expediency of adding ten lieutenants to every infantry and six to every cavalry corps serving in India. It is impossible to reconcile Sir W. Mansfield's minute with his last dinner speech in Calcutta and his order on the Hazara campaign, except on the supposition that the minutes are meant only for Government, and the speech and order for the public and the army.

INDIAN HEAT.

The Pioneer maintains that it is difficult to make any one who has never been in the North-West Provinces realise what the heat is at the present season. If you tell friends at home that you have to be all the day indoors with punkahs pulling, the natives (of Europe) say, "How delightful!" and if you add that the thermometer stands at 98 degs. Fahr., they say, "Almost more than it was at our ball, do you remember?" The best thing ever done in the way of indoctrinating the English on this subject was what Harvey Tuckett described in his Furlough Narrative in the "M. U. M." He there set forth that his reappearance at his paternal home took place when the family were assembled at the children's lunch, and was hailed with cries of, "What, you come home!" "Left the luxuries of the East." "Can you live on 7s. 6d. a-day?" and such like; till, in a fit of desperation, he asked them to come and see him in his lodgings over a baker's furnace, with all the doors and windows closed, a plague of flies, and half-a-dozen chimney-sweeps with bare feet walking in and out without knocking. It seems odd to the new comer that India should get hotter the farther north you go; so that Benares is hotter than Calcutta, and Peshawur hotter than Benares; but the hills are probably the cause, forming a southern wall against which we pant like garden-peaches in England. Hence it is that, in the latitude of Algiers, and with a lovely winter, the inhabitants of Northern India live for eight months in a radiation of heat, drought, vapour-bath, and general alteration of jehannum that covers him with boils, maddens him with prickly heat, destroys his appetite, impoverishes his blood, breaks down his temper, softens his brain, teaches him to drink, or drives him into matrimony. For this is the oddest part of the whole business. It has been asked lately, "Is a wife necessary for an infant?" But in this country the more pertinent, if more puzzling inquiry is, "Whether a wife is necessary for an ensign?" The heat destroys your health and spirits, often kills you dead—the greatest of all objections to a country for living in—yet the cure for all seems to be to catch an unfortunate member of the opposite sex, and get her to share your lot. We cannot say whether heat is a thing which is capable of being divided between two persons, so as to lighten the burthen of each; we should have thought not; but it would really seem as if people thought it was. To our minds there are few more depressing spectacles in life than that of a young couple thus united in the bonds of Hymen and of caloric. Call upon them, and you will find one asleep at one end of the house and one at the other, and after you have waited a quarter of an hour in a room without a punkah, and just as your glare-blinded eyes have begun to distinguish the piano from the bookshelf, one enters from one door allaying cutaneous irritation on his back, and the other from another, vainly endeavouring with a handkerchief saturated with boxwallah's eau-de-cologne to conceal a shining red excrescence on her forehead about the size of a rhinoceros' horn. "I would go anywhere with Charles," said the headstrong girl six months ago to her aunt in England; but this life of atmospheric virus in a large mud-pie must be a sore trial to affection founded on the most delicate romance. There is one consolation about the heat which we should do well to bear in mind. Were it not for that ensigns would not be able to marry, nor would any of us command the incomes we receive. This may seem a small matter, especially under the former of its aspects; but that there are people who prefer heat and competence to starvation in the temperate zone is at all events a fact.

THE LOAFER.

The Bombay Gazette thinks that there are two ways for the Government to deal with the loafer—one is to send him back at once to Europe, and the other is to treat him in this country. The obvious objection to the former is that to adopt it would practically be to put a premium at once on the profession of the beggar. Every man who wanted to get out of the country would know that he could do so at any time by becoming a loafer. The happy prospect of a return to England would serve to make loafers quite a popular profession. Those who advocate this mode of getting rid of the vagabond on the plea that, at all events, it would be a cheaper plan than the one of maintaining him here, urge also that it is utterly hopeless to expect to reform him in India. This latter point opens a very wide field for discussion, because we maintain that all experience in England goes to indicate the impossibility of reforming any man after he has gone through a certain course of vice. But we will not enter on this topic now. Let us consider the question in its other aspects. If our object is to prevent loafers, what measure of success will attend our efforts if we proceed on the principle of making it attractive? To deter men from crime it is found necessary to punish them. But with regard to the loafer, what is proposed to be done is practically to tell him that we do not want him here, and are prepared to pay his expenses to England. The loafer will be very glad to hear it, and will certainly not be induced to reform in consequence. But let us consider the matter as one of expense. It is quite true that it may cost less to send a man home than to maintain him for an indefinite period in India, but this is not stating the case fairly. If every loafer is put into jail and compelled to work for his living, and if the food and comforts given him are in proportion to his work, the expense of each loafer ought to be trifling. Moreover, if hard work is at the same time combined with some punishment in our treatment of the loafer, he will very soon see the necessity of adopting another profession. So that in the one case (i.e., supposing loafers are treated in India) the number of men who live by this vagabond kind of life will be rapidly diminished; whereas in the other (i.e., supposing every loafer is sent to England) the numbers will always be large. To establish, therefore, a fair comparison of expense, we must calculate what it would cost to maintain one man in India and what to send ten men to England. We venture to think that it would be cheaper to maintain the one man in an Indian jail. If so, it will not be worth while to give any further reasons why the plan of treating loafers in this country is superior to the one of sending them to England.

A SUSPICIOUS STATE OF AFFAIRS.—During a trial that is yet progressing in the High Court, a barrister, unusually well acquainted with the state of the country in the interior, said something which, we think, is deserving of public record, and, perhaps, inquiry. He stated that it was singular how the wards in Mymensing generally died off just before attaining majority, when power was left to adopt successors. An inquiry should, we submit, be ordered by the Lieut.-Governor into this untoward and suspicious state of affairs; and if it be true that the wards have generally died off just before attaining their majority, they should, wherever there is power given to adopt their successors, be removed at once to Calcutta. If true, it is strange that it should never have been brought before the public hitherto; and if not true, it is almost a criminal libel on many respectable families and a numerous class of Amlahs.—Indian Daily News.

Bengal.

THE CYCLONE AT CALCUTTA.

Lower Bengal has been visited by two cyclones within twenty-four days. The first took place on 16th May, and passed through the heart of Jessore; it will be remembered in connection with the loss of the Cheduba. The second commenced on the evening of the 8th inst., and raged throughout yesterday. The weather all day on Tuesday looked dark and threatening, and the barometer fell slowly and steadily. Towards the close of the afternoon a very heavy shower burst over the city and ushered in a broken stormy sky, with that ragged swift fleeing scud which is now so well known. By evening there were few who expected the night to pass without a storm. At three o'clock on the morning of the 9th the wind had risen to a strong gale, blowing from the north-east, and from this time it gradually increased in violence up to ten o'clock, at which time the barometer in our office had sunk to 29.80. It continued at this point till 1 P.M., when it began slowly to rise, and at four o'clock it was 29.10. The heaviest gusts were at noon, by which time doors and windows not securely fastened were torn away. The storm moderated about two, and the wind gradually shifted round to the south. At half-past four there was a slight oscillation. At this time the wind had veered round again to the west, and there was what seemed a renewal of the storm. We have not yet been able to ascertain the damage caused to life and property, but we learn that several boats on the river have sunk, and considerable damage has been sustained to property in the native quarters of the town.—Englishman, June 10.

The same paper of the 11th says:—

"The cyclone of Wednesday was more severe than that of the 16th May, and has done more damage. Calcutta, being on the western side of the centre, escaped the heaviest part of the storm. After four o'clock on Wednesday evening it settled down into a strong south-westerly gale, which continued raging till daylight yesterday morning. As the evening on Wednesday closed in there was a slight shock of earthquake. The following are the readings of an Elliott's aneroid barometer:—

"June 9.—6 A.M., 29.11; 7 A.M., 29.08; 8 A.M., 29.02; 9 A.M., 28.95; 9.30 A.M., 28.90; 10 A.M., 28.85; 10.30 A.M., 28.82; 11 A.M., 28.80, and then 28.78 lowest; 11.30 A.M., 28.80; 12 A.M., 28.84; 12.30, 28.86; 13, 28.90; 13.30, 28.94; 14, 28.97; 14.30, 29.00; 15, 29.02; 16, 29.05; 17, 29.08; 18, 29.15; 19, 29.20; 19.30, 29.24; 20, 29.25; 20.30, 29.28; 21, 29.30; 21.30, 29.32; 22, 29.34.

"June 10.—5.30 A.M., 29.40; 6.45 A.M., 29.45; 10 A.M., 29.49.

"We fear that we shall hear of great damage to property in the Jessore district. It is also likely, as the tide rose to an unusual height on Wednesday, that a second storm wave has visited the Soonderbuns. We think steamers might be sent out by Government to search the head of the bay and the sea face of the Soonderbuns, and that at the same time some inland vessels might visit the principal settlements ready to supply aid should it be required. The rule of never giving help until an urgent request has been preferred is at once cruel and impolitic.

"The damage done to house and land property in Calcutta was mostly confined to such minor injuries as broken venetians, verandahs, and doors. The most serious accident reported is the falling in of the roof of one of the sheds at the back of the pauper hospital at Sealdah, now used temporarily as a lock hospital. These buildings were erected a few months since by the Public Works Department, and were intended to be used as a small-pox hospital in the event of an epidemic. In the meantime they were made over temporarily as a lock hospital. There were 106 women in the hospital at the time. Between eleven and twelve o'clock on Wednesday morning the roof of one of the sheds fell in upon the unfortunates below. Two women were killed on the spot, three others very seriously wounded, and six slightly hurt. This occurred during the height of the storm, and the wounded women were with considerable difficulty taken into the building lately used as the Calcutta terminus of the Mutlah Railway.

"No approximate estimate can be given as to the loss on the river, but it is supposed that at least a hundred cargo boats, large and small, have been sunk. A considerable quantity of cargo and valuable property has been, and still continues to be, washed ashore, when it is taken charge of by the police until the proper owners come forward. No very great loss of life has been reported, nor have any bodies been washed ashore. The damage to the shipping is trifling. A few ships parted from their moorings, and fouled other vessels, but no damage of any consequence was done. The passenger boats suffered little, as the manjees had ample time to haul their boats high up on the bank as the violence of the gale increased."

STATION TALK.

ALLAHABAD, June 4.—This evening the mortal remains of Dr. Thomas Dillon, garrison surgeon of Allahabad, were conveyed to their last resting-place, in the Kydgunge Cemetery. It appears that on Tuesday morning last the unfortunate deceased was about to go out for an early ride, but when he had only one foot in the stirrup the horse became so restive that he was thrown on the back of his head, and taken up insensible, breathing heavily, and with blood issuing from his nose and ears. The horse was a late purchase, and the poor doctor was not aware of the animal's tricks. The accident occurred in his own compound, and he was immediately carried inside by his servants, while medical assistance was quickly available. He lingered in a state of unconsciousness for a period of sixty-four hours, and expired at ten o'clock last night, without ever having spoken or recognised any one. From the post mortem examination it was ascertained that the skull was completely fractured, from base to crown, and the wonder is that he lived so long after the fatal accident. What adds to the sadness of the melancholy affair is, Mrs. Dillon is now at Simla, and though it is said that she was written to informing her of the accident, yet she could hardly have received the letter until to-day.

HYDRABAD, June.—I mentioned in one of my letters that the Small Cause Court at Khangaon in Berar was closed for want of a qualified officer to fill the post of judge. It is now said that Lieut. Woodhouse, who has been recently appointed to the Berar Commission, is nominated to fill the vacancy, in addition to his duties in the Educational Department. Lieut. Woodhouse belongs to the Bombay army, and has passed in Marathi. Considering the relations between Berar and Bombay, more of the Bombay element is required in the Assigned Districts. The Commissioner of the Akola division is at the sanitarium of Chickulda, in the Gawilghur range. There is a rumour that the Viceroy intends to visit the Berars for the purpose of deciding whether the branch line from Shergaon to Khangaon shall be constructed with Imperial funds. The Great Indian Peninsula Company seem to fight shy of the undertaking. The project was originally mooted four years ago, when a civil engineer took the necessary levels. The popular opinion seems to be that the surplus revenues of Berar cannot be applied to a more legitimate purpose. The increase in the revenue of Berar is without a parallel in Indian history. In the twelve years since the province came under British Government the revenue has risen to double that specified in the treaty with the Nizam. Just as I was closing this letter I heard a rumour of a serious affray having occurred at Akola between the constabulary and some men of the detachment of the Contingent stationed there. The origin of the disturbance has not transpired, but the soldiers appear to have been so exasperated that they resented the interference of the Deputy Commissioner and Superintendent of Police. In the end some twenty-four men are said to have been arrested, but how many of these are soldiers and how many police has not been reported. The trial of the men will take place before Mr. C. Davies. If all be true that is reported, the case will be a cause celebre in the judicial annals of Berar. It will, beside, afford the native the rare spectacle of the magistrate coming forward as prosecutor in the Court of one of his own subordinates.—Englishman Correspondent.

DELHI, June 8.—The heat yesterday and the previous night was almost unbearable; to-day there is a change, and the wind, although still westerly, is cooler. Perhaps we are going to have a change, which the parched-up vegetation would be only too grateful for. Major Tighe, it is said, is coming here to take up the duties of Commissioner during Colonel McNeile's absence, which will not be above a couple of months, I fancy.

NUSSEERABAD, June 8.—The heat during the past month has been dreadful, and what surprises me (pleasantly though) is that no deaths from apoplexy have occurred; but death in another and more dreaded form is amongst us; cholera, that scourge of the East, is claiming its victims. The Royals since yesterday have lost five men; one of the civil residents also lost a child. Prompt measures were and continue to be taken to keep the epidemic under by fumigating the barracks, but I much fear until we have rain the plague will not wholly disappear. I have been informed that the number of deaths in the Sudder bazaar averages from eight to ten daily. There was every indication of rain on Sunday last; the clouds from about 1 P.M. continued to hang over us in thick leaden masses, while low thunder could be heard at short intervals, but unhappily the wind was too high and boisterous, so that by 7 A.M. the clouds were scattered and carried away. Doubtless had a couple of dozen rounds been fired by the artillery the concussion in the air would have brought down a shower; however, let us hope that before another week closes over us the periodical rains will have set in. I hear that Captain Bruce, the Political Agent of Harraotee, was attacked with cholera a few days ago at Deolee. Famine still continues; flour at six seers for the rupee, gram eight, and other cereals proportionally dear, nor is there any likelihood of a fall in prices for some time to come.

CENTRAL PROVINCES, June 8.—By Captain Doveton proceeding on leave to England, Mr. Jacob, Deputy-Conservator of Forests, comes in for the charge of three offices—viz., Conservator's, for Captain Doveton (who got this step only the other day), and Deputy-Conservators for the northern and eastern division. Mr. Morris has returned to Nagpore from his tour amongst the famine-stricken in the Jubbulpore district; and some wretched sights he must have seen. All the better, as the bowels of his compassion must necessarily be the more moved to give further relief. The Central India Times now wishes the chief to take a run down to Raepore, where there is not only distress from the famine, but epidemic cholera raging. I do not suppose many people would care to run the same risk as the lamented Captain Twyford ran, at the sacrifice of his life, as it turned out. Mr. Morris has probably a pressure of business at Nagpore, in connection with the annual reports, and in consequence of the approaching arrival of Mr. George Campbell from England. He has reviewed the criminal and civil reports for 1868. I find, but there is nothing very remarkable to gather therefrom. Most of the remarks might stand as stereotyped comments on the criminal administration of any province in India. The year does not possess any striking features in connection with crime. The little rain even that has fallen in the neighbourhood of Jubbulpore has cooled down the atmosphere some five or six degrees; and it was near time, for the place was getting as bad as Kamptee for heat apoplexy. Some of the European troops have been out in camp on account of sickness appearing in the barracks; but the precautionary steps were taken in such excellent time that there has been no mortality to talk of. Lieutenant Boyes, Adjutant of the 2-12th, who has gone on leave to Cashmere, has written to say that, in regard to the heat, Jubbulpore is paradise compared to Meer Meer and other stations in the Punjab. Another traveller, from the Punjab to Jubbulpore, assures me that the heat is much milder in these parts than where he has come from. Three murderers were hanged at Jubbulpore yesterday morning. On this occasion the gallows was removed to a spot right out of the station, in consequence of a paragraph, which appeared in the Jubbulpore Chronicle, manifestly warning the residents not to come for their constitutional rides and walks in the neighbourhood of the jail on that morning. The removal of the gallows reflects much good sense on the part of the Deputy-Commissioner, Captain Ward, as such executions used to take place heretofore in the civil station. The transfer of Captain Thomas from Seonic to Jubbulpore is talked about. It is also rumoured that either Lieutenant Brooke or Captain Lugard, Assistant Commissioners of this Commission, will be transferred as Deputy-Commissioner to the Burmah Commission, in exchange for Mr. Russell, Settlement Officer in Burmah, who returns as an Assistant Commissioner to these Provinces.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

SIMLAH.—At Simlah on the 8th June there were exceedingly heavy showers, and it was thought the rains had probably commenced. Lady Mayo and party returned to Simlah from their trip into the interior on Monday, the 31st May.

DEATH OF A MISSIONARY.—We regret to learn of the death at Lucknow of the Rev. Mr. Trench, of the Church Mission Society, after a short illness. Mr. Trench was a very young man, and had only lately joined the Mission.

END OF THE "FEROZE".—It is said that the Government steamer Feroze has been condemned by the dockyard authorities at Calcutta as utterly unseaworthy. She is said to be completely rotten, and to be little more than a shell of a ship, fit for nothing but to burn, and, if not burnt shortly, will be eaten by white ants.

MORTALITY ON THE G. I. P. RAILWAY.—We regret to hear that some more deaths have occurred on this line, by which the Railway Company have lost the services of some of their best contractors and servants. Within a few months the company have lost more than a dozen Europeans; men they could ill spare at this time.

SPORT IN CENTRAL INDIA.—The shooting party in Central India broke up camp the last week in May, having bagged twenty-one tigers, and a large number of bears, panthers, and leopards. The heat was almost unendurable in tents, and water was very scarce, and sometimes far from drinkable.

CIVIL.—Complete arrangements have been made for the settlement of the Peshawur district. Captain Hastings, who has for some time been the Assistant Commissioner of the Eusufzai district, has been appointed settlement officer. This very difficult post could not have been entrusted, we are led to believe, to better hands. Captain Hastings is a young officer of very great promise, and is well acquainted with Puthans and their language.—Delhi Gazette.

SHERE ALI AND HIS DOINGS.—The Ameer Shere Ali has constituted a vigorous municipality in Cabul, and is himself Bench, Commissioner, Controller, and Health Officer all in one. A halacoe cess has been established, to provide funds for the cleaning of the streets and lanes of the city, one rupee, a rupee and a half, or two rupees being demanded, according to the wealth of each landlord and the filth of his lane. This measure, as every reformer does in its day, has given great offence, but the Ameer "will take no excuses, but insists on the roads being kept clean."—The Pioneer announces that the Ameer Shere Ali is ostensibly using endeavours to effect a result, which, if achieved, may be held almost to prove the sincerity of his good-will towards us. He is said to be trying to open the direct Khyber route instead of that via Michnee now in use. This latter involves a détour of two long marches over a worse road than that which it is sought to re-open. It is simply a question of adequately subsidising the tribe, or rather, perhaps, of employing in the right proportion bribes and threats.

LOSS OF A STEAMER.—We regret to hear of the loss of the steamer Vulcan, which, we understand, foundered on Friday afternoon four miles to the S.W. of the Rangoon light ship. We learn that the captain and crew were saved by the steamer Bassein, which happened to arrive most opportunely on the scene of the disaster.—Moulmein Advertiser, May 18.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE.—The Government of India has declined to accede to the prayer of a memorial from editors and proprietors of vernacular papers in the North-Western Provinces, asking for a reduction of postage on newspapers of light weight, for two reasons. The Viceroy cannot give one section of the press advantages which are not fully shared by all the other sections, and on the general question his Excellency has decided that financial considerations render it inexpedient to make any further changes in the rates of postage.

CAPTAIN SLADEN.—We regret to learn that our Political Agent at the Court of Mandalay has been at length attacked with a serious form of illness. It is stated that he has been seized with paralysis or palsy of one side of his person, and that it has become absolutely necessary that he should leave the capital for a season, in order to try the effects of a change of air. He has obtained permission to quit Mandalay as soon as possible, and Dr. Suffrien, now at Moulmein, who officiated for some time as Civil Surgeon of Rangoon, has been directed to proceed to Mandalay and assume temporary charge of the Political Agent's office there.—Rangoon Times, May 26.

MORAR.—Morar, already a very large place, is intended to be still larger. Barrack building is going on on every side. Barracks for a second regiment of European infantry are well advanced, and a site for the barracks of a dragoon regiment has been fixed. In the fortress, accommodation for a wing of British infantry and a battery of artillery is almost completed, and positions commanding the Lushkur have been chosen for the Armstrong guns with which the fort is armed. The picturesque fort of Gwalior is a fearful spot for the British soldier whilst the hot winds are blowing, the natural heat being greatly increased at night by radiation from the huge rock on which it stands; but in the rains and in the autumn months it has the advantage of catching every breath of air.—Friend of India.

DEATHS FROM THE HEAT.—We hear that a guard in charge of a train on the Jubbulpore line was found dead in the break-van on Monday last. The cause of death was probably heat apoplexy. Two passengers laid prostrate by heat apoplexy were taken out from the Sunday morning up-train, one at Allyghur and one at Toondla. On the same day a guard of the E.I.R. died at Toondla from heat apoplexy.—Pioneer, June 9.—We hear with regret of the death by heat apoplexy of Mr. George Ingram, foreman fitter of the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway, who expired after a very short illness of an hour and a half. He was quite a young man, only twenty-three years old, and bore a very good character for steadiness and hard work, and was very much respected by his fellow workmen, and appreciated by his superiors.—Jubbulpore Chronicle.

THE WAHABEES.—We were somewhat premature (says the Friend of India) in stating last week that the regular trial of the many Wahabees now in jail had begun. The police have proceeded against one Peer Mahomed, of Dinapore, two noted Wahabees at Rajshaye, and a notorious Moulvie at Malda, who had sent several recruits to join the colony of fanatics across the frontier. The police have also succeeded in finding ample evidence against three persons in the district of Moorshedabad. These men are all safe in jail. Gradually the police are shutting up the influential leaders, who have hitherto collected money and sent the same to the fanatics on the Mahabun. Government has authentic information that the colony is in great distress, owing to want of money, and it is satisfactory to find that Mr. Reilly's labours are telling on its members. We hope they will soon be forced to disperse.

SYLHET AND CACHAR FRONTIER.—The following immediate arrangements for the protection of the Sylhet and Cachar frontier against the attacks of the Looshais during the approaching rains have been made by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal and approved by the Government of India. In Sylhet, on a frontier line of about fifty-six miles, four posts have been established, each consisting of two head constables and thirty constables, under the charge of two sub-inspectors. In Cachar, which has a frontier line of about forty-five miles along the Looshai country, four of the existing posts, consisting at present of two head constables, and sixteen constables, have been strengthened by the addition of twelve constables each to three of the posts, and eight to the fourth. Besides these, another strong guard has been established at Julna Cherra of four head constables and fifty men under a sub-inspector.

CHOLERA AT RAIPORE.—Accounts continue to reach us of the great havoc cholera is making at Raipore. We learn from a correspondent that no less than 63 deaths occurred on the 27th May in the town of Raipore. We have also news from Narsingpore under the same date, and the writer informs us that matters there too present a very gloomy aspect indeed. The people of that district are in a great state of alarm and excitement. Returns show that out of 220 cases, 160 deaths took place, and among the 50 European railway employees, 5 were attacked, and these latter all succumbed to the disease. Our correspondent also gives a sad account of the sudden death from the same disease of the District Engineer, Mr.

Smythe. This gentleman was a guest at a farewell dinner given on the occasion of the departure from that station of Dr. Raye, Civil Surgeon, on the 20th May. Mr. Smythe was an universal favourite, and by his gaiety and light-heartedness was the life and soul of the party. He was a particularly abstemious man. The next morning he was taken ill, and died the same day. His untimely death has cast a gloom over the small social circle of Narsingpore.—Central India Times.

MUNDLA.—On Sunday last, about two P.M., a fire broke out in Mundla, and two hundred houses were burnt down. The people are in great distress, as they had suffered from the cholera epidemic, and now they have lost all their property—grain they had stored for the rains, and their houses. Most of the people were away at their daily work, and could not save anything. The houses destroyed belong chiefly to Gondhas, Kutheas, Kullars, and Thalees. The distress of these poor people is very great. The Deputy Commissioner, Captain Grace, at once got up a subscription, with which it is to be hoped he will be able to relieve the immediate wants of the poor. Baboojee Ojah, Honorary Magistrate, with his usual liberality, gave Rs. 1,000 to be distributed, and informed the people that at his jungles of Khoorcaa and Amanaila villages, near Mundla, they are welcome to get wood and bamboos to rebuild their houses. On the 27th May 1,600 flying foxes were found dead in the old fort at Mundla. The same day the natives got some bygas and went through their poojahs, and that night there was neither a fresh case nor a death from cholera; so the natives have it that the goddess of cholera had come to Mundla to carry off a certain number of the inhabitants, but owing to the poojahs having been performed her wrath was appeased, and in order to keep her word she attacked the flying foxes.—Jubbulpore Chronicle, June 9.

MILITARY.—Lieutenant Pakenham, H.M.'s 17th Bengal N.I., is another victim of heat apoplexy. This officer was lately appointed to the Station Staff at Futtyghur, and had barely time to reach there, when he was struck down.—A sad accident is reported from Jutogh. As the Sergeant-Major of Captain Manderson's Mountain Battery was employed in drilling the men of his battery last week, the mule on which he rode galloped to the edge of a very steep khud, and then stopped so suddenly that the rider was thrown down the khud with such force that his head was smashed to pieces. The scabbard of his sword fell off, and was doubled in two, and the sword itself entered the body of the unfortunate man.—Times of India, June 15.—Dr. Dillon, Garrison Surgeon of Allahabad, met with a serious accident on the 1st June, and we now regret to learn of his death on the 3rd ult. It appears that a horse which he was in the act of mounting started before he was properly in the saddle, the result being that he fell heavily on his head, and was taken up insensible. The force with which he fell had caused severe concussion of the brain.—Private Waterhouse, 105th Regiment, who was sentenced to be hanged for the murder of his comrade, was executed on Saturday morning last. His confession amounted to no more this—that he had no intention of taking the life of his comrade; but that, being maddened by drink, in a moment of temptation, he fired the fatal shot.—Pioneer, June 7.—Two soldiers of the 79th Highlanders died yesterday in the Meerut fort from heat-apoplexy; one was found dead in his bed.—Mofussilite, June 8.—A letter from Kussowlee informs us that the Farrier Major of the 5th Lancers shot himself on the 24th. It is supposed that domestic affliction was the cause.—Mofussilite, June 5.—A letter from Hazara informs us that the Supreme Government is again considering the expediency of amalgamating the Punjab Frontier Force with that of the Indian Army. The opinion of Colonel Wilde, C.B., C.S.I., has, we believe, been given in favour of its amalgamation. Such a step, however, will doubtless have many stern opponents. The existence of the Frontier Force under a separate head has always struck us as an anomaly which ought not to exist, but at present we hardly feel disposed to advise its entire amalgamation. The force might remain a separate branch of the service and yet be placed under his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief; we should then have a force of officers and men used to frontier service always at the front; and yet the great anomaly of two Commanders-in-Chief, one civil and the other military, would cease to exist. We believe that such an arrangement would be popular with the officers and men of the Punjab Frontier Force.—Delhi Gazette, June 10.—We hear from Nussceerabad, under date the 8th June, that cholera broke out among "The Royals" on the night of the 6th. Up to the evening of the 7th there had been eight cases, with two deaths; during the night another case and one death.—We are glad to hear that there have been no cases of cholera in the camp to which a portion of the 2-12th Regiment were sent. The detachment was to have returned to barracks yesterday.—Jubbulpore Chronicle, June 9.

MURDER OF LIEUT. BROOKING.

The event of the week has been the murder of Lieutenant A. Y. Brooking, adjutant of the 35th M.N.I., at Madras, by Abdool Raiman, the senior havildar of the regiment. The man was first on the list for promotion to the rank of jemadar in his regiment. A vacancy occurred, but, being considered unfit for the position, he was passed over and recommended for pension. He had seen thirty-two years' service, and had anxiously looked forward to the grade for which he was pronounced incompetent. This grieved him sorely, and, believing that the adjutant had everything to do with the disappointment he had experienced, he was determined to have his revenge on that officer. So at daybreak on the morning of Monday, June 7th, when the regiment had assembled for parade, he carried his resolve into effect. He appeared on the ground in his usual uniform, but without his havildar's sash and stripes, and taking his musket, went and lay in wait for the unfortunate officer in a lane which the adjutant was in the habit of taking whenever he attended parade. At the turn of the lane leading to the parade-ground is the cell of the regiment, and near it stands a sentry-box, in which the havildar lay in ambush. The adjutant soon arrived, when the havildar presented himself from his hiding-place, musket in hand; and on the adjutant asking what he was doing at the place, the havildar, raising his musket, fired at the adjutant and hit him, the report of the musket being clearly heard on the parade-ground. The horsekeeper of the Adjutant, the only witness of the murderous act, next saw the havildar turn down the lane, and walking up to a heap of stones which was hard by, there reload his musket. In the meanwhile the wounded Adjutant managed to guide his horse for about thirty yards, after which, being faint from loss of blood, he fell off, just opposite to the line of sepoy's drawn up for parade. The Quartermaster-Sergeant and Sergeant-Major of the corps perceiving what had happened ran up and found that the Adjutant had been shot through the body. The bleeding officer was immediately carried to the Sergeant-Major's quarters and there laid on a bed, and medical aid was at once sent for. On a search being made for him Abdool Raiman was found lying in the lane, weltering in his own blood and groaning. It now became apparent that the wretched man, after having secured what he considered as his revenge, had shot himself. He was also removed, and laid on the ground near the Sergeant-Major's quarters. Dr. Brett, the Sergeant-Major attached to the corps, and Dr. Colvin Smith soon arrived, and did all they could for the adjutant and the havildar. In the case of the adjutant the ball seemed to have entered the right portion of the back, and, passing through the liver, to have made its way out of the body; and in the case of the havildar the bullet entered the abdomen, and passing obliquely in a downward direction through the left portion of the back, struck a wall that was near. The havildar's pouch was examined, but no cartridges were missing from it; the cartridges he had used must therefore have been extra ones he had specially provided himself with. The havildar suffered a great deal, and he was, after a little time, conveyed to the regimental hospital, where he lingered till about half-past eight o'clock and died. The affair was reported to the police, and Major Tennant, the acting Commissioner of Police, arrived early on the spot, and the deposition of Lieutenant Brooking was taken. The havildar also made a declaration; he admitted having shot himself, but he denied having wounded the adjutant. He had shot himself, he stated, because he had not been promoted to the rank of jemadar. Some of the sepoy's of the regiment appear to believe that the havildar had a real grievance to complain of, and expressed their pity for what they considered his sad fate.

For Mr. Brooking the greatest sympathy was felt, and during the thirty hours in which he lingered, crowds of people from all classes of the community, from Lord Napier downwards, made the most anxious personal inquiries regarding him. Everything that medical skill could devise, with the kindest and most unremitting attention, were devoted to alleviate his suffering, and if possible to save his life, and some slight hopes were at one time entertained, from his calm and composed condition, that he would recover. Early on Tuesday morning, however, it was apparent that he was fast sinking, and a little after one o'clock in the afternoon he died, deeply regretted by all his brother officers and friends. His remains were followed to the grave this morning by a large concourse of people, and he was buried with military honours. He was only twenty-eight years old, and has left a widow and two young children.

WRECK OF THE "CHINA MERCHANT."—The crew of the wrecked schooner China Merchant arrived in town on Friday last. They were at Double Island since the vessel was wrecked, whither they proceeded in a small boat. They were brought up to town in one of the lighters that had conveyed stores to Double Island.—Madras Standard, May 25.

BISHOP FENNELLY.—We learn that Bishop Fennelly will shortly leave Madras for Rome to be present at the great Ecumenical Council to be held at the Eternal City on the 8th December next. Dr. Meurin, R. C. Bishop of Bombay, has already left for Rome. It is expected that Dr. Fennelly will be accompanied by the Right Reverend Bishops of Bangalore, Trichinopoly, and Vizagapatam.—Madras Standard, June 7.

OFFICIAL ECONOMY.—The Government of India have, we believe, been cutting and carving without mercy at the budget of the Madras Government. They have struck out three lakhs from the police estimates, two lakhs from the military estimates, and taken a good slice off the estimates for public works. Lord Mayo has evidently determined to be great in budgets, and without much knowledge of the actual requirements of the several local Governments he is resolved to make them abate their demands according to the exigencies of his own financial department.—Madras Times.

A MODEL MYSORE VILLAGE.—Our native fellow subjects in Mysore are "marching on." The village of Yellawankum, says the Herald, now boasts of a tavern, and the simple villagers flock to it, under the innocent impression that the beer and spirits sold are direct from "Yingland." In time, probably, the people of Mysore will become as great beer-drinkers as their fellow-subjects from the West. —Madras Athenæum.

SICKNESS AT WYNAAD.—We hear that on the morning of the 5th instant a Company of Sappers and Miners arrived here from Wynaad via Beypore, in a deplorable state. Nearly the whole of them, with their families, were suffering from fever and dysentery. When removing the sick from the train one of the women was found dead; it appears that she died between Jollepatt and this station. We also understand that before the company left Beypore six men and an equal number of women had died from the above diseases. —Bangalore Spectator, June 8.

ATTEMPTING TO COMMIT MURDER.—A private of the II Company H.M.'s 45th Regiment, named Conway, was brought to the Town Police Court, Madras, on the 8th of June, on the charge of having on the night of the 4th of June, attempted with a small sword to stab the Orderly Room Sergeant of the same corps. The case is under investigation, and will in all probability be committed to the next Sessions. It would appear that the prisoner was in Bombay not long ago convicted of an offence not very unlike that with which he is now charged. —Madras Times.

THE WEATHER.—On Saturday afternoon the temperature in our darkened upper-story room facing the sea, and hermetically-sealed landwards, with the punkah going violently, was 98 deg., with a rising tendency. About five o'clock a violent dust storm occurred, the direction of the wind suddenly veering round from S.W. to due N. This infliction over, rain began to fall, and continued steadily till late in the night. Yesterday the temperature was lower in consequence, and stood at a mild 85 deg.; but to-day the thermometer indicated 3 deg. less "blood heat." It is a decided comfort to know that this dry and hot weather is more disagreeable than unhealthy to the average man. —Madras Mail, June 7.

STATION TALK.

Gogo, May 31.—To escape the fiery winds of May in the Central Plains of Gujerat I have brought my family here to enjoy the deliciously cool breezes of the sea. This is the third year in succession that I have pursued the same prudent policy, and have always gone away with the resolve to return the following year. Formerly however this pleasant little watering-place was rather dull and lonely for one naturally fond of the society of his countrymen. But this season has inaugurated quite a change in this respect; for whilst the healthful coolness of the climate is still as refreshing as before, there is the additional attraction of numbers of white faces and agreeable friends. Every bungalow and room at all suitable for English residence is occupied, and there are several white tents pitched on the plain besides. It is nothing short of a wonderful sight to the quiet inhabitants of Gogo to see so many stout Englishmen and fair ladies promenading along the beach. "Better days for Gogo have come" is on the lips of every one interested in the welfare of his native village. A new commercial era seems about to dawn on Gogo. To-morrow, for the first, two hundred bales of cotton are to be shipped on board the Jhelum for Broach. This is hopeful. And if this excellent ferry gets fair play, and prospers, and a few cotton presses and ginning machines be established, as intended, we may fairly anticipate a rapid improvement in the affairs of this most important and fertile, but as yet unopened and unfavoured province. The new ferry has had much to do with the changes here, both present and prospective. It is almost exclusively owing to it that Gogo has been favoured with the presence of so many Englishmen this year; and greater things are expected of it. What a pity its spirited and energetic proprietor should not receive all the aid that Government can give. It is almost hoping against hope to expect that the ferry will be adequately supported by passengers and goods alone. And if this ferry prove a failure, there is hardly a chance of any other of a similar kind being set on foot again out of a private purse. What it wants to insure its permanency and success is the conveyance of the mails. This is still conducted by small boat service, which, even in the most favourable weather, brings the mails at least a day later than they could be landed by the steam ferry, and in unfavourable weather two or three days later. A rumour is afloat here that Government intends making no change in the mail service, and deprecates the idea of paying a subsidy to the new ferry on the grounds that the old mail boats, slow though they be, clear their expenses by passengers, and thus cost Government nothing. Surely Government cannot be so meanly and injuriously parsimonious as this. Besides, should the steam ferry continue, the old mail will not get a passenger, and must, therefore, be sustained by Government or stopped altogether. Anyone who has crossed the gulf by these boats knows how miserable the whole journey is, entailing as it does, not merely the horrid pitchings of the frail barks themselves, but the wearying and uncertain drive between Surat and Dandy, and the mud ordeal between Dandy and the boat. We must also bear in mind that throughout the whole monsoon, or for nearly four months of the year, these boats are the only means of communication or transit between the greater portion of Kattiawar and of Gujerat. Suppose that at any time during this part of the year it became necessary to hastily despatch a body of troops into these parts of Kattiawar, what trouble, expense, and delay there would be in getting ships from Bombay; whereas, by the present ferry a whole army could be taken across in a day or two, and not an hour's warning required for preparedness. But apart from such a consideration, it must be evident that the utility of the ferry will be immense, and that it is deserving of a little Imperial stimulus and a little fostering care at the outset. It wants immediately, and cannot do without, instant action on the part of Government, such as the placing of channel buoys and light towers, the deepening of shallow parts of the river, the providing of some kind of landing-place at Gogo, in short the clearing away of every obstacle which hinders the easy and quick passage of the steamers. All this would not cost Government much, and it ought to be done without an hour's delay. It would certainly seem that, not to lend a helping hand in this new and praiseworthy enterprise, but to stand by coolly watching energy expend itself, would be to ignore the claims of every British subject in this part of the province, and virtually deny to them the manifestly best means of improving their condition, and of opening up and developing the unknown resources of a large and fertile country. It is perhaps right to add that I have no connection with either the ferry or the cotton trade, nor am in any way an interested party. —Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

MILITARY.—We regret to learn of the death of Captain Armstrong, 1-11th Regiment, at Toondla, from heat apoplexy, on the 6th of June.

COTTON AT KURRACHEE.—The cotton shipped from Kurrachee during the month of May last amounted to 2,066,088 lbs., valued at Rs. 6,91,425. Of this as much as 1,156,816 lbs. was shipped to Amsterdam and 902,218 lbs. to Hong Kong.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, COLABA.—The senior regimental officer of European troops stationed at Colaba for the time being, the Chaplain of Colaba for the time being, and Mr. H. Forman have been appointed trustees of St. John's Church, Colaba.

ROBBERY OF MAILS.—We hear that the mail from Bombay and Khundwah to Indore was robbed on the 1st June at eight o'clock in the evening, at the third mile-stone from Indore, by a band of forty men. The coachman and a native passenger were severely maltreated.

HIGH COURT.—Mr. Maxwell Melville arrived in Bombay on the 9th June from Kurrachee to take his seat on the Bench of the High Court, in succession to Mr. Newton. Great satisfaction is expressed in Sind at the appointment of Mr. Coghlan as Mr. Melville's successor.

DISTRICT JUDGES.—The proposal from the Government of Bombay that the pay of the district judges in this presidency should be equalised has been sanctioned by the Government of India. The Mofussil judges in certain districts at present draw Rs. 2,500, and in others Rs. 2,300 a month.

A CARGO FROM ROTTERDAM.—For the first time, we believe, in the annals of Bombay shipping, the port of Rotterdam figures as that from whence a venture has been made direct to Bombay. The good ship Charlie Palmer, Captain A. Hoffman, left the said port on January 7th with a cargo of the manufactures and productions of Germany, Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland, nearly the whole of which cargo is consigned, we believe, to the firm of Messrs. Gumpert and Co. We hope the enterprise displayed in this new venture will be rewarded with no small success, and permanent commercial relations be established between our own and the time-honoured port of Holland.

LOSS OF THE "JAMES CHILDS" BY FIRE.—The following telegram has been received by the British India Steam Navigation Company from Bushire, dated 11th June:—"The James Childs, Kingcome, master, from Bombay to Bushire with coals, which put into Bushire on fire, has been totally consumed. Crew and baggage only saved." The James Childs was a vessel of 756 tons, and was engaged in connection with the Abyssinian Expedition. At the close of that engagement she left Bombay in command of Captain Sheen to take in a cargo at Kurrachee, but went ashore off the Kye mouth of the Indus on, singularly enough, the same date of last year as she seems to have put into Bushire on during her last voyage. She was bought by Mr. Crockett, and was now on her voyage with coals for the B. I. S. N. Company.

MURDER OF A EUROPEAN AT BOMBAY.—A savage case of murder seems to have occurred at Byculla on Friday night last, the victim being a fireman employed on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The man at present charged with the murder is named Hutchinson, and the circumstances seem to be these. The deceased, Charles Johnston, lived in a house in Nesbit-lane, Byculla, and supported a concubine named Mary Rozario, or, as she put it, he lived with her. A man named Hutchinson, who is now in custody, lived in the same locality—behind the Nawab's bungalow—and some jealousy seems to have existed between the two regarding the woman Rozario. There appears to have been some quarrel between the men about a week ago; Johnston told the woman that he had been abused and put out of the Byculla station by his opponent in her affections, and in consequence of this he did not return to his work. On Friday evening Johnston and Rozario were on the verandah of their house, and Hutchinson came there for some reason or other. A quarrel ensued, and the woman says that Hutchinson struck his antagonist a blow on the head with a hammer. She then gave the alarm, but ere she returned Johnston was dead, and Hutchinson was still by his body abusing him. A coroner's inquest has been held by Dr. Lumsdaine, and a verdict of "culpable homicide amounting to murder" has been returned.—Bombay Gazette, June 15.

DEATH OF A PARSEE MERCHANT.—We regret to announce the death of Mr. Cursetjee Merwanjee Wadia, a partner in the firm of Messrs. Dossabhoj, Merwanjee Wadia and Co., the well-known American merchants and agents in Bombay. The deceased gentleman returned from Poonah on Monday evening, and died about an hour afterwards at the family residence in the Fort, at the age of fifty-six. Within the last four years the firm of Messrs. Dossabhoj Merwanjee Wadia and Co. have lost three of its principal members—Mr. Dossabhoj, Mr. Dhunjeebhoj, the father of the present Master Builder of H.M.'s Dockyard, and now Mr. Cursetjee. From the high character of the firm, and the personal worth and urbanity of its members, it has long maintained its position among English, American, and native merchants who have had business relations with it, and among a large number of officers of the American navy who visited Bombay; and it is to be trusted that its prestige will not suffer at the hands of the surviving partners. A large number of Parsees assembled at the third day's funeral ceremonies performed in honour of the deceased's memory. Even foreigners showed sympathy for the loss the deceased's family had sustained, and among others Syed Tooke, the brother of the Imaum of Muscat, visited the deceased's relations in token of condolence.—Times of India.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.—We must caution our readers to secure a thorough control over their nerves before perusing what follows:—"We have just received information of a terrible tragedy that has occurred at Futtehgurh. The Judge was sitting in his Court, engaged in trying, on a charge of gang robbery, a band of eighteen notorious malefactors, who had long been the terror of the country for lawless violence. As usual they were but imperfectly guarded. As the trial went on a tremendous dust storm arose with unexampled suddenness. A few low growls and gusts of wind were all the notice it gave, when in a moment the storm enveloped the kutcherry. Instantly all was in confusion. The place was filled with whirlwinds of dust; nothing could be heard but the war of the wind and the rattle of the thunder; and the bright sunlight was changed into a lurid red, deepening after a few seconds into pitchy blackness. Instantly the convicts saw their opportunity. With a yell that could be heard above the elemental uproar they rushed upon the scanty and bewildered police guard and laid them at their feet. To scale the dock, to dash out the Judge's brains with a twisted manacle, to use the legs of the broken tables and chairs, to disable or murder all the witnesses who had given damaging evidence against them, was the work of a second. Then with a simultaneous impulse, they made for the doors and—But no, our imagination has been too strong for us. What we have described is what would have happened if the prisoners had been British garotters or ticket-of-leave men. Being, as it happened, mild Hindoos, they did nothing at all, and when the darkness rolled away, the Judge found nothing changed, only a few feet of dust the more." Need we say we are quoting the Pioneer? What a talent lost to the London Journal and Reynolds's Miscellany.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

OFFICERS ABSENT ON FURLOUGH.

Adjt. gen.'s Office, Head Qrs., Simla, May 25.—No. 142.—With the approval of the Government of India, the following Military Department letter, No. 861, of March 18 last, is published for general information and guidance:—

"I am desired to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 290c, of March 15, 1869, and to acquaint you, for the information of the C. in C., that the Gov. gen. in Council concurs in H.E.'s opinion that as a general rule, and unless on account of ill-health or some other urgent reasons, it is undesirable that the commandant and 2nd in command of a regiment should both be absent on furlough at the same time.

"But the Gov. gen. in Council considers this a point which does not require the establishment of any fixed rule, but one that must be judged of by the C. in C. on the merits of each case, as H.E. can decline to forward applications for furlough on private affairs, or, forwarding them, to inform Government why, in H.E.'s opinion, it is undesirable in any particular case to grant them."

QUALIFICATION FOR PRIVILEGE LEAVE.

Simla, May 28.—No. 873.—The following letter to the Secretary to the Government of the N.W. Provinces, is published in the Gazette of India for general information:—

"I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 1,837, dated the 15th ult., and in reply to state that the Gov. gen. in Council concurs in the opinion of the Hon. the Lieut. gov. that the rule contained in the order of this department, No. 403, of Jan. 18, 1869, that an officer who, on his return from leave, 'is kept out of employment through no fault of his own,' is to count the period of his non-employment as service qualifying for privilege leave, is applicable whether the period of non-employment be long or short, because it is founded on the obvious principle that an officer returning from leave is on duty from the date on which he places his services at the disposal of Government."

APPLICATIONS FOR FURLOUGH ON SPECIAL LEAVE.

June 8.—With reference to the notification dated Jan. 13 last, published in the Gazette of May 20, officers who wish to take furlough on special leave during the second half of 1869 are reminded that they should send their applications in to the Accountant-general in time to admit of his submitting them to Government before June 30.

PRIVILEGE LEAVE, C.S.

No. 2,637.—With reference to para. 2 of notification No. 2,340, dated May 2, republishing for general information the order of the Supreme Govt., No. 101, dated April 24 last, in regard to privilege leave of absence, it is hereby notified for general observance that in all future applications for privilege leave, officers must certify that they have no present intention of taking another leave within a period of six months after the expiry of their privilege leave.

QUARTERMASTERS' ANNUITIES.

May 21.—No. 563.—Under instructions from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, H.E. the Governor general of India in Council is pleased to declare the following provisions of the Royal Warrant of August 4, 1865, applicable to India:—

"Quartermasters who, on being commissioned as such may be in possession of a non-commissioned officer's annuity for distinguished or meritorious service, shall, on surrendering the same, be granted a special annual allowance equivalent thereto."

STAFF CORPS CANDIDATES.

No. 134.—Under instructions from H.R.H. the Field Marshal comdg. in chief, the C. in C. is pleased to notify that comdg. officers of British regiments throughout India are to give the fullest encouragement to officers under their command to prepare themselves for the staff corps, and to enter as probationers; and are upon no account to put any obstacle in the way of their doing so.

TRAVELLING EXPENSES.

No. 140.—Under instructions from the Govt. of India conveyed in military dept. letters Nos. 379, July 21, 1868, 521, Feb. 11, 1869, and 513, April 23, 1869, H.E. the C. in C. is pleased to notify, that officers when ordered from one station to another for examinations for admission to the staff corps, shall be allowed to travel to and fro at the public expense.

PORTS OF EMBARKATION ON FURLOUGH.

May 26.—No. 797.—Read the undermentioned correspondence regarding a proposal of the Government of Bombay that public officers serving in Persia or Arabia should, when proceeding on furlough, be allowed to select as their point of embarkation or disembarkation any port or frontier town in those countries, provided only that the journey to or from it shall not exceed thirty days:—

Endorsement from the foreign department, No. 623, dated March 25, 1869, and enclosure.

Office memorandum to the military department, No. 234, dated 28th ult. Ditto from ditto, No. 141, dated 8th inst.

Resolution.—The proposal of the Government of Bombay is sanctioned. In the case of a military officer, the certificate showing the date of embarkation or debarkation must be given by the British consul in places where such a functionary exists, and in other places by the officer himself.

VOLUNTEERING.

Head-Qrs., Simla, May 25.—1. With the sanction of Govt., H.E. the C. in C. is pleased to direct that such men of the regiments [2nd 'drag. guards, 1st batln. 23rd foot, 82nd, 90th, 93rd, and 102nd foot] under orders to return to England as are desirous of extending their service in India, may be allowed to volunteer to regiments of the same arm, serving in India, excepting the following:—7th, 19th, and 20th hussars; 1st battalion 1st foot, 2nd do. 1st do., 1st do. 2nd do., 1st do. 7th do., 2nd do. 10th do., 1st do. 19th do., and 2nd do. 24th do.; 26th, 38th, 55th, and 59th foot; 3rd battalion 60th foot; 77th, 79th, 88th, 92nd, 95th, 103rd, 104th, 105th, and 108th foot; and 3rd battalion rifle brigade.

The numbers that can be received for each regiment will be communicated in a letter from the Adjutant general.

2. Their Excellencies the Commanders-in-Chief of Madras and Bombay are requested to be good enough to issue the necessary orders for the volunteering of the regiments serving in their commands.

3. The following instructions will be observed with regard to the 93rd and 102nd regiments.

DEBASTERS AT BOMBAY.—The ferry steamer Jhelum, while crossing the bar of the Nerbudda, between Gogo and Broach, was broken in two. The number of passengers is stated to have been two hundred, of whom all but ten or twelve natives have been saved. The Kurrachee steamer Euphrates encountered a cyclone on her passage to Bombay, putting out the fires and carrying away the rigging. The steamer Earl Canning left Kurrachee on the 2nd June, and had not arrived at Bombay on the 15th. It is believed she must have encountered the cyclone.

Home.

LORD ALMONER'S PROFESSOR OF ARABIC AT OXFORD.—The Sultan has appointed Mr. Thomas Chenery, Lord Almoner's Professor of Arabic in the University of Oxford, to be a Member of the Second Class of the Imperial Order of the Medjidie.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for £325,000 in bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 7th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £315,100; and to Madras, £9,990. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 66 per cent., above that price in full. The result shows an increase in the demand for remittance.

THE QUEEN'S PRIZE AT WIMBLEDON.—Amongst the competitors for the Queen's Prize is Ensign Dudley, of the Bombay Volunteers. This gentleman was the winner of a National Rifle Association silver medal in Bombay, and travelled without stopping to be in time to compete for the Prince of Wales's Prize. He missed that by a day; but arrived in time to take part in the great volunteer competition of the meeting.

THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA, v. EVANS AND ANOTHER.—This was an appeal to the Judicial Committee, heard on July 7, from the Supreme Court for China and Japan, ordering the judgment of her Majesty's Court at Hankow in favour of the appellants be reversed with costs, and that the respondents be paid 10,029 taels and other moneys, amounting to about £3,000. The appellants were bankers, among other places, at Hankow, and the respondents the creditors' assignees of Mackellar and Co., who were merchants at Hankow, and claimed a sum of money in possession of the bank. The judgment was in favour of the bank, on which there was an appeal to the Supreme Court, where additional evidence was allowed, and the decision of the Court below was reversed. The present appeal was to reverse the decision of the Supreme Court. Lord Justice Giffard said their lordships were of opinion that the judgment of the Supreme Court could not be sustained, and the present appeal must be allowed with costs.

INVESTITURE OF THE BATH AND THE STAR OF INDIA.—The Queen held a private investiture of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath at Windsor Castle on July 6. Her Majesty, accompanied by her Royal Highness Princess Louise, entered the White Drawing-room at 3 o'clock, when the following Knights Grand Cross were severally introduced into the presence of the Sovereign and invested by her Majesty with the Riband and Badge of the Military Division of the First Class:—General the Earl of Lucan, Lieutenant-general the Hon. Sir James Yorke Scarlett, Lieutenant-general Sir George Buller, and Vice-Admiral Sir Augustus Leopold Kuper. The following Knights Commanders then in like manner received the honour of knighthood, and were invested by her Majesty with the insignia of the Second Class of the Order: Vice-Admiral William Ramsay, Lieutenant-general Viscount Templeton, Vice-Admiral the Right Hon. Lord Clarence Edward Paget, Major-general Frederick Horn, Major-general Arthur Augustus Thurlow Cunyngame, Major-general Lord George Augustus Frederick Paget, Major-general Arthur Johnstone Lawrence, Major-general Horatio Shirley, Vice-Admiral Hastings Reginald Yelverton, Major-general William Jones, Rear-Admiral Bartholomew James Sullivan, Major-general John St. George, Major-general Edward Charles Warde, Major-general James Briud, Major-general the Right Hon. Percy Egerton Herbert, Major-general John Lintern Arabin Simmons, Major-general Archibald Little, and the Director-general of the Army Medical Department (Thomas Galbraith Logan). Her Majesty also held an investiture of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India. Major-general George Le Grand Jacob was introduced into the presence of the Sovereign by the Lord Chamberlain, attended by Mr. Albert W. Woods (Registrar of the Order), and received the honour of knighthood, and was invested by her Majesty with the insignia of Knight Commander of the Order of the Star of India.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, July 6.—THE INDIAN BUDGET.—In answer to Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, Mr. GRANT DUFF regretted to say that he was not as yet able to fix any date for making the annual statement to the House on Indian affairs.

EAST INDIAN ACCOUNTS.—Sir S. NORTHCOOTE moved that the home accounts of the Government of India be referred to the Committee of Public Accounts. Mr. GRANT DUFF said that far from objecting to his right hon. friend's motion he was most happy to accede to it. It did not, under all the circumstances, seem quite proper that they should take the initiative in again this year referring these accounts to a committee upstairs; but there was no reason in the world why they should not be so referred, if one so able to form a sound opinion as his right hon. friend thought fit to press on that they should be. The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, July 8.—THE BARRACKS AT MORAR.—Sir D. WEDDERBURN asked the Under Secretary of State for India whether it was true that a large expenditure had been incurred in erecting permanent barracks at the cantonment of Morar, near Gwalior, with the view of making Morar the principal military station in Central India for European as well as native troops; and whether the Government were satisfied that the climate of Gwalior was such as to permit of the Europeans being safely quartered there in force.—Mr. GRANT DUFF.—It having been determined in 1864 by the then Government that for military and political reasons it was most desirable to have a strong British force cantoned at or near Morar, a very carefully composed committee was ordered to examine into the question of the site. A paragraph from the report of that committee is the best answer that I can give to my hon. friend, and will show that the extremely important point which he has raised has been carefully considered:—"The members unanimously concurred in opinion that the force should be located at the present cantonment of Morar, which must necessarily be greatly extended. In thus recommending the extension of Morar, they desire to place prominently on record the individual opinion of Surgeon-major Laing, not only because that officer's medical reputation stands so high that any professional opinion given by him on sanitary matters must, per se, be of great weight, but also because he, being a stranger at Morar, brings to bear on the subject a mind unbiassed and free from prejudice for or against the locality. After a careful examination this officer recorded his opinion that he had seldom within his Indian experience seen ground which, taken as a whole, possessed in a higher degree the essentials requisite for a healthy location for troops. Dr. Auchinleck, who has had two years' experience of the place, concurred in this opinion, and gave the weight of his testimony in favour of the salubrity of the place."

INDIAN APPEALS.—Sir C. WINGFIELD asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether his attention had been drawn to a letter in the Times newspaper of the 25th of June from Mr. Forsyth, in which it is stated that, owing to the want of a sufficient staff of translators, a period of four or five years generally elapses after the admission of an appeal from India to the Privy Council before the report reaches England, and that at the present moment there are between 250 and 300 appeals from the Presidency of Bengal alone awaiting transmission to England; and whether it was the intention of the Secretary of State for India to direct any measures to be taken to expedite the transmission of appeals to this country. Mr. GRANT DUFF said the Secretary of State in Council lately called the attention of the Bombay Government to delays in the transmission of appeals from the High Court there, and he intended presently to address the Government of India as to the expediency of hastening the transmission of appeals from all the High Courts.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.—Mr. KINNAIRD asked the Under-Secretary of State for India, with reference to the construction of railways in India, if he would include, with the despatches to be laid upon the table, the minutes of the members of Council thereon. Mr. GRANT DUFF said his hon. friend was evidently under a misconception. It was not the practice for members of Council to write minutes on despatches. They had the right to record dissents from proceedings in Council, and these dissents were entered in a minute-book. None had yet been entered with reference to this railway question. If his hon. friend was pointing at anything which existed he must be pointing at certain confidential opinions given long before these despatches arrived to the Secretary of State by members of Council for his information. These were private documents, just as private as anyone's private letters.

MEDAL FOR BHOOTAN.—Mr. KINNAIRD also asked whether there was any sufficient reason why the frontier medal should not be given to the officers and men engaged in the Bhootan war in 1864 and 1865, which medal had been awarded to officers and men engaged in the frontier wars of a similar character.—Mr. GRANT DUFF said the North-West Frontier medal, about which his hon. friend had lately asked him, was conferred at the suggestion of the Government of India, but the Government of India had not recommended the grant of any medal for the Bhootan war.

RELIEF OF REGIMENTS IN INDIA.—In reply to Mr. STACPOOLE, Captain VIVIAN said that it was impossible to bring home before 1872 all the regiments which were sent to India for the suppression of the mutiny in 1857, inasmuch as five regiments only were relieved each year. Every attention was being paid to the matter by his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, FRIDAY, July 9.—The long-impending discussion of the Central Asian question was raised by Mr. EASTWICK, in a long speech full of geographical and historical details. He drew the conclusion from it that Russia had become predominant as far as Bokhara, but he did not agree with the policy which would meet this by furnishing arms and money to the Afghans. He advocated rather the strengthening of our influence in Persia, and among other measures for this purpose he recommended the loan of English officers to drill the Persian troops, and the transference of our relations to the India-office. He concluded by asking the Government to lay on the table any recent despatches which have been received.—Sir C. WINGFIELD held that hitherto our policy of non-interference had been the most judicious, and any departure from it would have precipitated an otherwise unnecessary collision. The recent transactions between Lord Mayo and the Ameer of Cabul he disapproved, as likely to be the commencement of a rivalry of intrigue between us and the Russians in Afghanistan, and he deprecated very strongly any engagement with that country.—The chief interest of the discussion centred in Mr. Grant Duff's statement of our Indian policy. After a passing allusion to the loss Parliament had sustained in the transfer of Sir H. Rawlinson to the Indian Council, and the death of Lord Strangford, he explained with much precision and lucidity the present position of affairs. Our relations with Russia were at present of the most cordial kind, and the communications which had lately passed between the two Governments with regard to Central Asia, communications to which undue importance had been attached, had been most friendly. Samarcand might be taken as to all intents and purposes the extreme point of Russian advance towards British India on the Afghanistan side for some time to come. Their farthest point of advance towards British India, on the side of Eastern Turkestan, was a small detached fort on the Naryn—that was, on the head waters of the great Jaxartes, far away from any support, so far away as really not to be an advanced post, in the ordinary sense, at all. The whole independent part of the khanate of Khokan lay between these points of advance, and in addition there was a huge mountain knot of barely peopled country. The idea of an invasion of British India by Russia was thus so preposterous that he could not for a moment entertain it. As to Shere Ali, a friend had said to him, "I am sorry you have given that money to the Ameer; you are only buying the air." Well, if the transaction were to be looked upon as one of sale and purchase, his friend was quite right, but that was just what it was not. The Government did not dream of erecting Shere Ali into a bulwark against Russia or against anybody else. Nature had planted bulwarks enough there in all conscience. What was wanted was a quiet Afghanistan, just as they wanted a quiet Burmah. The Government wished to stimulate commerce round the whole of the land and sea frontier, and it did not at all suit to have one of their trade gates locked up by a burning house, the cellars of which were known to be full of highly explosive compounds. They wanted Shere Ali to be strong for the suppression of lawlessness, and rich, if possible, into the bargain. They wanted no assistance except that which a civilised Government must always derive from being known to exercise a pacifying and semi-civilising influence around its own borders. The policy of the Government with reference to Central Asia might be thus summed up:—First, they desired to live on the best possible terms with all their neighbours. Secondly, they intend to strengthen, in every possible way, our north-western frontier; they intended to make and were making Kurrahee as good a port as modern engineering science could make it; they looked forward to the completion, at no very distant period, of the missing link of railway in the Indus valley; they were already pushing the railway on towards Peshawur. Thirdly, they meant to give every reasonable encouragement to the extension of trade with Central Asia, and the exploration of the countries to the north-west as well as to the north-east and east of our dominions. Lastly, they were firmly persuaded that if we could believe in the possibility of any danger from the side of Central Asia threatening us in India, our best protection lay in the good government of India.—Sir S. NORTH-COTE highly approved the discussion, for there ought to be no mystery about our policy in this matter, which was not Central Asian, but purely Indian. He was decidedly in favour of keeping out of all entangling alliances, and particularly out of the imbroglia of Afghan politics; but the advances of Russia had been forced on her by the anarchy of the States in front of her, and to strengthen Afghanistan would be to deprive Russia of any temptation to interfere in its affairs. He agreed with Mr. Duff that our best security was to promote peace and order among our neighbours, and to admit the natives of India as far as possible to a share in the government of their country.—Mr. GLADSTONE summed up the discussion by remarking that it would be useful in showing that the policy of England was to rule her subject countries in the manner most beneficial to them. He assured the House that Lord Mayo's interview with Shere Ali did not involve anything in the nature of an engagement, and also that Russia had expressed an opinion that Afghanistan should be regarded as a neutral zone between her own and British influence.

PETITIONS PRESENTED DURING THE PAST WEEK.—By Lieut.-Colonel Windsor-Clive, from Lieut.-Colonel John Mackillop Mackenzie, late Bengal Army, and Lieut.-Colonel W. F. N. Wallace, late Bengal Army, praying for relief and compensation; by Sir W. Lawson, from Major Waddilove, praying for redress of loss suffered through the amalgamation of the Indian with the Royal Army; by Mr. F. Stanley, from Captain Christian (late Bengal army), relative to loss sustained by the abolition of the bonus system; by Mr. Mills, from Lieut.-Col. L. M. Mackenzie, praying for compensation for loss of regimental bonus, in consequence of the amalgamation of the Royal and Indian armies; also by Mr. Stavely Hill, from Major-General Freeman, of the Madras Army; and by Mr. I. T. Hamilton, from Brevet Major Watson, of the Indian Army, to the same effect; by Mr. Pemberton, from Colonel Wade, late Royal Madras Artillery, praying inquiry into circumstances attending his re-tiement, in order that adequate compensation may be granted; by Mr. Bouverie, from Lieut. Colonel Bouverie Campbell, late of the Indian Army, complaining of grievances as to his retirement; by Mr. W. E. Forster, from the Bradford Chamber of Commerce, in favour of the Government of India Act Amendment Bill, with certain amendments; by Mr. Graves, from the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, praying that a clause may be inserted in the Government of India Act Amendment Bill to secure that a fair proportion of the India Council, henceforth to be nominated by the Crown, shall be fully conversant with the needs and requirements of British trade, and capable of advising on all matters affecting the industries of the United Kingdom in connection with the Asiatic portions of the empire; by Mr. Baines, from the Leeds Chamber of Commerce, asking for one-third of the new Council of India to be commercial men, and for a separate department of trade connected with India; by Mr. Hardcastle, from Mr. John O'Brien Saunders, proprietor of the Calcutta Englishman newspaper, complaining of the conduct of Sir Barnes Peacock, Chief Justice of the High Court, in summoning him for contempt of Court, at an expense to him of £450, though the proceedings were ultimately withdrawn by the Chief Justice, stating that such proceedings on the part of a judge would be fatal to the freedom and independence of the press in India, and praying for redress; by Mr. J. G. Talbot, from Lieut. Col. James Edward Thompson, Retired List of Bengal army, praying for compensation for loss of bonus; by Colonel Corbett, from Henry John Childe Shakespeare, Lieut.-col Bengal Retired list, late commanding Nagpore Irregular Force, praying for compensation for loss of bonus on retirement consequent on the amalgamation of the Queen's and Hon. East India Company's armies.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, July 12.—THE MADRAS GOVERNMENT.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE, who had on the paper a question relative to the appointment of Government officers to act as directors of the Presidency banks of India, said that at the request of the hon. gentleman opposite he would postpone it, but he gave notice that in the next session of Parliament he should call attention to the relations between the Government of India and the Presidency of Madras, and move a resolution thereon.

THE NAVIGATION OF THE SUEZ CANAL.—Mr. GOURLEY asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if any negotiations had been or were intended to be entered into with his Royal Highness the Sultan of Turkey, or with his Highness the Viceroy of Egypt, relative to the navigation of the Suez Canal by vessels of the British naval and mercantile marine; if so, the terms upon which British and foreign vessels were to have the use of it.—Mr. OTWAY said:—The sixth article of the original concession to M. Lesseps, which is still binding, provides that the rates to be levied on the canal shall be the same for all countries, and that no particular exemptions shall be made in favour of any one nation. No negotiation has yet been entered into on the subject, but as the opening of the canal is a matter of deep interest and importance to foreign nations, and to none more than to England, it is impossible to say that no negotiations will take place on the subject.

THE VICEROY OF EGYPT.—An ethnological dispute is going on about the Viceroy of Egypt and his family. It is said by some that he is an Indo-European of Albanian descent—and certainly the city of Cairo swarms with Albanians and their allies. The Rev. Mr. Tozer, in his recent work on the "Highlands of Turkey," affirms that Mehemed Ali was a Konariot, or descendant of the European colony of Seljuks or Turks from Konieh, imported into Macedonia before the Ottoman invasion.

C H L O R O D Y N E

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE. The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "106 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

Price 6s., by post, 6s. 6d.,

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI- MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE OF RHEUMA-
TISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CON-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in brounchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.
In bottles, small, medium, and large.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO- THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, croup, cough, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable
to all.
In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RU-
BARB, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.
Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS. Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 6d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY,
LONDON.

Are decidedly the best remedy for all disorders of the stomach and bowels, the liver, and kidneys. They act with so much effect and so gently that a single box of the most delicate constitution can take them with the most perfect confidence. They do not contain a single grain of mercury or other noxious substance, being composed exclusively of vegetable and mineral medicines, nothing yet introduced or discovered can be compared with them for a purgative. With the most valuable Pills at hand, to relieve the most delicate functions affixed to each box, and other medical advice or assistance can be needed in any ordinary case of sickness.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, June 22; Agra, June 19; Calcutta, June 18; Madras, June 16.

Nothing certain has been heard of the missing steamer Cheduba; but there are one or two circumstances recorded which seem to leave the fact of her destruction beyond a doubt. The crew of a brig wrecked on the Chittagong coast saw some bodies cast on shore, two of which were those of women, and two women were on board the Cheduba. The Moulmain, sent out to look for her, could find no trace of the missing steamer. The captain of another ship reports seeing a dismantled brig at a time and in a position which indicate that she must have been caught in the centre of the cyclone and foundered.

THE heat in many parts of India is still reported as very severe. Rain in some places had followed the late cyclones, but only to generate steam instead of dry heat, and the regular monsoon, already behind its time, was still conspicuous by its absence in Bengal and Madras. As for the Central and Upper Provinces, they were furnaces varied by hotbeds of disease. The cholera of which we have lately heard so much has extended its ravages to the troops at Agra. All through Rajpootana it has stalked along in the track of the famine, sweeping away whole villages in some of the States. Bundelkund has suffered, but in a less degree. There is no more fear of famine for the present, but the loss of life on the whole must have been very great, and even now a hundred thousand poor people are being daily relieved in the Punjab alone. In the Patna district nearly half-a-million are said to be in utter want, and about as many are receiving relief in the North-West Provinces.

LITTLE is known for certain of the damage done by the last cyclone, and we may hope that the loss of life and property has not been very great. Nobody however ever seems to know how many natives are killed on these occasions. On one estate alone about 170 persons and 2,000 head of cattle are said to have perished, while the destruction of their huts and other property has reduced the bulk of the survivors to beggary. From Dacca we hear of rice crops utterly destroyed, and of cattle suffering for want of fodder. Port Canning, the centre of the cyclone, seems to have suffered no great damage, although the gale at one time blew at the rate of 114 miles an hour, as indicated by a pressure of 65lbs. to the square foot. Some of the indigo has been more or less damaged.

MR. GREY has appointed a Committee of Inquiry into "the affairs and position of the Calcutta Port Fund." It is to be hoped that the result of their labours will end in finding some better remedy for the fruits of past mismanagement, than the doubling of the port dues, against which all Calcutta is crying out. One would think that the charges for that port were already high enough to check the full development of its trade, without the addition of another thirty or forty pounds to the skipper's bill.

THE Indian Government has greatly disappointed the many who had been looking forward to a reduced postage on newspapers. It is pleaded that the reduction of postage would lead to a small reduction in the postal revenue. No doubt it might at first, but the plea in these days is hardly worth answering. Every decrease in postal charges has hitherto brought a compensating increase in the number of articles sent by post. The present high rate of newspaper postage merely kills the circulation of native and starves that of English journals. It is also surely unfair to make important reductions in letter postage and leave the tax on newspapers untouched.

SHERE ALI is said to have failed so far in his negotiations with the Khyber chiefs. He had offered them a subsidy if they would allow him and the English to place a few troops in commanding positions at either end of the Pass. This the Khyberies decline to do, and for the present the Pass is closed. Meanwhile the Ameer is building roomy barracks at Kabul and Jellalabad, and carrying out other reforms with a steady hand. Herat is safe for the present; Turkistan quiet; and the ex-Ameer, with his nephew, having failed to shake the neutrality of the Shah, is said to have betaken himself to the Russian frontier.

WE hear by telegram that the Simlah Exhibition was opened on July 14; that the Government has offered to buy the property of the Elphinstone Land Company for about £1,600,000, to be paid by a 4 per cent. stock issued at 93; and, lastly, that "a review of the whole army will be held at Agra next January." The truth of the last assertion we take leave to deny. A part of the army will no doubt be reviewed, but no one in his senses would dream of mustering the whole even on the wide plains about Agra.

A STRANGE story comes from Assam. Some months ago a discharged native convict persuaded the ryots of Kamroop and Durrung to proclaim a Raj under his leadership. Some 4,000 gathered at Govindpore and swore to pay no rent to the "Sirkar." They then proceeded to form a government and send agents to other places. Mr. Campbell, the Assistant Commissioner, being a man of pluck and promptitude, harangued the mob, explained the nature of the taxes they objected to, and seized the ringleaders with the help of a few police.

The mob dispersed, and the threatened danger at once passed away.

A GOOD deal of uncertainty hangs about the origin of the Wahabie fanatics of British India and Sittana. Their name suggests the idea of some connection between them and the Arabian Wahabies, followers of Abdul-Wahab of Nejed. But it is not unlikely that the name was given them from some fancied resemblance between their tenets and those of the Arabian reformer. Be that as it may, the Indian sect seems to have been founded by Syud Ahmad, a native of Bareilly, who entered the service of the Nawab of Tonk in the days of that chieftain's independence. After his subjugation Syud Ahmad took to preaching and making converts at Delhi. He also collected from all parts of India a body of troops who followed him into the field against Runjeet Singh. After two years' fighting, the Syud in 1831 was defeated and slain. His followers either got back into British territory or made their way to the Yusufzai country of Sittana, where they formed a rallying point for all the discontented spirits of British India. Another centre was meanwhile established in Tonk, whence a number of Mussulman refugees kept up a regular correspondence with their fellows beyond Peshawar. Moslem emissaries preached the Syud's doctrines and fanned the flames of disaffection through all parts of India, the most of their recruits and money for the frontier colony being drawn from Delhi, Bareilly, Agra, Alighur, and Patna, all noted centres of Mohammedan society. These Moslem Puritans are to be found in Dacca and Calcutta, and now they seem to have been preaching or plotting mischief in Vellore. During the mutiny their numbers in Sittana were largely recruited by fugitive sepoys. The Hazara campaign drove them further into the hills and probably clipped their wings for some time to come, while the police-raid at Patna must have shed some timely light on Wahabie plottings in British India. That these fanatics find plenty of recruits and wellwishers within our borders seems to us a matter of course, a necessary result of the change from Mohammedan to British rule. The same sort of thing happens wherever the Government is foreign to the mass of the people or distasteful to particular classes. We must keep an eye of course upon these gentry, but there is no need to magnify the danger, or see an enemy in every Mussulman. We may leave rulers like Louis Napoleon to affect or feel alarm at the plots of French Wahabies in Brussels and Leicester-square.

WHICH is the right way of educating the hill tribes of Chittagong? Shall they be taught the language of their English masters or that of their Bengali neighbours? This is the question which has lately been argued between the Bengal Government and its officers in Chittagong. Captain Lewin, Deputy-Commissioner for the Hill tribes; Mr. Clarke, Inspector of Schools; and Lord Ulick Browne all agree in recommending the use of the English in preference to the Bengali tongue, because the Bengalis of that district are the lowest of their race and morally incapable of teaching the Hill men anything but evil. They are better artisans and farmers, but that is all. Leave the hill people to the civilising influence of English officers, missionaries, and schoolmasters, but keep them as much as possible aloof from the Bengalis, with whom they have very few dealings as it is. The Lieutenant-governor on the other hand deems it more to the interest and convenience of the hill men, that they should learn their own language through the Bengali characters, and for their second language should be taught Bengali rather than English. To do otherwise would, he thinks, be to create an artificial barrier between the two races, a result incompatible with any attempt to civilise the hill people. You cannot raise their standard of worldly comfort or improve their mental condition by shutting them off from free commercial intercourse with the plains, and leaving them to the sole direction of a few English officers living in their midst. Any extension of intercourse with outsiders would soon lead the hill-men to learn Bengali for themselves. His Honour therefore decides in favour of the Hindu tongue against his own. To us the arguments on neither side seem quite convincing. A few Englishmen can sometimes leaven the life of a ruder race, and on the other hand there must be many things which these hill-men might learn with profit from their neighbours in the plains. Nor does it follow that contact with the Bengalis would cause much, if any, moral harm to a people distinct from them in race and mental character. On the whole however we incline to agree with the Lieutenant-governor, looking at the question as one of general convenience. But might not all Indian languages be taught in the Roman character, according to the method first propounded by Sir W. Jones?

DURING the greater part of this year negotiations have been going on between the India-office and the Admiralty with regard to the provision of a suitable fleet of ships for the Persian Gulf and other of the Eastern waters. We are glad to learn that the question is very near its final settlement. There is reason to hope that arrangements will soon be made for placing the requisite number of vessels in those waters. The projected service will stand on a footing of its own, somewhere between the old Indian navy and her Majesty's; the Indian treasury contributing a fixed proportion of the expense, in harmony with the statement made some time back in the House of Commons. We cannot quite see the policy of these hybrid services. Why not restore the old Indian navy at once? India ought to have her own fleets and armies, if she is ever to hold her proper place in the East.

THE promised papers on the future of Indian railways have not yet been issued from the India Office. But rumour has already foreshadowed their general purport, and the hints obtainable from various quarters enable us to make a pretty correct guess at some of the arrangements embraced in the official scheme. The old system of guaranteed lines will not altogether cease with regard to new railways. Existing companies will be free to extend their business within limits under existing conditions. But the railways of the future will for the most part be carried out directly by the State, at its own cost under its own supervision. The reason given for the change has nothing to do with any alleged failure of the guarantee system. But it is hoped that the simpler form of State interference with railways will also prove the cheaper, and the experiment is felt to be anyhow worth the making. It will have of course to be carried on with the greatest circumspection, and to that end a searching reform must first be made in the Department of Public Works, which has not hitherto been famed for discharging its duties in the cheapest and most expeditious way. Before the end of this week the public will know what new lines the Government propose to undertake.

A SURVIVOR of the Bhotan campaign has been complaining in the Times of the unfair arrangement, which excludes the troops employed in a very trying warfare on the North-Eastern frontier from the honours at length dealt out so liberally among the troops engaged on the Punjab frontier. People in general know little, he says, of what our troops went through on the former occasion, "at one time fighting their way inch by inch into almost inaccessible hill-forts, or obstinately defended stockades;" at another time encamped for months together, "during the hottest part of the year, in the midst of the deadliest jungle in the world, while fever and cholera rapidly thinned their ranks." A like complaint appears to-day in our own columns. It does certainly seem strange that in the general scramble for medals and clasps, the men who encountered death or disease for their country in a peculiarly unwholesome climate should not be allowed to take their proper part. It is an oversight that clearly ought to be remedied according to the principle on which medals are now apparently awarded. If every soldier who saw or heard a shot fired against a gang of Afreedie or Yusufzai robbers is deemed worthy of a medal, a fortiori should one be given to the much-enduring heroes of the Bhotan war, who lost by wounds or sickness about a hundred times as many men as Lord Napier lost before Magdala. But, says the same writer, "it may be objected that those who took part in other campaigns, such as those in Sikkim and the Khasiah Hills, would want medals too." No doubt they would, and why should they not have them if they please? Fighting is fighting, whether on the North-Western or the North-Eastern frontier. We are not speaking of Umbeylah, for which under any limitations a medal might fairly be claimed. But when honours are showered indiscriminately in one direction, let us have fair play in the other. Of course there is no knowing where to stop. It will be only fair to decorate in their turn the soldiers and policemen who lately went in chase of the Loshais, and made a successful capture of their poultry. The Madras troops who last year put down an armed rising in a corner of Orissa may also put in their claim for a bit of silver and a coloured ribbon. Why not? They suffered severely from the climate, if not from human foes. The shortest way to settle the difficulty would be to let every one who wanted have his medal, and then we should be free to reconsider the whole system of granting decorations for particular services.

EDUCATION IN BENGAL.

THANKS to the influence of a paternal despotism, all India will soon, we hope, be blessed with a cheap system of popular education, maintained more or less largely by local cesses. In the Punjab, Bombay, the North-West, and British Burmah, this system, first projected by Mr. Thomason and sanctioned by Lord Dalhousie, has for some time been successfully at work. Madras and Bengal however have hitherto been content to depend on State provision, supplemented by voluntary aid. Against this shiftless policy the Indian Government last year made a resolute stand. Sir J. Lawrence then decreed that no time should be lost in bringing Bengal and Madras up to a level with the other provinces in respect of the education of the poorer millions, of whom in those two provinces not more than five per cent. can read or write their own language.

From Madras, according to the Friend of India, no official answer has yet been received. But there is no doubt of the readiness of so enlightened a Governor as Lord Napier to carry out the instructions of the Supreme Government on this matter. He has already admitted the failure of the local Act, which empowered villages to tax themselves for the maintenance of village schools, and the Director of Instruction for Madras seems to have been sharply lectured for paying so little heed to that part of his duties which deals with primary education. Lord Napier and his Council have also been considering a "comprehensive measure for providing funds" to that same end. We may therefore soon expect to hear that a one per cent. cess has been deducted from the land revenues of Madras for the purpose of teaching the ryots to read and write.

Bengal however is less submissive. The zemindars, who owe all their own prosperity to the permanent settlement which has impoverished the mass of ryots, not only begrudged the payment of one per cent. on their overgrown incomes for the benefit of their untaught countrymen, but denounced the notion as a breach of faith on the part of their rulers. Of course the accusation was a mere cloak for evading a just demand; but they cried out loud enough to mislead the Lieutenant-governor himself. In reply to the pressing instructions of the Supreme Government, Mr. Grey appears to have written what amounts to a flat rejection of a reasonable demand. This is all the more unfortunate, since the Lieutenant-governor has hitherto won high repute for administrative energy and sound discernment. It seems however that he is one of those who are slow to change opinions slowly formed, and that in the present instance his opinions have been formed on the advice of others rather than his own experience. We can only trust that a mind naturally upright and open to fair argument will not long retain its attitude of resistance to a reform which has worked successfully wherever it has been tried, and the need for which is really most urgent in a province where the landowners are the wealthiest and the peasantry the poorest and most ignorant in British India. If the former will give nothing voluntarily out of their abundance towards the schooling of the millions who have made them rich, it is time for the Government to see justice done to the latter at their cost. It is absurd to suppose that the Permanent Settlement puts any legal barrier in the way of such an arrangement, which would simply transfer to the right shoulders their due share of a burden hitherto unfairly borne by the rest of British India. It may be true that Bengal pays her full share towards the higher-class schools; but this is a question of vernacular instruction, with regard to which Bengal has done next to nothing. As for the injustice of access, it is enough to say that Mr. Grey has already sanctioned a land cess for roads.

RAILWAYS AND COAL IN INDIA.

It was only natural that much should be expected in India from so new a broom as Lord Mayo. A change of rulers is generally regarded in much the same light as a change of air. People are supposed to feel all the better for the mere sense of something new to think about; and for a time, no doubt, they are often the better, even under conditions otherwise unfavourable, until the charm of novelty has worn off, and the hopes inspired at the outset have turned sour in presence of proved realities. Had Lord Lawrence been the very greatest of rulers, his successor would still have been received with open arms by all who were tired of jogging along the old road or of rendering homage to the old idol. But it is useless to deny that the late Viceroy was less popular with some classes than he might or should have been; and so Lord Mayo enjoyed the double advantage of his predecessor's personal shortcomings and his own good repute at home, enhanced of course by the accident of his hereditary peerage, and perhaps by the excessive outcry which political opponents raised against his election. Be that as it may however, he has hitherto done much to justify the hopes engendered by his appearance. His management of the business which led to the Umballa meeting gave equal satisfaction to his own countrymen and to Shere Ali. He has made good use of his eyes and opportunities both at Calcutta and during his upward journey to the Hills. He has already overhauled the Public Works Department, and taught railway managers the virtues of punctuality and regard for the public convenience. If his predecessor appeared somewhat slow to develop the railway system of India, Lord Mayo at any rate has shown no want of energy in that direction. Last week we heard of his having ordered the making of a railway between Delhi and Rewari, which will pass through the heart of the Sultanpore salt-fields, and so cheapen the price of a necessary, whose excessive dearness has of late caused much suffering to millions of grain-consuming natives. This railway in due time will connect Bombay with Rajpootana, the North-West Provinces and Oudh. The engineers are to take counsel with the Irrigation Department, so that the new line may not interfere with the levels and the natural drainage of the surrounding country, a condition which was unfortunately overlooked in the case of Lower Bengal. The need for this precaution in the present instance is increased by the fact of certain schemes for joining the Western Jumna with the new Agra Canal being already on the point of execution.

In the next cold season the works will be begun, all preliminary inquiries being vigorously pushed in the meanwhile. No pains will be spared in building a solid permanent way, with an eye to future extensions. Very little money is to be spent on stations and such like adjuncts, which are of small consequence to a line meant chiefly for the carriage of heavy goods at a low rate of speed. The track for the present will consist of a single line of rails of the usual Indian width. Agra and Delhi will have each its branch to Jeypore. In the course of time the new line will divert much of the traffic with the Punjab and the North-West from the valley of the Ganges to Bombay.

For the consequent loss to Calcutta however there is large compensation in store, if the Indian Government will undertake or stimulate the construction of railways and waterways between Bengal, Oudh, Assam, and British Burmah. An interesting pamphlet by Mr. T. Login, a civil engineer who lately held a high post on the Ganges Canal, indicates several cheap and easy ways of developing the trade of these provinces.* Mr. Login's proposals embrace a wide network of navigable canals, and of embankments that might easily be turned into tramways and light railroads, at very small expense to the Government, with very great advantage to the districts whose local resources would furnish the principal means for their construction. His calculations show that such modes of conveyance, while good for sanitary and agricultural purposes, would be far cheaper than the ordinary cart-roads, or even the cheapest of existing railways, for all goods that could afford to take their time on the passage. The railway companies themselves would find their profit in making some of the navigable canals and charging half the railway rates for their use.

In the interests of cotton also the new Viceroy has done wisely by sanctioning the construction of a branch line from the Central Indian Railway to Khangaum, the rising cotton-mart of Berar. On the 1st of June the order for the work went forth, and the first sod has already been turned by the wife of the Assistant Commissioner for Khangaum. By next February the new line is expected to be in working order, ready for the transmission of the next cotton crop. Another branch line—namely, to Oomrawattee—will probably be undertaken next year. The Khangaum branch is described as the first of the "Imperial railways"—that is, of lines to be constructed at the cost and under the sole management of the Indian Government. It has long been rumoured that the old guarantee system was doomed, and in all likelihood the rumour will prove substantially correct. That system, however suited to the time of its first adoption, has certainly tended to double the cost of construction as estimated by Lord Dalhousie, and the temptation to waste money on scamped work involving endless repairs has been greatly enhanced by the certainty of drawing some part of the yearly five per cent. from the Indian Treasury, so long as the railways failed to yield that minimum of profit. It may be pleaded that, but for the guarantee system, India would have had by this time few, if any, railways, instead of some four thousand miles; and it is not quite clear that railways made by Government will needs be much better managed or more cheaply made than railways properly overlooked by Government officers. The experiment however of State railways is worth the making, in view of the need that grows daily more visible for a very large and early increase to the railway mileage of India, an increase hardly attainable under the present system alone.

Besides more railways, India wants cheaper coal. Fifty to sixty shillings a ton is a very discouraging price for so important a necessary. And yet that is the price which India will continue to pay, so long as she has to depend on Australia and other countries in aid of her own supplies. Indian coal at its best falls far short of English or Australian for its combustible virtues; and most of the coal-fields hitherto discovered differ from each other only in the degree of their practical worthlessness. Raneegunge offers a rare instance of fields at once fertile and worth the working. If a recent telegram however may be trusted, another Raneegunge may yet be found for Western India in the Chanda coal-fields, which are said to prove "very encouraging." A good deal of the coal now lying waste might be turned into blocks of artificial fuel, if the proper means of binding it together could only be discovered. Pitch and tar, which are used in Wales, would be too costly for Indian coal. Experiments have been made with ground potato starch and carbolic acid; but the blocks thus made are affected by water and exposure to the air. Common rice-water has also been tried with results more or less discouraging. We are informed however that Mr. Oldfield has not been discouraged by past failures, but still looks forward to assured success. The cost of proper machinery for making patent fuel is another hindrance to the carrying out of the needful experiments. This question and others connected with coal might well employ the leisure moments and spare rupees of the Indian Government. Lord Mayo in his zeal for promoting railways will not, we imagine, forget the price of fuel.

MEDAL FOR BHOOTAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—It seems rather hard that those who served in the Bhootan war should have been excluded from participating in the honours of the Frontier Medal, lately given by her Majesty's Government. Considering for what trifling services some officers have received the "Mutiny Medal," to have permitted the survivors, too, of Bhootan to wear the Frontier Medal would not have been any great stretch of generosity. It is well known that in Bhootan the troops underwent a great deal of exposure and hardship, and that the losses from sickness, &c., were very great, besides those killed and wounded. The war also resulted in a large addition to the British territories, besides the release of a number of captives.

Surely, under these circumstances, to exclude the officers and men who served from the Frontier Medal is an unnecessary and uncalled for slight.—Yours truly,

JUSTICE.

Notices of Books.

Critical and Historical Essays. By Lord Macaulay. A new Edition. London: Longmans and Co. 1869.

The issue of another cheap edition of Macaulay's "Essays" seems to argue the abiding popularity of a work which very few can read for the first or even second time, without being carried away by the force of a glowing, straightforward, clear, antithetic style, through which the writer pours out the riches of his varied learning, his wonderful memory, his ripe acquaintance with the world, and his manly, if not very far-darting intellect. This new edition, in one volume, is very neatly printed in small but clear type running across the page—an improvement, we are inclined to think, on the double-column form of the last popular edition. That however is a matter of taste; but of the neatness of the type—so far as young eyes are concerned—and the goodness of the paper, there can be no doubt.

THE STAFF CORPS.

The Friend of India points out that the problem after the extinction of the local army was how to provide for its four thousand officers. The idea of massing the élite of them who had been accustomed to civil duties in a staff corps was likely to effect a vast improvement on the old system, if it were certain that the corps could be recruited from British regiments, that additional wrong would not be done to the regimental officers, and that the revenues of India would not have an intolerable burden laid upon them. Unfortunately, the new and chaotic system, for which, not General Norman, but the author of the extinction of the local army was responsible, resulted in an enormous increase of military expenditure, which will go on and culminate only in 1896. It seemed just that promotion involving pay in many cases should be more rapid in the Staff Corps than on the old system, so long as the corps consisted of officers on civil and staff duty. But there was no necessity for giving colonel's allowance on such ruinously easy terms, and justice could be done to the less fortunate of the local officers only by admitting them also to the Staff Corps. As to the certainty that the corps, if continued in existence, will be recruited by young British officers, that remains to be proved by time. Everything has been done to tempt such officers, and to fit them for an Indian career which, in power, promotion and ultimate pay, if not pension, falls short only of that gained for himself by the covenanted civilian, and is offered by no other army or country. The future of the Staff Corps depends on the readiness with which such recruits will come forward when the demand will become as great as it has hitherto been trifling, and on the nature of the new organisation likely to be given to the British army itself, which is now under discussion in England. On the 1st January there were 3,359 officers in the Staff Corps, only 180 of whom were from British regiments. Allowing one-fourth of the whole number to be on leave, the army requires 2,060 officers and the Civil Service 888, or 2,940 in all. There is thus an excess of 419 officers, many of whom have been waiting on to be tempted by a bonus and increased pension. Of these, several will now retire, and some will probably be forced to go, being disqualified for the public service. Still colonel's allowances and the pension list alike will swell our military expenditure for the next quarter of a century. Of the 3,359 members of the Staff Corps 1,199 were field officers, eighteen months ago, and only 409 such officers are required.

THE POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS.

The Englishman maintains that the reasons on which the late decision of the Government of India on the subject is founded are so trifling and unstatesmanlike that we cannot but still hope that a reduction will be conceded. The proportion borne by the rates of postage on newspapers in India, not only to those prevailing in England and America, but to the Indian rates for letters, has now become most anomalous; and the anomaly is aggravated when we consider the peculiar position of the press here. If the development of private correspondence is mainly a result of the spread of education, increased newspaper circulation is one of the most important causes of that spread; and to reduce the letter postage without at the same time extending the relief to newspapers seems very like commencing at the wrong end. If indeed the Government wish to recoup themselves for the loss sustained by the late change in the rates of letter postage, a similar reduction on those of newspaper postage will probably contribute indirectly to that end more than any equally inexpensive measures that could be named. Looking at the position of the press itself, it is worthy of consideration that the total circulation of the whole of the Indian newspapers is less than one-fourth that of a single first-class paper at home. The result of the small circulation of individual papers is necessarily that they should be comparatively dear, and the weight of a high rate of postage falls, under these circumstances, with especial severity upon both proprietors and readers; on proprietors because, though (with the exception of ourselves) they charge their readers with the postage, their circulation is kept down by the necessarily high cost of their papers; upon readers because they have already to pay much more for the papers than they would under other circumstances. Consider the liberal policy of the American Government which, with much less necessity for encouraging this instrument of popular education, carries tons of newspaper matter free of charge, and for the rest charges only two cents per four ounces; so that for one dollar and twenty cents the reader can get his 310 daily newspapers a year, while in India a Mofussil subscriber has to pay about twenty rupees a year for postage on a single paper. Surely if the Indian Government can afford to carry heavy samples at a special low rate, they can afford to reduce the existing high postage on newspapers. The loss to the revenue would be, even at first, so very trifling, that the disinclination of the Government of India to incur it in addition to that which they anticipate in consequence of the reduction of the rates for letters, really possesses very little force. In the case of the vernacular newspapers we have no hesitation in saying that the present rates of postage are an almost absolute bar to their circulation. In the case of a daily paper they alone would amount to more than the mass even of educated natives can afford to pay; and to this fact alone, we have no doubt, is to be attributed the circumstance that we have not yet a daily vernacular newspaper.

The Madras Times is sorry to find that the Government of India has not made so much progress as had been supposed towards conceding a reduced rate of newspaper postage. The proprietors of the Friend of India six months ago memorialised that Government in favour of reducing newspaper postage to eight pie, or half an anna, and a few days ago they received a reply to the effect that "his Excellency in Council is not prepared at present to grant any further concession in the matter of postage." We believe that some time ago the Director-General of the Post-office was disposed to concede a half anna postage to native newspapers, but that he was afterwards convinced that no distinction ought to be made between English and native newspapers. It was supposed at the time that this conversion would have had the effect of obtaining the expected reduction for all newspapers, but it now appears that its effects have been to delay the concession to all. We say delay, for we have no doubt whatever that the reduction must come, and that pretty soon. From the statistics of the Post-office it appears that the immediate loss to the revenue by the reduction of the newspaper postage to half an anna would be Rs. 1,68,888, and that a reduction to eight pie would cause an immediate loss of Rs. 84,444. When we compare these sums with those spent upon direct educational efforts, they sink into utter insignificance; and public opinion is now agreed, in England at least, that there is no educational power equal to that of the newspaper. But the loss to the revenue would be only temporary. The increased circulation of newspapers would soon recoup the revenue besides performing a great educational work that it is in the power of no other institution save the newspaper press to accomplish.

At present the cost of postage for a newspaper in India frequently exceeds the cost of the paper itself. This is not the case with the larger English newspapers in India, but it is so with many native newspapers, and the smaller and cheaper English ones. It may fairly be presumed that a reduction of postage would in time cause a large increase of the circulation of such papers, to the great advantage of educational progress. There are some people, we know, who think that cheap newspapers must be nasty ones, but that fallacy has been exploded by English experience. When it was proposed to repeal the stamp duty and the paper duty in England, the imaginations of many worthy people immediately conjured up visions of horrible penny papers disseminating sedition and blasphemy over the length and breadth of the land. The actual result is that the British public now get for the sum of one penny a paper better in every respect than they formerly got for sevenpence. Those newspapers are distributed in enormous numbers, employ the most perfect machinery, and have revenues that would have made their sevenpenny predecessors mad with envy. The effect of a reduction of postage would probably be not only to extend greatly the circulation of the cheaper sort of Indian newspapers, but in time to cause the present high-priced newspapers to reduce their rates of subscription. The present comparatively high rates of Indian newspapers are maintained because they have not a large enough field to enable them to make lower rates pay. There is, under present circumstances, but a limited public to which they can appeal, and no effort made by themselves alone can greatly extend that public. But a decrease in the postal rates would open up to them a wider field which they would, no doubt, hasten to occupy; and with a low rate of postage, and perhaps a lower rate of subscription, there is no reason why the Anglo-Indian newspapers should not acquire a large circulation among the rapidly increasing class of natives who have some English education. The educational advantages to be derived from the extended circulation of English newspapers among the natives need hardly be pointed out. In fact, we believe it would do more for the cause of real education than all the other educational efforts put together. Government spends enormous sums of money in teaching native lads to read the English of two or three centuries ago, and lets them pass into a world where they have not the slightest inducement to apply their knowledge to the affairs of every day life. If they read at all it is probably the obscene and idolatrous poetry that they might have read without English education. The extended circulation of English newspapers among English-reading natives would not only preserve and improve their knowledge of the language, but it would do what all their previous education had failed to do—that is, give them real living ideas. To plunge a man into the living discussions of to-day is a very different thing from letting him potter over dead history, and we venture to think the perusal of a newspaper containing matter of real and personal interest to him would do more to develop the intellectual and moral power of a native than any amount of mere learning.

HOW TO UTILIZE GENERAL-DUTY WALLAHS.—A tiger has been ravaging the Cuddapah district, has already killed ten persons, and, thinks the acting collector, is likely to kill many more, unless effectual measures are taken for its destruction. The acting collector himself has tried to put in force the "effectual measures" he desiderates, and, accompanied by three other gallant gentlemen, sallied out to shoot what Government very rightly call "this terrible animal." They tracked the brute to a place where he was eating the carcase of a shepherd whom he had killed, but, somehow or other, he "did not afford them a shot!" As none of the quartette "could afford to stay away from their offices indefinitely," they prudently returned to them, and the acting collector wrote a long letter to the revenue board setting forth their exploit, and requesting a sanction of 300 rupees for the destruction of the man-eater. The question then was who would slay this uncircumcised son of a tiger? And Colonel Chrystie, who is doing general duty at Waltair, gallantly replied, "I will undertake the duty, and will leave by the first steamer." The services of the gallant sportsman were, therefore, placed at the disposal of Government by his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, to enable him "to proceed to Cuddapah to kill a man-eating tiger." There are more man-eaters than one in the Madras Presidency, and there are many field officers doing general duty throughout the same space. It would, perhaps, be a good thing if the services of these gallant gentlemen were placed at the disposal of Government for a similar employment to that for which Colonel Chrystie has volunteered. It would, at any rate, give them something to think about, and as their turns for wings or commands of corps came round they might be recalled from their occupation, and others who have attained the same position in the army sent out instead. We fancy that few of their juniors would object to this arrangement.—Madras Athenæum.

IRRIGATION IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

The report of the Irrigation Department, North-Western Provinces, for the year 1868, shows extraordinary progress. We find that the land irrigated in 1868 exceeded that irrigated in 1867 by 195,000 acres, made up as follows:—Sugar-cane, 11,000 acres; rice, 12,000 acres; Indian corn, 43,000 acres; cotton, 44,000 acres; and miscellaneous, including all inferior grains, 85,000 acres. The increase of cotton is attributed to the market, and that of Indian corn and inferior grains is regarded as proof that the instructions of Government to push that cultivation as far as possible have been kept constantly in mind. Good crops have been raised on nearly 500,000 acres; and 2,000,000 acres have been preserved from pressure of famine. The khurree irrigation is 64 per cent. more than that of the previous year. Major Brownlow, Superintending Engineer, and twelve other officers, are specially brought to notice for good and zealous services amid many difficulties.

Sir William Muir considers these results highly gratifying. His Honour, in a minute dated the 19th February last, writes as follows:

"The aggregate result is that there were irrigated from the canals 483,000 acres, which, without this blessing, would for the most part have altogether failed. It is satisfactory to find that the increase has been mainly in food crops not hitherto ordinarily irrigated; cotton is the only exception, showing an increase from 8,000 to 52,000 acres. The addition to the irrigated rice area (from 98,000 to 110,000) is not so great as might have been expected; but this arises from the fact that rice is a crop for which the people, excepting in unusually favourable seasons, invariably use canal water. There remain Indian corn and miscellaneous crops, the area of which rose from 18,307 acres in 1867 to 147,000 in 1868. The area under these heads is especially large in the Etawah division, and illustrative of the rivalry between indigo and food crops in that quarter.

"I wish to have a detail of the figures belonging to the entry 'miscellaneous other crops,' showing separately garden land, bajra, joar, urhur, and such other main heads. Anything bearing on the readiness of agriculturists to use water for the commoner autumn crops is interesting and useful. The considerable area irrigated for this purpose is a hopeful symptom. Although the water was taken too late in some cases to be of any great service, it generally saved the crop, and (as I have myself observed) often produced luxuriant fields both of grain and fodder. It remains to be seen whether the advantages thus secured will lead the people to recognise the benefit, and introduce the practice, of regular irrigation for the commoner khurree crops; or whether they will, as heretofore, wait on in expectation of the periodical rains.

"The benefits rendered by the canals, both in saving such extensive areas of the more valuable staples, and in giving irrigation to an area (including rice) of 217,000 acres of food and fodder crops, are beyond all calculation, whether we look to the revenue, or, what is of higher import, the saving of life and the general prosperity of the country.

"I have already repeatedly placed on record my high sense of the devotion and energy with which all ranks in the department have met the emergency, and I cordially join with the chief engineer in now bringing to the notice of his Excellency the Governor-General in Council the names of Major Brownlow and other officers enumerated by Colonel Greathed, as deserving the best acknowledgments of Government for able service at the late most trying crisis."

STATION TALK.

SIMLA, June 14.—Weather delightful. A few days ago Simla was gladdened by a downpour of rain mingled with hail, which lasted for more than hour, and we have since had a few slight showers; this has cooled the atmosphere very considerably; the fall in the thermometer was about 20 degrees. Everything has had a good washing and looks quite clean, the trees and plants quite fresh and green. Sickness of all kinds seems to be prevalent here this season; two deaths (children) among the European community have occurred within the last few days.

NYNEE TAL, June 14.—Since my last I have experienced two great difficulties in getting money. The first and greatest is in cashing currency notes, which Government led the public to believe would be cashed anywhere within their circles; yet on presentation to the Treasury here you are quietly told the cash balance is too small to admit of a few notes being cashed. Just fancy the Government Treasury cash balance too small to admit of Rs. 5,000 worth of notes being cashed. The other difficulty is, that on receiving your pay from the plains by Treasury order you are obliged to send it to Almorah for the civil officer's order for payment, receiving it back in some four or five days, merely with an order that could have been made by the civil officer in charge of Nynsee Tal. Surely something is wrong. Can the Accountant-General know of all this? Of a truth the administration of these provinces is wonderful and much to be thought of.

MEERUT, June 14.—From daylight to seven o'clock this was one of the most enjoyable of mornings, more like a June morning in old England than one in the burning plains of India. The cool breeze must have come from south-eastern regions, where the ground has been blessed with rain. Small-pox has prevailed in the 36th Native Infantry, and within a few days two men of the 4th Hussars have been carried off by the same complaint; but there are no new cases, I believe; and up to this date no cholera has appeared. Sanitary measures are carried out here with admirable strictness. During the last few months we have had an unusual number of marriages, and rumour says there are some more on the tapis. But it is melancholy to drive on the deserted mall of an evening. The band wastes its sweetness on the desert air. Every one who could get away is on the hills, and others are going. We have nothing at present in the way of amusement. Only a feeble dinner party here and there drags its slow length along. The best item of recent news is the establishment of an ice-machine in the Begum Kotee. Officers of regiments going away are already beginning to arrange for the disposal of their equipages, goods, and chattels. Kutcherry business is now transacted in the morning, and all Meerut, civil and military, retires to rest from breakfast-time to sunset, lively temperaments alone excepted. The winds have been so variable that tatties do not work well this season. In the hospitals, though they are provided with thermantidotes as well as tatties, the heat has been far above the usual mark. Yet there is not much serious illness the doctors say. Long may they be able to make the like report!—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

LADY MAYO.—Lady Mayo, the Friend of India understands, will not return to England until the close of the Durbar festivities in January next.

THE C-IN-C.—Sir William Mansfield, who had been residing at Mahassoo, in the neighbourhood of Simla, for about a month, was to have returned to Simla on June 17.

ACCIDENT TO DR. GRAY.—We regret to hear that Dr. R. Gray, officiating Inspector-General of Prisons in the Punjab, was recently thrown from his horse at Murree, and dangerously hurt.

MURREE.—We hear from Murree that heavy rain had fallen there and in the vicinity as early as the 5th or 6th of June, and some of the residents and visitors appeared to believe that the rainy season had actually set in.

PUNJAB BANK.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Punjab Bank, held at Rawul Pindee on the 17th ultimo, a dividend was declared at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, and Rs. 20,000 added to the reserve fund.

UNITED BANK OF INDIA.—The United Bank of India has declared a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, for the half-year ending 31st December, 1868. The directors report that the bank has been making satisfactory progress, and that a reserve fund has been formed.

CHRISTIAN CONVERTS.—The Bishop of Calcutta has written to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel stating that he has received into the communion of the Church of England, at their own request, 7,000 native converts at Chota Nagpore, and has re-ordained four Lutheran ministers who had sought episcopal orders.

JUDICIAL.—Owing to the great increase of business in the Chief Court of the Punjab, the Government of India in January last recommended to the Secretary of State the appointment of a third Judge to that Court on a salary of Rs. 3,500 per mensem, and the Secretary of State has sanctioned this recommendation in his financial despatch, dated April 8, 1869.

JUBBULPORE.—We are glad to learn that sickness is on the wane at Jubbulpore; but they had no rain at that station, worth speaking about, up to the 10th instant. At ten o'clock on the night of the 10th instant a sharp current of rain passed over the station in the short space of ten minutes. Probably it was the tail of the storm which visited Allahabad on the same day, as the current set in at Jubbulpore from the N.N.W.—Delhi Gazette, June 19.

PESHAWUR.—Complete arrangements have been made for the settlement of the Peshawur district. Captain Hastings, who has for some time been the assistant commissioner of the Eusufzai district, has been appointed settlement officer. This very difficult post could not have been entrusted, we are led to believe, to better hands. Captain Hastings is a young officer of very great promise, and is well acquainted with the Pathans and their language.—Delhi Gazette.

CAPTAIN THACKWELL.—We (Lucknow Times) are happy to state that from the last accounts from Baraitch we have heard that Captain Thackwell, who recently met with the sad mishap with a tiger while out shooting at Bulrampore, is quite out of danger, and is fast recovering from his wounds. We hear that the animal that mauled him was a tigress, who had with her two cubs, which Captain Chaffey managed to secure as trophies, and purposes bringing them into Lucknow.

CHOLERA AT AGRA.—The Agra paper records the appearance of cholera there. On the 9th, 10th, and 11th June seven cases occurred in the right wing of the 40th Native Infantry, of which four terminated fatally. At the same time there were perhaps a dozen cases in all towards the city and the civil lines. The wing of the 40th went into camp on the 12th; since then it has been free from the disease, and no other cases have occurred in cantonments. In the city there have been a few, but they are considered "doubtful." H.M.'s 77th and the Artillery have not had any cases.

SIMLAH.—A correspondent of the Pioneer, writing from Simla on the 14th June, states that, beyond the very heavy showers which fell there on the 8th, there had only been three or four light falls of rain, and that to all appearance the regular rainy season has not set in yet. Sufficient rain had, however, fallen to refresh the parched-up streams and lower the thermometer from ten to fifteen degrees.

THE AGRA DURBAR.—A contemporary gives the following as the troops that are likely to be present at the festivities at Agra in January next; we cannot vouch for its accuracy:—Royal Artillery. —C-A Brigade, B-F Brigade, and C-F Brigade, Royal Horse Artillery; C-8th Brigade, H-8th Brigade, and F-19th Brigade Royal Artillery; and one Garrison Battery, probably the 7-22nd Brigade. British Cavalry.—5th Lancers, 11th Hussars, and 21st Hussars. Bengal Cavalry.—2nd Bengal Cavalry, 8th Bengal Cavalry, and 14th Bengal Cavalry. British Infantry.—1-11th Foot, 1-19th Foot, 77th Foot, 79th Foot, and 93rd Foot. Bengal Infantry.—1st N.I., 6th N.I., 8th N.I., 13th N.I., 14th N.I., 22nd N.I., and 40th N.I.

AFGHANISTAN.—The latest news from Cabul, says the Pioneer, is reassuring. The Khans of Turkistan have all expressed their willingness to become faithful and obedient subjects of the Ameer. Meer Jehandar Shah, the ruler of Badukshan, has expressed his regret for his former conduct. Shere Ali has held an inspection of his army, which lasted three days, after which the troops were minutely inspected by Sirdar Yakooob Khan and General Feramoz Khan. Yakooob Khan and Ismael Khan are said to have become reconciled. The inhabitants of Cabul are not allowed to walk the streets after ten o'clock at night and before four o'clock in the morning. A gun is fired at each hour, so that the people may have due warning.

SINDIAH.—A correspondent thus writes to the Friend of India:—"Sindiah, as you know, is a remarkable man. His army is the only object on which he spends his money freely, and is his favourite toy. I have seen a field-day of his, which certainly would not have disgraced Aldershot as far as conception went, and of which the execution was also very fair. As a prince, he is close-fisted to a degree, and he has done hardly anything to relieve the fearful distress prevailing all over his dominions. I should judge him to be a morose man, much given to pondering over the grievances and annoyances he sustains, or believes himself to sustain, at the hands of the British Government. His Court is very curious, and would be quite a study to those who would take the trouble to analyse its members."

THE FINE ARTS AT SIMLA.—The Simla—or rather Indian—Fine Art Exhibition of last year (for all India was invited to contribute) succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations of its projectors. This year the Exhibition will commence with all the prestige of assured success. Not only, as we hear, have applications for space in the display of September next already become very numerous, but the pictures themselves have commenced to arrive. Lord Mayo has consented to become president and patron of the Exhibition, and Sir Henry Durand vice-president. The former gives a prize for the best painting in oil or water-colour by any lady amateur resident in India (place aux dames, as becomes a gallant nobleman); the latter a gold-medal for the best water-colour. The society will offer a gold medal for the best oil painting, a silver one for the best set of three water colours, and another for the best series of three photographs.—Pioneer.

MILITARY.—We regret to learn that Lieutenant McNally, of the Bengal Unattached List, died suddenly at Kussowlie, on the 3rd instant. He had been ailing for some time, though no one thought him seriously ill.—The Jubbulpore Chronicle mentions that Captain Chinn, of the 2-12th Regiment, is dangerously ill. He has been ill for some time, and was to have left the station on Saturday, the 12th, en route to England on medical leave, but became worse the previous night, and could not undertake the journey.—It is stated that Dr. J. C. Bow, Garrison Surgeon of Chunar, has been appointed to the same office in Allahabad, vice Dr. Dillon, deceased.—The Delhi Gazette states that Lieutenant-Colonel Gore, of the 88th Regiment, who served at Agra for a short time a few years ago, and who was subsequently sent home on sick certificate, is in a state of health which causes much anxiety to his medical attendants.

RELEASE OF OLD CONSPIRATORS.—Shortly before the first Sikh war a conspiracy was formed at Lahore to murder the Regent, Tej Singh, and the British Resident, the late Sir Henry Lawrence, to put an end to all British influence at Lahore; and with this view, to seduce the British sepoys from their allegiance. This is the conspiracy so well known by the name of its leader as the "Prema conspiracy." It was, however, detected in time, and all those concerned in it were tried and found guilty by a court, which included among its members the foremost Punjab nobles of the time. The principal plotters were sentenced to imprisonment for life, and were eventually transferred as State prisoners to the fortress of Chunar. In March, 1868, one of the prisoners, Lall Sing, was released, in consideration of his old age and infirmities. The Government of India has now thought fit, as an act of grace, to release the remaining prisoners, Prema Sing and Maun Sing, and to permit them to return to Jummoo. The brothers of Prema Sing have agreed to be responsible for his future good conduct, and have given a written agreement to this effect to the Maharajah of Cashmere.—Bombay Gazette.

YARKAND.—A few Yarkandi traders have arrived at Simla; they complain that the Kashmir officials, in defiance of the promises that have been made, continue to obstruct them in every way; they state that they left Yarkand on the day of arrival, under great demonstrations of honour, of Mr. Shaw; Lieutenant Heyward was also being well treated, but the Yarkandis, who first considered him a spy and placed him under surveillance, now look upon him as a common-place "shikari" Sahib. Mr. Shaw's mission to sell tea, they, on the other hand, perfectly further in every way, for Yarkand, with the rest of Central Asia, is in great want of tea, which, as well as sugar, are the greatest and rarest luxuries of these countries. The dissensions with China have, it will be remembered, cut off the tea supply from the usual quarter, and give India an opportunity, such as should not be neglected, of providing that commodity. There are, no doubt, prospects of trade with Asia, if we have our own road skirting, but not entering into the Kashmir territory. Central Asian traders have good reason for distrusting the Kashmir Government, and no amount of promises will ever induce them to forget their past experience, or to have confidence in the Dogra management for the future.—Indian Public Opinion, June 15.

THE MISSING "CHEDUBA."—The Englishman says that whilst the Maulmain was at Chittagong the crew of a country brig which had been wrecked on the coast arrived and reported that after being washed on shore they saw several dead bodies of Europeans and natives floating about and thrown up on the beach, and that amongst the Europeans were two who appeared to be females. These most probably were the bodies of the passengers and crew of the Cheduba, as two ladies were amongst the passengers of that unfortunate vessel. Captain Anderson, of the steamer Alexandra, who was sent out by the Chief Commissioner of British Burmah to search for the Cheduba, has reported that he met a native vessel, the nacoda of which informed him that he had seen the missing mail-boat about a hundred and twenty miles off the Sandheads, on the day of the gale. That was probably the last seen of the steamer.—We are indebted to the chief officer of the Alexandra for the following:—The Alexandra communicated with the Moulmain, in Akyab, on May 31st. Captain Ewart, of the Moulmain, said, while in Chittagong, two days previously, he had seen a brig, which had arrived there dismasted. The commander of the brig told him that on the morning of the 16th May, a gale of wind blowing at the time, he saw a brig-rigged steamer standing to the southward. The same afternoon the brig was dismasted; this was, according to their account, in lat. 20 deg. N., long. 90 deg. E., position not to be relied on. If it were the Cheduba that was seen, and she kept on to the south-eastward, she must have met the centre of the cyclone.—Rangoon Gazette, June 8.

Madras.

LORD NAPIER.—The Governor of Madras, attended by his secretaries and other members of his staff, was to leave the Presidency town on Tuesday, June 15, on a tour to North Arcot.

AUSTRALIAN PRESERVED MEAT.—It is understood by a Madras contemporary that there is very little probability of the preserved meat of Australia being imported to this country for the use of the troops.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.—We hear that Mr. W. King will be appointed Deputy Superintendent of the Geological Survey (Madras), in succession to the late Mr. C. Oldham. Mr. King acted for Mr. Oldham when the latter went on leave to Europe.—Madras Mail.

HARBOURS.—A duly qualified marine engineer will be shortly sent to Madras from England for the purpose of examining and reporting upon the principal harbours in Southern India, beginning his investigations at Cochin. It appears to be the intention of the Government to create harbour accommodation at Carwar, Calicut, Cochin, and at the mouths of the rivers Godavari, Kistna, and Mahanuddy. The Madras Harbour scheme is still engaging the attention of the authorities.—Indian Daily News.

LAW COSTS.—Law is a luxury for the rich, though barristers in Madras are as numerous as blackberries. In the recent Shivagunga case in the Madura District, the leading counsel was three days in court, received a fee of Rs. 15,000, say £1,500, and another gentleman who did nothing was pleased to accept a retaining fee of Rs. 2,000, say £200. Another suit in connection with the succession to the Zemindary comes on for hearing in the Local Court in August, when the legal luminaries will doubtless again reap a harvest.—Madras Mail.

THE DECCAN.—The Hyderabad correspondent of the Englishman says:—"The rumour is current that Sir Salar Jung has at last resolved to punish the Aurungabad city officers who were the other day convicted of bribery. The Nazim, or Governor of the city, has been heavily fined, and he has been ordered to confine himself to his native village. Here he will be under surveillance. The minor offenders have been fined and placed in custody. Some cases of extortion are reported from Khangaon, arising out of a confederacy to keep down the price of cotton."

MILITARY.—Captain T. Ross Church is, we learn, to act as Presidency Paymaster, in the room of Colonel Greenlaw, who acts for Colonel Touch as Examiner in the Pay Department.—Madras Mail.—It is understood that Captain J. M. Williams, A.I.C.E., late Engineer to the Bhaman expedition, who has just arrived in Madras, is to succeed Major Chrystie as assistant to the Chief Engineer in Mysore.—It is reported, says the Madras Mail, that H.M.'s 45th Regiment, at present garrisoning Fort Saint George, is to be ordered off to Bangalore about the end of the current year, to relieve H.M.'s 2nd Battalion 19th Regiment, which returns to England about that time, they having completed their service in India.

SAILORS' HOME AT RANGOON.—The Indian Government has granted Rs. 10,000 towards the erection of a Sailors' Home at Rangoon, and also a monthly allowance of Rs. 100, and a free grant of land; but other Rs. 29,000 are required to erect the building, and subscriptions are being called for.

FOREST DEPARTMENT.—The Government of Madras, according to the Madras Mail, has finally decided against the introduction of the Forest Act into that Presidency. "We doubt not," remarks our contemporary, "that there were grave reasons against it, which may justify the Local Government in thus flying in the face of the strong hints of the Secretary of State for India, and the testimony of Dr. Cleghorn that 'in seven provinces where it had been introduced it had worked extremely well; but we regret that there would appear to be no intention of legalising the Forest Conservancy Department, and settling the powers of its servants by the introduction of a Bill in the Local Council suited to the requirements of this Presidency. Until this is done the position of the Forest Department and its officers must continue to be unsatisfactory.'"

THE 16TH LANCERS AND THE 18TH HUSSARS.—It seems now pretty certain (writes the Bangalore Herald) that the authorities have more than half made up their minds to send her Majesty's 16th (Queen's) Lancers to Hyderabad, and the 18th Hussars back to Bangalore. The Hussars came to Bangalore in 1864. The 1st King's Dragoon Guards, whose time was nearly up for going home, were sent to Hyderabad, and the Hussars remained here only for a year. At the end of that time the Dragoons were marched back again, the 18th went up to the Deccan, and the Lancers were put up in Bangalore. Much adverse comment was elicited by these movements. We fear a similar move is again about to be attempted. No cavalry regiment comes out to Madras this season, and yet because a little sickness is reported in the 18th, the military authorities are determined on spending an immense amount of money in transferring two regiments in the same presidency, with a total disregard of other arrangements. When the 15th Hussars arrived in Bombay they might easily take the place of the 18th Hussars at Hyderabad, the latter regiment marching to Mhow—quite as healthy a station as Bangalore. Until a cavalry regiment is due in the Madras presidency we do not see the slightest necessity for the Lancers moving on to Hyderabad. It is simply a sheer waste of public money.

STATION TALK.

KURRACHEE, June 14.—Contrary to general expectation, Colonel Woolloombe, C.B., is not to continue in command of the Sind division during the absence on furlough of Major-General Sir George Malcolm. According to official information received here, Brigadier General John Forbes, C.B., of the Cavalry branch of the Bombay Army (not "Major General Forster, R.A.," as announced by the local press), has been selected to act for Sir George, and is expected here by tomorrow's mail steamer. This officer is not quite a stranger to the province, for he served with the Sind field force of 1843, and was present at the battle of Hyderabad. Instructions have been received from Army head-quarters to direct Staff Surgeon Major F. Cogau—at present on general duty in Sind—to proceed by the first opportunity to Nowshera, and assume medical charge of the 88th Foot, during the absence on sick leave of Surgeon A. H. Fraser, M.D., of that corps. The following temporary arrangements have been made by the Commandant-in-Chief, Frontier Field Force, subject to the confirmation of his Lordship the Commander-in-Chief:—Captain Stevens, acting second in command of the 2nd Regiment Sind Horse, to perform the duties of second squadron officer in addition to his own, vice Lieutenant Hogg, appointed to the Aden troop; Lieutenant Peat to act as second in command 3rd Regiment Sind Horse in addition to his own duties, vice Lieutenant Reynolds, who has gone home on furlough; Lieutenant J. Coulson, third squadron officer 1st Sind Horse, to act as second squadron officer; and Cornet C. A. Lucas, second squadron subaltern of the 2nd Regiment, to act as third squadron officer of the 1st Regiment. The ship Glencoe, 746 tons, arrived here from London last Friday, under the command of Captain Stewart, but minus her bulwarks and maintopsail, which she lost in a violent gale which she experienced a few days before she entered this harbour. She was one hundred and fifty-three days on her passage, having left London on the 10th January. Her cargo consists of general merchandise and a quantity of malt liquor for the troops in Sind.

BROACH, June 12.—It will be long before the people of Dhollerah, Bhownuggur, Gogo, and Broach will forget last Sunday and Monday, two days fraught with such a catalogue of disasters off the Gulf of Cambay as to render a comparison with the dreadful cyclones of Bengal not out of place. Besides the sad loss of the Jhelum, no less than thirteen pattimars, all laden with cotton, and bound for Bombay, are supposed to have gone down, and in most instances, it is feared, all hands have perished. Out of thirty pattimars which I saw sail out of Gogo one afternoon the beginning of last week, I fear not more than half-a-dozen, if even this number, have been able to make Bombay. From Bulsar to Damaun almost every railway station has been inundated with cotton from those boats which were fortunate enough to escape total wreck by running into the different creeks along that coast. It was a beautiful sight, and one nearly all Gogo turned out to see—thirty pattimars glide away so quietly one after the other under full sail and a fair wind, giving every promise of a safe and speedy voyage to Bombay. Alas! what a reflection now to those who were witnesses of this interesting scene, and what a sad ending to so many of those poor fellows, who thus gaily sailed away from friends and homes they little dreamt they should never see again. Of all the disasters, however, which have resulted from this cyclone, the fate of the unfortunate Jhelum deservedly commands our deepest sympathy. It appears that when she left Gogo on Monday morning, the sea was perfectly calm, the horizon giving no indication of a coming storm. She had not, however, been gone above an hour when the sea began to run heavily, continuing to increase in violence as she neared the bar, and causing the steamer to roll frightfully, as wave after wave swept over her decks in quick succession—one of which, I am informed, carried five passengers with it, to be as promptly rescued by the gallant captain, who still pressed on to gain the inside of the bar, where he would have been quite safe against the storm raging outside, had he been successful in his efforts. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Captain Kingcome for his noble conduct throughout that trying day, and if any one ever earned the Albert Medal certainly he did on Monday last, since it was mainly owing to his herculean exertions that so few lives were lost. Whether this disaster would have occurred had the river been buoyed at the bar is hard to tell. The captain says he would at least have had a much better chance of escape had such been the case, since he would have been able to have gone considerably further south, and thus have had a more direct course to steer for the channel. There are many wise-after-the-event people, who say the Jhelum never was meant for the work assigned by Mr. Shepherd, and that they are not at all surprised she came to grief, and so on. Now such remarks, I consider, are as unfair as they are uncharitable. Doubtless she was of very great length, carried heavy engines, and drew but very little water; still she was strongly put together, and would, in my opinion, have easily weathered anything but a cyclone, against which, I need hardly say, it is not every vessel that can successfully contend. But, besides being unfair and uncharitable, I am bound to consider such remarks to be either ignorant or untrue, since she was, if I mistake not, passed by Government as perfectly sea-worthy and safe. — Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CIVIL.—Surgeon A. M. Rogers has been appointed Acting Presidency Surgeon, 1st District, and Professor of Midwifery, Grant Medical College.

JUDICIAL.—We learn that Mr. Justice Bayley has been advised to pay a flying visit to Europe for the benefit of his health; and that he will start on an early day. We believe that Mr. White will act for Mr. Bayley, Mr. Scoble for Mr. White, and Mr. Green for Mr. Scoble. — Bombay Gazette.

"IN MEMORIAM."—The Guzerat Mitra mentions that a monument has been erected at the expense of the Talookdars of Kattiyar, on the Tober Hill near Manchurda, in memory of the late Captains La Touche and Herbert, who, our readers will remember, gallantly fell in a recent skirmish with the Wagheers.

LOSS OF THE "INDUS" STEAM FERRY.—As if the total loss of one of their steamers was not enough to test the perseverance of the promoters of the Nerbudda steam ferry, the other steamer has also come to grief. On the 16th instant, a week after the Jhelum was wrecked on the Nerbudda bar, the Indus ran aground on a sand bank, some two miles below Broach, and so strained herself that she must come to Bombay to undergo repairs.

MILITARY.—It is understood, says the Poona Observer, that the Imperial Government have ordered home several officers connected with the late Transport Corps in Abyssinia, in order that they may be examined by the recently appointed Commission of Enquiry, with reference to the accounts and other matters relative to the expenses of the expedition. Several names have been mentioned as of those who will be thus sent home, but as changes may occur in the list, it may be as well to withhold further particulars for the present.

A MURDERESS OF HIGH DEGREE.—In October last a cruel murder was perpetrated on the person of Thakooranee Pertab Bai, of Muttwarh, a small State under the supervision of the Bheel Agent and Political Assistant at Bhopawur. She was the elder widow of the late Thakoor Oonkar Sing, and managed the State on behalf of her infant son, the present Thakoor. The chief instigator of the crime was Sooruj Bai, the younger widow of the late Thakoor, who was jealous of Pertab Bai, and wished to have the management in her own hands. Sooruj Bai and three men, viz., Hur Govind, Soobha Ram, and Gholab Khan, have been sentenced to suffer death as principals in the murder; while four others, Jighoree, Davedeen, Gungadeen, and Kullian Sing have been found guilty of abetment of the murder, and sentenced to transportation for life. Sooruj Bai was recommended to mercy by the Bheel Agent, who tried the case, on the ground of her sex, but the Governor-General in Council agreed with the agent at Indore, and could not accede to the recommendation, as this person was considered to have been the most guilty of all, and it was necessary to convince the native community that persons of whatever rank or sex, who plot and conduct cold-blooded murders, will not escape the just sentence of the law. — Bombay Gazette.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

FURLOUGH PAY OF MAJORS-GENERAL.

June 1.—No. 196.—The Government of India have intimated that whenever a major general, entitled to Indian pay as having been unemployed less than three years, spends a portion of that time (up to two years) on furlough or leave of absence to England, he is entitled, under G.G.O. No. 1,131 (Madras G.O.G., Dec. 15, 1868, No. 450) of Dec. 1, 1868, to 50 per cent. of his Indian pay, and not to 25s. a day.

DEPARTURE OF THE 14TH BRIGADE ROYAL ARTILLERY FOR ENGLAND.

Head Quarters, Simla, May 31.—Instructions having been received for the head quarters and batteries of the 14th brigade R.A. to proceed to England next cold season, the non-commissioned officers, artificers and men desirous of extending their services in this country will be allowed to volunteer for the Royal Artillery serving in any of the three Presidencies, under the rules laid down in paragraph 2 of G.G.O. No. 695 of November 17, 1863.

The non-commissioned officers and artificers volunteering to remain in India will take rank in the new brigades to which they may be posted, according to the dates of their promotion.

MILITARY STATIONS.

Simla, June 7.—No. 622.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 1,076 of 1864, the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct that stations at which the head quarters of one British and two native regiments are located shall be considered as "first class" in the classification of station staff appointments.

This order is applicable to the three Presidencies.

LEAVE IN EXTENSION OF MILITARY FURLOUGH.

Simla, June 9.—No. 628.—The following military letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 119, dated India-office, London, May 6, is published:—

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor-general of India in Council.

My Lord,—Your despatch No. 33 of Jan. 26, 1869, conveys your recommendation that, in future, all officers who may obtain leave on sick certificate, in extension of a furlough, shall receive pay (proper) for the third year of absence, whether they be under the provisions of the furlough rules of 1854 or those of 1868.

I agree with your Government that such a course would be entirely in accordance with the spirit of the rules of 1868, and it will be followed in the cases of officers who may choose those rules; but I am of opinion that it would be inexpedient at this time to make any alteration, as respects those officers who may remain under the rules of 1854, in a practice which is in accordance with those rules, and has been observed in this country since their publication.—I have, &c., ARGYLL.

LEAVE—MILITARY OFFICERS IN CIVIL EMPLOY.

No. 630.—In explanation and modification of rule 33 of the Leave Rules for Military Officers, published in G.O. No. 1,064, dated Nov. 10, 1868, the Governor-general in Council is pleased to notify, subject to the approval of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State, that a military officer in civil employ is not entitled to any other description of leave except furlough under chapter 1 of the said rules, and privilege leave under chapter 2 of the Leave Rules of the Covenanted Civil Service, dated June 16, 1868, and that, subject to considerations of State, there will be no restriction as to the place where such officer may reside when on either of the above descriptions of leave.

With reference to the period of three years mentioned in rules 8, 13, 14, and 24 of the military leave rules, his Excellency in Council is pleased to resolve that, as a military officer in civil employ is debarred from taking general leave under chapter 2 of those rules, the said period shall be calculated from the date of such officer's last return from furlough exceeding three months. Shorter periods of furlough will, however, be excluded from the three years in question, which must be entirely spent either in actual service or on privilege leave.

HELMETS FOR THE STAFF.

Adj.-Gen.'s Office, Head-Qrs., Simla, May 20.—No. 133.—The C. in C. in India has approved of the patent cork helmet, as manufactured by Messrs. Hawkes and Co., 14, Piccadilly, London, being adopted as the head dress for the general and divisional staff serving in the Bengal Presidency, and H.E. desires that officers concerned will take immediate steps to procure the same.

The sole ornament on the helmet will be a brass spike on the top, and a brass curb-chain pattern chin strap will be attached.

As regards the description of Puggry to be worn with the helmet, the C. in C. has no objection to officers commanding divisions and districts deciding upon the pattern for the officers under their command.

Strict uniformity, however, as to colour, length, width and fold must be insisted upon.

Instructions have been sent to Messrs. Hawkes and Co. regarding the supply of the helmet in question, a pattern of which can be seen at the Adjutant general's office, Simla.

CHOLERA—SANITARY.

No. 125.—The C. in C. requests general officers commanding divisions and districts to recollect that, when stations or regiments within their commands are stricken with cholera, the ordinary reports of cases in corps are wholly insufficient for the information and guidance of the C. in C., with respect to the steps to be taken for the mitigation of the evil.

In addition to the reports of cases, there should be full weekly reports to the qmr. gen. on the condition of the station, including bazaars, and on the health of the population around on a considerable radius.

Whenever new military buildings are being carried on, it is most important that the ground and water in the neighbourhood should escape pollution, with regard to the health of the future occupants of the new barracks. General officers are requested in every case to take special care that proper conservancy arrangements are organised for workmen, coolies, &c., and to enforce the same.

Note.—This order is not to interfere with the instructions contained in G.O.C.C. of June 7, 1865, p. 122, S.O.

PAYMENTS IN COPPER COIN TO THE REVENUE.

Simla, May 28.—No. 959.—The Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct that until further orders the provision contained in Section 9, Act XIII. of 1862, shall be suspended, in respect to all money due to the Government of India.

Collectors and other officers in charge of treasuries are accordingly hereby authorised and required to receive copper coins, issued under the said Act XIII. of 1862, in payment of Government dues, at the values fixed by sections 2 and 9 of the Act, without limit of amount.

The practice of allowing discount to vendors or others who purchase certain prescribed amounts of the said copper coin from Government treasuries is at the same time everywhere wholly to cease. Such coin is to be issued freely from all Government treasuries and sub-treasuries (sub-divisional tehsil, or others) to all applicants, to the amount of the value of not less than Rs. 5, at the rates prescribed by the said sections 2 and 9, Act XIII. of 1862, and at no other.

STORES PAYING CUSTOMS DUTY.

June 4.—No. 615.—In supersession of G.G.O., dated Simla, April, 1860, and with reference to a recent decision of the Government of India in the financial department, that stores not the property of Government should pay customs duty, it is hereby notified that all clothing, military equipments, or other stores, such as, under regulations, the men are bound to provide for themselves, are liable to customs duty when imported for the use of native regiments either direct or through the clothing department, and that this duty must be paid by the regiment importing them.

When the articles are provided through the intervention of the clothing department, the cost price [see paragraph 2 of G.O. No. 295, dated March 12 last] charged by the State will include the customs duty.

This order in no way alters the existing rule, under which no such equipments are to be imported without the previous sanction of the Government of India.

REVENUE.—The undermentioned gentlemen are appointed temporarily to be assistants to the Cotton Commissioners for the Central Provinces and the Berars:—Messrs. T. Kleinknecht, A. Dunlop, and N. Rao.

HOWRAH GENERAL HOSPITAL.—The following appointment has been made:—Mr. G. W. Swan to be house surgeon of the Howrah General Hospital, with retrospective effect from April 20 last.

ASSESSORS OF INCOME-TAX.—The following gentleman has been appointed assessor of income-tax in the district of Burdwan, and authorised to exercise the powers of a collector for the purposes of Act IX. of 1869, v. Mendes:—Mr. D. Caddy.

Edgar, officiating deputy commissioner of Cachar, is vested with the powers described in section 445a of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Acts XXV. of 1861 and VIII. of 1869). Mr. O. G. R. McWilliam is vested (while he officiates temporarily as deputy commissioner of Cachar, during the absence on leave of Mr. J. W. Edgar) with similar powers.

MAGISTERIAL POWERS.—The following officers are invested with the powers of a magistrate in the Criminal Department, and with full powers in the Civil and Revenue Departments:—Lieut. Lawrence, assistant commissioner; Lieut. Macpherson, assistant commissioner; Mr. Garbett, extra assistant commissioner. The following officers are invested, in the Criminal Department, with the powers of a subordinate magistrate of the 1st class, and with special powers in the Civil and Revenue Departments:—Lieut. Hutchinson, assistant commissioner; Lieut. E. B. Connolly, assistant commissioner; Lieut. Parker, assistant commissioner; Mr. Marshall, extra assistant commissioner.

PERMANENT FACILITIES FOR SHIPPING.—The following official communication has been received from Col. J. E. T. Nicholls, R.E., Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal, in the P.W.D., to the Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce (No. 3,135, dated Fort William, May 29 last):—"Sir,—In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 7th inst., I am directed to inform you that the Lieut. governor has come to no decision as to the relative merits of a wharf wall or a series of jetties for the port of Calcutta, and that the jetties now being constructed are merely intended to test the practical advantages of that kind of accommodation for shipping, to the adoption of which the committee appointed under Act 19 of 1866, B.C., were strongly inclined. The project will be finally decided hereafter, when the usual experience has been gained of the facilities afforded by the jetties, and after the appointment of a new body for carrying out the improvement of the port."

ARRIVALS FROM EUROPE.—The following arrivals from Europe are recorded:—Mr. H. E. M. Impey, extra assistant commissioner, Central Provinces, returned to duty on April 22 last from the leave on medical certificate for twenty months granted him in the notification of Feb. 15, 1868, No. 299. The unexpired portion of Mr. Impey's leave, amounting to five months and seven days, is cancelled at his own request. Lieut. H. Fother, R.E., surveyor, 3rd grade, Great Trigonometrical Survey, reported his return to India from leave on May 21 last. Rev. J. P. Boswell, Bengal establishment, reported his arrival in India on May 10.

WIDOWS OF SUBORDINATES, MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—With a view to obviate any misapprehension on the subject, it is hereby notified that it was intended, under G.G.O. No. 358 of March 25 last, to grant retrospective effect to the provisions of paragraph 27 of G.G.O. No. 550 of June 5, 1868, which applies only to the case of widows of subordinates of the medical department who came on pension on or subsequent to Jan. 1, 1866, a similar boon having been granted to the widows of warrant officers of other departments by G.G.O. No. 829 of Aug. 28, 1868. The enhanced rates of retiring and invalid pension in the case of medical subordinates, under the provisions of paragraph 22 of G.G.O. No. 550 of 1868, have effect only from the date of that order.

THE ABYSSINIAN INQUIRY.

On July 7 the Committee appointed by the House of Commons to inquire into the conduct of the Abyssinian War assembled to take evidence. The Committee is composed of Major Anson, Colonel Barttelot, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Beaumont, Mr. Candlish, Mr. C. Denison, Mr. Grant Duff, Mr. Eastwick, Lord Elcho, Sir J. Elphinstone, Sir John Hay, Mr. Holms, Mr. Howes, Mr. Mundella, Sir S. Northcote, Sir P. O'Brien, Mr. Seely, Mr. C. Turner, and Mr. White. Mr. Candlish was elected chairman. Sir Stafford Northcote, Bart., M.P., was called as the first witness. He gave an account of the successive steps taken before the war began. The Cabinet had decided that the arrangements should be entrusted to the Indian authorities, although, of course, he was acquainted with all that was done. (A large amount of correspondence between the Indian authorities and the authorities at home was put in and read.) The whole of the ultimate arrangements were made with the concurrence of the India-office and the other departments. It was thought best in the first instance to put the matter into the hands of the Government of Bombay, but when the expedition had started the matter was put into the hands of the Supreme Government. The estimate at the War-office was prepared, he presumed, by Captain Gorton, but he (Sir S. Northcote) accepted the estimates more from the officers of the India-office than from those of the War-office. Sir S. Northcote proceeded to say that the estimates presented in December, 1867, were two millions, for the purpose of landing a force on the shores of the Red Sea. That was all that was asked for; but Mr. Disraeli intimated that another million and a half would be required to carry on the expedition to the middle of March. Afterwards it was suggested that four millions might be required. Whether the contractors' accounts were paid by bills drawn on the Government he was not quite sure. On further questions the witness said he was willing to give every information on matters of fact, but he should decline to enter upon the arguments which had been used by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons.

The committee sat again on July 9. General Jamieson, who had, at the request of Sir Stafford Northcote, prepared the estimates, said he had reckoned that an expenditure of two millions would be required up to the end of April. The items turned out much heavier in the case of the Abyssinian expedition than in others. He thought £1,500,000 more would be wanted if the army had to go to Magdala. He did not know whether these estimates had been verified. The Chairman: Do you know how the accounts have been affected by the loss of animals? General Jamieson: No; the loss of animals was far larger than he had anticipated. Sir J. Hay: Were not 29,000 animals lost, for which £40 each might reasonably have been expected from the Crown? General Jamieson: Not so much as that; perhaps £20 each. By Mr. Mundella: The stores might just as well have been thrown away at Annesley Bay as leaving them to be destroyed at Bombay. Shortly afterwards, General Jamieson's evidence being closed, and Mr. Seccombe having offered some explanation, the committee adjourned.

The committee resumed its sittings on July 13, Mr. Candlish in the chair. Mr. Turner was the first witness called. He said he was a second-class clerk in the transport department of the Admiralty, and had been about sixteen years in the public service. He was sent out to Bombay on the 7th of November, 1867, and reached Bombay on the 26th November of that year. He had written instructions in reference to his duties, which had been printed in a Blue-book. (These instructions were read, and it appeared that Mr. Turner's duties would be to co-operate with the officers of the Indian Government in the examination of accounts, the inspection of vouchers, and to see that all items were properly chargeable to the accounts to which they were placed. No responsibility, financial or otherwise, was to attach to him, and he was not to interfere with those officers on whom the responsibility rested. He was to furnish full information to the Government in reference to the accounts, and to see to their discharge when they arrived.) By the Chairman: Although he was said not to have any responsibility, there were some responsibilities with regard to payments. Many of the persons who were engaged on the accounts were entirely ignorant of them. He had accounts in reference to the transports, but he had nothing to do with the hiring of them. The coals were bought at various prices in Bombay. As a rule the bills of lading would come to him, but he had nothing to do with the contracts. The Chairman: Do you know of coals being purchased at £10 a ton?—Mr. Turner: Not at Bombay. Once in the Red Sea a steam transport arrived, and two tons were bought at the rate of £12 per ton, but that was quite an exceptional circumstance. The fall of Magdala was heard of at Bombay twelve days after it took place, and no further stores were purchased. He was not engaged on the first estimate of two millions presented to Parliament. In January, 1868, he came to the conclusion that the cost of the expedition would be not less than five millions.—The Chairman: Did you advise the Home Government of that?—Mr. Turner: Not officially.—The Chairman: Did you privately?—Mr. Turner: I cannot call to mind.—Sir P. O'Brien: Did you communicate with the Government of Bombay on the subject?—Mr. Turner: Not with the Government, but I spoke about it to several officers.—Cross-examination continued: On July 14 his estimate, for the expedition was £5,350,521. The accounts he had passed were £7,460,996, and there were items for which vouchers had not been received. The increase was attributable to the delay in discharging the transports on account of the monsoons. On the 16th of December, 1868, witness telegraphed to the Home Government that the Indian account would amount to more than seven millions. A change of Government took place on the 2nd of December.—Sir J. Elphinstone: And thus this piece of information was bottled up by the Chancellor of the Exchequer till the 4th of March, when he was pleased to enlighten the House of Commons. (Laughter.)

The Abyssinian War Committee reassembled on Friday, Mr. Candlish in the chair. Captain Dundas, late surveyor to the navy, whose examination was commenced on Tuesday, was recalled. He stated that the entire control of the coal supply to the expedition was placed in the hands of the Peninsular and Oriental Company. No steps were taken to invite competition, for both he and the Admiralty considered that "nothing could be more injurious than exciting the market against the company and the Government." He believed that any inquiries in the markets respecting the supply of coal for the expedition would have doubled the price at once. Admiral Mundy afterwards gave evidence to show that great care had been taken by the late Government in providing for the transport service.

Miscellaneous.

RETIREMENTS.—Lieut.-Colonel R. C. Germon, Bengal Staff Corps, and Brevet Major J. C. Farquharson, cadre 2nd Bombay Light Cavalry, have been permitted to retire.

INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH.—The cable of the Indo-European Telegraph Company across the Black Sea, about 200 miles in length, has been successfully submerged, and the Kutch cable was laid on July 13.

A NEW RAILWAY TO INDIA.—From London to Lahore in eight days. Such (says the Owl) is the latest railway project, put forward mainly by the Russian Government, who are scheming a great overland route to India from Libau on the Baltic, via Tiflis and Persia.

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—The first despatch of reinforcements to India this season was made from Gravesend on Friday, July 16; the Clyde, East Indiaman, having been chartered to convey about 300 cavalry and infantry, with the usual proportion of officers and soldiers' wives and children.

PRESIDENCY COLLEGE, MADRAS.—The appointment of a Professor of English Literature and Mathematics at the Presidency College at Madras, at a salary of Rs. 1,000 a month, rising to Rs. 1,200 by an annual increase of Rs. 50, has been sanctioned by the India Office. The new professorship has not as yet, we believe, been filled up.

FIELD-GUNS FOR INDIA.—The committee appointed to decide on the equipment of field batteries for India has made a preliminary report. It is well satisfied with the experimental 12-pounder bronze muzzle-loading gun. The committee at Dartmoor has condemned the 9-pounder Armstrong Horse Artillery gun, and has recommended that the Royal Horse Artillery should have the same gun as the field battery.

INVALIDS FROM INDIA.—A considerable number of the soldiers who have arrived as invalids from the East Indies within the past few months have suffered to some extent from scurvy. It does not appear that any serious neglect as to the provisions of the various vessels can be proved, but in many instances a deficiency of fresh vegetables has been noticed, and in all the cases the quality of the lime-juice has been questioned.

SYKES v. SYKES AND SMITH.—This was a petition in the Court of Divorce, on July 10, by a husband for dissolution of marriage. The respondent and co-respondent denied that they had committed adultery, and the co-respondent also charged the petitioner with adultery. The petitioner was a captain in the Indian army, and he married the respondent in December, 1856. They lived together at different places in England and in India, and Captain Sykes, while serving in India, was appointed aide-de-camp to the co-respondent, Michael William Smith, who was a major-general in the army. They returned to England in 1867, and evidence was given that since that time the respondent had been staying with General Smith at different lodgings in London and passing as his wife. The petitioner was alleged to have committed adultery in the year 1867 and 1868 at lodgings in London. The respondent and co-respondent, in their answers, traversed the charge of adultery, but no defence was offered, and no evidence produced to support the traverse. The co-respondent further alleged that Captain Sykes had been guilty of adultery with different women since the separation. A private detective who had been employed by General Smith to watch Captain Sykes, and several other witnesses, were produced in support of this charge. The jury found that the respondent and co-respondent were guilty of adultery, and that the petitioner was not guilty of adultery. Decree nisi, with costs against the co-respondent.

SUEZ CANAL.—It has been officially notified that the Suez Canal will be opened throughout to navigation on the 17th of November, with a depth of water of eight metres. The rate of passage through the Canal will be fixed at ten francs for passengers, and per ton for vessels, according to the legal tonnage measure of the respective nations. On the first four days vessels will pass free.

WIMBLEDON.—His Highness the Nawab of Bengal, accompanied by his sons and suite, visited the camp at Wimbledon on Friday, and shot for the first time, taking aim at the Running Deer and the 500 yards' range, with considerable effect. His Highness shot from the shoulder with a rifle manufactured by T. Jackson, of Wigmore-street, and made five bull's-eyes at the Running Deer, while his eldest son made a couple of centres at 500 yards, besides some good scores at shorter distances.

IN RE H. G. FORBES.—The bankrupt, Harriet Georgina Forbes, applied for her discharge to Commissioner Bacon on July 9. She was the widow of an Indian judge who died some years since, and on his death she became entitled to a pension of £300 per year from the Bengal Civil Service Fund. The debts under the bankruptcy amounted to £400, and the assignees proposed that one-half of the arrears, amounting to £300, which had accrued since the period of the adjudication, should be applied for the benefit of the creditors, and £100 arrears set aside for payment of debts. To this the bankrupt agreed. She received a conditional order of discharge.

EXPORT OF BULLION.—The exports of bullion by the steamers of the P. and O. Company of the 19th and 26th June, from Southampton to India and China, amounted to:—Gold, £2,415; silver, £57,078. By the steamers of the 19th June and 4th July, from Marseilles, the exports to India and China amounted to:—silver, £98,282. Of all the above exports, those to Bombay and Madras were small in amount; but Singapore took in silver £60,500. The largest quantities of silver were destined for China. The exports of gold were small. The exports of bullion to India by the Messageries Impériales steamers of June 9th and 12th, from Marseilles, consisted only of one sum of £1,788, in silver, to Madras. Large quantities of silver were consigned to Saigon and China by the French mails.

A NEW INFANTRY DRILL.—It is known that for some time past a committee has been sitting at the Horse Guards upon the field exercise book, with a view to modifying the present infantry drill, and, in fact, pruning away some, at least, of the useless monstrosities in the way of parade manœuvres with which it abounds. Much is hoped for by the advocates of a simpler and more direct system of movement from the labours of this body, of which General Sir A. Spencer is the president. It is said that the success of the late experimental "spade drill" is to be followed by the embodiment of its results in a practical shape in the new field exercises, and that the committee is summoning officers engaged in the late trenching operations at Chatham and Aldershot in order to define the proper modes of using the pick and shovel in the open field, and introduce a uniform system for general practice wherever available ground is to be had for such a purpose.

SUBMARINE CABLE TO ALEXANDRIA.—It is understood that the arrangements which have been for some time in progress for still further improving our telegraphic communication with India by means of a continuous submarine line between England and Egypt, entirely under English control, are almost completed, and that the prospectus of a company to be formed for this purpose will shortly be issued. It is intended to lay a cable from Falmouth to Gibraltar, and thence to Malta, to connect with the Anglo-Mediterranean Company's system, thus completing the European section of the proposed direct submarine line between England and Bombay; so that Indian messages may be transmitted by a route altogether independent of the Continental wires. The scheme will be supported by a combination similar to that which brought out the British Indian Submarine Company, some months ago; and the directors will include representatives from the British Indian and the Anglo-Mediterranean boards.

DEVELOPMENT OF AGRICULTURE IN INDIA.—A deputation from the Society of Arts Indian Committee had an interview with the Duke of Argyll, at the India-office, on July 13. The deputation was introduced by Mr. Bazley, M.P., and consisted of the following gentlemen:—Sir Charles Wingfield, M.P., Major-General Clarke, Colonel Haly, Captain Thackeray, Dr. Campbell, Messrs. Hyde Clarke, J. Cheetham, M. Turnbull, F. Hendriks, W. S. Thompson, Mr. Cassels, Mr. P. Le Neve Foster, Secretary of the Society of Arts, and Mr. W. G. Larkins, secretary of the committee. The points urged upon the Government were that the Indian Government should offer a money premium for the best manual on "Tea Cultivation," affording the greatest information to the intending planter, and that the Government of India should take steps for providing, by means of a Department of Agriculture or otherwise, for the diffusion of information, and for the encouragement of productions, after the manner of France and other countries. The subjects to which such recommendation would more particularly apply are:—Information respecting waste lands and the opportunities for acquiring or renting them; the various methods of agriculture which are or might be adopted in India; agricultural results and statistics; the use of manures; the cultivation of tea, coffee, cotton, silk, wool, and the other staples. The Duke of Argyll thought the object of the deputation a most desirable one, and promised to communicate with Lord Mayo on the subject.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—VISIT OF THE NAWAB OF BENGAL.—The fete given in the Sydenham grounds on Thursday last, the 15th of July, was one of the most brilliant of all the long succession of "receptions" arranged by the liberal management of the Crystal Palace. As the late fete repeated the pyrotechnic display of the 29th of June, in honour of his Highness the Viceroy of Egypt, its Oriental character gives it a special claim to the notice of an Indian journal, especially as the Nawab of Bengal, his family, and suite, were among the visitors. The Indian Princes, after witnessing the opera of Lurline, promenaded the Palace, and then passed round the gardens in carriages. The velocipede races, one of the principal features of the programme of the day, provoked the curiosity of the Nawab and his party, and they appeared much astonished and greatly amused by the clever management and driving of the bicycles, or "fast going carriages without horses" as we heard them called by one of the Indian suite. The pyrotechnic programme, which was carried out by Messrs. Brock, included the brilliant magnesium balloons, the illumination of the whole of the grounds and the water temples by coloured fires—(a really grand effect, and one simply unattainable elsewhere)—great set pieces, the immense cascade of fire, flanked by gigantic palm trees, throwing its glittering spray over an area of nearly 15,000 feet,—and the descent of a fiery comet, all which,—especially the Oriental device—so much gratified the Pasha of Egypt, and were now reproduced to gratify the eyes of his Majesty the British public, and the Royal party from Bengal. Upwards of 21,000 persons attended the fete of the 15th of July.

INDIAN APPEALS.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council reassembled on July 12, to give judgment in Indian appeals. Lord Justice Giffard presided, in the absence of Lord Justice Selwyn through severe illness. In the case of Nilmudhab Doss v. Bishunder Doss, which had been argued on a question of adoption under the Hindoo law, Sir J. Colville recapitulated the facts, and said their lordships would advise her Majesty that the appeal be allowed, with costs. Sir J. Napier delivered judgment in the case of Gopeekeshen Goshamae v. Brundrabunchunder Siccarr, which had been discussed on a point of law. The appeal was allowed, with costs. On July 13 judgment was given in the case of Gunish Sing v. Rajah Ram and others. This was an appeal, decided by the Judicial Committee, from a judgment which reversed a decree of the Sudder Adawlut in reference to the Indian mutiny. The appellant had considerable property destroyed by the rebels, and claimed against 120 persons. The respondents in the present appeal numbered forty, and the question was whether they were identified by the evidence so as to make them liable for the damage done to his grain and other valuables. Sir J. Napier said their lordships were satisfied as to the identity of the respondents as engaged in the plunder, and they were responsible for the damage done by the parties to the property of the appellant. The judgment of the last court would be reversed, and the judgment of the Sudder Adawlut affirmed with costs. Judgment accordingly. The case of "Watson and others v. the Collector of Rajshahye, Dost Mahomed Dost, and others," was heard on July 14. This was an appeal from Bengal, and the suit out of which the appeal arose was brought by Messrs. Watson, indigo planters and merchants, to cancel an alleged sale by auction to the other respondent, Dost Mahomed, by the former collector of Rajshahye, and to recover possession of the land then sold, belonging, it was stated, to the Bamsbarea Factory. Sir R. Palmer opened the case for the appellant, and on the conclusion of his address their lordships adjourned. The sittings will terminate on Thursday, July 22, according to present arrangements.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, July 15.—COLONELS IN THE INDIAN ARMY.—Colonel NORTH asked the Secretary for War what course was proposed to be taken with regard to the supersessions of the colonels of the Queen's army by those of the late East India Company's army.—MR. CARDWELL: The House is aware that when the two armies were united the relative position of officers promoted from the rank of colonel to that of major-general was defined by a royal warrant, called the warrant of 1862. After the publication of that warrant, it was regarded by the Indian officers as unjust to them, and at variance with the Parliamentary guarantee which had been given to them in two Acts of Parliament—the Act of 1858, which vested the Government of India in the Crown, and the Act of 1860, which provided for the union of the two armies. Discussion, consequently, arose in this House, and eventually a royal commission was appointed, of which the late Lord Cranworth was chairman, and the member for the county of Oxford was one of the members. In consequence of the report of that commission, the warrant of 1862 was cancelled, and a new warrant—the warrant of 1864—was sanctioned in its place. Under the warrant of 1864 it has been found that officers of junior rank as colonels in the Indian army took precedence of majors-general, many of whom were their seniors as colonels. In consequence of the grievance felt by the officers of the British army, my right hon. friend who preceded me as Secretary for War appointed a departmental committee to examine the case. The report of the committee has been laid on the table. Among its recommendations was a proposal that forty-five colonels should be immediately promoted to be generals, at the cost of nearly £12,000 a-year to the British Treasury. I could not concur in the proposal, and was unable to recommend it to the Treasury. A great deal of correspondence has passed on the subject between the hon. and gallant gentleman and myself, and now, with the consent of my noble friend the Secretary for India, we propose to appoint another committee, of whom one member shall be an eminent lawyer, and the other members shall be officers of the two services of too high a rank to be themselves personally interested in the case. The reference to them will consist of one single point—namely, the proper relative position of the officers of the two services, and they will have no power to make any proposals which involve a charge upon the Treasury. My noble friend (the Duke of Argyll) has undertaken that the Indian Government shall not bring forward any more promotions pending this inquiry.—Colonel NORTH gave notice that he should withdraw the notice he had placed on the paper upon this subject till the committee had reported.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, July 19.—COMPULSORY HALF-PAY.—Mr. STACKPOOLE asked whether, in filling the augmentations of the cavalry regiments next proceeding to India, regard would be had to the claims of a major who had been compulsorily placed on half-pay, and was not yet restored to a position equal to that from which, without having committed any offence, he had been displaced five years since.—Mr. CARDWELL was not able to answer this question in the interest of any particular officer. What, however, he could undertake to say was that in any augmentation which might take place he trusted all just claims would be fully considered.

PETITIONS PRESENTED DURING THE PAST WEEK.—By Mr. Mills, from Lieutenant-colonel Ronald Macdonell, late 10th Bengal Cavalry, and Captain William Henry Phillips, late 59th Bengal Native Infantry, for consideration of their claims for loss of bonus consequent on the amalgamation of the Royal and Indian armies; by Colonel Bourne, from James Gandy Gaiskell, retired Lieutenant-colonel, Bombay Light Infantry, for compensation in consequence of the abolition of regimental bonus fund; by Mr. Serjeant Simon, from the manufacturers and merchants of Batley, praying certain amendments in the Government of India Bill, especially for a reduction of the number of members of the Indian Council and of the term of their services therein, and also for an adequate representation of the commercial and manufacturing interests of the United Kingdom in the Indian Council; by Mr. T. B. Potter, from Rochdale Chamber of Commerce, praying that one-third of the Indian Council may be appointed from the commercial classes; by Mr. Akroyd, from the Halifax Chamber of Commerce, praying for such an alteration of the Government of India Act Amendment Bill that one-third of the Indian Council may consist of representatives of the commercial classes. By Colonel Sykes, from Lieutenant-Colonel Chesney, late of the Madras 23rd Light Infantry, stating that he had served 24 years; that, under the sanction of the directors of the East India Company and the Government, he had subscribed £3,000 to the Regimental Bonus Fund for the retirement of seniors; that he would have received £5,000 on his own retirement as major, as one of the majors of the regiment had received, but that, owing to the amalgamation of the Royal and Indian armies, he had lost all the money he paid, and praying for redress; by Sir C. Wingfield, from Major Thomas Tulloh, Major-General Thomas Moore, and Major William Fitzgerald, retired list, Bengal Army, complaining of loss of bonus consequent on the amalgamation of the Indian and Royal armies.

CALCUTTA PORT FUND.—We learn from the Pioneer that a committee has been appointed by the Hon. Mr. Grey to consider the condition of the Port Fund of Calcutta, in order to ascertain whether any of its present burdens should properly be borne by any other body. Two of the members are public servants, who some years back were appointed for a like scrutiny, and the other two members of the mercantile community. The names are mentioned by another contemporary; they are Messrs. Harrison, Eldridge, Bullen Smith, and Captain Howe.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

HEAD MASTER.
The Rev. ARTHUR FABER, M.A., Late Fellow and Tutor of New College, Oxford.

This College is conducted on the Model of the Great Public Schools, and there is a Modern Department distinct from the Classical. There is also a Junior School preparatory to either Department.

The Sons of Gentlemen are educated at a moderate cost, and prepared for Oxford or Cambridge, and for all Military and Civil Service Examinations.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

ISSUED BY AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.

London: Wm. H. ALLEN and Co., 13, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, S.W., Publishers to the India Office.

Just published, in Two Volumes, post 8vo., price 16s.,

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES.

| PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's)

ESSENCE or FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

QUINTESSANCE OF JAMAICA GINGER AND CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

CHEST AND STOMACH COMPLAINTS.—The source and centre of almost every ailment is impurity of the blood; dislodge this poison and disease departs. Holloway's Pills exercise the inestimable power of thoroughly cleansing each component part of the blood, and rendering this fluid fit to perform its important functions. They cope most successfully with chest diseases, stomach complaints, liver disorders, and many other maladies, which were once the besetting dangers of mankind at certain seasons in town and country. The directions for use enable everyone to regulate the operation of these Pills with the greatest nicety. Chronic invalids, nervous sufferers, and all whom other treatment has failed to relieve, are respectfully invited to try Holloway's celebrated medicine, which will strengthen and cure them.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 6d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

UPWARDS OF FIFTY YEARS' experience has fully confirmed the superior reputation of these Lozenges in the cure of ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSENESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PULMONARY MALADIES.

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 29, 1869.

Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India, I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely with the best results.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail, which came in a day after time, are—from Bombay, June 29; Agra, June 26; Calcutta, June 25; Madras, June 23.

Bombay expresses surprise at the news of Lord Napier's resignation, although, says the Times of India, "the step has been taken in accordance with plans his Lordship had formed some time ago." Among military men the prevalent belief is that his Lordship's return home will be but the prelude to his going out again in Sir W. Mansfield's stead. The new Chief for Bombay, Sir Augustus Spencer, is supposed to be popular with those under his command.

MR. BULLEN has resigned his seat in the Legislative Council for India. A vacant seat in the Bombay Council has just been filled by the Advocate-general, Mr. J. S. White. The appointment of Dr. Cunningham as Sanitary Commissioner, in succession to Colonel Malleson, seems to have disappointed a good many people who believed in the stronger claims of Dr. Chevers.

THE Bombay papers report a bad railway accident near Etola, about ten miles from Baroda, on the Central India line. A passenger train from Ahmedabad ran into a stray bullock. The concussion upset several carriages and smashed two, with a loss of eleven passengers killed and seven wounded. The fencing on this line was specially denounced by Colonel Strachey in last year's Report. "It is known"—he said—"to have been deliberately neglected." We fear that the sufferers all belonged to the poorer class, else a heavy fine in compensation might teach the company to take more care of its fences in future.

THE marriage of the eccentric ex-judge, Rao Moroba Canoba, with one of the Hindoo widows for whom he advertised, has caused exceeding disgust among the Orthodox party in Bombay. The latter called a meeting to denounce all their more Liberal opponents, a number of whom spoil the harmony of the consequent muster by their presence. The result was a public squabble, apparently marked by some exchange of blows, for several on either side have been summoned before the magistrate on charges of assault and criminal violence. Other charges of libel and defamation have been brought against the assailants by their antagonists, and the hubbub was still unsettled on the departure of the last mail. Among those reformers who have been thus summoned are the names of native magistrates, barristers, deputy-collectors, University professors, and viziers of native States. So goodly an array can surely have had no part in a street row.

FROM Bengal we have unpromising reports of the indigo crop. Central India was getting once more anxious for want of rain. One or two showers had fallen, but no monsoon was yet come. The cholera was still rampant in Saugor; Captain Metcalf was one of its many victims at Jubbulpore. From Delhi, Meerut, and other places in the North-West there is still the cry of "no rain." The distress in Rewah has led to a large migration of its people into the adjacent districts, and the Political Agent has had to remind the Rajah of the duty of looking after his poor people. In Ajmere cholera had been epidemic for the past two months, but we are glad to hear that it was dying out at Nusseerabad. Calcutta was enjoying the first days of the monsoon, and Madras had come in for a steady downpour.

ONE curious result of the experiments made on sewage matter at Alipore is the feasibility of turning night-soil into very good gas. At an outlay of eight annas a quantity of solid refuse was turned into a brilliant stream of gas, which kept on burning four hours.

IN our last issue it was intimated that the Special Committee on Field Artillery Equipment for India had sent in their preliminary report. We are now informed that in consequence of that report it has been decided to arm the seven batteries of the 9th Brigade R.A., which proceed this year to India to relieve the 14th Brigade, with bronze muzzle-loading guns, weighing eight hundred weight, rifled on the Woolwich pattern in three grooves with a twist of one in ninety, a calibre of three inches, and a total length of about six feet. The charge of powder is 1 lb. 5 oz. The guns are to be furnished with wrought-iron carriages and waggons. The adoption of this class of ordnance may be regarded as the first step towards the abandonment of the Armstrong system, on which large sums of public money have been lavished to such doubtful purpose. The question of ammunition depends for its settlement on the report of the Committee which has lately been conducting the experiments at Dartmoor. For purposes of economy it is fortunate that these bronze guns have been found to answer so well, as there must be a large stock of old metal, in the shape of smooth-bore guns, which could be easily wrought up after the new pattern at comparatively small expense.

WE are glad to hear that the absurd injustice of keeping our native troops armed with an inferior musket to that of their English comrades is no longer tolerated by the India-office. In common with some of our Indian contemporaries, we have frequently protested against such a mode of dealing with the men, who in time of war have to take their place in line with white soldiers, and to bear their equal part against the common foe. For reasons whose force we could never see, the balance of opinion among Indian officials long weighed against the removal of a distinction not more unfair than fatal to our military efficiency. At last however it seems that the Indian Government has accepted the wiser counsels of the last and the present Secretary of State, and that in future the native troops will be armed with the best weapon that late experience can furnish. What that is we cannot yet say for certain; most likely the Martini-Henry breechloader which has been making such excellent practice at Wimbledon. Of course the re-arming will be a work of time, as the Europeans will, no doubt, have to be first served. But it is something to have established the principle that all who fight in the same ranks should be armed, if possible, with the same class of weapons.

SOME of this metal ought to furnish a due supply of howitzers for distribution among the new field-batteries. These useful shell guns, which in the days before Armstrong were always attached to the field-batteries in the proportion, we believe, of one to two of the long bores, have since fallen into disuse, nor have the present Committee been instructed, it seems, to recommend any new variety of the same for field service. They have merely had to consider the best pattern for the field-gun of the future. The question of howitzers however should not be long deferred, as such guns, properly rifled, would always prove more serviceable than any others against field-works of the kind most suitable to modern warfare.

MR. W. G. ROMANE, C.B., whose acceptance of the post of Judge Advocate-general of India was announced in our impression of the 23rd ult., will receive a salary of £5,000 a-year. His appointment involves a change in the designation of the officers at the head of the department in the three presidencies, who will become Deputy Judge Advocates-general instead of Judge Advocates-general as at present.

ANOTHER "deserted wife" has lately imparted to us a tale of similar neglect to that on which we commented some weeks ago. Of course we cannot vouch for the truth of her story or prejudice in any way the case she makes out against her husband. It seems they have been judicially separated since 1864, that the money assigned for her own and her child's maintenance was never paid to her without legal process during her husband's stay in England, and that since his return to India three years ago he "utterly refuses to pay anything." To all applications for redress, both in England and India, the only answer she can get is that the authorities cannot interfere. The writer declares herself to be "in the greatest distress," and deems it very hard that the Commander-in-Chief "will not take some notice" of her complaints against "an officer and a gentleman." If her statement be anywhere near the truth, it is indeed a hard case that so much suffering should have to be endured when the means of alleviation seem so near at hand. It is far from easy however to define the limits of the power which a military chief can wield over the private affairs of his subordinates. Could an officer who deserted his wife be arraigned for "unbecoming" conduct? Can a superior officer bring his junior to trial for failing to pay his non-military debts, or for wilfully violating a legal obligation, so long as the offender's military efficiency remains unquestioned? One thing in this instance must be assumed as certain, if the complainant has stated all the facts bearing on that part of her case. The husband is legally bound to maintain her and her child. Perhaps the new Indian Divorce Court may help the wife to enforce her claim, so far as it was sanctioned by the Court in this country.

WE hope that the Madras Times will not laugh too pitilessly over the readiness with which more than one of our home contemporaries has mistaken a joke for genuine earnest. Last week's mail brought home in the columns of that journal a mild and pretty palpable squib, purporting to be extracted from a "Gazette Extraordinary." Some of our contemporaries, looking perhaps only at the last part—touching the Court-martial on Colonel Mustard—gravely copied that part into their columns, with a prefatory warning, that "officers composing Indian Courts-martial need to be careful." How the unsuspecting reader must have stared at the notion of an aged warrior of thirty-two years' service being recommended to mercy on account of his "youth and inexperience." No wonder that his Excellency "is at a loss to conceive the grounds" of a recommendation so very "anomalous," and betrays his displeasure by severely reprimanding prisoner and judges in the same breath. It would have been a very "extraordinary" gazette which recorded the trial of an old boy of a colonel for saying that the service had "gone to the devil," and for declining to do what no commander-in-chief would dream of ordering him to do. A further reference to the squib would have shown the difficulty of reporting the trial of "Lieut. Doolittle" at Cannanore in "March, 1870." The same Gazette contained the names of Ensigns Hobson, Jobson, Dobson, and so on, whose curious juxta-position ought to have awakened doubts in the breast of the most confiding reader.

ON Friday the Duke of Argyll took advantage of the occasion for unfolding his scheme of reform in the management of Indian railways, to redeem his pledge about delivering a financial statement. His speech bristles with figures, but the way in which he handled them and explained their purport evoked the praise of so exacting a critic as Lord Salisbury. Comparing the accounts of 1867-8 with those of eleven years before, he showed how markedly, under the most ordinary conditions, the revenue had risen from less than thirty-three millions and a-half to more than forty-eight millions and a-half. On excise, opium salt, customs, stamps—the increase had been very great; even the land revenue showing a gain of two millions and three-fifths. Of the whole increase not quite half was due to increased or new taxation, and this in spite of a reduction in the number of articles taxed, and in some cases of the duties themselves. After tracing, during those years, the wonderful progress of Indian trade, even unaided by special stimulants such as the American war, his Grace discussed the question of outlay. Here, indeed, the increase has kept pace with the growth of revenue—a result which, however regrettable, it seems hard to avoid. We can retrench nothing, he says, from the pay of our troops, their wives, families, and means of living; a statement which Lord Lawrence thoroughly endorsed. Only for about a million of the outlay he cannot account. As for the public debt, it amounts to only two years' revenue, and India's credit at this moment stands higher than that of any great European Power except England. His Grace sides with those who deny that India's financial condition is one of chronic debt. Ever since 1861—and three out of the seven years showed a decided surplus—the apparent deficit has been either nominal or caused by the prosecution of great public works. Had Lord Salisbury's decision in favour of building barracks and so forth out of loans been maintained by his successor there would not even have been an apparent deficit. The accounts of the last year had been deranged by the great drought, which nothing but the energy of the Government could have saved from producing actual famine over Upper and Central India. Irrigation also was doing its work, and would in due time bring large returns to the State.

COMING to railways, his Grace sketched out a scheme which tallies with our own version of last week. The day of guaranteed railways has gone by. It is cheaper and easier, he argues, for the State henceforth to build its own railways, at 4 per cent., if possible, instead of paying others to build them for 5, and the outlay per mile ought under the new system to be greatly reduced. Of the new lines proposed by Lord Mayo, a few will be left, as extensions, in the hands of the guaranteed companies; but far the greater number, including lines from the Punjab to Bombay and Kurrachee, will be carried out by the Government, which ought also to have under its own management all lines running through native States.

THE criticisms of subsequent speakers confirmed the impression left by the Duke's own statement. Lords Halifax, Salisbury, and Lawrence agreed in preferring the new scheme of railway management to the old. Lord Salisbury regretted "the want of prudishness" among Indian financiers on the question of a deficit, a failing more visible to his eyes than to ours; but he had the fairness to own that they were tied from increasing the customs duties by the fear of Manchester. Indian financiers as a rule are neither bolder nor more careful than English, and what in one sense is a deficit in another generally means a surplus. Lord Lawrence added the weight of his experience against any reduction of the British garrison in India, and dwelt on the comparative inelasticity of Indian revenue supplies. He also touched with effect on the unfairness of making India pay for the troops employed in Abyssinia.

TRAVELLERS' TAILS.

THE old belief in the existence of men with tails has not yet died out. If popular ridicule went far to kill it in the days of that underrated philosopher Lord Monbodo, the speculations of the author of the "Vestiges" and Dr. Darwin have once more taught a good many people to wonder whether at some remote period the race of monkeys might not have been "developed" into men, such as the Fauns perhaps of Greek sculpture, with the shortest possible tails to remind them of their simious origin. One of these believers in the missing link has lately turned up in Calcutta, for the timely entertainment of his countrymen in the East. Unmoved by that dread of ridicule which makes cowards of so many, Mr. Cameron openly proclaimed a belief over which Bombay and Calcutta were sure to make merry. He wrote to the papers, declaring that tailed men had been heard of in Borneo, and proposing to lead a small party in quest of them. When he was in Sarawak, he met with traders from the Kyan country to the north-west of the Northern Peninsula of Borneo, who gave him "detailed and definite accounts of a race of men (not the orang-utang) who dwelt among dense forests," living up trees of gigantic size "with their wives and children, with their bows and arrows, and other rude implements." These strange beings live by hunting, have "no sort of agriculture," "no intercourse with other people," and speak a gibberish of their own. Mr. Cameron does not remember hearing "whether they cooked at all, or made use of fire." Whenever the Kyans or the Dyaks came upon their leafy habitations the strangers beat a speedy retreat.

These accounts, says Mr. Cameron, were confirmed by other Dyak tribes and Malays. A similar story has been told "of a race of men with tails far away in the interior of Africa." Now the centre of Africa, like Borneo, is just under the line, and in both countries "we find the monkey race in a high stage of development;" while in Africa they live side by side with men of the lowest type. Why then, he asks, may not man be found in the primeval forests of Borneo, "existing in his initial stage of progress?" Why not indeed, unless his Dyak friends were playing on his credulity, or mistook a monkey for a man in his preadamite stage? For Mr. Cameron wages no war against accepted beliefs. "Adam may have had a tailed mother, though he himself may not have had a tail when he was conceived and endowed with the Divine Spirit." As for the daughters of Eve, let them not be troubled about these strange tails. Eve at any rate was born without one, for, "as we all know, Eve was taken out of Adam's side," and thus the Adamite female in her physical aspect stands almost higher than man." Here is encouragement for the weaker vessel in her rebellion against man's lordship. The next time a brute of the male gender hints her inferiority she has only to extinguish him with a quotation from Mr. Cameron. And men too may take comfort, for the possible existence of tailed forefathers does not, by Mr. Cameron's showing, bridge over the wide gulf which the conditions of Adam's birth set between his offspring and the cleverest of the monkey race.

Mr. Cameron's reasoning, of which the above is a fair specimen, will hardly help his cause. But his enthusiasm deserves a better return than the laughter of the scornful. There is no absolute reason against the existence of a race of tailed men. By all means let those who are curious on the matter help Mr. Cameron to discover, if he can, the interesting strangers, and bring home a specimen or two alive or dead. One of the Calcutta papers has offered to receive subscriptions in aid of his scheme. All he asks for is two Europeans, a supply of mirrors and beads, and a few long-range rifles that would serve "either to repel attacks or bring back a dead specimen." Armed with these and aided by a band of thirty Dyaks, he is ready to explore the trackless forests in quest of his imagined treasure. If he fails in his quest no one perhaps but himself will be very greatly disappointed. If haply on the other hand he should succeed, science would gain a new study, theologians a new bone of strife, and society at large a new sensation for the hour. But we cannot be satisfied with a dead specimen. Even Mr. Cameron owns to a doubt whether the shooting of a tailed man might not at first blush look like murder. But what Court, he asks, would try him? And how many Britons would believe, say we, in the dead specimen?

THE CHOTA NAGPORE MISSION.

THE recent split among the German missionaries in Chota Nagpore seems to have engendered the usual display of party feeling both in India and Europe. "Wild words wander here and there," for or against the several parties to the controversy, whose warmth has not been abated by the gradual extension of its range. All chance of limiting the dispute to the original combatants vanished as soon as it became known at Berlin that the Bishop of Calcutta had made common cause with the seceding missionaries, by receiving them and their flocks—some ten thousand strong—into the Anglican fold. It is true, as the Englishman points out, that the Bishop's measures were not taken hastily, that the mission in question had been largely aided by the purses of Anglican subscribers, that the pastors themselves had long been accustomed to the prospect of ultimate union with the English Church, and that thousands of Christian Koles had twice formally invited Bishop Milman to admit them into his communion. It is not unlikely that the Bishop acted in good faith for what he and his advisers thought the best, and that many another person in his position would have been tempted to do the same thing. A strong taste for Ritualism need not presuppose a desire to catch proselytes at all hazards. For all we know, the Bishop's enemies may have no ground whatever for accusing him of a readiness to poach on his neighbour's ecclesiastical preserves. At the worst he seems to have done no more than to take pity on a flock of houseless sheep and admit a few hungering shepherds to a share of his own pastures. It can hardly be considered a heinous offence to reordain six Lutheran missionaries at their own urgent request; and whither these went their flocks were pretty sure to follow. Nevertheless, the good Bishop necessarily laid himself open to the charge of hasty meddling in other people's concerns. It was not thus, we are reminded, that his predecessor acted on a like occasion, nor did the Church Missionary Society take advantage of a former crisis in the history of the same mission to enlarge their own numbers at a poor rival's expense. Bishop Cotton limited his interference to an appeal to the Berlin Committee on behalf of their suffering agents, while the Church Missionary Society advanced funds in aid of the rival mission until help could reach it from Berlin. Had Dr. Milman been a little less eager to enlist recruits for his own party, time might possibly have been gained either for undoing the fruits of Mr. Ansorge's questionable proceedings, or else for securing a fair division of property and work between the two sections of the old mission.

We have therefore read without much surprise the angry letter of complaint addressed to the offending bishop by the Berlin Curatorium. The members of that body, in the name of the society founded by Gossner, the first missionary to the Koles of Chota Nagpore, take Dr. Milman severely to task for his uncalled-for interference in their servants' quarrels. They "cannot conceal their surprise at his mixing himself up in a mission work to which he stands in no official relation." They are "astonished that a clergyman belonging to the highest order of the Church should desire to interfere in their mission work." It was "a duty of Christian courtesy" that he should come to a right understanding with the Curatorium, before bringing "unhappy confusion into a work which God has blessed," by a course of conduct unjust to those who "during a long series of years have borne the labours and the care of this mission." They accuse him of ignorance and unfriendly counsels, inasmuch as he never made "the slightest effort to come to a right understanding with them," and the advice thus ignorantly given could only lead to mischievous consequences. If his Lordship persists in conduct so unfriendly, they threaten him with an "appeal to the public opinion of the Christian friends of missions in Germany, England, America, and India, on account of a wrong which stands alone in the history of missions." So far from resigning the field to any rival mission, they purpose sending out more missionaries, founding new stations, and doing their best to keep ahead of all opponents.

Evidently the Berlin Committee of the Gossner mission feel dreadfully hurt at the Bishop's unneighbourly conduct. And from their point of view they have some cause for resentment of proceedings which seem to convey a kind of slur on the Church to which they belong, as well as a certain disregard of the rights acquired by long possession. Sentimental grievances are usually the most annoying, and the reordaining of six Lutheran ministers by an Anglican bishop might be viewed as an attempt to ignore the credentials granted by a rival church that cannot trace its descent directly from the Apostles. On the other hand, the Bishop may plead that in so doing he has only followed the letter, good or bad, of Anglican church law. He can hardly, however, be acquitted of over-haste, still less of apparent discourtesy to the acknowledged heads of the Chota Nagpore Mission. There was surely no need to be in a hurry, or rashly to involve the Government, whose servant he is, in the appearance of mixing itself up with the private quarrels of unofficial religious bodies.

As between the Berlin Committee and the seceding missionaries the cause of quarrel is very different. For more than ten years the mission founded by Gossner has been under the chief control of a curatorium or committee at Berlin. During that time it has done good work among the half-savage Koles. But the elder missionaries who had laboured under Gossner were men of limited culture, ignorant of the language and customs of the people they sought to civilise. Hindi, the language of the plains, was their only vehicle of intercourse with the Koles, who knew and cared to know little of the language spoken by neighbours of a foreign and hated race. In time however the zeal of the missionaries overcame this drawback, and converts grew apace. Still their ignorance of the vernacular was found or thought to be a hindrance to their progress, and the Berlin Committee began at length to send out missionaries qualified to teach the people in their own tongue. This seems to have given umbrage to the elder ministers, who set their faces against the new methods and the higher culture, without which they themselves had always managed to get along. The Curatorium insisted on its own views, upheld the younger missionaries, and sent out an agent with full power to remodel the mission upon a new base. Either Mr. Ansorge wanted tact to conciliate the seniors, or else the latter could nohow bring themselves to allow their juniors a certain share in the management of the mission. It is hard to tell where the blame lies, but in India popular opinion weighs heavily against the agent, Mr. Ansorge. The six seniors protested at Berlin against the reduction of their former powers and the consequent loss of personal influence among the converts. But the Committee sided with their agent, and in March of this year the long-seething quarrel ended in the secession of six missionaries out of the fourteen composing the mission. Emboldened by the sympathy of many friends at Ranchi and Calcutta, the seceders resolved to set up a rival mission at Ranchi, the head quarters of the existing organisation. With more than ten thousand Koles to share their fortunes, and an Anglican bishop ready to give them his episcopal blessing, their chances of success will be enhanced by the fact of their formal admission into the Anglican pale. How far the cause of Christian harmony and true enlightenment will be aided by these divisions we do not care to discuss.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—As the question of compensation for the loss of regimental bonus is likely soon to occupy Parliament, I beg to draw special attention to the following remarks made by Lord Salisbury on the occasion of the Irish Church debate (see Times, July 21), which are remarkably applicable to the manner in which he penned his Bonus Despatch, interlarding it with ungenerous conditions, which quite did away with the possibility of applicants getting anything whatever in the shape of compensation. If his successor, the Duke of Argyll, will only endorse in a general sense the force of the following remarks, we may yet hope to obtain some redress. Lord Salisbury says:—"In the same way throughout the Bill, whenever these little gifts occur, you always find at the tail of them some niggling and haggling condition which deprives them of all their grace." If it were not for the sixteenth paragraph of Lord Salisbury's despatch officers would have got back their subscriptions to their regimental funds, which after all would only have been a tithe as compared to the sums they would have received had the regimental seniority system not been destroyed by the adoption of the Staff Corps. All I ask is, should the present attempts in search of justice be so far successful as to lead to further inquiry into the matter, that the next despatch may be penned in a more generous spirit and in deference to Lord Salisbury's later expression of his views of avoiding niggling and haggling conditions.—Yours, &c.,

VICTIM.

Notices of Books.

A Manual of the Mahomedan Law of Inheritance and Contract, comprising the doctrines of the Soonnee and Sheea Schools, and based upon the text of Macnaghten's Principles and Precedents, together with the Decisions of the Privy Council, and the High Courts of the Presidencies of India. By Standish Grove Grady, Barrister-at-Law, Recorder of Gravesend. Reader on Hindoo, Mahomedan, and Indian Law to the Inns of Court, Author of the "Hindoo Law of Inheritance," &c., &c. London: Allen and Co.

This, the latest of the works on the native system of law administered throughout India, by which the author vindicates the wisdom of the choice which the Council of Legal Education made when they appointed him to the Readership on Hindu, Mahomedan, and Indian law, treats of the two great branches of Mahomedan law—inheritance and contract—grouping their principles and doctrines under various appropriate headings, and applying the science of historical analysis to elucidate their origin, and bring out their full meaning. The first book deals with the law of inheritance, tracing up its sources to their fountain-head, the Koran; pointing out its influence as affecting the habits and character of the race; and showing with precision and clearness how it acts upon, and provides for all the shifting eventualities of Eastern life. The devolution of movable and immovable property, as prescribed by the rules of Mahommedan law, in its main features agrees with that system which may be said to direct the transmission of property throughout European States, both as respects the character and relation of the parties entitled to claim the whole, or shares therein; but it has some remarkable peculiarities and exceptions, and these the author has carefully collected and skilfully arranged, presenting them in a form admirably well-suited to attract the student's attention, and impress them on his mind and memory. Thus, unlike the law of England, the Mahommedan law of Inheritance makes no distinction between real and personal property in the mode of its devolution, and, unlike the Hindoo law, it transmits self-acquired and ancestral property in the same line of descent; consanguinity, marriage, and the relation between two persons (master and freedman for instance), who had made "a reciprocal testamentary contract," constitute the sources of inheritance; and the law, as it is applied to each of these classes, is set out with great accuracy, and authorities are cited in almost every case where any new or important principle is enunciated. In the first class we have a table drawn up of the degrees of relationship as deduced from the Koran; then we have brought into view the charges upon inheritance, what constitutes an entire exclusion from, or partial surrender of it, and then a concise statement of the parties who, under certain conditions, may claim the whole, or their ascertained shares respectively. Thus the Mahommedan takes a juster view of the rights of females than English law does; females are not excluded from inheriting property, nor are their powers of alienation restricted; their property, however acquired, devolves on their own respective heirs, and a Mahommedan lady can sell, alienate, or bestow her property as she pleases.

Illegitimacy, posthumous children, the rules defining the rights of persons absent for a certain length of time who may be presumed living, as regards their own property, and defunct with respect to the property of others, are then discussed, and their salient points brought out in a masterly manner; the author, without the slightest appearance of effort, placing them in such a light that the reader cannot fail to discern at a glance wherein they differ from, and wherein they coincide with, the decisions of English Courts on the same contested points. In this is seen the paramount advantage which a close and accurate knowledge of other systems of law confers on such a work as that before us; the author, unconsciously as it were, bringing to the elucidation of Mahommedan law the ripe experience acquired in other fields of study and practice. But it is in its treatment of the principles and rules of distribution that the work now under review appears to us to challenge the largest measure of commendation. The student who has made himself master of those chapters which treat of the shares, the mode of distribution and the different classes of persons included in the table of sharers, may without fear or trembling face the ordeal of a competitive examination, as we have rarely come across a work better suited, from clearness of language, precision of statement, and arrangement of subject, to become a convenient and valuable text-book.

Contracts, pre-emption, gifts, bequests, or wills, marriage, dower, divorce, parentage, minority, and guardianship are explained and brought under distinctive rules of law, and decisions of Courts with exhaustive carefulness; an attentive examination enables us to add that nothing that is wanting in this part of the treatise to put the student in possession not only of the leading principles, but of the leading cases that serve to illustrate the different subjects brought under his notice. We have thus far spoken of the subject matter of the work, and its value as the most recent and trustworthy exposition of the two branches of law with which it deals; in doing so, we have incidentally expressed the high opinion we entertain of the manner in which the author has executed the task he proposed to himself; we have only now to add that Mr. Grady has placed the profession in India and in England under deep obligations to him, obligations which we hope they will not be slow to recognise and appreciate. This Manual of Mahommedan Law cannot fail to become a general text-book in the hands of the Civil Service Examiners. We understand that the work now under review, and that by the same author on the "Hindoo Law of Inheritance," have been made class-books by the Council of Legal Education for the examination of students in the Inns of Court, and we have no hesitation in saying, from practical experience, and from their general reputation amongst those who are the best judges of their merits, that this is only a well deserved mark or recognition of their value. We commend them to those who are engaged in teaching the native laws in the Universities of India.

Spirit of the Indian Press.

INDIAN PATRIOTISM.

The Friend of India observes that as far as the physical character of the country is concerned, India might have a stronger national unity than any country under the sun. Shut in on three sides by the sea and on the fourth by a still more impassable barrier, it might have been thought that its national life would have been harmonious, uniform, and progressive. The difference between the races is more nominal than real. The extremes of races are the Aryan Brahmin and the Turanian, yet the latter in Southern India has been converted into as good a Hindoo as ever traced his pedigree to Kanouj. And we see the process by which this was effected going on daily under our eyes in the intercourse of the Bengalees with the surrounding hill tribes, although the Turanian conversion was probably accelerated by conquest. The religious diversity of the people has had more to do with the want of unity, but even that would fall far short of the whole cause if we kept out the element of caste. It is caste and caste alone that India has to blame for the want of a national patriot, whose exploits would excite the native mind to noble actions, and furnish a model for the imitation of subsequent generations. A single proof will establish this. The only hero whose reputation can in any respect be said to be of national extent flourished in a day when caste had, according to the best scholars, not yet set its baleful stamp upon the people. Granting that Rama Chandra was possessed of a tithe of the natural prowess which the poets have ascribed to him, he would have exercised it unsung had he lived within the historic period. The deeds of which the Brahmin would have boasted the Kshetraya would have disparaged, while the Vaisya or the Sudra would have had little reason to be proud of the exploits of either of the two upper castes. How prone India would be to doify her heroes did not caste prevent it may be seen in the pride and enthusiasm with which the praises of Rama are listened to by all classes of the people when chaunted by some wandering minstrel. But it is hard that with a history like hers, and with sons who battled successfully with the martial elite of Asia and of Europe, she must go back for a period of twelve hundred years and seek for a representation of the national manliness, honour, and worth in an almost mythical hero, whose very existence might be challenged. The Athenians quickly forgot their national hero Theseus in the exploits of Miltiades and Themistocles, and the names of the latter formed the only rallying words for later Attic patriots. So would it have been in India but for caste. Perhaps no nation in Asia, if we except Arabia during the first century of Islam, has furnished so many instances of what personal bravery can achieve as India, and yet Indian nationality languishes at this present moment for the want of some popular champion whom all castes could unite in venerating. It may seem strange that this should be a reproach to the natives in the eyes of a nation which has been able to found an empire in India solely because of the deficiency. But though this be the case it must not be thought that the Indian warlike spirit or bravery is undervalued. Our victories over Mah-rattas and Sikhs are as frequently cited as instances of British military renown as the Peninsular or Crimean campaigns; and in acknowledging the bravery of our Indian foes we only raise the estimate of our own. Our only object in pointing out the want of an Indian hero is to illustrate the evils that caste has for centuries been working on the land, and to show that as the cause has not been removed the effect must still be the same. The national hero is not merely an important character while he fights in the flesh the battles of his country. After death he still continues to benefit her. Unhappily for themselves the Hindoos have had no elevating historical influences at work among them, and those to whom the task of regenerating the empire has been committed most feel the want.

PAUCITY OF OFFICERS IN THE INDIAN ARMY.

Commenting on Sir W. Mansfield's recent minute, the Madras Times points out that Sir William would add ten lieutenants to every regiment of British Infantry and six lieutenants to every regiment of British Cavalry serving in India, and from this novel reserve of officers he would meet the requirements of the Indian service in all its branches. Now the Commander-in-Chief's plan is one of a very simple nature, but the question is, whether it is not too simple to prove effective? It is clearly assumed by his Excellency that one of the principal evils of the present paucity of officers is the difficulty of recruiting the officers of native regiments when on field service, and when exposed to the contingencies of casualties and wounds. We must therefore suppose that the additional subalterns to be given to British regiments serving in India are meant to meet to a considerable extent the requirements of native corps; but will they do so? We think it is very unlikely that the ten additional subalterns would volunteer for service with native corps, or that any but a very small proportion of the number would qualify themselves for such service by studying the native character and the native languages. Possibly they might be ordered to do duty with native regiments, and they might receive their commissions on the express stipulation that they were to be detached at any time for service with native troops; but such conditions would upset the economy and discipline of British regiments, and cannot seriously be entertained for a moment. The ten additional subalterns, even if they volunteered for service with native troops, would also be as inefficient from youth and inexperience of their new duties as those very staff corps probationers whom his Excellency holds in little estimation. Sir William Mansfield's plan has the single merit of economy, it being cheaper to pay reserve officers subalterns' pay in a British regiment, than subalterns' pay as staff corps probationers, but we cannot perceive that it has any other merit worth mentioning—as a scheme for recruiting the officers of native troops. As a matter of course, the plan would be advantageous in keeping the establishment of officers in British regiments up to its full strength, a strength at present not always attained, in consequence of the number of officers absent in Europe, and those holding staff appointments in India as officers not of the Staff Corps. We fear that all these plans and proposals to meet a confessed ill are significant of confusion and difference of opinion in quarters where order and unanimity should prevail. The Duke of Argyll, in his famous despatch of the 11th of March, proposes to close the Staff Corps to young officers until the old officers of the Staff Corps are provided for. Sir William Mansfield considers the probationers to the Staff Corps so insufficient in numbers that he would greatly increase them after his own fashion. Between two stools the public service is likely to fall to the ground. Certainly, Sir William Mansfield should know more of the subject than the Duke of Argyll; but it is to be regretted that the Commander-in-Chief's ideas on the matter are, apparently, hampered by financial considerations, and that his Excellency does not treat of the efficiency of the Indian military service altogether from his position of Commander-in-Chief. Apparently, to judge from a recent order from the Horse Guards, directing commanding officers of British regiments to afford every encouragement to their subalterns to enter the Staff Corps, the Secretary of State has made up his mind to pin his faith to the present system of recruiting officers for the Indian service, and there the matter will, probably, rest for the present, and Sir William Mansfield's plan be consigned to oblivion, until our next "little war" resuscitates it for more discussion, and, it is to be hoped, for more practical action. But whatever may be said of Sir William Mansfield's plan, his Excellency's statistics are undoubtedly reliable, and somewhat alarming. By these we learn that the gross strength of officers at present is 3,308, and that 22 per cent. of this number are absent on furlough and medical certificate—add 20 per cent. absent on ordinary furlough, under the new regulations, and we have 42 per cent. absent from duty. This statement speaks for itself, and proves very plainly that Sir William Mansfield is right in demanding more officers. When the Commander-in-Chief in India gives it as his opinion, in black and white, that in the late Hazara campaign, if thirty or forty officers had been placed hors de combat it would have been beyond his means to replace them, we think the public will agree with us that it is high time a searching enquiry should be made into the present state of the Indian army, its requirements, and the best and speediest modes of meeting them. Should we experience disaster in any of our future eastern campaigns, for want of officers, it may be depended upon that the English public will hold some one accountable for any such disgrace.

LORD MAYO'S DUTY TO BURMAH.

The Madras Athenæum remarks that if the Burman monarch's friendship with Captain Sladen were to be in any degree relaxed our representative could not stay at Mandalay, and foreign residents too would find their lives unbearable. The King recognises this fact, and, whether feigned or true, this appearance of friendship is essential to the possibility of a British agency at Mandalay. But the public know nothing of this, or of the fact that, with all Captain Sladen's leniency and moderation in the transaction of affairs with the Burmese Government, the only reproaches he has received since his residence there, if they may be said to be reproaches, have been given by our own Government on the supposition that he has been unnecessarily harsh in his communications with the King! If our police was only a little more stringent, or as firm as it ought to be, Captain Sladen is the man who would carry it out with a will which would unquestionably result in improved relations, and in material advantages to both Governments and countries. In the absence of such a policy, Burmah, as long as it is a separate Government, must ever act as a thorn in our side, and as an obstacle to real progress in Pegu. We speak comparatively of course. Pegu has made wonderful strides already, under great drawbacks and disadvantages. What would the progress be with a good Government in Upper Burmah? We should insist on such a Government or proceed to extremes. The Burmese must be taught to accept our policy of progress, and to attend to the advice of the Governor-general. This is the policy which has been dictated by the Secretary of State for India, but we do not enforce it. The Burmese Government is wasting away by degrees, and were it not for the elasticity of the resources of the country, might be expected in a very short time to complete its own ruin, without extraneous aid or interference. But it will be strong enough up to the last to give an expiring kick, and it is this which threatens continually the peace and advancement of British Burmah. A revolution is at any moment imminent. Much depends on the life of the present King. His death will be the signal for several insurrections. No arrangements have been made for the succession. The matter is before our Government, and it behoves us how to act. Burmah, for the next few years, must prove one of the most important and interesting countries adjoining our Eastern Possessions. We cannot be silent spectators of scenes which, in the natural or unnatural course of events, may shortly be expected to be enacted there, unless we exert ourselves in anticipation to modify them by firm counsel and interference. It would be better in the exercise of that interference to bring on a crisis than to allow matters to drift into the chaos and desolation which would be the result of a general insurrection. We do not consider the present attitude of the Burman Government serious or earnest. It is demonstrative only, and the King's idea is that we shall be intimidated into letting him have his own way in everything, without pressing either the China overland trade, the establishment of the new Court, or any other legitimate demand under Treaty rights. One firm word spoken in time will put an end to all this arrogance, and we trust Lord Mayo may be induced to speak it. The alternative ought to be the withdrawal, or the threatened withdrawal, of the Agency. The threat should be an earnest and positive one, and should be carried out, if necessary, without scruple or delay.

SUFFERING IN REWAH.—It appears that a number of starving people are yet flocking into certain parts of the N. W. Provinces from the Rewah territory. The knowledge of the relief works has no doubt attracted them; but the Rewah Chief has been most regardless of the starving poor in his territory, and he stands solitary in most unenviable odour in this respect.—Indian Daily News, June 22.

OUR MOUNTAIN BATTERIES.—The practice carried on at Umballa in March last with the new seven-pounder steel mountain guns was one of the most satisfactory sights witnessed for a very long time. The accuracy of fire of the steel gun and its power of range, when once fully known, will do more, we believe, to diminish the number of our petty wars on the frontier than any amount of diplomacy. The re-arming of our Mountain Batteries and the presence of the Heavy Battery at Peshawur, coupled with the continuance of Lord Lawrence's frontier policy, which our present Viceroy has so wisely adopted, have inaugurated an entirely new era. Frontier fighting to any great extent may now be fairly said to be a thing of the past. We are glad to learn, however, that the Inspector-General of Ordnance is calling for opinions on the shells and fuzes with which these new seven pounder steel guns are supplied. Beautiful and perfect as is the weapon, its armament is not as efficient as it might be; its shells fail very frequently to burst; and their destructive power is consequently much lessened. The difficulty lies in the question,—how to secure the ignition of the fuze, so that it may seldom or never miss? This difficulty has existed ever since rifled guns were invented, their windage being too small to allow a sufficiency of flame from the cartridge to escape around the shell to the fuze-head, so as to light with certainty the quickmatch round the neck of the fuze. Sir William Armstrong overcame this defect for guns of larger calibre when he invented his "Etime Fuze;" but it has been found that with these seven-pounder steel guns, the service charge of which is only six ounces (and they are frequently fired with a three-ounce charge), the shock of the discharge is not great enough to set free the pin which penetrates the detonating composition. Other means are wanted so to ensure the lighting of the fuze, and the Inspector-General of Ordnance is now very properly calling for suggestions on the subject. We are in receipt of several letters offering the suggestions required. We have been favoured also with a copy of the report of the special Committee on Mountain Battery Equipment, which assembled in Abbottabad last year, as well as of the one which assembled in Calcutta the year before. This latter committee appear to have confined its proceedings to the consideration of the question of equipment only, whereas the Abbottabad committee put matters to a practical test, and their experiments resulted in the following recommendation:—"That in order to establish a sufficient communication between the charge and fuze, the shells should be cast with three equal and equidistant grooves along the circumference, parallel to the major axis." For simplicity and theoretical worth none of the other suggestions, we think, come up to this, and we await anxiously the result of the practical test with the shells manufactured as proposed. Against one recommendation only do we demur, viz., the placing of a detonator at the head of the fuze. For mountain work, where loads of ammunition are liable at times to fall, such an arrangement would, we believe, be fraught with danger.—Pioneer.

FACTS REGARDING CHOLERA.

The Delhi Gazette gives a short resume of the facts known regarding cholera.

First, then, the prevalent idea that cholera is a comparatively new disease, unknown in this country till the last century, is altogether erroneous. In the Sanskrit Visnukata of Susruta is the description of a malady called "Visnukata," in which all the symptoms of cholera are described. Again, the epidemic attacking the armies of Aurangzeb could from the details extant have scarcely been aught else than this disease. We could indeed, if space permitted, quote a dozen records showing that the malady prevailed in India long before the commencement of the present century.

Secondly.—Cholera, although most frequently met with in India, often prevails in countries the most diverse as regards climate, soil, geological formation, and moral and physical habits of the population. Both under the tropical sun of Bengal and among the snows of Northern Russia the most fatal epidemics of cholera have occurred. But it is a curious fact that, even in the countries where cholera most prevails, there are localities in which the malady has never yet appeared. Of these may be mentioned certain intertropical elevated regions of India, as Mabalwar and Matheran, in the Bombay Presidency; Chateau Salicis, in France; certain localities in other parts of Europe, &c. Yet, as far as has yet been ascertained, no appreciable difference in climate or otherwise exists at such places when compared with other cholera-stricken districts.

Thirdly.—Isolated outbreaks of cholera let no doubt remain that the disease may arise de novo, or without communication with any infected source. What are technically called sporadic cases, frequently present and are only explicable by admitting that the agent causing the malady may either arise or be re-excited into action under favourable circumstances.

Fourthly.—The malady having somewhere originated may subside or spread. If the latter the tract of the disease is commonly from East to West. It was this fact which induced the commission assembled at Constantinople in 1867 to declare the Delta of the Ganges to be the cradle of cholera, from which the affection always originated, and passed to the West. That this happens very frequently may be allowed, but that cholera may and does originate in other localities nearer the West is equally certain.

Fifthly.—When the disease spreads by contagion it is always found that sufficient time has elapsed for human intercourse to take place between the two sites on which the affection appears.

Sixthly.—Cholera follows the great lines of traffic. This was exemplified for the thousandth time, although perhaps never before so fully traced out, after the great fair of Hurdwar in 1867.

Seventhly.—When cholera prevails low damp localities are visited more severely than dry elevated sites. Similarly, localities destitute of sanitation, particularly where focal emanations abound, are more liable to the disease. The habitual respiration of an impure atmosphere induces that condition of system which localises cholera among the inhabitants.

Eighthly.—That impure water has a powerful influence over the intensity of cholera outbreaks is now unquestionably established by the observations of Drs. Acland, Sutherland, Budd, and Snow. But impure water is not a necessary element in the generation of cholera. Like unwholesome food or the injudicious use of purgative medicines, impure water acts as a determining, or predisposing cause of cholera.

Miscellaneous.

LORD MAYO.—We understand that the Viceroy intends to open the Jubulpore link in the G.I.P., and the little Khangaum cotton railway now in progress of construction.

DIVORCE COURT.—The first contested divorce case before the Calcutta High Court has been going on within the last few days. The cause is Kelly v. Kelly, respondent, with a co-respondent, Saunders.

A RAILWAY TO DARJEELING.—It is probable, says the Indian Daily News, that sanction will be given shortly, if indeed it has not already been accorded, to the railway to Darjeeling.

LEGISLATION.—The Act passed by the Supreme Legislative Council to provide facilities for obtaining the evidence and appearance of prisoners and for service of process upon them received the assent of the Governor General on the 4th June.

HERAT.—How utterly unfounded was the rumour that Herat had fallen may now be judged, says the Pioneer, from the fact that Shahnawaz Khan has written to the Ameer Sher Ali with the view of being reconciled to him, and it is believed that the Ameer is disposed to listen favourably to his overtures.

DIPLOMATIC.—The Burnah papers report that a Burmese envoy is about to visit Rangoon. He is styled Yai Nan Ghyoung Woungyee, or Governor over the Earth Oil district. It is said that his principal business will be to secure the countenance and aid of the Chief Commissioner in the formation of a Burmese Petroleum Company.

THE BATTERSBY DIVORCE CASE.—Judgment has been delivered at Allahabad by Mr. Justice Turner in the Battersby Divorce case. Mr. Battersby has got his decree nisi. The respondent had pleaded condonation, and the judgment deals fully with that issue, laying down (says the Pioneer) an important ruling on the subject.

A BURMESE PRINCE.—The refugee Burmese Prince Men-Gondyne, who has been hitherto living at Bhagulpore, under a mild surveillance, was lately allowed to visit his brother, who is a State prisoner in the Fort of Chunar. He has now asked and received permission to live with his brother in the Fort; but while conforming to the rules, he will not be subjected to more rigour than has been observed towards him at Bhagulpore.

FLOODS IN CASHMERE.—The Delhi Gazette learns from Cashmere that the river Jhelum has burst its banks at or near Srinuggur, and carried away more than half the bungalows built there for visitors to the valley. All the encampments in the vicinity of the city were overflowed, and travellers and residents of houses escaped in boats. The details of the catastrophe have not yet come to hand; but there seems to have been great damage as well as great consternation.

CIVIL.—Mr. J. N. Bullen has resigned his seat in the Legislative Council of India, and the resignation has been accepted.—The Central India Times understands that Major Stewart, District Superintendent of Police, Raipore, has signified his intention of retiring from the service in September next.—The Rangoon Gazette reports that Dr J. Dougall has been appointed by the Chief Commissioner medical officer to the Political Agent at Mandalay. Dr. Dougall left Rangoon for Mandalay on the 14th instant.

INDIGO IN BENGAL.—The prospects of the indigo crops in Bengal are reported to be becoming worse and worse. The cyclone of the 9th June did not cause much damage, but the prolonged drought has done no little injury. We are told that while the factories to the north of a line drawn east and west through Mozufferpore have suffered but slightly, those to the south of that have miserable crops—hardly one-fourth of the usual out-turn. The whole indigo produce of Northern India this year is estimated by experts at 80,000 mannds of 80 lbs. Of this Lower Bengal is expected to contribute 30,000, Benares and the Doab 30,000, and Tirhoot only 20,000.

THE BROTHERS SCHLAGENTWEIT.—Mr. H. Von Schlagentweit, the Englishman tells us, has addressed the Asiatic Society of Bengal on some new data regarding the death of his brother, the lamented Adolph Von Schlagentweit. A native servant, named Abdoolah, of the latter gentleman, has written that his master's camp was attacked by Vali Khan in front of the city of Kasgar, and that his master fell in the consequent struggle. Abdoolah was imprisoned, and next day observed the new moon of the Mohurram. He was imprisoned on a Wednesday. From these and other circumstances Mr. H. Von Schlagentweit has come to the conclusion that his brother was killed in the morning of the 26th of August, 1857.

THE "CHERUBA."—Even the most remote prospect of tidings of any of our countrymen who may have been cast away in the Bay during the late stormy weather must be of interest. We can scarcely hope to hear anything of the Cheruba. But from a letter received from Chittagong, we learn that there has been a boat cast away on an island about twenty-five miles west of Sundee Island; and the bodies of sixteen Europeans washed on shore. Government, it is said, are taking steps to obtain particulars, and to make them known. This may be somewhat indefinite information; but it indicates the possible news of some disaster at sea; and though it may be too late to render any assistance it is a satisfaction in ascertaining the fate of those whom it is impossible to save.—Englishman, June 14.

A CURIOUS STORY.—We (Delhi Gazette) learn from the Punjab that an officer of the 15th Bengal Cavalry in April last applied through his commanding officer for six months' leave to Cashmere during this season, but the commanding officer refused to pass it on, because if sanctioned it would interfere with his own prospects of leave in August next. The matter was referred to the Major General of the Division, who failed to see the force of the commanding officer's objection, and the application was passed on through the usual channel to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. His Excellency vetoed the application. The officer in question, on account of ill health, then sought through a medical board a means of escape from the plains. The regimental surgeon applied for a board; it was granted, and six months' leave on medical grounds to visit Cashmere was recommended by the board. The officer took his departure from Mooltan, and was proceeding towards Cashmere via Binbur, but he was stopped by a telegram from head-quarters directing him not to proceed to Cashmere, but to report his arrival at Murree. He reached Murree and reported his arrival; and there another medical board was assembled, presided over by the Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals of the Indian Army, and this board confirmed the proceedings of the previous board, and recommended on strong grounds that the officer should be permitted to proceed to Cashmere. His Excellency has again vetoed the recommendation of the board, pending reference to the Inspector General of Hospitals of the Indian Forces! We make no comments on this bare skeleton of the case. We await the ultimate issue, as it may have to be referred to the Governor General in Council. We believe the course his Excellency has adopted is quite unprecedented; certainly has opened a new phase in the history of medical certificates.

A LIGHTSHIP LOST.—We learn from the Calcutta papers that the Inner Mutlah lightship is missing—a result of the late cyclone. Search has been made, but to no avail. It is feared she may have been driven on the sands and broken up. The report of a vessel still out in search is awaited.

ROADS IN THE TEA DISTRICTS.—The Lieutenant Governor has expressed his willingness to assist in making roads in the Tea districts whenever the planters contribute money or labour to the work. The road cess proposed by the last Tea Commission is declared by the local authorities to be impracticable and unnecessary.

THE HEAT.—Our Allahabad contemporary states that it is with the greatest difficulty the officials of the East India Railway can get out-door work done in consequence of the excessive heat. The shunting and making-up of trains, especially in large stations like Allahabad and Cawnpore, is a serious matter at present. The driver of a goods train, which left Allahabad at three o'clock on the afternoon of the 21st June, died near the Sirsoul station on the morning of the 22nd, of heat apoplexy; the man was in perfect health when he left Allahabad. Our contemporary recommends the railway authorities to distribute at all stations along the line copies of Dr. Planck's letter on the treatment of heat apoplexy. The Jubbulpore paper has been informed that of thirty-five Europeans employed on No. 17 contract on the G.I.P. line no less than seventeen have died during the past hot season.

UTILISING SEWAGE.—The late experiments in the Alipore jail with Mr. Gilbert Hickey's apparatus for deodorising and utilising sewage and garbage do not appear to have attracted so much attention as they deserve. The solid dejecta of 100 men, with the expenditure of one maund of coal, costing eight annas, was converted into gas which burned four hours in a large jet with a brilliancy equivalent to the light of six ordinary street lamps. The retort at the close of the experiment contained two pounds of charcoal and a compound of potash, soda, lime, magnesia, common salt, and iron ore—a most valuable deodoriser. The experiment is to be repeated at Darjeeling, and Dr. Mouat has been asked whether he can suggest arrangements for a trial on a considerable scale, and at what outlay. Mr. Hickey's scheme is an ingenious modification of a plan that has been followed in most of the large towns of Central Asia for centuries, the refuse of the towns being applied to the warming of the public baths. The only doubtful point seems the disposal of the smoke, which cannot but be highly offensive.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.—The Gazette of India publishes a comparative abstract of the traffic on the guaranteed railways throughout India for the years 1867 and 1868, the results exhibited by which must be considered on the whole most satisfactory. In the commencement of 1868 trade was still suffering severely from that paralysis from which it has hardly yet fully recovered; and on the principal railways the traffic was proportionately affected. The difference, however, was more than pulled up in the fourth quarter; and the grand total of earnings on all the lines for the past year is £5,140,432, against £4,931,728 in 1867. The average receipt per week per mile open is 25 in 1868, against 24·5 in 1867. On the East India Main Line the earnings were £2,149,156 in 1868, against £2,128,949 in 1867, and on the Jubbulpore Line £85,910, against £19,870. On the Eastern Bengal line the receipts were £162,273, against £147,134. The receipts of the Bombay and Sind Railways for 1868, however, fall below those of the previous year.

THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.—A recent number of the "Annals of Indian Administration for 1867-1868" contains an elaborate digest of the latest statistical information regarding the numbers, employments, castes, and religious professions of the inhabitants of the British Empire in the East and the dependent States. Out of more than 150,000,000 inhabitants of the country under direct British dominion 110,000,000 are Hindoos, 25,000,000 Mussulmans (a much smaller proportion than was popularly supposed); while 12,000,000 belong to those strange tribes who descend from the occupiers of India before the Aryan immigration (as it is now called) took place. There are also 4,000,000 of Buddhists and a few Jews and Parsees. The Roman Catholics claim 640,000 native adherents; these are chiefly found in the extreme south of the Peninsula, and descend from the ancient community known as the Christians of St. Thomas. The Protestant missionaries estimated the numbers attached to their persuasion at 213,000 in 1862; but the total is thought to have greatly augmented since the date of that estimate, chiefly by conversion among the aboriginal tribes in remote parts of India and in Burmah. The Christians of European and mixed origin are estimated at about 240,000.

"ZENANA" CARRIAGES.—The Government of India has instructed the Provincial Governments to see that "Zenana" compartments or carriages, "for the special use of native females of the upper classes of society," both Hindoo and Mussulman, are provided on every railway. These Governments are also asked whether proper attention is at present habitually given to applications for reserved accommodation made by natives desirous of travelling by railway, and are directed to consider whether any additional precautions are needed to secure the same attention being given, and at precisely the same rates of charge, to the legitimate claims of all classes of travellers, whether they are European or Native. The importance of removing all difficulties from the way of persons of the upper classes of society who may desire to travel by railway, and particularly of females, both in a political and social point of view, is, in the estimation of the Governor General in Council, very great. The difficulty is not in properly accommodating native ladies, but in satisfying their male friends, who desire a compartment next to them and communicating with them. The application to Natives of the rule so often taken advantage of by English travellers, on the East India line, that four first class tickets secure one sleeping compartment strictly reserved, ought to meet every difficulty.

CALAMITOUS WEATHER IN NORTH-EASTERN BENGAL.—We (Indian Daily News) hear from various sources that rain has fallen in the north-eastern districts in quantities to baffle the memory of the "oldest inhabitant." We have an account from a gentleman of high position, but prefer to give one from a native, on account of the way in which he views the case. He says:—"Water has entirely covered this part of Assam, and has spoiled (why spoiled?—swept away) all the Ashoo Dhan. The price of the rice has raised so high that within a short time we will get servants without pay, provided we can give them food. How could we do that? Where will we get rice? The rice for which we paid two rupees per maund a week back to day we are now purchasing at five rupees. They sell common rice at three rupees two annas per maund at present, and the people say that the rate will daily increase. I know not what will become of us in time. However, I am happy to say that our worthy Assistant Commissioner, Mr. A. C. Campbell, is taking every measure to reduce our distress. He has raised a subscription to obtain rice from Bengal. We are under incessant rain since a month, and do not know when we will see the sun again; perhaps he has left this part of the country." There seems to be no doubt that the rain has been very destructive, and there may be in store one of those local calamities with which late years have made us painfully familiar.

BENGAL COAL COMPANY.—We have before us the report of the directors of the Bengal Coal Company for the half-year ending April 30, 1869. The result of the half-year's workings should be most satisfactory to the shareholders, showing, as it does, an increase both in the raising and sales of coal, and a profit of Rs. 1,76,693, out of which, after transferring the sum of Rs. 20,000 to the wear and tear fund, the directors recommend a dividend of Rs. 70 per share, or at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum. The report, moreover, contains two facts which should be equally interesting to the shareholders and the general public. The canal intended to join the Damoodah and the Hooghly has been sanctioned by the Government. This work, which will commence at Raghonath Chuck, on the property of the company, and terminate near Muggrah, on the Hooghly, will afford a safe and constant means of transport in lieu of the dangerous and precarious route by the Damoodah, and will materially lessen the cost of coal in Calcutta. Almost equally important is the fact that experiments instituted by the directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Company on the value of the different coals of the Damoodah field have shown that that of the Sanktoria seam possesses so high a steam power as to render it available for the use of sea-going steamers. In fact, the report says, a mixture of half Sanktoria and half West Hartley coal gave a higher result than West Hartley alone. This ought materially to diminish the heaviest item of expenditure of our steam navigation companies, and may ultimately be expected to make some difference in their fares for passengers. The company, we observe, raised 34,18,256 maunds of coal, and delivered 26,17,933 maunds during the half-year.

MILITARY.—It is said that Captain Pearson, of the 88th Regiment, is about to retire from the service by the sale of his commission. Lieutenant Owen and Ensign Sir George Larpeut will obtain the steps.—We regret to learn of the death of Captain H. D. Metcalfe, at Jubbulpore, on the 21st inst.; the deceased officer was en route from Simla to Hyderabad, to join the Hyderabad Contingent.—The Delhi Gazette learns from the Punjab that the new station at Tollagun, in the Jhelum Division, is to be vacated for the coming rainy season, and to be reoccupied against next cold weather. It is contemplated sending one detachment of the regiment there located to Pindee, another to Attock, and a third to Campbellpore.—The Government of India has confirmed a decision of the Commander-in-Chief that the appointments with the frontier batteries of artillery should be considered staff appointments, and that officers holding them should be allowed to retain them during furlough. The Government has further ruled that this decision applies to all native batteries of artillery.—Major G. F. Vincent, says the Indian Daily News, of the 21st June, was last week taken to the Medical College Hospital at Calcutta, suffering from heat apoplexy, and has since died.—It has been rumoured at Murree that Brigadier-General G. V. Maxwell, late in command of a brigade at Rawul Pindee, and who is now looking forward at home to a further advancement in professional rank, is likely to succeed Major General Haly, C.B., in the command of the Jhelum division.—We observe it stated that the medical officers of her Majesty's Indian Army are preparing a memorial for transmission to Government regarding the unsatisfactory state of the Medical Retiring Fund.—Staff Surgeon-major Cogan, says the Delhi Gazette, has been ordered up from Bombay to Nowshera, to take charge of H.M.'s 88th Regiment, vice Surgeon A. H. Fraser, who is absent on sick certificate.—Very unfavourable accounts have been received from Baraitch regarding the health of Captain Thackwell; the three wounds inflicted on his right arm by the tiger would seem to have defied the skill of the medical officer attending him. On Monday last, Dr. Atkinson, surgeon of the 5th Lancers, started from Lucknow for Baraitch, and we are informed that as mortification had set in, it was found necessary to amputate the right arm near the arm pit. Great sympathy is felt for Captain Thackwell, as he is a young and rising man, and beloved by all who know him.—Since the Hazara campaign, which was brought to a close now more than eight months ago, a detachment of the 9th Bengal Cavalry has been doing duty at Agror on the frontier. For some reason or other the detachment has not been relieved. The Delhi Gazette understands that orders have now been issued for the relief; the detachment of the 9th is to return to Meerut, and the 4th Punjab Cavalry to supply its place.—A correspondent writing from Jaulna on the 25th June says:—"Quite a gloom has been cast over our quiet little station by the sudden death of Assistant-surgeon P. J. Shannon, M.D., of the 1st Infantry Hyderabad Contingent. The deceased had been suffering for some time from whooping cough. He will be regretted by all classes, for his gentle manners and genuine kindness towards every one had rendered him highly popular."

THE TRUE VERSION OF THE VELLORE AFFAIR.

From the reports submitted by the Acting Inspector-general of Police and the Acting Joint Magistrate, it appears that there exists much ill-feeling between the Orthodox Mahomedans at Vellore and certain others, who either openly profess the Wahabee doctrines, or belong secretly to that sect.

Early in May last a small party of the Orthodox Mahomedans, with a view of alarming the Wahabee sectarians and excluding them from a particular mosque, attempted to create an impression that the Wahabees were preaching sedition in the mosque, and endeavouring to foment a rising among the inhabitants of the town, and that they had been tampering with the Native Regiment, the 28th, stationed at Vellore.

Anonymous petitions were addressed to the Joint Magistrate and the Assistant Superintendent of Police, stating this, and a Mahomedan Moonshee of the Small Cause Court, who affirmed that he was present at the mosque when sedition was openly advocated, produced a written statement of what had occurred at the mosque, signed by himself and four other Orthodox Mahomedans. An inquiry was at once held by the Joint Magistrate and the Deputy Inspector-general of Police, the result of which was that the case broke down entirely. The Moonshee's witnesses, with one exception, failed to corroborate his statement, and the evidence of the single witness who supported the Moonshee's story was held by the magistrate to be open to the strongest suspicion. The Joint Magistrate and the Deputy Inspector-general were so satisfied that the anonymous reports and the statement of the Moonshee were entirely without foundation that they did not consider it necessary to report what had occurred to Government, and left Vellore on other duty.

The course adopted by these officers appears to have been attended by unfortunate results, for their reticence as to what had really occurred and their absence from Vellore encouraged the propagation of false and exaggerated reports, which created considerable uneasiness in the mind of the public. This uneasiness was increased by the Deputy Inspector-general hastily communicating to the officer commanding the 28th regiment Native Infantry a further report, which he had received after leaving Vellore, as to the existence of disaffection in that regiment. The note, which was marked "Private and Confidential," led the officer commanding the regiment to more decided action than had been intended by the Deputy Inspector-general. A regimental Court of Inquiry was called and sat till a late hour at night, and the officer commanding the 28th regiment, who is also the commandant of the station, considered it advisable, as a measure of precaution, to issue arms and ammunition to the European pensioners at Vellore.

The Regimental Court of Inquiry elicited nothing to indicate that the report of disaffection in the regiment, which had been so hastily accepted and communicated by the Deputy Inspector-general of Police to the commandant of the regiment, had any foundation whatever; and as soon as the Joint Magistrate and Deputy Inspector-general of Police heard what had been done by the officer commanding the station, they returned to Vellore, and, after consultation with that officer, the arms and ammunition issued to the pensioners were withdrawn.

At no time was the public peace at Vellore for a moment disturbed, and a most careful inquiry, which has subsequently been made by the Acting Inspector-general of Police, has shown clearly that the whole affair has arisen from a clumsily contrived petty conspiracy to create alarm regarding the designs of the Wahabee section of the Mahomedan community, and thereby to force the sectarians to abstain from attending the mosques frequented by the Orthodox Mahomedans.

The Government have to remark that the Acting Joint Magistrate and the Deputy Inspector General of Police should have remained at Vellore so long as there was any feeling of public uneasiness, and that they should have taken the necessary steps to make generally known in Vellore how entirely without foundation were the rumours which were in circulation. His Excellency in Council is also constrained to observe that the Deputy Inspector General acted imprudently in transmitting to the officer commanding the 28th Regiment Native Infantry a hastily written message, containing the gravest possible charge against that regiment, which was based on the merest hearsay, and which subsequent inquiry has proved to have been entirely without foundation.

His Excellency in Council considers it a matter of regret that the officer commanding the station should have taken so extreme a step as the arming of the pensioners without consulting the Acting Joint Magistrate, and before he had made himself acquainted with the evidence before the Deputy Inspector-general of Police on the subject of the supposed disaffection in the regiment or of the probability of any serious disturbance of the public peace.

His Excellency in Council has finally to notice with displeasure the delay that occurred on the part of all the officials concerned in communicating to the Government the circumstances which had created considerable public alarm in the town of Vellore, and which gave rise to the exaggerated reports which appeared in the newspapers. The circular order of Government recently issued contains clear instructions on this point, and will, his Excellency trusts, prevent the possibility of any such delay again occurring.

Miscellaneous.

MILITARY.—The death from fever at Bangalore on the 18th June of Veterinary Surgeon J. S. Richardson, of H.M.'s 16th Lancers, is announced.

HEAT APOPLEXY.—We regret to record the death of another victim to this too prevalent disease. Mr. Mouisse, of Messrs. Bainbridge's house, died of it yesterday afternoon.—Madras Athenæum, June 18.—A Madras paper records the death of the Rev. T. Haslam, of the London Missionary Society, who died at Coimbatore on the 15th June, from the effects of heat apoplexy.

CIVIL.—In reply to a telegram from the Secretary of State for India, inquiring if it had anyone to recommend, the Madras Government is said to have telegraphed on the 16th inst. proposing Mr. H. G. Prichard for the office of Government Solicitor, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. H. J. Brockman. The appointment is worth Rs. 1,225 per mensem. Mr. Prichard has been about ten years in Madras.

We learn that on the morning of Sunday, June 20, between four and five o'clock, one of the patients in the Royal Artillery Hospital at Saint Thomas Mount threw himself into a well and died before assistance could be rendered. It would appear that the well has a covering, which the deceased removed before committing the rash deed. The man entered hospital the day before, and at the time of admission showed no signs of insanity.

STEAM FROM MADRAS TO MYSORE.—A meeting was to be held at Bangalore on the 23rd June to consider a scheme proposed by Mr. W. E. Lippert, C.E., for the establishment of a Traction Road Steam Engine Company, the operations of which will enable passengers to go for two rupees in fourteen hours from Bangalore to Mysore, and traffic to be carried at fourteen rupees per ton. Mr. Lippert has recently come from the Mont Cenis Tunnel Works where traction engines were used by himself, and he is said to be thoroughly conversant with all the minutiae of the subject. Several influential members of the European and native community of Bangalore have already expressed their entire approval of Mr. Lippert's scheme and the comparatively small capital of Rs. 100,000 required will be subscribed at once, should the project meet with the approval of the authorities.

Bombay.

KURRACHEE.—It appears from the Kurrachee Municipality that Government has sanctioned the taking up of a loan of Rs. 630,000, under Government guarantee, for the carrying out of the project for supplying Kurrachee with water.

THE ZANZIBAR ENVOY.—The Envoy of his Highness the Emaum of Zanzibar paid a visit to his Excellency the Governor on the afternoon of Tuesday June 27th at Gunnesskind, on which occasion fifty rank and file of her Majesty's 24th Regiment with fifers and drums formed a guard of honour on his Highness' arrival.

THE SOLDIER'S EXHIBITION.—We learn that Colonel Addison, C.B., 1-2nd Queen's, Lieut.-colonel Thompson, 9th Regiment Native Infantry, Lieut.-colonel Berry, commanding General Depot, and Captain Griffiths, H.M.'s 59th Regiment, have been appointed additional members to the Central Committee for the Soldiers' Exhibition.

BHOWNUGGUR.—According to a statement in Native Opinion, the army of the Rajah of Bhownuggur is used for singular purposes. Some of the Nagars of Joonagur having sympathised with those who had admitted Mr. Mahiputram to caste, were arrested as they were engaged in a marriage ceremony, surrounded and isolated, and kept in a state of starvation for four days, until they agreed to perform penance and express contrition for having befriended the gentleman who had been guilty, years ago, of the crime of visiting Europe.

MILITARY.—The Poona Observer hears that Captain Turner, Examiner of Ordnance Accounts, is to be appointed Military Paymaster, Poona Circle, and that Major Blowers, Pension Paymaster, will succeed Captain Turner.—The Observer also hears from Deolalee that a good deal of fever has prevailed in that camp lately. The new barracks are approaching completion. When completed the detachment of the 1st Royals are expected to be sent up to occupy them from Butcher's Island.—We learn that the Queen's Bays at Mhow (under orders for home) have finished their volunteering, and have volunteered away 89 men to regiments remaining in India, viz., to the 3rd Hussars 8, to the 4th Hussars 17, to the 5th Lancers 12, to the 11th Hussars 2, to the 16th Lancers 9, to the 18th Hussars 22, and to the 21st Hussars 19.—Of homeward-bound troops the first instalment will leave Bombay on the 1st of October, and arrive at Portsmouth on the 4th November. The last homeward troop ship will leave Bombay on the 28th of February next, and reach Portsmouth on the 3rd of April.—The E 14th Royal Artillery and 1 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers will return to England during the ensuing trooping season. The detachments of the 2-1st Royals and 49th Foot, at present located on Butcher's Island, Bombay, will be removed to Deolalee probably by the end of this month. They will occupy the new barracks, nearly completed.

POPULAR EDUCATION.—The following letter from the Times of India shows what the Southern Mahratta Country is doing for itself in this important matter:—"You will be glad to hear there is an earnest movement on foot for disseminating education throughout this neglected Southern Mahratta Country. As you are aware, the Canarese-speaking portion of the inhabitants of the Bombay presidency are lamentably behind their brethren of the Deccan, Konkan and Goozerat in the important matter of education. The reproach will not last long now, however. The educational movement has been taken up con amore; close on Rs. 50,000 is already subscribed, and before long, with the aid that Government will be called on to give, we shall have in Dharwar a first class High School. In addition to the High School, we shall have an English Training School, purposely for turning out schoolmasters sufficiently good to educate sons of ryots and village craftsmen up to the standard required for the admission of these village boys to the High School. This latter part of the plan is one of its best features, as the present schoolmasters in the outlying districts are very inferior and inefficient. In short, the whole scheme is one of the best that has been set on foot south of Poona for many years. There will also be a list of scholarship prizes to enable boys whose parents are not rich to go up to the Bombay and Poona Colleges. I think we shall start with at least six of these scholarships. All that is now needed is the cordial co-operation and assistance of Government in the good work, and this, I think, can be depended upon."

FROM BOMBAY TO CALCUTTA BY RAIL.—The progress that is being made in the construction of the final link that is to unite by rail Bombay with Calcutta is a subject which commands the interest, not only of the commercial and travelling public, but of all India. We may reasonably suppose that the results flowing from complete railway communication from Western India with Bengal and the Upper Provinces will be as fruitful of political advantages as they must be of material results. Until lately it was thought impossible that the North-Eastern line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway would be finished so as to admit of any traffic until the close of 1870. Judging, however, from the work that has been done during the past season, and estimating what remains to be accomplished, we can assure the public with tolerable certainty that the first through train will be run in May next. Opposed to this hopeful prospect there is just the contingency that certain girders may not arrive sufficiently early, and that an ample supply of sleepers may not be forthcoming. Extraordinary exertions during the past season have been put forth by all on the works to expedite the completion of the line, as is plain to any one who compares the advanced stage in the Jubbulpore line now with its position last October. All have worked most cordially in furtherance of the great work, and though the difficulties to be overcome have been very formidable indeed, they have only stimulated to increased exertion. Between Bhoer and Hurdah, a distance of about forty miles, the heaviest works have been encountered.—Times of India.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—TEN LIVES LOST.—We regret to state that an accident occurred yesterday morning, about two-and-a-half miles north of Etola, to the through train from Ahmedabad to Bombay, by which ten passengers lost their lives, and seven were more or less wounded. The following report from Mr. Currey, Agent of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway, to Lieutenant-colonel Trevor, R.E., Consulting Engineer for Railways, which has been courteously placed at our disposal, contains all the information which has yet been received regarding the occurrence:—"Sir.—I much regret to have to report that a serious accident occurred this morning, about two-and-a-half miles north of Etola, to the through passenger train from Ahmedabad to Bombay. The engine is stated to have come in contact with a buffalo, and the result was that several carriages were thrown off the line—two double-storied third-class carriages being broken up. The company's consulting surgeon at Baroda telegraphs to me that ten third-class passengers were killed, and one more has since died; one third-class passenger is seriously injured, and six more slightly so. Medical aid has been afforded. The passengers killed and injured are said to be all Hindoos. Further particulars shall be sent as soon as received.—I am, &c., C. CURREY, Agent."—The telegrams received regarding the accident are from native officials, the Resident Engineer having been staying for a few days at Surat. But the telegram regarding the killed and wounded is from the company's consulting surgeon at Baroda, and may be relied on. The names of the unfortunate passengers who have been killed are not yet known. A special train left Bombay for Etola last night at eight o'clock, by which Mr. Duxbury, Traffic Manager of the line, Mr. Richmond, Chief Resident Engineer, and Captain White, Deputy Consulting Engineer for Railways, proceeded to the scene of the accident.—Bombay Gazette, June 29.

ADULTERATION OF FOOD.—So the London authorities are not to have it all their way. A curious case, recently tried by the Magistrate of Futtehghur, shows that their Aryan brethren of the shop-keeping persuasion in India are quite their equals in this art; and if not as much indebted to perverted medical science, their native sagacity is quite sufficient to supply them with materials for adulteration. The case was this. A man was found carrying into the city of Furruckabad an ekka-load of bags of powdered kunkur. On being questioned he stated that he lived close to some great kunkur quarries, and drove a regular trade by supplying powdered kunkur to some small buniads in the city. On this their shops were searched, and a quantity of similar bags found stored away for the improvement of the digestion of the lieges, and the stores of cummin, aniseed, mint seed, &c. (zeera souf, methie and mulunga), exposed in the shop were found on examination to be more than half composed of this pleasing ingredient, varied with a few pieces of broken brick. One of the culprits defended himself by asserting that the bags found in his shop were not intended to be mixed in, but adulterations he had sifted out of his wares; and on being asked why he had gone to the expense of packing the dust in bags, he replied that he sold it to cultivators as manure for potatoe fields. But as nobody had ever heard of such manure being applied, and no proof was forthcoming of it, the magistrate was forced to compliment him on the ingenuity, rather than the accuracy, of his defence, and to condole with him on the ill success of his endeavours to clean the seeds, which after so much sifting remained half full of kunkur. Also, it had to be pointed out to him and his fellows that it was a punishable offence by law to expose for sale adulterated articles of food. Had they confined their principles of combination to indigo seed, for instance, they might still be enjoying the profits of their trade with an easy conscience, instead of which prison and fine awaited them. They were carried off weeping piteously, and loudly repeating passages from that speech of Mr. John Bright's in which he asserted that most adulterations were wholesome and most false weights over-weight.—Pioneer.

COURT MARTIAL.

CAPTAIN A. B. CHALMERS, OF THE BENGAL INFANTRY.

At a general court-martial assembled at Rawul Pindee on Tuesday, the 25th May, Capt. Alexander Bishop Chalmers, of the General List of Bengal Infantry, was arraigned on the following charge:—

"With conduct unbecoming an officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in the following instance:—

"1st. In having, at Rawul Pindee, on May 30, 1869, after having been informed by Gunner James Clapperton, of the Royal Horse Artillery, that a woman then in his, Capt. Chalmers', company at the Peshawur Hotel was Gunner Clapperton's wife, struck the gunner, who was in the uniform of his corps, and openly driven the woman away from the hotel.

"2nd. In having, at Rawul Pindee, on the afternoon of Jan. 30, 1869, been again in company with the wife of the said gunner at the Peshawur Hotel, and then and there publicly entered into a personal conflict with him, during which conflict he, Capt. Chalmers, was struck and kicked by Gunner Clapperton."

We append the finding and sentence of the Court:—

"The Court finds that the prisoner, Capt. A. B. Chalmers, of the General List of Bengal Infantry, is guilty of the first instance of the charge, with the exception of the words 'struck the gunner'; is of the second instance of the charge guilty, to the extent only of having been again in company with the wife of the said gunner at the Peshawur Hotel on the afternoon of Jan. 30, is guilty of the preamble of the charge. The Court sentences the prisoner, Capt. A. B. Chalmers, of the General List of Bengal Infantry, to be reprimanded in such manner as H.E. the C. in C. may be pleased to direct. (Signed) S. BECHER, Colonel, President.

"Rawul Pindee, June 2, 1869."

The sentence has been confirmed, but Sir W. Mansfield makes the following remarks:—

"The C. in C. has confirmed these proceedings; but it is H.E.'s duty to state that he entertains the gravest doubts as to the correctness of the finding on the 2nd instance of the charge, H.E.'s opinion inclining to the view that the entire case of the prosecution in that instance is sustained by the evidence. Considering that the prisoner was found guilty of the preamble of the charge, that is, of conduct unbecoming an officer and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in addition to very significant portions of the two instances of the charge, the person who has suffered through the prisoner's conduct being a soldier who was liable at any time to be under his military orders, it is further held by H.E. that the sentence of the Court is not adequate to the occasion. The prisoner is hereby reprimanded in accordance with the sentence."

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

STAFF CORPS—COMMISSIONS.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Head Qrs. Simla, May 31.—No. 150.—In continuation of G.O. No. 226 of 1868, and G.O. No. 129 of 1869, candidates for the staff corps who desire to receive the price of their commission are cautioned to send in their application for the staff corps in sufficient time to allow for contingencies, with special reference to the fact that the period of probation counts from the date of appointment on probation with the sanction of Govt., and not from that on which their papers may first reach their commanding officers.

MUSKETRY—AMMUNITION.

No. 151.—An instance has occurred of a regiment armed with the Snider rifle, on arrival at a station just vacated by a regiment armed with muzzle-loaders, having found there no ammunition with which to commence its musketry course.

The C. in C. is pleased to direct that wherever, owing to difference in armament, the service and practice ammunition in store is not available for the use of the incoming regiment, the officer commanding the division or district will arrange that ammunition of a proper description and to the extent laid down by regulation is ready for the use of the relieving regiment on its arrival.

EXAMINATIONS—ARTILLERY SUBALTERNs.

No. 152.—Doubts having arisen as to the nature of that portion of the examination for promotion of artillery subalterns which is to be recorded in writing, the C. in C. is pleased to direct that the examination in the subjects prescribed for line officers shall be conducted as laid down in the second and two following sentences of paragraphs 162 and 163 of the Queen's regulations. The deputy adjutant general of artillery will furnish questions on professional subjects only.

The whole of the papers will be forwarded by general officers to the adjutant general, Simla.

LEAVE TO STAFF OFFICERS.

No. 163.—The following letter from the Secretary to the Govt. of India in the military department, to the Secretary to Govt., Fort St. George,

No. 1,078, dated March 23 last, is published for information and guidance:—

With reference to your letter, No. 825 of the 2nd inst., I am desired to acquaint you, for the information of the Govt. of Fort St. George, that an officer who obtains and proceeds on furlough to Europe during leave of absence in India, cannot retain his appointment for the full period of furlough for which such retention is allowed, excepting under Govt. general order No. 545 of 1867, when he is on sick leave out of his own Presidency.

2. That it has always been understood that no officer in or out of India can be absent from his appointment for a longer period in the whole than 2 years or 20 months (according to the rules he may be under) without vacating his appointment.

DRILL AND INSTRUCTION—GYMNASTICS.

No. 164.—With reference to G.O. No. 62 of 1867, the Commander-in-Chief desires that commanding officers will insert in their monthly diary of parades how many manoeuvres at each battalion drill were performed at the double.

FURLONGS TO OFFICERS IN MEDICAL CHARGE.

No. 2,665.—Extract from the proceedings of the Government of India in the home department (public), under date Simla, June 9.

Read a communication from the military department, No. 403, dated Feb. 9 last, with enclosures, on the question whether a surgeon in medical charge of a civil station, taking furlough under the new military rules, will be entitled on his return to resume the same medical charge.

Read circular to local Governments and Administrations, Nos. 1,110 to 1,118, dated Feb. 26 last, asking an expression of opinion on the following questions:—

1. Should a medical officer holding charge of a civil station be entitled, on return from furlough, to re-appointment to a similar charge, i.e., to a civil station, or one of the same class of civil stations?

2. Should he be entitled to return to the same station which he held before proceeding on furlough?

Resolution.

The Gov. gen. in Council, having considered the views expressed by the several local Governments and Administrations, is of opinion that a medical officer in charge of a civil station should, when proceeding on furlough, retain a lien on some similar appointment, i.e., the charge of a civil station of the same class, or some other civil charge of equal emoluments. He should not, as a general rule, have any claim to re-appointment to the same station.

THE MILITARY ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT.

June 18.—The following resolution of the Government of India, in the military department, is published for general information:—

No. 30.—Extract from the proceedings of H.E. the Right hon. the Governor-general of India in Council, in the military department, under date Fort William, June 2, 1869.

Read memorandum No. 637, dated Nov. 27, 1868, from the officiating controller general of military expenditure, suggesting that departmental officers, as well as those of the military account department, be required to adhere to the budget assignments in their respective expenditure and audit.

Read also financial resolution No. 1772, dated March 31, 1869, impressing upon all officers concerned the importance of strictly restraining all expenditure within the limits of the budget allotments.

Observations.—The Right hon. the Governor-general in Council in the military department considers that the existing rules, if fully acted up to, provide sufficiently for the restriction of expenditure within the assigned limits, and that any excess of expenditure beyond the amount of the sanctioned estimate and supplementary grants, if any, can only indicate a relaxation of the prescribed regulations, which should be rigidly guarded against.

2. However carefully the annual military estimates may be framed, with reference to the data available as to past actual expenditure, and with due regard to departmental requirements, they are of comparatively little value, if the assigned limits, when finally sanctioned, are not strictly adhered to.

3. There are certain grants in which the ordinary monthly expenditure is subject to little variation throughout the year. The pay of troops and establishments is of this character. In dealing with expenditure of this nature there is no difficulty, and whilst on the one hand no retrenchment should be made on sanctioned allowances, any excess in the current expenditure over the estimated limits of each grant, should be promptly brought to the notice of the head of the military account department, with an explanation of the causes thereof, in view to the same being reported to Government without delay. For the due check in this respect, the controllers and examiners of military accounts are wholly responsible.

4. There are other grants, as, for instance, those connected with the provision of material supplies, in which the monthly expenditure must necessarily fluctuate greatly, and its record can afford but little guide to officers of the account department.

5. In such cases, the officers charged with the administration of the respective departments must be held responsible so to conduct their duties of supervision as to prevent the budget allotment being exceeded, and to give timely notice, if unforeseen circumstances are likely to render increased outlay absolutely necessary, in order that due provision may be made and the requisite sanction obtained in time to obviate the chance of inconvenience.

Resolution.—The Right Hon. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to direct that the amount of the assignments under the several grants of the annual Military Budget Estimate is, under no circumstances, to be exceeded without the special sanction of Government.

The account branch of the military department, the several controllers and officers of the military account department, and the heads of departments concerned, will be held responsible that this principle is strictly observed, and that the existing regulations on the subject are practically and fully adhered to.

GUARDS AND ESCORTS.

No. 153.—An instance having come to the notice of the Commander-in-Chief in which a treasure escort was entrusted with private property for conveyance to its destination, his Excellency desires that in future such escorts are to be considered as special, and are not to be unnecessarily detained; or on any account to be encumbered with the charge of stores or property of any kind whatsoever.

TRAVELLING EXPENSES—PASSAGES—RAILWAY.

No. 154.—Government has been pleased to rule that in cases of officers proceeding on an ordinary tour of inspection, for which they are entitled to receive mileage allowance, the allowance will be passed, and a passage warrant for a charger granted in addition, when the officer is entitled to take a charger, for such portions of the journey as may have to be travelled by railway.

PASSAGES TO LUNATICS.

No. 155.—Under instructions from Government, it is notified that the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India has directed that insanes shall not be embarked in her Majesty's Indian troopships.

SCHOOLS.

No. 156.—With reference to Adjutant-general's circular No. 59, dated June 5, 1868 (see also G.O. No. 394 of Dec. 31, 1868), and in furtherance of the proper religious instruction of the children of the garrison, officers commanding at stations will arrange with commanding officers for the concentration of the children at convenient hours, with a view to their more effectual division into classes, according to the wishes of the chaplains at stations.

DISCHARGES—RE-ENGAGEMENTS.

No. 157.—Under instructions from the Horse Guards, the Commander-in-Chief in India is pleased to publish for guidance the following rules for the discharge of soldiers prevented by disability from re-engaging:—

1. Men who are prevented by disability for re-engaging, after two-thirds of their service, are not to be brought before a medical board unless from their state of health they would have been invalided in the usual manner.
2. Men who are prevented by disability from re-engagement and are not considered fit, should therefore continue to serve until they are invalided as unfit for further service; or until their limited engagement is about to expire, in which latter case only they will be dealt with under paragraph 1, 416 of the Queen's regulations.

Official Papers.

DUTIES OF THE GOVERNMENT, NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

The Secretary to the Government North-Western Provinces has addressed a letter to Mr. W. Jardine, with reference to his duties as Government advocate.

I.—The Government advocate will be expected to advise the Government and its officers upon legal questions submitted to him; to conduct the prosecution of European British subjects tried before the High Court, and in sessions cases, whenever called upon by Government to do so; to appear on behalf of Government in suits in which Government or its officers are a party, whenever instructed to do so by the board of revenue.

II.—References on legal points other than those relating to the institution or defence of suits original or appeal, may be made direct by the following officers only:—Secretary to Government in the general department, secretary to Government in the D.P. works, joint secretary to Government in the D.P. works, irrigation branch, and Sudder board of revenue.

III.—Instructions will be conveyed only by the Secretary to Government in the general department and the Sudder board of revenue.

IV.—The present rules for the institution and defence of all suits, either original or appeal, to which Government is a party, remain in force; every case, as hitherto, will be submitted to the board of revenue, who will either pass orders on it at once, or, should they deem it necessary, refer the papers to the Government advocate for opinion.

V.—Appeals to the High Court, or original suits transferred for trial to the High Court, will ordinarily be entrusted by the board to the Government pleader, and it will be his duty to consult the Government advocate whenever difficult or doubtful points arise in such cases.

VI.—Cases of special importance will be made over by the board to the Government advocate, and it will be the duty of the Government pleader in these cases, as well as in those entrusted to his own management, to attend to the proper conduct of all the miscellaneous and routine business connected with them.

VII.—He will be entitled to take up private practice, but not to hold briefs against Government, or against its officers, except with the consent of Government.

The Lieutenant-governor has authorised the Government advocate to entertain an establishment of a clerk on Rs. 120 and a duftry and two peons on Rs. 15 per mensem, subject to the confirmation of the Supreme Government, and also sanctioned a grant of Rs. 1,000 for the purchase of an official library to be attached to his office, and a yearly allowance of the same amount for the same purpose. He is to report from time to time, for the information of Government, the purchases made by him from this grant.

and £50. Mr. Day, Bengali, £10; Sanskrit, £10. Mr. Charles—Marathi, £10. Mr. Kelleher—Indian Law, £10; Bengali, £10; Sanskrit, £10. Mr. Philpin—Notes of Cases, £10; Marathi, £10. Mr. Loyd—Notes of Cases, £10; Hindi, £10. Mr. Fulton—Jurisprudence, £10; Gujarati, £10. Mr. Chalmers—Jurisprudence, £10. Mr. H. R. Cooke—Gujarati, £10. Mr. Udny—Hindustani, £10; Persian, £10 and £50. Mr. Pratt, Bengali, £50. Mr. Willock—Telugu, £10.

Miscellaneous.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs. 32,50,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, the 21st inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, Rs. 27,26,000, and to Madras Rs. 5,24,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on those Presidencies at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 39 per cent.; those above that price in full.

IN RE COOMALEE POOROOCHOTTUM.—This case came before the Bankruptcy Court on July 19. The bankrupt, described as a student at law, of Lincoln's-inn, residing in Quebec-street, Portman-square, stated on examination before the Registrar that he was the representative of all the native sovereigns of India. His debts were between £500 and £600. This was a sitting for last examination and discharge. The bankrupt, who had filed no accounts, failed to appear, and he was ordered to be proclaimed.

THE TELEGRAPH CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE COMPANY has manufactured up to the present time 360 miles of the British Indian cable. The greater part of this line is expected to be complete by the middle of November, and that portion upon which they are at present engaged should be on board the Great Eastern by the end of November. The big ship is expected off the Mersey on Sunday, July 25, but if she gets to her moorings by the following evening, she will have made an excellent passage. Captain Halpin will command the vessel on her voyage to India. The remainder of the line, the Red Sea sections, are to be laid from the Chiltern and Scanderia.

THE MAILS, &c.—SOUTHAMPTON, July 24.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's screw steamship Bangalore, Captain G. J. Babot, sailed hence to-day for Gibraltar, Malta, and Alexandria with the India and China mails, a general cargo, and 280 boxes of specie, jewelry, &c., value £180,533. 13s., consigned as under:—For Bombay—bar gold, £90,000; for Ceylon—sovereigns, £20,000; for Madras—sovereigns, £5,000; gold coin, £1,880; gold thread, £515; for Calcutta—jewelry and watches, £439. 13s.; for Singapore—dollars, £34,800. The Bangalore takes out nineteen first and twenty-two second class passengers, and fifteen proceed by the corresponding steamer from Marseilles, making a total of fifty-six, among whom are Lieutenant W. B. and Mrs. Pownall, for Gibraltar; Ensign Johnson, for Malta; Lieutenant F. W. Grenfell and Ensign Hamilton, for Bombay; Lieutenant Talbot, for Madras, &c.

RE NORTHERN ASSAM TEA COMPANY (LIMITED).—This was a petition before the Master of the Rolls, on July 19, by the holder of twenty fully paid £10 shares and two debentures of £100 each for the usual order to wind up the company. The petitioner alleged that the company was insolvent, and had carried on business at a loss since November, 1864. The petition was opposed by the company, on the ground that the company was solvent, save as to their debenture debt, the claims on which, it was stated, would be reduced materially if it should turn out that, in the hands of the present holders, they were subject to the equities between the company and Mr. Higgs, the original holder. A holder of 1,600 shares also opposed the petition. His Lordship made the usual order, with leave to apply to substitute a voluntary winding-up under supervision of the Court.

THE "ALBERT MEDAL."—The Queen has been graciously pleased to confer the decoration of the "Albert medal of the 2nd class" on Captain James Beautine Willoughby, R.N., the principal transport officer in Egypt. The following is an account of the services in respect of which the decoration has been conferred:—On March 3, 1869, while the 1st battalion of the 21st Regiment was disembarking at Alexandria from the Egyptian steamer Bird of the Harbour, one of the soldiers, who was fully accounted, fell overboard in a fit, and sank immediately. Captain Willoughby at once jumped into the water after him, dived, and got hold of him, and after considerable difficulty and danger saved him. When brought out of the water the man was insensible. The harbour of Alexandria is known to be dangerously infested with sharks, but in addition to the danger from sharks Captain Willoughby ran great risk from the fact that the soldier fell between the pier and the vessel, and that owing to the swell in the harbour both Captain Willoughby and the soldier might have been crushed.

WEBBER v. WEBBER.—This was a suit in the Divorce Court, on July 17, by the wife for a dissolution of her marriage on the ground of the incestuous adultery of her husband. The husband answered, and traversed the charge. It appeared that the parties were married in India, in July 1863. The petitioner is the daughter of Major Goolde, of the Indian army, and the respondent is a lieutenant in the 16th Regiment of Bengal Cavalry. After the marriage they resided at various places in India, but early in 1866 disagreements seem to have sprung up between them in consequence of the respondent's conduct towards a sister of the petitioner, Miss Julia Goolde, who resided with them. In consequence of these disagreements they separated in the latter part of 1866, and had never since cohabited, the petitioner having taken refuge with her brother at Cawnpore, who was the only relative who would receive her in consequence of the charges she had made against her sister. In support of the petitioner's case evidence was adduced, the most important of which was taken on commission in India, which proved familiarities of conduct between the respondent and his sister-in-law only to be accounted for by an adulterous intercourse going on between them. The jury gave a verdict for the petitioner, finding the alleged incestuous adultery proved; and the court pronounced a decree nisi, with costs.

THE NEW TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—The prospectus has been issued of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Company (Limited), with a capital of £600,000 in shares of £10. This is the portion alone remaining to be undertaken to complete the system of submarine lines between England and India, and as an agreement has been made with the Anglo-Mediterranean and British-Indian Submarine Companies for twenty-one years for co-operative working and division of through rates, the probable revenue seems to admit of being estimated with some approach to precision from the data already obtained by those undertakings. The total length of cable will be 2,456 miles (1,431 from Falmouth to Gibraltar and 1,025 from Gibraltar to Malta), and the cost under the contract with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company will be £640,000. The balance of receipts and expenses is calculated at £104,656, or over 15 per cent. per annum, after allowing a yearly appropriation of £5,000 to reserve, irrespective of the increase of business to be hoped for from the contemplated extension lines from India to China and Australia. The work is to be completed by the 31st of May next, at which date the entire line between Falmouth and Bombay will, it is believed, be complete. Meanwhile, it is added, "messages between England and India must traverse 2,000 miles of wire through France and Italy, and will continue liable to those frequent and vexatious interruptions and delays which experience shows to be inseparable from long land lines of telegraph."

THE ABYSSINIAN WAR COMMITTEE.—On the 20th July Admiral Mends, on being recalled, read a number of documents. He was understood to object to the system under which the transports were chartered. On being discharged they were entitled to the full amount of hiring. He thought it would have been much wiser to have had a certain sum fixed for discharge. He did not know, as a fact, that any of those ships obtained charters home or to any other port. Thirty-six ships were tendered, but only twenty-nine of these tendered according to the terms of advertisements. With regard to tenders which were rejected, although the rates were lower than those at which other transports were accepted, his instructions were to pay more consideration to the efficiency of the public service than to the rate of hire. The Minier, which tendered at 25s. per ton, to start immediately, no extra rate to be paid if she were discharged in India or at home, was rejected, whilst another ship was engaged at 32s. 6d. per ton per month, 17s. 6d. additional to be paid if discharged, and was not ready until fourteen days after the date of hiring. The terms of the contract were that all ships should be ready for immediate despatch, but this was subject to survey. He did not think that ships after being engaged could take advantage of the time occupied in fitting and repairing to make alterations so as to suit the purposes for which they were engaged. The Bosphorus was engaged at 32s. 6d. per ton per month if discharged at home, and 50s. per ton if discharged in India, and she was not ready for despatch until fourteen days after she was accepted. The Golden Fleece was engaged 12 months, and was paid £49,824; the Mauritius, engaged 13 months 12 days, was paid £42,872; the Queen of the South, engaged 13 months and 26 days, was paid £43,427; the total being £136,123. 17s. 4d. He was not aware that the whole of these ships shortly after their return were sold for £50,000. He had made an inquiry as to the rate per ton at which ships could have been bought at the time they were accepted. He had acted upon the instructions of Sir S. Northcote, and had conferred with him on the engagement of tonnage. There was a uniformity of opinion between them. Coal was sent by steamer to the Cape for supply to the transports, the cost being £6. 9s. 3d. per ton; whilst at Bombay coals might have been bought at £3. 10s. per ton. There would therefore have been an unnecessary cost for ships which could not have steamed themselves through. All ships were engaged by gross tonnage. That was the invariable rule in the mercantile marine.

THE NEW BAYONET.—The proposed new bayonet of the British infantry is the same as that supplied to the Irish constabulary. It is a saw-sword bayonet; that is to say, it has a sword edge and a saw back, while the point is as effective as that of an ordinary bayonet. It is of the same length as the present weapon, but the Martini-Heury rifle itself is 3½ inches shorter than the Snider-Enfield, and the total length of the arm as a pike is, therefore, reduced by so much. The committee, in recommending this saw-sword bayonet, appear to have had in view the fact that bayonets will henceforth be less frequently used than in former times as weapons of offence and defence; they desired, therefore, to substitute an instrument of more general utility. The efficiency of the weapon as a sword, as a saw, and as a bayonet, was carefully tested. With the sword edge a sheep was cut up into joints; and with the saw back the shinbone of an ox, a Norway spar, 2½ inches in diameter, another of 3½ inches, and a 3 inch balk of very tough dry elm were sawn through. The weapon, fixed to the rifle, was also thrust through a dead sheep with its wool on and wrapped in a great coat; and the security of the attachment of the weapon to the rifle was tested by twisting it about inside the sheep, and by driving it six inches through a 1-inch door, and allowing it to swing while sticking in the wood. Thus the soldier will have a tool as well as an effective military weapon, and one with which he can clear away wood, cut materials for fascines and gabions; or he can use it, if he likes, as a knife for cutting up his rations. The brilliant performance of the Martini-Henry rifle at Wimbledon will no doubt increase the weight of the committee's recommendations, and will give confidence to the authorities in adopting this weapon and its various adjuncts. There is one point on which we trust some further action will be taken, and that is in the reduction in the length of the cartridge. This may be effected by employing what is known as the "bottle-nosed" form of cartridge, the body of which is considerably enlarged, the chambers of the guns being made to correspond. Some experiments which have been made with this description of cartridge have been very encouraging; and there can be no doubt that it is much stronger than the long, thin cartridges which have hitherto been generally used. The base is of the service construction, and the body is made, like that of the service cartridge, of thin coiled brass, either with or without a paper covering. An internal paper lining will probably be adopted to prevent corrosive action on the brass.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, July 20.—GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT AMENDMENT BILL.—Mr. GRAVES asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether arrangements could be made for a morning sitting on an early day to consider this Bill.—Mr. GRANT DUFF hoped that the consideration of the Bill would not be long delayed, but regretted that he was not yet able to fix any day for it.

COURTS-MARTIAL AND MILITARY PUNISHMENTS.—Sir J. PAKINGTON asked the Secretary for War whether he would, during the recess, consider the report of the royal commission on courts-martial and military punishments, with a view to legislation in the next session of Parliament.—Mr. CARDWELL said that some of the recommendations of the royal commission had been already carried into effect. One important recommendation—that for the establishment of a central prison—was now under his consideration, in conjunction with the Home Secretary; and if he found that an estimate was necessary he proposed to submit one before supply was closed. It was his intention to consider very carefully during the recess the recommendations of the royal commission with regard to alterations in the Mutiny Act and the Articles of War.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, July 22.—THE OPIUM TRADE.—Sir WILFRID LAWSON asked the Under-Secretary for India whether it was true that, in consequence of the Imperial Chinese proclamation forbidding the cultivation of the poppy in China, it had been determined to increase the production of opium in the Bengal Presidency.—Mr. GRANT DUFF said it had been determined to increase the production of opium in the Bengal Presidency, but that determination was in no way connected with the Chinese proclamation to which his hon. friend alluded. The Government of India some time ago proposed to increase the growth of the poppy in Bengal with a view of obtaining a reserve of 10,000 chests of opium, and to offering for sale a fixed quantity of 48,000 chests in each year, exclusive of the opium sold to the retail traders. The object of the Government of India in proposing this was to steady prices, and to mitigate some, at least, of the uncertainties so embarrassing to the Indian financier which arose from fluctuations in the opium market. This proposal of the Government of India was sanctioned by the Secretary of State in Council as far back as March last.—Sir S. NORTH-COTE asked whether the correspondence on the subject would be laid on the table before the Indian Financial Statement was introduced.—Mr. GRANT DUFF made a gesture of assent.

HOUSE OF LORDS, FRIDAY, July 23.—THE INDIAN BUDGET.—The Duke of ARGYLL made his statement on the subject of the Indian revenue. He showed that in the ten years since the Mutiny the revenue had increased by over fifteen millions sterling—i.e., at a rate of 45 per cent., the revenue of the year preceding the Mutiny having been £33,378,000, and that of 1867-8 £48,534,000. Of the gross amount of increase £7,315,000 was due to increased or new taxation, but the remainder to the increase of returns from old sources, such as opium, the land revenue, and the Customs. Indeed, under several heads the increase of profit to the State had been accompanied by a reduction of the burden on the tax-payer, there having been, for instance, a very large reduction of the Customs duties, while, again, the proportion which the State derived under the item of land revenue, on which there had been an increase in every province in India, now did not exceed 25 per cent. of the produce, as against 50 per cent. formerly. He showed, moreover, that the two years which he had compared were ordinary years, and that the comparison gave no impression of the actual elasticity of which Indian revenue admitted in exceptional years. Turning then to the common belief that the Indian Empire had been for years in a state of chronic debt, he denied that this, as a rule, was true, and he explained that in particular it had not been the fact in three of the years since 1860. Contemporaneously, however, with the increase of revenue there had been in the ten years since the Mutiny a slightly greater increase of expenditure, leaving a deficit of about £1,000,000. The increase had been greatest in military expenditure, which he saw but little hope of reducing except as to the expense, now enormous, of recruiting; but other heads of increased expenditure were law and justice, the machinery of which had been hereby considerably improved; and £2,305,000 more than before the Mutiny was payable in respect of the Indian debt. As to that, however, he reminded the House that we were borrowing now on easier terms than formerly—viz. at 4 per cent.—and that the credit of the Indian Empire as it was stood higher than that of any European Power. Public works were a serious additional source of expenditure. The total result then showed that on the ordinary expenditure there was an annual deficit of one million, and on the expenditure on public works of from two to three millions. Such a deficit gave, he thought, no ground for alarm, our whole Indian debt not exceeding even now two years' Indian revenue; but he held there was ground for caution and for introducing greater economy where economy was possible. He suggested that the whole subject of State guarantees of the cost of public works required revision. In particular, in respect of the construction of railways, he sketched a plan by which the Indian Government should take railway making into its own hands, and construct the lines on its own account, borrowing the necessary capital on its own credit, and not through the medium of Boards sitting in London. He believed the Government could do the work both more cheaply and better than the experience of the last few years showed could be done where the body which contracted—and that body the Government—and which had to take the risk were different.—Lord HALIFAX had no morbid objection to increased expenditure on its own account, and he saw but little hope of reducing it; but he urged the expediency of facing the fact, and of taking measures to square the expenditure and the revenue. He was himself sceptical as to the alleged reproductiveness in the literal sense of expenditure on public works; but he admitted that was not of itself a sufficient reason against undertaking such works, and he expressed approval of the plan for the undertaking of railway construction by the Government. He regretted the failure hitherto of the efforts to start a system of unguaranteed enterprises in India.—Lord SALISBURY agreed with Lord Halifax on the dangers of Indian finance and the want of prudence among Indian financiers on the subject of a deficit. He pointed out the peculiar difficulties of an Indian financier, who could not, like an English one, have recourse to the Customs to repair a deficit, without raising at once a storm at Manchester. The military expenditure was the great sinner. On the other hand, though he allowed the fallacy of trusting to direct profit from so-called reproductive expenditure, he defended such expenditure against Lord Halifax, and believed that by improving the general resources of India it afforded the real means of balancing eventually expenditure and revenue. At the same time he concurred with the Duke of Argyll as to the wastefulness, and now, though perhaps not formerly, the needlessness, of the policy of guaranteeing railway enterprise.—Lord LAWRENCE deprecated as injurious even to our finances a great reduction in the numbers of the English army maintained in India, which—considering its proportion to the native troops, and considering also the population of India, its size, and the warlike disposition of many of its tribes, especially on the frontier—he denied was now excessive. He saw, moreover, no possibility of making any material increase in the existing taxes, but he suggested that the deficit might be lessened by relieving the Indian revenue from certain charges. For instance, the expense of soldiers who had passed the Indian frontier ought, he maintained, in fairness to fall on the English revenue, on the same principle on which India paid the cost of troops raised for its service before even they left this country. He insisted on the duty of expenditure on barracks and on the policy of expenditure on irrigation. On the question of the guarantee system he thought gratitude was due to the private enterprise which had started railways in India, but he was convinced the expenditure under guarantees was enormous, excessive, and unreasonable, and he warmly supported the plan referred to by the Duke of Argyll.—Lord LYVEDEN complained that the Duke of Argyll's statement did not go far enough. He should have liked to receive some information on our relations to the native States.—Lord FORTESCUE hoped the Duke of Argyll would not arrest the reform of barrack accommodation in deference to Lord Salisbury's suggestion.—The Duke of ARGYLL made some observations in reply.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, July 26.—THE INDIAN BUDGET.—In reply to Mr. CRAWFORD, Mr. GRANT DUFF said the statement made by the Secretary of State for India in another place would not interfere with the annual debate on Indian finance in that House.

NAVAL RELIEFS VIA THE RED SEA.—Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, with especial reference to the case of Admiral Sir H. Kellett, now under orders for India, drew attention to the practice of sending naval officers out via the Red Sea during the summer months, when the heat is so intense that it has been determined that the military forces should not be subjected to it. The hon. and gallant member, in illustrating the dangerous climate of the Red Sea at this season, mentioned a peculiarity in these waters that, from continuous evaporation, the sea has acquired a density one fourth more than that of the Indian Ocean, which prevents the keeping up of steam and quick passage. The heat of the surface waters is three degrees higher than that of the atmosphere. Mr. CHILDERS said there was no such practice as that of sending naval officers to India by the Red Sea during the summer months. On the contrary, it was the custom of the Admiralty to send officers during the summer and winter months by the long sea passage to India. As to extorting a promise that under no circumstances should any officer be sent to India by the Red Sea, he could only say that no such pledge could be given consistently with the exigencies of the public service.

MILITARY LABOUR.—Mr. CARDWELL (in reply to Mr. HANBURY-TRACY) said that the War Department was anxious to extend the system of military labour as far as possible, and he was in communication with his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief upon the details of the arrangements which were necessary for that purpose.

BRITISH OFFICERS SERVING IN INDIA.—Captain ANNESLEY asked whether the Government would grant the same rate of pay to officers of her Majesty's service serving in India, while on leave, which they had granted to officers of the Indian Service, and if so, from what date?—Mr. G. DUFF replied that the Secretary of State for India had, with the concurrence of the Secretary at War, determined to give the benefit of the New Furlough Rules of 1868 only to such officers of her Majesty's regiments as held appointments on the general staff, as was the case with the Rules of 1854.

PETITIONS PRESENTED DURING THE PAST WEEK.—By Mr. R. Shaw, from Burnley, against the import duties of the Indian Government on cotton yarns and goods; by Colonel Sykes, from Colonel Marriott, late 57th Bengal Infantry, and from Major M. J. Battye, late Bombay army, stating that, though guaranteed their rights, privileges, and expectations, by two Acts of Parliament, the Government by amalgamating the Indian and British armies has occasioned them serious pecuniary loss in their subscriptions to regimental Bonus Funds and praying for redress; by Lord H. Scott, from Lieutenant-colonel H. L. Biril, retired, late 48th Regiment Bengal Native Infantry, praying for compensation for loss of bonus on retirement consequent on the amalgamation of the Indian armies.

The postage on letters may either be paid in advance or left to be paid on delivery, at the option of the sender; but in all cases where the postage is not fully pre-paid, the Letters will be charged, on delivery, with one additional rate of Ninepence, besides the usual postage.

This increase of postage will not affect the Letters of Officers of the Army and Navy serving in India and Ceylon; such Letters will continue to enjoy the privilege of transmission at the reduced postage of Sixpence the half-ounce, via Southampton, and Tenpence the half-ounce via Marcellis.

In the case of Newspapers, Books, &c., the prepayment of the postage is compulsory. Parcels must not in any case exceed 5 lbs. in weight, or be of greater dimensions than twenty-four inches in length, and twelve inches in width or depth.

A French line of Mail Packets leaves Marcellis every fourth Saturday. Postage for Letters and Papers to India and China the same as is charged by the English Mail, via Marcellis. Letters intended to be forwarded by these Packets must be specially addressed—"By French Mail Packet from Marcellis."

Up to the end of September the dates of despatch from London will be the Thursday evenings July 8th, August 5th, September 2nd, and by supplementary Mail on the morning following.

VERY UNLIKELY.—A rumour is afloat that the Director General of Telegraphs in India has issued a circular to the effect that in future no admissions shall be made into the Department save from among those of pure European extraction. Those natives and Eurasians who are at present in the Department will however be permitted to remain, until by casualties and dismissals the service is entirely weeded of them. We can hardly credit the rumour, but we give it for what it is worth.—Deccan Herald, June 25.

C H L O R O D Y N E

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 21st, that "108 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorizing a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 14d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

Price 6s., by post, 6s. 6d.,

THE TEXTILE MANUFACTURES

AND THE COSTUMES OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA

Prepared under the Authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

By J. FORBES WATSON, Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial quarto, morocco back, cloth, with numerous coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

THE TIMES.—"On no point, perhaps, in regard to India, has greater ignorance prevailed in England than in respect to the clothing of her vast population. Late as it is, and for the first time within the last hundred years of our Indian domination, the work just completed by Dr. Forbes Watson supplies this great and almost unaccountable want of information, and supplies it, too, in a most complete and intelligible manner. It would be impossible to follow Dr. Watson's work in detail; but, whether to the manufacturer or to the general reader, the interest throughout will continue unbroken. His book is written in a clear and thoroughly intelligible style throughout; it is handsomely got up, and embellished by numerous coloured photographs, from which the various styles of costumes and portions of clothing, male and female, will be more readily understood than from mere descriptions."

THE ATHENÆUM.—"We may safely say that a more important work on the manufactures of India has never been given to the public, than the Industrial Museum, and this Commentary by Dr. Forbes Watson. Advantages are sometimes slow to follow, even when the channel for them has been skilfully made and clearly marked out, but we certainly do anticipate very great results from this work, and that before long its author will be acknowledged to deserve a place amongst the real benefactors of India."

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW.—"It is a matter of national importance to study and ascertain what the traditions of India in respect to dress really are. This task has been most ably performed by Dr. Forbes Watson in the volume before us. We call attention to the work and to the subject, not as a matter of mere curiosity, but as an inquiry of direct interest to the manufacturing industry of Europe. Dr. Watson has evidently brought his personal Indian experience to bear upon a mass of materials which, in less skilled hands, would most likely have proved wearisome and unintelligible. As he has arranged his details, they are as entertaining to the general reader as they are full of information and instruction to the manufacturer."

THE MORNING POST.—"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains, and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce."

THE ART JOURNAL.—"The work, indeed, is as well fitted, as far as embellishment is concerned, for the drawing-room table as it is for the study; and its contents will be found far more interesting to the general reader than its mere designation would lead to a supposition that it might be. The motive and purpose of its publication is highly creditable to the present Home Government of India."

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI-MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS of the JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.
In bottles, small, medium, and large.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO-THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable
to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of Dandelion, Turkey Ru-
barb, and Jamaica Ginger.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER
TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.,
postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness
and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

In general debility, mental depression, and nervous irritability, there is no medicine which operates so like a charm as these Pills. They purify the blood, soothe and strengthen the nerves and system, give tone to the stomach, elevate the spirits, and, in fact, make the patient sensible of a total and most delightful revolution in his whole system. They may be commended most unreservedly as the very best family medicine in existence. Though so powerfully efficacious, they are singularly mild in their operation, and might be given with perfect confidence to delicate women and young children. They contain not a grain of mercury, or any noxious substance, and cannot do harm. Delicate females and all persons of sedentary habits will find these Pills a blessing.

THE PEOPLE OF INDIA:

A SERIES OF PHOTOGRAPHIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF
THE RACES AND TRIBES OF HINDUSTAN, ORIGINALLY PREPARED UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, AND REPRODUCED AT THE INDIA MUSEUM
BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL

EDITED BY

MEMORANDUM.

In addition to the copies of this work prepared for the use of the Government, the Secretary of State for India in Council has authorised the publication of an edition for sale.

The work will contain about 450 Photographs on mounts, in eight volumes, super-royal 4to., and it will be issued at £2. 5s. per volume.

PREFACE.

During the administration of Lord Canning, from 1856 to 1863, the interest which had been created in Europe by the remarkable development of the Photographic Art communicated itself to India, and originated the desire to turn it to account in the illustration of the topography, architecture, and ethnology of that country.

There were none, perhaps, in whom this interest was awakened more strongly than in Lord and Lady Canning. It was their wish to carry home with them, at the end of their sojourn in India, a collection, obtained by private means, of photographic illustrations, which might recall to their memory the peculiarities of Indian life.

The great convulsion of 1857-58, while it necessarily retarded for a time all scientific and artistic operations, imparted a new interest to the country which had been the scene of, and to the people who had been the actors in these remarkable events. When, therefore, the pacification of India had been accomplished, the officers of the Indian Services, who had made themselves acquainted with the principles and practice of photography, encouraged and patronised by the Governor-General, went forth, and traversed the land in search of interesting subjects.

In this way the design soon exceeded the dimensions of a mere private collection; but Lord Canning felt that its importance was sufficient to warrant official sanction and development, and, therefore, placed the matter in the hands of Mr. Olive Bayley, his Home Secretary. Some of the more important results appear in the present work.

The photographs were produced without any definite plan, according to local and personal circumstances, by different officers; and copies of each plate were sent home to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

After a time, it appeared that a sufficient number of illustrations had been received from various parts of India, fairly to represent the different varieties of the Indian races. The negatives remained in India; but from the plates sent home it was easy to produce fresh negatives, the prints of which might be multiplied to any extent. The Secretary of State in Council sanctioned this operation, and the work was executed by Mr. W. Griggs, at the India Museum, under the superintendence of Dr. Forbes Watson.

In many cases some descriptive account of the tribes represented accompanied the photographs sent from India. These varied greatly in amplitude and value. But, on the whole, it may be said that they were sufficient to constitute the basis of the sketches contributed by Mr. John R. Melville, Colonel Meadows Taylor, Mr. Kaye, Dr. Forbes Watson, and others. These sketches do not profess to be more than mere rough notes, suggestive rather than exhaustive, and they make no claim to scientific research or philosophic investigation. But although the work does not aspire to scientific eminence, it is hoped that, in an ethnological point of view, it will not be without interest and value.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, July 6; Agra, July 3; Calcutta, July 2; Madras, June 30.

India in general seems to be rejoicing over the cooler weather brought in by the somewhat tardy monsoon. Complaints of excessive heat are now being replaced by reports of good and evil resulting from the more genial rains. One instance of the evil comes from Cashmere, where the Jhelum had risen "higher than it had been known to do during the present generation," and flooded the country far and wide. The visitors had to escape in boats from houses many feet deep in water, and some of the houses have fallen, while the rest are unfit for habitation. The damage done by the flood is reckoned at eighteen or twenty lakhs.

POOR Captain Thackwell, who had to lose an arm through wounds received from a tiger near Baraitch, has since died from the combined effects of the wounds and the amputation. Another officer, out shooting in Cashmere, has had a similar encounter with a wounded bear. Captain Cherry, of the 5th Fusiliers, was following up his wounded prey in thick jungle, when the bear jumped out upon him, and the two rolled together in deadly grapple, the captain defending himself as well as he could with his gun. Before his companions could put an end to the brute, the captain had received in all nineteen wounds.

SOME further particulars of the accident on the Bombay and Baroda line will be found in another page. The cause of the accident, a stray buffalo or bullock, is owing, as we reported last week, to the bad state of the fences. Since the failure of an attempt to plant hedges of prickly pear along the line, nothing particular seems to have been done towards wiping away the reproach cast on the management by Colonel Strachey. The Government however has ordered a strict inquiry, with special reference to the state of the fences.

THE inquiries into the loss of the Great Northern and the Bucentaur have ended in a verdict of acquittal for the captain and officers of the former, but the captain of the Bucentaur, who lost his ship through want of judgment, has had his certificate suspended for six months.

By way of a counterblast to the language lately used by some members of the House of Commons, the Governor-general has issued a minute marking his high appreciation of the zeal and industry displayed by the Military Accounts Department in Bombay in making up the accounts of the Abyssinian Expedition. The Indian Government has also granted £5,000 in aid of the sum subscribed by the public towards building a library and museum at Allahabad to the memory of the late Mr. Thornhill, C.S.I. The private subscriptions amounted to £2,500.

THERE is not much doing at Simlah or anywhere else in the way of legislation. It is expected that Mr. Bullen Smith, President of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, will succeed Mr. Bullen in the Viceroy's Legislative Council. The Indian papers have been discussing Mr. Maine's Minute of October, 1868, which has lately appeared in the Gazette, in reply to the charge of over-legislation so often made against the Indian Government. It is a very able and sufficient defence of his own career as Law Member. Very little legislation originates with the Supreme Government. Most of the work done by the Supreme Council results from its being the local legislature of many Indian provinces. In fact, its legislative progress is often far too slow to please the local governments. The Council "seldom meddle with private rights;" they "only create official duties." The law courts also are "getting ever more rigid in their demand of legal warrant for the actions of all men, officials included." The best check on legislation is "to discover expedients by which its tendency to hamper discretion may be minimized." There should be large powers "of easily altering rules when they chafe," entrusted to the rulers of the wilder parts of India. This defence, the substance of which was made known here some months ago, has been heartily endorsed by a letter of last April from the Duke of Argyll.

MR. MOROBA CANNABA's marriage with a Hindu widow has proved in one way a lucky speculation. His bride has been well set up in marriage gifts. One sympathising noble sent her a present of Rs. 1,000, and other sums have been subscribed by other friends of progress, to an amount which has enabled the Widow Marriage Association to secure the lady a nice little settlement for her especial benefit. There is good in store also for other widows willing to marry again, as the Liberals of Bombay have already started a movement for a general marriage fund on their behalf.

INDIAN geologists have not hitherto been very successful in finding good beds of coal. With the exception of Ranigunj there is very little known coal in India which repays or would repay the cost of working. A new bed however has at length been explored in the Chanda district of the Central Provinces, somewhere between Nagpore and the river Wurdah—a region hitherto famous for its good cotton. For some years past Captain Lucie Smith, the Deputy Commissioner, has been reporting traces of coal in Chanda over a space of nine hundred square miles. One of the six seams discovered by him was eleven feet thick, all excellent coal. Mr. Mark Fryar, the Mining Geologist, has fully endorsed the accuracy of the captain's estimates and urged the Government to begin mining at once. Most of the coal lies in uniform layers at a depth of less than 300 feet. At Googoo, up the Wurdah above Chanda, Mr. Fryar declares there must be two square miles of coal 14 feet 8 inches thick, besides an upper layer of five feet nine inches. This alone would yield 600,000 tons for thirty years, thus exactly doubling the present annual yield of Indian coal, which is only about equal to the outcome of one good English colliery. It is believed that more coal-beds will turn up between the Wurdah and Hyderabad. At the lowest estimate this Chanda coal must be half as good as English, which costs Rs. 18 a ton at Bombay, and twice that sum at Nagpore, where the native coal could be brought by a branch railway for Rs. 10 a ton. There would thus be a practical saving to the G. I. P. Railway Company of eight rupees a ton, if not more. Which will benefit most by the new discovery, Bombay or Madras? The coal-bearing district lies handy both to the Godavery canals and the Bombay railway system. A good deal of the cotton is already destined to float down to Coconada. On the other hand, Bombay and Carwar are the natural outlets for homeward borne cotton.

IMAGINATIVE people in Madras looked on the murder of Lieut. Brooking as somehow indicative of general disaffection in the 35th N.I. Some of the papers declared that more sympathy was shown with the murderer than with his victim, and that the former had been buried with unusual pomp. In a general order subsequently issued, the Commander-in-Chief of Madras takes occasion to deny the truth of any of these stories. The havildar alone was concerned in the crime, to which he had been worked up by "brooding over fancied wrongs." No one else in the regiment had any knowledge of his design. No sympathy with the crime prevailed among the sepoys, "but the reverse." Eight of the havildar's relatives and connections attended his funeral, which took place in the simplest manner at night. No reasonable being would surely begrudge a little display of natural feeling for the greatest criminal in the world, and this particular criminal had driven himself, we are told, to "the verge of insanity," if not beyond it.

A BOMBAY telegram of July 31 informs us that Shere Ali's rebellious nephew, Ismail Khan, whose life his uncle had spared, has escaped from the party who were escorting him to Kohat, and is now hiding somewhere in Afghanistan. His two brothers will soon be in safe keeping at Lahore. All is quiet in Afghanistan.

ON Monday a new drinking-fountain, the gift of Cowasjee Jehangheer Readymoney, a well-known merchant in Bombay, was inaugurated by the Princess Teck in the centre of the Broad-walk, Regent's-park.

ON Friday next the Duke of Argyll purposes to distribute the decorations of the Star of India at the India Office among the newly-appointed companions of that Order. For this departure from former usage his Grace deserves no small praise. If the Star of India be an honour worth receiving, its bestowal should be marked as a rule by some sort of fitting ceremony, and who more fit to emphasize the occasion than the Minister who represents the Crown in its dealings with the people of India? Even Englishmen are not quite proof to the charm of a little display in these matters, and we can hardly doubt that the recipients of this particular honour would rather be endowed with it at the hands of the Indian Minister than get their decorations direct from the Heralds' Office.

It is finally arranged that Sir Neville Chamberlain, who is now in this country, shall act as official guardian to the Duke of Edinburgh during the stay of his Royal Highness in India. Every one out there is looking forward to the Prince's advent as the signal for an outburst of extraordinary pomps and feasting, which will throw all past achievements into the shade. It is whispered that Lady Mayo intends to spare no trouble or expense in the entertainments which it will be her special province to direct.

THE deserted wife to whose hard case we drew attention last week must bear with us for seeming to question the entire truth of her statement. Her further explanations and references leave little room for doubting that she and her child have been shamefully neglected by a husband who is at this moment drawing good allowances at a pleasant station not far from Bombay. If he will not spare the small sum—£120 a-year—awarded for their maintenance by Lord Penzance, a little pressure from his military superiors might force him to deliver them to that extent from unmerited suffering. We can hardly venture to publish the offender's name at present, and, as we said before, how to obtain redress is a difficult question. But our correspondent will be glad to hear that a strongly-worded despatch has just been sent out to the Indian Government, bearing on her own and similar cases, which we are sorry to believe are not rare.

In a letter to a contemporary Major-general J. D. Macpherson rectifies one of those little mistakes which the most accurate of historians cannot help sometimes committing. The writer of the "Lawrence" articles in Blackwood had said that Colonel Macpherson's proposal to take away the caps from the sepoy's muskets at Lahore, in May 1857, was suggested by a "hint" which Captain R. Lawrence had received from a Moonshie of the Thuggee Department, as to the mutinous spirit of the sepoys. The Major-general denies that any such hint had ever "been made known" to him, when he suggested that the sepoys should be deprived, "not of their percussion-caps, but of their ammunition." This suggestion, first made by him to Mr. Montgomery in private talk on the evening of May 10, he repeated two days after during a consultation held at his house. It was not till then that he "first heard of the hint given to Captain Lawrence by the Moonshie." The mistake in itself is very trifling, and it must have occurred to more than one person that the easiest way of drawing the sepoys' teeth was to cut them off from their ammunition. But as General Macpherson was the first to advise that course, with no aid from extraneous hints, to him should belong the credit of what he did. And it seems from his account that Brigadier Corbett at first shrank from the responsibility of taking away the men's arms as well as their ammunition, but afterwards resolved to "go the whole hog and disarm them altogether." It was indeed a very difficult question, how far to go in the matter of disarming doubtful regiments, but the result in this case showed the superior advantage of going "the whole hog."

SPECIFICATIONS OF INVENTIONS.—The under-mentioned specifications of inventions have been filed, under the provisions of Act XV. of 1859, in the office of the Secretary to Government of India in the home department:—Mr. Shamrow Ram Chunder Gurrood, merchant of Dhoolia, in the Collectorate of Khandeish, in the Presidency of Bombay, for half pressing cotton, wool, or other fibrous substances. Mr. James Watson, of Calcutta, engineer, for an improved hydraulic press, or invention for compressing and packing jute, cotton, or other similar bulky articles. Mr. W. J. Addis, C.E., and Local Fund Engineer of the Collectorate of Tanna, in Bombay, for improvements in cars. Mr. Patnam Sotima Aroona Chillum Aachary, of Nellore, for an improved method of raising water for irrigation.

SCHOLARSHIP.—With reference to the notification of Oct. 27, 1868 (published in the Calcutta Gazette of Nov. 4), it is notified that an examination for a State Scholarship, tenable in Great Britain, will be held in the Theatre of the Presidency College, Calcutta, on the 4th, 5th, and 6th Jan., 1870. The subjects of examination will be—English Literature, Prose and Poetry (two papers), Mathematics and Natural Philosophy (two papers), History, England and India, including Geography (one paper), Mental and Moral Science (one paper). Every candidate must send an application to the Director, Public Instruction, on or before the 1st Dec. next, accompanied by—1. A certificate of good character from the chief authority of the school or college at which he has been educated. 2. A certificate from the same authority that his age will not exceed twenty-one years on the 31st Dec. next. 3. A medical certificate declaring that he is physically capable of undergoing the course of life and study which he will have to follow in Europe. 4. A fee of Rs. 10, which will not be returned. The application should also state whether the candidate has passed the entrance examination, and the first examination in Arts of the Calcutta University.

CASUALTIES BY DEATH IN THE INDIAN SERVICES, &c., REPORTED SINCE LAST PUBLICATION.

H.M.'s FORCES.—Capt. Thackwell, 5th Lancers, at Baraitch, June 24, from the effects of wounds inflicted by a tiger.
MADRAS.—Major M. A. Worsop, Madras Staff Corps, at Thayemyo, May 12; Dr. H. C. Brock, Madras Medical Establishment, at Madras, May 27.
BOMBAY.—Mr. Christopher, 19th Regt., at Rawal Pindee, in June, of fever; Lieut. Gen. F. T. Farrell, H.M.'s Bombay Army, at Hyde Lodge, Winchester, aged 70, July 17; Capt. R. S. Gilmore, late Bengal Artillery, at Bayswater, aged 40, July 18; Major Gen. R. Farquhar, C.B., late of the Bombay Army, at Manchester-street, July 22.

THE INDIA OFFICE DESPATCH ON RAILWAYS.

THE publication of the Indian Minister's despatch on railways fills up the outlines sketched for us in his recent speech before the Lords. It is a noble scheme whose features we are thus enabled to scan so closely. It comes in good time to enforce the lessons conveyed in the progress of the Indian railway system, as first started in the days of Lord Dalhousie. Four thousand miles of that system have at length been laid at a cost far exceeding the estimate of its viceregal author, under conditions not the most favourable for its due development. Guaranteed companies, over whose dealings the Government wields but a limited and vague control, are not likely to employ their funds and resources in the best or cheapest way. Out of the eighty millions spent in twenty years not a little has been wasted in scamped work needing constant repairs, and in supervision of the costliest and often the least efficient kind. The terms of the bargain between the Government and the companies have been rather like those struck between the dwarf and the giant of the old fable. The former has borne the hardest of the fighting, while the latter or their agents have reaped the main share of profit. Of the twenty-six millions advanced to the companies in guaranteed interest, the Government as yet has received back little more than half. It may be true enough that no other system would have ensured to Indian railways the start they have now taken; but it is equally clear that the old state of things called for early revision, in view of the great work that still remains to do, before India can be placed on the same productive level as Europe or the United States. Instead of 4,000 miles of finished railway 40,000 would hardly suffice for her growing needs. At the present pace and the present rate of outlay she would fall more and more behind the mark of her just ambition.

A new and more promising start, however, is now on the point of being made. The despatch above mentioned points out two different processes for the simultaneous development of Indian railways. In the first place come certain extensions of existing lines, which the existing companies are invited to carry out under revised conditions. In future the net profits above the guaranteed rates of interest will, as a rule, be divided equally "for all time" between the companies and the Government, while nothing will be said about repayment of interest. If the companies should fail to carry on their undertakings as prudently and cheaply as the Government would have them do, the latter will at once take the works over into their own hands. In this way a tight hand can be kept on all concerned in building the railways, while the shareholders will still pocket their 5 per cent., with the chance of a larger surplus than they would else be getting for many years to come.

On the other hand, there is a whole class of railways which the Government means to build by its own agency, in order to "secure for itself the full benefit of the credit which it lends, and of the cheaper agencies which ought to be at its command." Such are the lines already sanctioned or surveyed, from Lahore to Rawal-Pindi and from Carwar to Hooblee; and such are the lines of the Indus Valley, of Rajpootana, from Kulbarga to Hyderabad, and from Kooshtee towards Darjeeling. Mooltan and Sukkur will soon be linked by a railway, which can afterwards be carried down to Kotree or Kurrachee, to the common benefit of trade and military defence. The advantages of a line from the North-West Provinces through semi-dependent Rajpootana to Bombay are beyond dispute. For nearly the same reasons, political as well as commercial, the line from Hyderabad to a point on the southern branch of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway deserved the sanction it has now received. The Carwar line will open a new outlet for the cotton and coffee of Southern India. The line from Kooshtee we may hope to see some day carried into Assam. All these projects will cost time and money; but it is not unlikely that under the new arrangements some eight thousand miles of new railway will be constructed in the next twenty years at something like Dalhousie's estimate of £12,000 a mile. We only hope that the Government will succeed in borrowing its money at 4 per cent.

MILITARY PROGRESS.

As last it appears that a couple of English generals have been allowed to carry the peaceful mimicry of war to a length hitherto untried in our army. About a year ago we pointed out various lessons which English soldiers might learn with advantage from those of other States. Since then, one or two good moves have been made in the right direction. The Horse Guards have awakened to the conviction that some knowledge of military spade-work will be required of all soldiers by the exigencies of modern warfare. In future officers and men of the line will know how to throw up entrenchments in front of the enemy, perhaps even to help the Pioneers in making roads, as they have long been doing in India. In due time we may even hope to hear of their rivalling the French in the art of building their own huts and draining their own encampments. For the present however we may note with thankfulness the adoption of the spade as a military weapon, followed up by the invention of a bayonet which can also be used for sawing and cutting up wood. It is pleasant also to learn that the question of improvements in soldiers' drill is once more engrossing the official mind, and to believe that a few years hence our parade movements will be carried out at a pace a little faster than that of a regiment marching round in review.

The last great stroke of military reform in England however deserves greeting with a double flourish of trumpets. As we pointed out last year, it has long been usual in the Prussian army for two commanders to take out two bodies of troops into the open country, and there carry on the mimic warfare against each other in utter ignorance of each other's plans. They enter on a brief campaign of so many given days over a given space, like combatants in a game of chess. Each has to try and outmanœuvre the other according to the best of his own judgment and military skill, and their common chief awards to the winner his fair meed of praise and future remembrance. How such a system tends to beget good strategists, it were waste of time to point out. In England however we have hitherto been content to restrict our games of military chess to a few pieces and a few preconcerted moves; a system which naturally leads to reminders like that once made by the Duke of Wellington, as to the very few officers who could be trusted to take twenty thousand men successfully out of Hyde Park. For various reasons, among which want of space has been insufficiently pleaded, no attempt has been made either here or in India, where space is never wanting, to bring out the capacity of our higher officers for the task of swimming alone in matters strategical.

A few days ago however an attempt of the kind was made for the first time, at the suggestion, it seems, of Sir Alfred Horsford, who commanded the flying column that took part in the review at Wimbledon. During his march back to Aldershot he proposed that, somewhere between Chobham and Aldershot, a force from the latter place should come out to bar his homeward progress, while he himself should try to outwit his opponent by superior manœuvring. The Duke of Cambridge accepted the scheme and agreed to act as umpire. Marching early from Chobham, Sir Alfred massed his troops at Pirbright behind some rising ground that concealed him from an enemy posted along the Fox Hills in his front. One of his advanced infantry pickets soon exchanged shots with a cavalry patrol of the enemy, which it had nearly surprised. Sir Alfred then moved his troops forward along the road from Pirbright to Aldershot, keeping the hills on his right and front, towards the point where road and hills meet near the Aldershot camp. From the woods and heights before him the enemy's pickets were clearly seen, and the way seemed fairly barred against him. Some way on his left front however rose a hill which the enemy had forgotten to seize. Towards this spot of vantage a dash was at once made by Sir Alfred's horse and guns. Having gained the prize, they held it manfully against all assailants, until the advancing infantry came up to their support. Under cover of this new position Sir Alfred moved forward with extended line, his left leading. After some further fighting one of his field batteries opened fire from the left, and the day was virtually won when, at the sounding of the bugles, the left of his force almost touched the bridge of the canal which bounds that side of Aldershot camp. As a first attempt at independent manœuvring this day's work was most successful. But there is ample room for repeating the experiment on a larger scale over a longer space of time, say, for three or four days together, the troops carrying their own tents and rations in the lightest marching order.

A good opportunity would then be found for still further testing the merits of the "blanket hammock" as a substitute for sleeping on the ground. This useful arrangement, invented by Major M'Guire, and tried successfully by various officers, from Lord Paulet in 1864 to Lord Napier in 1868, consists merely of a blanket hung between two light sticks at about ten inches from the ground. The whole apparatus weighs only six pounds and a-half. Its general use in standing camps or under the ordinary conditions of carriage, instead of the heavier and less wholesome straw mattresses, was strongly advocated by General Scarlett. Of its special usefulness for field hospitals there is no doubt whatever. Lord Napier of Magdala employed it largely for carrying the sick and wounded in Abyssinia; and Colonel Hort, of the 36th foot, hopes "to see every soldier ordered under canvas" provided with one of these hammocks, "which he can perfectly easily carry in his pack." When we remember what our soldiers have always been liable to suffer from sleeping on damp ground during hard service, we need never begrudge the small increase of cost that might sometimes be involved in the carriage of an equipment whose use, wherever practicable, would save hundreds of lives in every campaign, to say nothing of the minor evils it would help to avert. The occasions would be very rare in which these hammocks could not be carried for every combatant, either by beasts of burden or the men themselves. It may be true that Sir W. Mansfield has pronounced against them, and that the Indian Government has "not seen its way to their adoption." But Lord Napier's experience counts far beyond that of the Indian Commander-in-Chief, and it is confirmed by a hundred voices little less significant than his own. Even in India there is ample room for the blanket hammock in aid of the doolie.

Notices of Books.

The British Quarterly Review, No. XCIX. July, 1869.
Hodder and Stoughton.

Not the least noticeable item in the very good bill of fare set before us in the last number of the British Quarterly is the paper on Lord Lawrence, a condensed but well-informed and carefully written narrative of the late Viceroy's Indian career. If its freshness of effect is somewhat weakened by the previous appearance of Blackwood's articles on the same personage, we can find no other drawback worth naming to the real merits of an essay which contrives within thirty pages to give the reader a very clear impression of the services rendered to British India by a man who, aided by no external advantages of birth or political connection, has "written his name on so many memorable pages of Indian history." The reviewer does full justice to the simple strength of character and steadfastness of principle which marked the rise of Lord Lawrence to the post he has finally relinquished at an age when he can still "look forward to an extended career of usefulness" at home. In the same pages that tell admiringly of the deeds done by Sir John's lieutenants in 1857, we are reminded of the special honour due to the Chief Commissioner himself who saved India by stripping the Punjab of troops. His demands for mercy to the vanquished after the worst of the storm was over, are brought into prominent notice. His management of the Bhotan campaign, a legacy bequeathed to him in fact by Lord Elgin, is fairly criticised so far as he was answerable for the delay in beginning the war. The defence made for his policy towards Afghanistan will be contested only by those who see danger to India in every advance of the Russians in Turkistan. The reviewer's estimate of Sir John's domestic policy is fair, though somewhat meagre; but we miss all allusion to Sir John's connection with the progress of the Orissa Famine. The last sentence of the essay may be quoted for its essential truth:—"He ruled India with eminent prudence, integrity, and benevolence; he never forgot that the end of government is the welfare of the governed; and it was his constant study to elevate the moral and intellectual character of the entire administration committed to his charge."

Spirit of the Indian Press.

SERVING UNDER A NATIVE

The Times of India deems it a serious question whether the service as a whole will be as good and as well adapted for its purposes now that a few, but an indefinite number of native civilians will be found in its ranks. It admits that for our English civilians to become "as a class less highly qualified than they now are" would be a grave misfortune for India, and the admission to the service of native civilians at such a price would be a dear bargain for their own country. But is this result sure to follow? Will the liability "to serve under a native" deter any appreciable number of English candidates of the high character and capacity that India needs? This is not a question that can be settled beforehand. Until tested by experience it must be purely matter of opinion, but conjectures on the subject are not without interest. Much will depend for a while on the tone which may be adopted by the home press when, next "silly season," it may find time to take up stray Indian topics like this. It will be as easy, indeed, far easier for home writers by mixing up their vaguest notions of ethnology, while cleverly humouring deep-rooted insular prejudices, to present the wrong instead of the right side of it towards the public. The mere phrase "to serve under a native," is so inadequate as in itself to constitute a misrepresentation. Amongst the more frivolous part of society it will simply convey the notion of humiliating subservience to the will of persons who, though officially superiors, are inferior in race, in attainments, and in manners; but it is not the frivolous or the mere nouveaux riches of English society that supply competitors for the Indian civil service. Those likely to become candidates, if not at first sufficiently well informed themselves, have friends who can readily explain to them, that "serving under a native," which may not happen more than during a year or two of their whole career, simply means the according ordinary deference to one who, though diverse in race, is their equal in attainments, in character, and in social position. It is, at the most, to yield that due respect to position, superior and fairly won rank, which, almost from the first day of entering the service, the young English civilian expects and receives from men who are often twice his age, and, it may be, in many respects more thoroughly conversant than he can ever hope to be with the practical side of administrative work. The name of the thing, the notion of receiving orders from a superior of slightly darker skinned race may be "unpalatable;" but when such a contingency is looked at fairly and with all the circumstances—especially taking into account the presumably superior character of native civilians—the prospect loses most of its dread. Those who are likely to be deterred by the thought of this contingency from entering on the career of an Indian civilian are persons whom India can very well spare. The possibility of occasionally working with or under a member of native race will have the very least weight amongst the classes of all others from whom, as a rule, the best Indian civil servants are drawn—those connected for generations past with either the civil or military services of the Old Company. And looking round on home society, we observe numerous classes—who as yet have scarcely begun to contribute candidates for Indian service—whose members are of high character and with capacity for any amount of work, and little likely to be influenced by the thought that they have to compete for equal honours with some few natives of the country they aspire to govern. What effect the conspicuous presence of native civilians will have on the average tone and attainments of English civilians must, as we have said, be a matter of guess or opinion, and that for two or three years at least; but our own estimate is that this gradual accession of Indian-born civilians will not render the English civilians "as a class less highly qualified than they now are."

DISQUALIFIED NATIVE CANDIDATES FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The Hindoo Patriot, commenting on the disqualification of two of the Bengali civilians by the India Office Commissioners, declares that the whole thing smacks of a tempest in a teapot. If the Civil Service Commissioners knew that the natives of India count their age from the commencement of a year they enter upon and not on its completion, as Europeans do, and that the University authorities in India require the candidates for the different examinations to fill the column of age by stating simply the number of years they may have attained and not the fractional months and days, there would not have been this mistake and confusion. For instance, a native though in the sixteenth year is often called sixteen years old. According to the old Supreme Court practice, as soon as a minor had completed fifteen years and seven months he was considered to have attained majority, though legally it commenced from the completion of sixteen years. We are glad to learn that several old Indians have interested themselves in this matter, and come forward to explain the native mode of calculating one's age, which lies at the root of the misunderstanding. We sincerely hope that the next mail will bring the welcome intelligence that the storm has blown over.

HILL COLONIES.

The Englishman asserts that it has again and again been shown that if land were to be had ad libitum for the asking it would not pay European colonists to cultivate it with any produce cultivable with small capital. Even in the plains, where the economical conditions are most in favour of the producer, Europeans cannot make the cultivation of the ordinary crops profitable by employing native labour. A fortiori they could not make it profitable labouring themselves, if it were possible for them to do so, for their labour is more costly than that of natives. The reason is simply that they have to compete with the natives, whose expenses are much smaller, and who can therefore afford to undersell them. In the Himalayas, where the climatic conditions are the best, the economic conditions are worst. There is no near market for the produce, which must be carried to a distance at a maximum of cost; and all the necessities which European colonists would have to import must be more expensive there than in the plains. Some of the Bombay and up-country papers have carried the discussion a step further by proposing that inducements should be held out to Europeans in India to become sheep farmers. Government is recommended to grant extensive runs of pasture land to time-expired Europeans, on certain conditions, regarding the supply of meat to the troops. This is, perhaps, the most impracticable of all the suggestions that have yet been made. In the first place, we believe the Australian system of sheep-farming to be impossible in India. The sheep would be all destroyed by wild beasts, or stolen, or killed by the weather. Sheep will not thrive, will not even survive, in India without careful attendance. To be fitted for the table moreover, they require an artificial and expensive system of feeding. Sheep-farming on a large scale is barely possible at all in India, and only with an outlay which time-expired Europeans could not make. Sheep-farming is, besides, inconsistent with the social conditions which would be essential to successful colonisation in this country. If a colony of Europeans of limited means is ever to thrive and perpetuate itself in India, it must be thoroughly compact and self-contained. Sheep-farming on a large scale means isolation. If any European colonisation is at all practicable in India, it is by manufacturing, not by agricultural communities. We think we could devise a colony of artisans of different crafts with just agriculturists enough to supply their own wants, who could pursue an enjoyable and profitable existence; and we think we could find places for them. With respect to some manufactures everything would be as much in their favour as everything is against them in respect of agriculture, cheap raw material, absence of competition, and a good demand. We think such colonies would not only themselves succeed, but prove of immense advantage to the country.

JUSTICE TO BURMAH.

The Friend of India insists that a glance at a map of the province will show what regions stand in most need of being put in communication with the seat of Government. Moulmein can be saved only by a good road to the frontier, with feeders to the chief forest reserves. On the other hand, it must be put in connection with Tavoy or Mergui, of the necessity of which Lord Dalhousie satisfied himself in 1853. A road across the peninsula, from one or other of the ports on the Bay of Bengal to Bangkok, has so many political and commercial recommendations that we need only allude to them. But with regard to a province so systematically neglected as British Burmah has been, we have no hope that speculative considerations will influence the action of Government. The labour difficulty in Arakan is pressing, and can be met only by opening up a road across the Yoma hills to the Chittagong tracts. Embanking works are being surveyed for on a large scale between the Irrawaddy and Bassein rivers, and General Fytche is disposed to utilise those embankments to connect Leymythna with Henzadah, two of the most populous towns in the province. Feeder roads are wanted along the river stations on the Irrawaddy. The Rangoon and Prome railway will also necessitate the construction of feeders, and all present calculations should be shaped with a view to the possibility of that project being undertaken at no distant period. The position taken up by the Public Works Department towards Burmah is childish even to petulance. In the face of a series of annual reports each testifying in more striking terms than its predecessor how little the local Government has been able to achieve, the Department expresses its entire contentment with the present state of affairs, and is rather chagrined that General Fytche will not share in the ecstasy of self-gratulation. We see no stronger claims that the Central Provinces and Oudh have upon the Imperial Government than British Burmah, yet the one gets £4 and the other £1.10s. for every pound sterling grudgingly spent upon the more remote province. But, it may be argued, "British Burmah has no need of such large sums. General Fytche, in his memorandum on British and Native rule, has shown how rapidly the province was expanding; how its revenue from all sources had doubled in ten years; that its commerce also had doubled, and its population increased from a million to two millions and a quarter in the same period; surely a little of this elasticity might be applied to the development of its own communications." But British Burmah is not allowed to benefit by her own progress. With the increase of her surplus the Government of India is getting more disposed to deny to the people the fruits of their own industry. That Burmah has made such progress need be no subject of congratulation to the Imperial Government, for, beyond the advantages of a fixed rule, the province owes it nothing. It is to be hoped that Lord Mayo will at no remote period be able to satisfy himself of the necessities of Burmah, and that he may deem her not unworthy of a place in that programme of "peace and public works" with which the beginning of his administration was heralded.

THE EX-RAJAH OF SHAHGURH.—The ex-Rajah of Shahgurh, who was deposed and banished from Bundelkand after the Mutinies, has been living at Lahore since that time, but the climate of the place has never agreed with him. He has constantly complained of ill-health, and in compliance with a recent application, the Governor-General in Council has been pleased to permit him to reside at Delhi in future.

CASHMERE.—News has reached us of a most disastrous flood in the Cashmere valley. Rain began to fall at Srinagar on the afternoon of the 8th instant, and continued for some thirty hours without intermission. The Maharajah, fearing that the embankment which protects the city might not be strong enough to resist the rising flood, at once sent boats for the accommodation of the European visitors, and advised that all should have recourse to them. Some at once complied, but others lingered on in their houses, believing that as the rain had abated at the capital there was no imminent danger. But on the mountains which surrounded the valley the black clouds lowered, and rain was falling incessantly, turning the feeders of the river into torrents, and adding to the volume of water which was rushing onwards towards Srinagar. Early in the morning of the 11th the bund showed signs of distress in some places, and the waves were dashing over it in others, and all who had not done so previously took to the boats, made for rising ground in the neighbourhood, and, according to the last accounts, were living in the little tents which nearly every one who goes to Cashmere takes with him. Most of the houses are either in ruins, or their foundations have been so sapped as to render them uninhabitable. The crops, which promised so fair, have been deluged, for the whole country is under water, and the loss of revenue to the durbar is expected to be very considerable. Throughout this critical time the Maharajah has shown the greatest anxiety for the comfort of visitors, and for the alleviation of distress amongst his subjects. The loss of life has been restricted to three natives.—Pioneer.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE MAHARAJAH OF BHURTPORE.

The Maharajah of Bhurtpore having attained his majority by completing his eighteenth year, the following new arrangements for the government of the State have been sanctioned by his Excellency the Viceroy in Council. His Highness will carry on the administration, assisted by a State Council of six Sirdars, on the same principles which have obtained during the minority, for the next three years, until he is twenty-one, subject to a code of rules drawn up by the Political Agent in consultation with the Agent of the Governor-General, and approved by the Viceroy. The Political Agent will cease to take any direct part in the conduct of affairs, but will exercise a general supervision over the administration, as well as over that of Ulwar, Kerowlie, and Dholepore, which have been united with Bhurtpore into one agency of the Eastern States of Rajpootana. All the present officials will continue to carry on their duties, and for the next three years at least things will go on as heretofore.

The Maharajah was formally installed according to these conditions on Thursday, the 10th June. A full durbar was held by Captain Walter, at the Palace, and was attended by all entitled to appear. After the usual preliminary ceremonies, Captain Walter addressed the Sirdars. Having explained to them the new arrangements, he continued somewhat as follows:—

This is a day of great pleasure to me. It is now upwards of thirteen years since I first became acquainted with the Maharajah, then a very young child. Under my eye he has grown up to manhood, and it is by myself, under the orders of Government, that his Highness is now invested with the power to administer the affairs of his country. To-day happens to be my birthday. I am not an old man yet, but it makes one feel old to see those whom one has known as small children grow up to youth and manhood. Many of those whom I knew when first I came amongst you are now no more. It is true that their places are not empty, their sons or relatives succeeded them, but nevertheless to me their places seem empty. Some of them died at a ripe old age, others were cut off in the prime of life. Life at the longest is all too short for the work we ought to do in this world, and you must recollect that as a man acts here he will be acted by in the world to come. I fully believe that to him to whom much authority and power are given in this world, of him will much be required hereafter. I congratulate the Maharajah on attaining to power, and to the government of the country of his ancestors, many of whom were great and good men. In some things, perhaps, our ancestors may have been in advance of us, but in most we are ahead of them. Kadimi destur (ancient custom) is a very good thing in some respects, but when it stands in the way of progress it must be set aside. Within the last few years Bhurtpore has advanced; it has fought against Kadimi destur and often gained the victory. I have now only to thank those who have been connected with me in carrying on the duties of the government of the State, for the assistance they have rendered me; and I hope they will continue to render the same to the Maharajah. You have an old and well-known proverb, "The ruler for the time being is always considered a tyrant." I to-day lay down the reins of office, and I hope you will, therefore, consider that with them I have also discarded my character as a tyrant. And if, perchance, during the time I have been administering the affairs of the country I have treated any one with tyranny I hope I may be forgiven.—Friend of India.

STATION TALK.

FYZABAD, June 23.—A few nights ago a horrible murder was committed near one of the barracks of H.M.'s 1-11th Regiment, which is involved in profound mystery. The victim was a punkah coolie, whose body was discovered near one of the barracks close by a dry tank, with a deep bayonet or some other sharp instrument wound in his chest. I have not been able as yet to get full particulars, but will let you know when I do. Up to this time the finger of suspicion has pointed out no man to whom the crime might be brought home and outraged justice avenged, but the police are on the qui vive, backed by a reward of Rs. 200, and stimulated to establish a little reputation for detective abilities, which the police as a body sadly lack, as I will show. Last year a horrible and mysterious murder was committed just outside the city on the road to Ajoodhia, the particulars of which I gave you at the time, and in December last a boy about six or seven years of age was kidnapped or made away with for the sake of his ornaments. The perpetrators of both these crimes are still at large, and these facts do not speak well of the detective abilities of our police. The weather has been very hot, but a shower on last Friday morning cooled it down to a bearable temperature. Notwithstanding such intense heat, I am glad to say that not a single case of coup de soleil has occurred this year, while last year it played sad havoc among the men of the Artillery.

June 26.—I am sorry to say that cholera is still raging in the district, but in the city it has almost disappeared, owing to the sanitary measures adopted by the Municipal Council. All the wells in the city were cleared of their deposits, and the conservancy arrangements well attended to. It is a matter of great congratulation that both the European and the native troops were singularly free from this scourge. Since the 23rd instant we have had some showers, and there is every indication of the monsoon having set in in right earnest.

DELHI, June 26.—The rains have at last set in, and a nice blustering breeze they made of it. For the last day or two there have been dust storms, but no rain until about 4.30 P.M. yesterday, when there was a heavy downpour, accompanied by a gale of wind, which has uprooted many fine old trees, snapped others in twain, and torn off branches from almost every one in the station. The college grounds, St. James's Church compound, and the Queen's Gardens have all suffered, and the Hamilton Serai has lost one of its gilt vanes (unfortunately not the peacock) and a portion of the steeple to which it was attached, and the peacock himself looks as though he was about to take flight, being considerably out of the perpendicular. The roads are covered with fallen trees and branches, but I do not think that any other damage has resulted. The air is not much cooler, but the damp is pleasant, and the trees and grass look beautifully green. There is, I hope and trust, more rain near at hand, for the air is very heavy and muggy, as is, I believe, the usual thing in the rains; but it is better, after all, than the dry, hard-baking westerly wind we have had for the last two months.

JUBBULPORE, June 28.—At last we have the rains on us, and we can fully appreciate the blessing after so many trying months of drought, heat, and sickness. The foliage and grass are looking quite green again. We had some severe dust storms daily before the rains fairly set in, and the first few showers were accompanied by strong wind from the North-West. The writer from Morar to your paper, who complains of the want of sympathy towards soldiers located at that station, as compared with the attention shown to their comforts here, must not think that Colonel Walter, of the 2-12th, has only a soft side. But the colonel believes in the principle that there is a time for everything. The other day, I am told, he had the regiment out on parade, and having been dissatisfied with some evolutions they went through, he formed three sides of a square and warned them that they had not seen his rough side yet, and that they should do better in future if they wished to avoid seeing it. The artillery amateurs gave a theatrical performance the other night, but the attendance was very poor. Work seems to be getting slack in the building of the artillery barracks. They are to be double-storied, and the roof of the first has not yet been completed. I hear some lakhs of bricks, which were being made for these and other military buildings, were washed away by the rain. There will probably be a profit and loss account to settle between the Government and some lady. Sites are being given to parties desirous of building in the military cantonments, so that there may be enough of houses available for occupation when the officers attached to the Saugor Brigade Staff arrive here after the monsoons. Railway works in the station are at a standstill, so that there is not much chance of the Duke of Edinburgh passing through Jubbulpore on his way to Calcutta.

ALLAHABAD, June 30.—I trust the annual rains have set in. This morning we enjoyed a glorious shower of more than two hours, and as the dark clouds are still heavily laden, there is every indication of another downpour. The thermometer has lowered from 96 degrees to 91—an appreciable decrease in the temperature, which must diminish the number of casualties. Partly from light duty, and partly from being located in different parts of the station, the 58th continues to improve. It has been finally settled that the regiment will go to Lucknow by next November. The transfer is judicious, and approved both by officers and men; for this station, with all the advantages of situation—the seat and centre of the North-West—presents no attractions on which to regale during any season of the year, much less the hot winds, when everything around us appears to be decaying or decayed for the want of culture. No gardens with luxurious verdure, in which the gloomiest might while away an hour with advantage, and no other recreations to engage the mind, except a solitary treat given by some amateur troop passing through the station for more fashionable retreats. I am assured by an elderly gentleman who is an old resident of this place that he never experienced so hot and trying a season, and never before noticed so many animals and birds die from its influence. I asked him what they died from, and he significantly replied, "Heat apoplexy."

MYNPOORIE, June 30.—The weather keeps very hot here; the thermometer is 98 degrees in the shade. To-day it is cloudy, and I hope we shall have rain soon. A very heavy flight of locusts passed over this morning; the period of flight lasted upwards of an hour; the high wind ultimately blew them away; they came from the east and went westwards. Should this dreadfully hot weather continue, I fear many poor people will be dying from famine. Grain is selling, wheat at 12 and gram 13 seers for the rupee; ruinous prices for anyone, especially the poor.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

CHOLERA IN SAUGOR.—There were nine hundred and thirty-five persons attacked with cholera in the district of Saugor, from the 12th to the 19th June, out of whom eight hundred and eleven died. How long, asks the Jubbulpore Chronicle, will the district stand such frightful devastation?

Miscellaneous.

THE PUNJAB AND DELHI RAILWAY ran their trains into Delhi for the first time on Thursday, July 1.

LAWRENCEPORE.—The new station of Sydn Bowles is to be officially named Lawrencepoore, in honour of the late Viceroy.

THE PURSER OF THE "MONGOLIA."—It appears from a paragraph in the Madras Mail that the directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Company have marked their sense of the neglect alleged by the majority of the passengers against the purser of the steamer Mongolia, on a recent voyage from Suez to Calcutta, by reducing his salary £100 per annum.

PLEASING DILEMMA.—The Mofussilite understands that it has been made incumbent on Mr. Keene, the traffic manager at Lahore, either to submit to a summary dismissal from his appointment, or prosecute Indian Public Opinion for libel and defamation. Meanwhile Mr. Keene has been suspended, and Mr. D. Ross appointed to officiate as traffic manager.

PAPER PETTICOATS.—The Pioneer, alluding to the fact that paper petticoats are now sold in London at sixpence each, remarks:—"What a suggestion for the Indian outfitter! Strong tissue paper would suit admirably for the hot weather; blotting paper would be invaluable in the rains; while good stout wall paper would be appropriate for the cold season."

ALARMING PRECAUTION.—The passengers on the East India Railway are said to have been lately a good deal surprised at the anxiety displayed by the guards as to their health. Any passenger at all inclined to be stout is visited at every station by the guard, who inquires affectionately after his health, and cautions him in emphatic language not to go to sleep. To a nervous passenger this would almost be worse than the constant fear of sunstroke.

BURMESE STUDENTS IN CALCUTTA.—Eighteen Burmese youths have been sent to Calcutta by the King of Burmah, under the charge of two superintendents, to learn gun-casting, and the manufacture of arms. Eleven of them are now under instruction at the Cossipore foundry, and the arsenal in Fort William. The Government of India has agreed to their remaining in Calcutta for two years, or more if necessary, for this purpose, on condition of their good behaviour whilst so engaged.

CIVIL.—It is rumoured in Calcutta, that on the departure of Mr. Dampier on leave which he has obtained for two years, Mr. J. A. Crawford, Collector of Customs, will take up that portion of Secretariat duty which has hitherto been discharged by Mr. Dampier. It is believed to be the intention of the Government of India to appoint Mr. J. R. Bullen Smith an additional member of Council in succession to Mr. Bullen. Mr. Smith is President of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.

BURJUR SINGH.—We hear from Bundelkund that Burjur Singh is still at large. Both the district superintendents of police of Humeerpore and Jaloun were on his track; but the artful Ahetree managed to slip through their fingers, through the assistance, it is supposed, of some zemindars of his caste, who afforded him shelter and the means of escape. Three of his followers however were arrested; but they either could not or would not betray the retreat of their leader. These men have been committed to prison, but one of them, we are informed, has since managed to escape from the district jail at Jaloun.—Pioneer, June 28.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.—A correspondent from Meerut informs us that on Friday night last a heavy dust-storm blew over the station, followed by heavy rain, thunder and lightning. The force of this storm started some empty railway trucks or waggons at the Khotowlee station of the Delhi Railway, about twenty miles from Meerut, towards Umballa, and brought them down the line with great force. As good fortune would have it, a telegram despatched from Khotowlee reached Meerut just as the up-train for Umballa was about to start. The train was in consequence delayed for about three hours, till the line was cleared. The despatch of this telegram was a happy circumstance; for if the train had left Meerut before the waggons started from Khotowlee, there would have been a serious collision, and probably some loss of life. Who would have been blamed—the wind or the Khotowlee station-master? Can no precautions be taken against such occurrences?—Pioneer, July 2.

MANDALAY.—The Rev. Mr. Marks has arrived at Mandalay with a staff of thirteen Burmese teachers. He has a large house and a school building erected, in the Burmah Poonghee style, with a triple roof. The King has directed some of his sons to attend daily to receive instruction in English. The ground on which the school-house is built formerly belonged to one of the rebel princes, the Maloon Mentha, now in Bengal. The Shan States have been causing some trouble to his Mandalay Majesty, and a force of a thousand men has been sent to strengthen one of the frontier stations, Then-nie. The Panthay, or Chinese Mussulmans at Mandalay, have raised Rs. 20,000 for the purpose of building a mosque in that city, which has been sanctioned by the Burmese Government. We also learn that Captain Strong will soon be proceeding to Bhamo as Political Agent there. Another officer will accompany him, and his salary will be Rs. 1,250 per month.—Indian Daily News.

RAJAH AMEER HUSSUN KHAN, a talookdar in the Seetapore District of Oudh, is said to be so overjoyed at the birth of a son that he has ordered a lakh of rupees to be expended in festivities and rejoicings.

DEATH OF MRS. TURNER.—We regret to learn that Mrs. Turner, the wife of General Turner, died at Simla on the 25th June. The Fancy Fair, which was to have been held next day, was put off in consequence. Mrs. Turner was highly popular, and her death is deeply regretted.

CABUL.—The Delhi Gazette repeats in its Cabul letter the report that a Persian force in the interest of Azim Khan is marching on Herat. The Bombay Gazette confirms the statement that the Ameer has resolved to divide the Government of Turkestan. The Ameer will retain the passes in his own hands. The new police system appears to be working well, and the Ameer has now determined to raise a new army, paid entirely by the State, and entirely dependent on it. For this army cantonments are to be built at Cabul, Herat, Balkh, and Jellalabad. Sooltan, the Lahore contractor, it is said, will be entrusted with these works; that at Cabul is to be carried out at once. The infantry soldiers are to receive eight rupees and the cavalry twenty rupees per mensem. This scheme is popular. The Ameer seems to give preference to the recruits from Khoorum.

THE AMEER'S ARMY AND FINANCES.—The Ameer's attention seems to be divided at present between the reorganisation of his army and the adjustment of his finances. His object seems to be to reorganise the army somewhat after the English plan, which excited his admiration so much during his recent visit to India. He proposes that his regular army should consist of 26,000 men, composed as follows:—Thirty regiments of infantry, each 600 strong, making a total of 18,000; regular cavalry, 6,000; artillery and Jezzailchees, 2,000—total, 26,000. This would be a very respectable force at any time, but in addition he has it in contemplation to entertain some irregular levies. The revenue of the entire country amounts to only seventy-one lakhs of rupees, or about £700,000. An ill-supplied treasure chest is, therefore, the greatest difficulty Shere Ali has to contend against in his proposed reforms; but he appears determined to effect a reduction of expenditure so as to make both ends meet.—Pioneer.

DACOITY IN BENGAL.—The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal appears determined to put down dacoity in his province. Of late this crime has been practised with wonderful success in the districts of Hooghly and Midnapore, and the ordinary police seem utterly unable to cope with it. Thus Mr. Buckland, the Commissioner of Burdwan, reports that in the Hooghly district, during the first six months of 1868, eleven cases of dacoity had occurred, and not one of the accused or those concerned had been convicted. During the whole of 1868 no fewer than thirty-four cases occurred in the same district, sixty-three persons were brought to trial, and only ten convicted. During the first three months of 1869 nineteen cases occurred, and in scarcely any one of them was a conviction obtained. The state of things in Midnapore and Burdwan is scarcely better. It was not too soon, therefore, that Mr. Grey issued stringent orders, which we trust will be productive of good results. The Inspector-General of police has been instructed to concentrate the entire strength of the Detective Department in the Hooghly and Midnapore districts, and to keep them there until dacoity is utterly stamped out.—Pioneer.

THE LATE CAPTAIN THACKWELL.—The officer commanding the 5th Lancers has paid the following graceful tribute to the memory of Captain Francis John Roche Thackwell in his regimental orders. Captain Thackwell was the fourth son of Sir Joseph Thackwell, Bart.:—"The commanding officer is much grieved at having to announce to the regiment the death of Captain Thackwell. He was severely bitten by a tiger on the 26th of May, since which time he has been constantly suffering great agony with the utmost courage and patience. Death has come very prematurely to one who had a noble and generous heart, and whose manly and truthful character endeared him to all. There was a sincerity, a generosity, and an unselfishness which appealed directly to the hearts of all those with whom he was brought in contact. The officers lament him as a brother, the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers as a staunch friend and kind adviser. The regiment has sustained a great loss, the extent of which can only be measured, now that nothing remains of him but the great respect and the great love for his memory. The name of Captain Thackwell will always be associated in the annals of the regiment with all that is good, manly and virtuous."

ECCLESIASTICAL.—It will be remembered that the Government of India took exception to the Rev. Mr. Aitken's appointment as Educational Inspector in Berar, on account of his being a clergyman. But the Secretary of State, having regard to the circumstances of the case, and especially to the fact that Mr. Aitken, though ordained, had never undertaken or performed clerical duty, did not withhold his sanction. But he has at the same time desired that it may be distinctly understood that the appointment is quite exceptional, and that the rule which precludes ministers of religion from holding educational appointments in India is to be strictly adhered to in future.—A new Cathedral Church is to be erected at Allahabad, according to a sketch design by Mr. William Emerson, of this city, and Mr. Emerson has, we learn, been already appointed.

We are glad to see that the talent of this architect is not lost to India, as we feared it would from his recent return to Europe.—Bombay Builder for June.—The Bishop of Calcutta left for Assam and the eastern districts on the morning of June 28. Government have again appointed a chaplain, the Rev. Albert Eschelbach, to the charge of the Free School Church. This gentleman is said to be a sensible and eloquent preacher, and earnest in manner, and his sermons seldom go beyond twenty minutes.—Indian Daily News.

INGENIOUS FRAUDS ON GOVERNMENT.—A revenue circular, just published, informs us of a rather ingenious dodge practised by the natives of this country to obtain the Government rewards for the destruction of wild beasts. As soon as a tiger or other large animal is killed, the skin is taken off, the real skull taken out, a false one substituted, and a reward obtained. The real skull is then also produced with some flesh adhering to it, proving it to have been freshly killed, and another reward is given. But the process is carried still further. Whole skulls are manufactured by pieces being joined together, covered with a compound of ghee and putrid flesh slightly covered with some liquid resembling blood, and skin being stretched over this when moist, holes are made for the ears, eyes, and nostrils, and the deception is complete. Another method is to insert tiger's teeth into the skulls of jackals and dogs, and then cover them with tiger skins, and even this has been found sufficient to deceive the unsuspicious and ignorant officials. The Board of Revenue have now sanctioned a fresh scale of rewards for full-grown, and half the same rates for young beasts, at the same time pointing out that these rewards are only to be paid on the production of a complete skin and skull, the latter to be invariably destroyed in the presence of the district officer, or his deputy, or assistant, and the district officer is to ascertain that his subordinates are fully qualified to tell a real skull from a made-up specimen.—Englishman.

CASES OF HEAT APOPLEXY.—It is reported that, some time last week, four women were in a country cart travelling from some place on the Cawnpore road to Allahabad, but before reaching the Allahabad city the driver was found dead on his seat, and on the police looking into the cart they found all four women dead also. The bullocks with the cart went up to a police chowkey and stood there, when the discovery was made. These people, it is supposed, died from heat apoplexy. Another sudden death from heat apoplexy is reported on the East India Railway line. On the 25th June, on the arrival of the up passenger train at Toondla, Schoolmaster J. Thomson, of the 58th Regiment, was discovered dead in a carriage. Last Thursday a Mrs. Kemp, a passenger in one of the trains, was feeling unwell, and on arrival at Allahabad broke her journey and remained in the ladies' waiting-room. In the evening, some time after five o'clock, she told the ayah who waits on ladies that she felt very ill, and the woman on hearing this went and informed the station-master on duty, but before he had time to go and see the poor lady she was in a fit of convulsions. The station-master, however, did not lose any time, but sent for the railway apothecary, who unfortunately was not at home. The lady, we regret to say, died shortly after, it is believed from heat apoplexy. If medical treatment had been obtained there might have been some chance of her recovery. It is not known whether she was going up or down country.—Daily News, June 29.

MILITARY.—It is said that the Secretary of State has decided that the appointments with the frontier batteries and all native batteries of artillery are to be considered as staff appointments, and that officers holding them are to be allowed to retain them during furlough.—We regret to learn the death from heat apoplexy, at Thyat Myo, in Burmah, on the 12th of May, of Major M. A. Worsop, of the Staff Corps, and officiating Wing Officer 36th M.N.I. Major Worsop's first commission was dated 11th December, 1846.—We stated last week that Captain Thackwell, of the 5th Lancers, who was so severely mauled by a tiger, had been obliged to lose his arm, owing to mortification having set in. Now we regret to hear of his death at Baraitch, the news of which reached his regiment at Lucknow on the 25th ultimo. Dr. Atkinson, who was proceeding to Baraitch to afford the deceased professional assistance, met, strangely enough, with an accident on the way. He had a fall from his horse, and fractured his collar-bone.—A letter from Cashmere announces that Captain Cherry, 5th Fusiliers, had been brought in to Srinuggur terribly mauled by a bear, while shooting in the Tilail Valley. He received nineteen wounds altogether, in all parts of the body, from head to foot, but was doing well. It appears he was following up a wounded bear in heavy jungle, when the beast jumped out upon him and got him down. He defended himself gallantly, thrusting his gun into the bear's mouth, as the broken locks show, when Major Rowland, his companion, and the shikarees came to his aid and finished the brute.—We are glad to hear that the 58th Regiment at Allahabad has once more succeeded in shaking off cholera. The regiment can scarcely regret leaving Allahabad; they have been there only six months, and during the greater portion of that time they have been much knocked about, between camp and barracks, owing to the prevalence of cholera amongst them. The regiment is now under orders to relieve the 102nd at Lucknow in the beginning of next cold season. The first battalion 17th Foot from England will replace the 58th at Allahabad, the 102nd from Lucknow going home via Jubbulpore and Bombay on relief by the 58th.—The Delhi

Gazette has heard that the military authorities have it in contemplation to issue an order whereby those of the Indian Army who may be unable or unwilling to pass the linguistic tests prescribed by regulation, by a certain date, would be disqualified, ipso facto, for appearing mounted on parade. "Whether," says our contemporary, "this is done by way of a punishment, or with the view of enforcing compliance with a requisition which is so obviously just on the face of it, and in behalf of which self-interest alone ought to turn the scale, we cannot say, and we may add that we merely give the above as a rumour for which, however plausible, we cannot accept the honour of sponsorship."—Captain R. G. Loch, 20th Hussars, has been appointed aide-de-camp and private secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.—With reference to the mule mountain battery, under command of Major Hughes, which is stationed at Chungla Gullee and Kaira Gulle, near Murree, and some account of whose movements has already appeared in our columns, we are informed that the European portion of it is to be relieved (?) every three years by a similar contingent from some garrison battery in the plains. This arrangement appears to be but fair.—Delhi Gazette.—A contemporary learns from Rawul Pindies that a young officer of the 19th Regiment, named Christopher, who had only recently joined, died there a few days ago of fever.—The Delhi Gazette learns with considerable regret that cholera continued to linger at Nusseerabad. On the 26th ult. another man of the Royals, employed in the commissariat as a butcher, and consequently much in the bazaar, had died of it. Two men and two women of the N.I. had been seized by it; the former died, the latter were spared. A woman of the artillery died on the morning of the 28th ultimo. There were four or five other cases in the Royals, the results of which were not known when our informant wrote.

STATION TALK.

CARWAR, June 19—The first attack of the heavy monsoon of this year is on a boat belonging to the City of Lahore—an English ship. She was bound for Liverpool from Bombay, and while on the way broke one of the masts and her jibboom. In order to replace these she called at this port, and is now in the harbour. On the 15th instant three sailors attached to her set out for Sedashighur, about six miles, in one of the boats belonging to the ship, in order to fetch a timber log from the depot there. The waters of the sea were evidently serene; there was a break in the weather. The sun was shining, there were no clouds in the sky, and the wind was calm. For a time everything went on well; no fears occurred to any one. All of a sudden the sea became boisterous; it is more so at the mouth of the Kalbenuddee, being the junction. The boat was capsized; the three sailors swam to the shore with great difficulty. A native Christian, who accompanied them, was drowned, and his corpse has not been found. A similar catastrophe occurred last monsoon. The lighthouse is more than five miles from the port; it is on the Oyster Rock, surrounded by sea. An establishment consisting of a European keeper of the house, with the necessary complement of subordinates, lives there. Supplies have to be despatched from Carwar. Lieutenant Parker, then Port officer, despatched a Government boat with supplies on the 21st of June, 1867. The boat's crew consisted of six Lascars. There was no deception in the weather. The sea was roaring; the wind was tempestuous; the monsoon was in its zenith; a downpour was falling in torrents. The Lascars, it being their duty, undertook to take the supplies to the rock and return. They started about four A.M. The Lascars bravely and skilfully battled with the waves, but the boat could not stand the violence, and it went to pieces. Of the six men only three saw the shore again alive; the remainder were washed ashore, pale, dumb, benumbed and lifeless. The wives of the deceased were provided with pensions. Cholera has broken out at Carwar; its progress is being greatly checked by the medical authorities and the officers who have to superintend the sanitary arrangements. The cases that have already proved fatal are about five up to date.

BANGALORE, June 26—A very enterprising gentleman, Mr. W. E. Lippert, C.E., has projected the establishing of "traction steam engines" between Bangalore and Mysore. His prospectus, if reliable, and we have no good reason to consider it anything else, is very promising; in fact, on looking over it, one cannot help wondering why the traction steam engine scheme was not thought of long ago. A committee has been formed for the consideration of the scheme in all its bearings, and a deputation of the chief European and native gentlemen interested in the project has been appointed by the executive committee of management to lay the scheme before Mr. Bowring. The Chief Commissioner has fixed on Monday, the 28th inst., to receive the deputation. The inhabitants here are on the tip-toe of expectation for Dave Carson; the approaching races also excite a legitimate share of interest. In my next I hope to give you some account of both.

BELLARY, June 21—It is expected that the railway will be open for passengers to Gooty on the 1st of next month, and the further extension to Goontacul, twenty miles from Bellary, by December. Mr. Ross, one of the energetic contractors of the railway, is pushing on with the station works, and already labour and materials have risen to a very great extent. From a recent jaunt along the line of road towards Tadpatri I observed the exceedingly disgraceful state of that road. The road is for its whole length under the charge of the Department of Public Works, and I think a little stirring up of the proper persons would be of immense benefit. Gooty itself is a pretty fair station, and I understand that it is to play a prominent part when the railway line is finished. The good folks who beat a retreat annually to Ramandroog are returning to head-quarters. Ramandroog to Bellary and its outskirts promises at no distant date to be what Gooty is to folks in your part of the world.

YERCAUD, June 16—On Wednesday morning last we experienced a slight shock of an earthquake, which lasted two or three seconds, and shook the window casements most awfully. Some of the old residents say that ten years ago slight shocks of this kind were of frequent occurrence on the Shevaroyas, but the vibration this year was not so violent as to occasion any damage or alarm. Rumour asserts that we are to have a Dispensary established here, and I hope the report is likely to be true. At present we are very badly off in that respect, as no medicine is procurable nearer than Salem—a distance of twelve miles from Yercaud, and fifteen from the green hills. In cases of emergency this is a very serious matter, as life and death sometimes depend upon the immediate application of the apothecary. There are generally one or two doctors staying on the hills, so that if we had a dispensary, in charge of some experienced dresser or pensioned apothecary, we should be very well off. Mr. Thomas, the planters' apothecary, has on hand a limited supply of simple medicines for the use of his subscribers, but unfortunately there is a large number of the poorer class of East Indians and natives who live a great distance from Yercaud, and who cannot afford to pay for medical attendance. There are also the Mallayalies and several thousand coolies permanently located on the hills. Should Government decide on establishing a dispensary at Yercaud they will confer a great boon on the residents of the Shevaroyas, and I have no doubt that the institution might be made in a great measure self supporting, provided it was placed in the hands of an energetic and painstaking secretary. The weather continues very favourable, showers of rain falling nearly every afternoon.—Madras Athenæum Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

LORD NAPIER—H.E. the Governor of Madras returned to the Presidency town from North Arcot on the 28th June.

THE BISHOP OF MADRAS—Owing to the state of Miss Gell's health, the Bishop of Madras has, we observe, been advised to at once quit the Neilgherries, and return awhile to Madras.

THE SHIP "R. WARK"—Considerable anxiety is felt among the friends of Captain Erskine as to the safety of himself and his ship. Five months ago the R. Wark was spoken off St. Helena, but nothing has been heard of her since.—Madras Athenæum.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL—It is still, says the Madras Times, an undecided question who is to occupy the place at Council to be made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Phillips in December next. The "running" is understood to be between Mr. Sim and Mr. Ellis, and the former has the advantage of being at present at the headquarters of patronage. By the Government of India Bill, now before Parliament, the patronage is vested in the Secretary of State alone; and no one can tell which of the two candidates the change will favour.

THREE-LEGGED "QUADRUPEDS"—According to the dictionary a goat is a "well-known, active quadruped, kept for its milk and flesh," but there are now on show at the people's park a couple of goats that are not, and seem never to have been quadrupeds. The larger of the two is of the masculine gender, and the singular number of his legs is very prominent, as, when standing up, he must measure some thirty-six inches from the hoof to the top of the shoulder. This amiable-looking animal is quite innocent of a near hind leg, and his locomotive powers are sadly curtailed in consequence. But he looks cheerful under the circumstances, as to the manner born, and hops about daintily. His chief trouble in life is to sit down, and it needs all his balancing powers to prevent his toppling over during the process. Habit has made him clever in this anxious exercise, and when squatting he looks as self-contented, and chews the cud with as much gratification as do other goats. The animated tripod that keeps him company is a female, but in her case there is a small hump that acts as a feeble apology for a leg nipped in the bud. The animals were presented to the park by the Rajah of Ramnad.—Madras Mail.

STATION TALK.

BOMBAY, July 1.—As the Bombay papers have not given any description of the sad disaster on the B. B. and C. I. Railway on Monday last, doubtless your readers will be interested in having a short account from one who was on the spot, and escaped safely, and who assisted in extricating the poor unfortunate passengers from the debris of the two third-class carriages destroyed. Our train, I fancy of about sixteen carriages in all, left Baroda at 9.10 A.M., its proper time, and travelled about eight miles or so, till within four miles of Etola, when a buffalo, till then unperceived, was run over by the engine, tender, and break-van. Four third-class carriages were thrown off the line; two fell down the embankment, fourteen or fifteen feet high, bottom upwards; the third was thrown on its side, and one merely off the rails, though the speed was only from twenty to twenty-five miles per hour. By some means (probably caused by these top-heavy third-class carriages which were thrown off the line and over the embankment on our right hand) the leading second-class carriage was drawn down nearly at right angles with the line of rail, and perched its foremost wheels on the third-class, which had preceded it. The third-class carriage in question was bottom upwards, as also the one in front of it. A first-class, coupled to the second-class, was also drawn over, but it got fixed firmly against the end of the second-class, previously mentioned, and was also held up by its right hand buffer being crossed by a second-class carriage coupled in the rear. These two thus formed a bridge from the top of the embankment; and it will be seen that had the rear end of the train not been ably handled by the guard, the whole train must have been doubled and twisted into an inextricable heap. But for the driver's judgment and alacrity, doubtless it must have been so. Much praise is due to the driver, and passengers ought to be thankful for having had such an one in such an emergency. Though our train was partially destroyed, yet the engine, tender and break-van were still on the rails, so the first thing set about was the endeavour to extricate the poor sufferers lying beneath the broken carriages. The screw-jacks carried on the tender and in the break-vans (of which all railway passengers should be informed) were at once set to work. Of course the engine-driver, with an inspector of rail stock, two guards, and two European passengers were the only persons able to take the lead, or who understood what it was best to do; the majority of the passengers sat quietly down or merely looked on, requiring repeated calling to lend a hand even to carry off their wounded or dead countrymen. Railway porters and plate layers called from along the line, and coolies, rendered great assistance. I will not state all our difficulties and how we surmounted them, though it would show perhaps what people can do on such occasions. Our engine was despatched to Etola, thus to enable the telegraph to be brought to our service. Baroda was then communicated with, and also stations up the line; but we could get but little assistance from Etola, and therefore we had none for three hours, in fact until 12.30, when the Baroda pilot train came to the scene. It was only eight miles from Baroda, and trolleys could have come with a doctor. Why did they not? I cannot tell, perhaps they had not the steam up in any engine. The poor injured or dead had been got out from under the wreck, there remaining but three dead bodies to be extricated from under the end of the rear third-class carriage when help arrived. These would have been extricated as well, but this carriage was under the second-class carriage, and it was therefore too much for us to accomplish with the limited means at command—screw jacks, that would not work well, they being set fast, also having holes too small for ordinary crow bars to be inserted in, and without hatchets, saws, or tools; for all we had was the ordinary lever—an old rail some ten feet in length, also old sleepers found near at hand. Buffaloes and bullocks are abundant, all up and down the line—indeed the engine that brought the passengers on from the disaster to Etola had to stop while the signalman at a crossing drove them off with his flag. How often may it have been so before that day.—Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CHOLERA.—We are sorry to hear that several cases of cholera have lately occurred at Gunesh Khind.—Deccan Herald, July 2.

LORD NAPIER.—According to the Poona Observer, H.E. Lord Napier of Magdala would probably leave India towards the end of July.

CIVIL.—We regret to learn of the death, from cholera, of Mr. Christian Andian, in civil medical charge, Kolapore, which sad event took place yesterday evening. The deceased has served no less than forty years in the medical branch. It was only in the last Government Gazette that his appointment to an honorary sub assistant-surgeoncy was announced.—Poona Observer, June 29.

ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT.—We are told that the Governor-general in Council has recorded his high sense of the "zeal and assiduity" displayed by the Military Accounts Department in Bombay, in putting the accounts connected with the Abyssinian expedition in proper form for transmission to England. His Lordship in Council has also requested that a communication to this effect may be made to Colonel Barr and the officers of his department.

MR. DADABHOY NOWROJEE.—We learn from Native Opinion that a meeting of friends and admirers of Mr. Dadabhoj Nowrojee was held on Saturday evening, at the Framjee Cowasjee Institute, to present a testimonial to him on the eve of his departure to Europe. An influential committee was appointed to determine the form the presentation should assume. "Mr. Dadabhoj," says Native Opinion, "is a man of catholic sympathies, and the committee is accordingly composed of all classes of our countrymen."

SAWUNT WARREE.—The present Chief of Sawunt Warree is a minor under seven years of age, and the Government of India, in concurrence with the Bombay Government, has decided that, during his minority the administration of the State shall be conducted in the same way as heretofore, by the uncles of the reigning Chief. The young Chief is to be provided with a tutor on a salary of Rs. 150 per mensem; and an expenditure of Rs. 8,609 per annum, inclusive of this item, has been sanctioned for his household and attendants. His mother has been granted a separate allowance of Rs. 1,200 a-year for her maintenance.—Pioneer, June 28.

A STEAMER BURNT.—The steamship James Childs, from Bombay to Bushire, has been burnt. It seems that the fire broke out among the cargo (coals) on June 6, and the pumps were kept going till Bushire was sighted, on the morning of June 8, when the James Childs cast anchor about five miles from land. Captain Wood, of her Majesty's steamship Dalhousie (which was lying at Bushire), came off with his boats, crew, and an engine. The Dalhousie came out in the afternoon, but the wind was blowing so hard, and the fog was so heavy, that her commander deemed it impracticable to tow the James Childs to a shoal, and so anchored at about a mile to the windward of her. At half-past seven the steamer Abyssinia, with the mail from Bombay to Bushire, came steaming along; but Captain Kingcome and Mr. Bing told Captain Templeton that they believed there was no longer hope for the vessel, and the latter went off with his men and engines. The crew of the James Childs also left her in about three-quarters of an hour after. Their boats had been ready astern since June 8, when the ship begun to blaze up, and there was a good deal of trouble and danger in getting them manned. However, the men got off most of their clothes and made for the Abyssinia.

THE HINDOO WIDOW MARRIAGE.—It is with the sincerest pleasure (writes the Indu Prakash) that we announce to the public, and especially the friends of the cause of widow marriage, that his Highness the Chief of Jamkhindi, Ramchundrarao Appasaheb, has, un solicited, sent Rs. 1,000 as a marriage present in connection with the happy re-marriage that took place on the 15th June. This sum is to form a part of the amount which the Widow Marriage Association has resolved to set apart in the hands of trustees as an investment for the benefit of the bride to provide against contingencies. We give a few extracts in Marathi from his letter accompanying the present, which will convince the public how warm and sincere an advocate he is of the cause. He was on the rack of impatience to hear the happy news of the consummation of the welcome marriage, and he no sooner heard of the joyful tidings than he at once despatched a congratulatory letter with a hoondee for Rs. 1,000. Who will not say this is true earnestness? We could have given the public tidings more joyful still, but we held back for the present.

Several of our leading townsmen have also contributed liberal sums to the cause. More than the actual sums they have put down, we value the sympathy for the cause of which these sums are the unmistakable index. The movement for a general widow marriage fund is on foot, and we doubt not that the public here and in the Mofussil will most enthusiastically answer to the call.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

EXTENSION OF THE INDIAN PENSION RULES TO OFFICERS OF THE NEW LINE REGIMENTS.

No. 686.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council has much satisfaction in directing the publication of the following extract (para. 4) of a despatch from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 131, dated May 27:

Para. 4. Having learnt, however, from a perusal of the papers that the limitation of the privilege of adhering to the Indian pension rules to officers of this class, on exchanging into non-purchase regiments, is found to operate to the disadvantage of many who may be desirous of continuing to serve in India, I have, in communication with the Secretary of State for War and H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C., resolved to extend the privilege of retaining their claim to Indian pension to all officers late of the Indian army, who, in the first instance, joined one of the new line regiments, and who may have since joined, or may hereafter join, any regiment of H.M.'s British service, whether purchase or non-purchase, or who may enter either of H.M.'s Indian staff corps.

CIVIL FURLOUGH.—CASE OF MR. S. S. HOGG.

June 25.—No. 1,321.—Read the following correspondence:—Proceedings in the Financial Department (leave and allowances), Nos. 57 to 63, Feb., 1869.

Despatch to H.M.'s Secretary of State for India, No. 57, dated March 9.

Despatch from H.M.'s Sec. of State for India, No. 169, dated April 29.

Resolution.—The Gov. gen. in Council observes that Mr. S. S. Hogg, a member of the covenanted civil service, and chairman of the justices of the peace for the town of Calcutta, applied in January, 1869, for a furlough to which he was entitled under the rules applicable to the civil service.

2. By the Municipal Act, however, for the town of Calcutta, the justices are restrained from giving any absentee allowance to the chairman which might cause a greater expenditure from the municipal fund than would have been incurred had no leave been granted.

3. On consideration of the matter the Gov. gen. in Council ruled "that, so far as the Government is concerned, Mr. Hogg, and all officers similarly situated, should be allowed leave of absence on precisely the terms that would apply to them if they were Government servants; that the justices of the town of Calcutta and other municipal corporations concerned in like cases should not be required to provide, on the whole, any allowances in excess of those which they pay when the officer is present at his post; but that they should be invited to grant to the officer to whom they may give leave of absence whatever sum may be saved by the employment of a substitute on lower allowances than those received by the regular incumbent.

"When this is done Government should supplement the absentee allowance so granted so as to bring up the whole absentee allowance to the amount to which, by the rules of the Government service, the officer would, were he in the service of the Government, be entitled."

4. This decision having been confirmed by the Secretary of State for India, the rule will be generally observed.

TAXES ON MILITARY PAY.

No. 180.—The following resolution of Government in the Financial Department, received with Military Department docket No. 79 of June 3, is published for general information:—

Financial Department, No. 443, dated May 15.—Resolution.—Horse allowance not being included in military pay and allowance, but practically only granted when horses for the service of the State are actually maintained, comes under the category of special sums allowed to meet disbursements on the public service not ordinarily paid with the salary, whether the service for which such allowance is granted be performed or not, and as such it is not liable to duty under the Certificate and Income-tax Acts. Tentage, however, being paid according to rank, without any certificate as to the necessary equipage being maintained, is regarded not as a special allowance, but as a component part of the consolidated sum paid to an officer as the regimental pay and allowances of his rank, and it is therefore subject to taxation.

DRESS AND APPOINTMENTS OF WARRANT OFFICERS.

Adj. gen.'s Office, Head Qrs., Simla, June 15.—No. 165.—In continuation of G.O. No. 281, the C. in C. is pleased to announce that Government have approved of the following dress and appointments for warrant officers of the commissariat department holding honorary or veteran commissions; but it is left optional with the officers concerned to provide themselves with the full dress:—

Full Dress.

Tunic.—Scarlet cloth; body lining, drab; skirt lining, white; single breasted; blue collar, rounded in front; blue cuffs. Buttons (commissariat department), two inches and a quarter between each down the front, two on each sleeve and one at bottom of each back seam; edged all round and up skirt seams with white; skirt rounded in front, ten and a half inches deep for an officer six feet in height, with a variation of a quarter of an inch longer or shorter for each in height of wearer. Round gold cord shoulder strap. The sleeves to be trimmed with a ring of lace as follows:—For subalterns, lace as laid down for a subaltern of infantry, only not pointing up the sleeve, but placed covering the seam between the blue and scarlet; for captains in the same way, only of such a pattern lace as captains of infantry wear.

N.B.—No badges or gold lace on collar.

Hat.—Line helmet and puggry.

Trowsers.—Oxford mixture, with a scarlet welt, quarter inch broad, down the outward seam.

Sword and Scabbard.—Infantry pattern.

Sword Knot.—Gold and crimson strap with an acorn.

Sword Belt.—White leather with slings, to be worn over the tunic. No sash or pouch belt.

Plate.—Commissariat Department.

Undress.

As for officers of infantry.

Forage Cap.—Blue cloth with black leather peak—oakleaf mohair band.

LEAVE—MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

Head-Qrs., Simla, June 21.—No. 172.—The C. in C. is pleased to notify that the G.O. dated Oct. 9, 1858, is applicable to deputy inspector general of hospitals. "Officers commanding divisions and brigades, and staff officers of the army generally, shall on no account avail themselves of privilege leave without the sanction of the C. in C."

2. Applications for privilege leave from these officers will be transmitted through divisional commanders to their inspector gen., who will forward them with remarks to the adjt. gen. for the orders of the C. in C.

LEAVE TO OFFICERS AT HILL STATIONS.

No. 174.—It is hereby notified that the C. in C. in India has been pleased to permit the grant, by local military authorities, of privilege leave to the plains during the winter to all officers serving with regiments located at hill stations, provided the efficiency of their corps is not in any way impaired thereby, and also that the prescribed amount of private leave in the year is not exceeded.

ARTILLERY OFFICERS' LEAVE.

No. 169.—The following extract of a letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India to the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India, No. 93, dated March 31 last, is published for information:—

"Para. 2. I confirm your decision that the appointments with the frontier batteries of artillery shall be considered staff appointments, and that officers holding them shall be allowed to retain them during furlough."

2. The Government has further ruled that this decision applies to all native batteries of artillery.

STAMPING PETITIONS.—The Governor-general in Council has cancelled the notifications dated September 4, 1867, and April 17, 1868, authorising the use of adhesive stamps for certain petitions and applications under Schedule B of Act XXVI. of 1867.

ACTING ALLOWANCES OF UNCOVENANTED OFFICERS.—With reference to the orders of this department, No. 122, dated Jan. 6, and No. 1,482, dated March 5, on the subject of the acting allowances of uncovenanted officers, the Governor-general in Council has notified that in no case can an officer, acting in any appointment, draw higher allowance than if he were confirmed in that appointment.

MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONERS.—The following to be a municipal commissioner for the town of Serampore:—The Rev. J. C. Ince. The following gentlemen to be municipal commissioners for the town of Monghyr:—Mr. H. B. Simpson, and the Rev. J. Lawrence. Mr. G. ### GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

NEW ARMY REGULATIONS.

Head Quarters, Coonoor, June 15.—No. 76.—The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council having authorised the publication of a revised code of army regulations, H.E. the Commander-in-Chief directs that it shall have effect from July 1, 1869; and all previous orders not in accordance therewith are hereby cancelled.

General officers employed on the staff, and commanding officers of regiments and corps, will be held responsible that the instructions which may be issued from time to time in local commands, or to brigades or corps, for the general maintenance of discipline and for the details of interior economy, are in strict accordance with these regulations.

TESTS FOR HIGHER STANDARD EXAMINATIONS IN HINDUSTANI.

Fort St. George, June 23.—No. 233.—The Right Hon. the Governor in Council, under the authority of the Government of India, is pleased to establish the following tests for the higher standard examinations in Hindustani of officers of the Madras Presidency, in lieu of those laid down in G.O.G.G. No. 784 (Madras G.O.G. No. 383, dated Sept. 27, 1864) dated Sept. 9, 1864, and in supersession of the Madras general orders No. 126, dated March 27, 1866, No. 228, dated June 12, 1866, and No. 159, dated April 12, 1867:—

I. The object of the higher standard is to ensure that officers passing it shall have acquired such a knowledge of the Hindustani language as shall qualify them, so far as that language is concerned, for general employment on the staff, and for admission to the staff corps.

II. To this end candidates will be tested as to their ability—

First.—To read and construe passages in books of ordinary difficulty in Urdu.

Secondly.—To make accurate and idiomatic written translations from English into Hindustani.

Thirdly.—To read and translate in writing petitions, native letters, &c.

Fourthly.—To translate viva voce proceedings of native general, district, or regimental courts martial.

Tests:—

First.—Reading fluently, and construing with readiness and accuracy, not less than an ordinary page of the Bagh-o-Bahar.

Second.—Translating accurately and with correctness of idiom and grammar, not less than half an ordinary page of plain English into the Hindustani language.

Third.—Translating from English into Hindustani a paper of short sentences, the greater part on professional subjects, to be rendered accurately and idiomatically.

Fourth.—Reading fairly, and translating readily and correctly, Hindustani manuscripts.

Fifth.—Translating viva voce into Hindustani, proceedings of a court martial, a duty that will frequently be required of the candidate. The examiners will read out the different parts of the evidence for translation by the candidate to the natives in attendance on the examiners, who will satisfy themselves that the officer's interpretation is clearly and correctly understood. In translating the charge, finding, and sentence, the candidate is to be allowed the use of the Record.

Sixth.—Conversing with natives with fluency and with such correctness of pronunciation, grammar, and idiom, as to be at once intelligible, and, in like manner, to understand readily all the natives say.

This order will take effect from Oct. 20, 1869, inclusive.

MOVEMENTS OF REGIMENTS.

The following movements are ordered:—

Sappers and Miners.

C Company, from Bellary to Ghooty, furnishing a detachment to Coonoor.

Official Papers.

THE FUTURE OF RAILWAYS IN INDIA.

The following despatch of the Secretary of State for India, giving in detail the measures which Government have in contemplation with regard to railways in India, was issued on Friday. It is addressed to the Governor-general:—

India Office, London, July 15, 1869.

My Lord,—I have had under consideration in Council your despatches, replying to three from Sir Stafford Northcote on the general subject of railway extension in India, and exhibiting the views of your Excellency in Council as to the railway policy fitting to be pursued in that country in future.

2. The subject is arranged by you under three heads, each of which you have found it convenient to treat separately; the most suitable agency for the construction of railways being discussed in the first of your despatches, the relative claims of particular lines to early construction in the second, and certain special questions connected either with construction or subsequent administration in the third.

3. Under the first and third heads some weighty matters are considered, into which it is unnecessary that I should enter at all minutely, inasmuch as I concur generally in your reasoning regarding them, and in the more important of the conclusions at which you have arrived. Whatever may have been the strength of the considerations which, twenty years ago, induced the Government to entrust to guaranteed companies the construction of railways in India, I concur with your Excellency and with the late Viceroy in the opinion that the time has now arrived when, both in raising and in expending such additional capital as may be required for new lines in India, the Government should secure for itself the full benefit of the credit which it lends, and of the cheaper agencies which ought to be at its command. Her Majesty's Government has already sanctioned the construction of a line from Lahore to Rawul Pindee on this system, and the preliminary survey for a railway from Carwar to Hooiblee. The greater number of the lines indicated by your lordship as of prominent importance (and especially those running mainly through independent native States), are lines to which the new system ought to be applied. The formation of branches and of subsidiary extension of existing lines, where such extensions are of comparatively small extent, may perhaps be more conveniently left in the hands of the guaranteed companies.

4. It is, of course, obvious, as pointed out in the 40th paragraph of Lord Lawrence's minute, that the financial success of a railway depends as much on the limitation of its cost as on the magnitude of its traffic, and that, whether Government agency be employed or not, too much attention cannot be paid to economy in construction, to the selection of lines not involving heavy works, and to the careful avoidance of all expenditure not absolutely required for the stability of the works or the accommodation of the traffic. I trust that the direct control of the Government that will be exercised on the State railways will insure full attention being given to these considerations.

5. In your Excellency's despatch, No. 24, of 11th March, while dwelling on the defective control of the Government under existing contracts with the guaranteed railway companies, you remark, with reference to any new arrangement which should be made with such companies (in the 17th and 18th paragraphs), that the simple power of taking over the works from the companies, in the event of their not being carried on to the satisfaction of the Government, would suffice, and be preferable to any special coercive stipulation; and, secondly, you urge that a different system should be adopted in dividing the net profits above the guaranteed rate of interest—viz., that these should for all time be divided equally between the Government and the company, and that the mention of the repayment of guaranteed interest be dropped as unnecessary. You consider it important that no work, even in extension of their present undertaking, should be intrusted to companies, except on these two conditions.

6. Both of these stipulations are unquestionably right in principle. The first of them ought to be made applicable to all cases, and the second of them to all cases in which the new amount of capital to be expended is sufficient to make it worth while to establish a separate system of account.

7. To certain portions of the second of your despatches an immediate reply is, however, requisite. In that despatch the following list is given of railway projects, which have been suggested for early adoption, and which you consider will, in conjunction with those either already executed, or in process of execution, form a net-work of lines of an aggregate length of 15,000 miles, threading every part of India to which railway communication for the present can be judiciously extended:—

1. Indus Valley. 2. Rajpootana. 3. Kumaon Iron Works. 4. Koosh-tee to Darjeeling. 5. East Coast, Northern Section. 6. East Coast, Southern Section. 7. Branches of Madras Railway. 8. Extension of Great Southern of India line to Tuticorin. 9. West Coast, Southern Section. 10. West Coast, Northern Section, comprehending line from Carwar to Hooiblee. 11. Mysore. 12. Kulburga to Hyderabad. 13. Junction of North-East and South-East branches of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. 14. Branches to Great Indian Peninsula Railway. 15. Branches to Bombay and Baroda Railway. 16. Ahmedabad to Veerungaum and Wudwan. 17. Kattywar. 18. Rangoon to Promé.

8. Of these, Nos. 3, 4, 7, 8, 14, 15, and 16 are considered to be so connected with undertakings of existing companies as to give to the latter a natural hope and expectation that they will be entrusted with their construction, provided they are willing to accept it on certain specified conditions, differing somewhat materially from those of existing contracts. For the remaining projects Government agency would, you consider, be decidedly preferable, and with respect to four of these, viz., Nos. 1, 2, 12, and part of 10, you recommend that preparations be at once made for the commencement of constructive operations.

9. Thus, with regard to the upper portion of the Indus Valley line, or the part between Mooltan and Sukkur, you desire to have forthwith completed all necessary surveys for obtaining a definite and final project and estimate, on receipt and approval of which executive work might be immediately commenced; while with regard to the lower portion from Sukkur to Kotree, you are anxious that inquiries should be pushed on for determining whether or not it is advisable to combine the excavation of an irrigation canal with the formation of the railway works.

10. In reference to Rajpootana, you are already satisfied as to the course which the line from Ajmere to Delhi should take, and, in anticipation of sanction, are about to have that line at once surveyed, marked out, and commenced, further inquiries being made simultaneously with the view of determining the exact direction of the branch to Agra. You also propose to take early steps for deciding the best direction for a line running southward from Ajmere to Bombay.

11. The line from Kulburga to Hyderabad you also describe as one that should be taken up at once; while, for a line from the port of Carwar to Hooblee, surveys are, I presume, actually in progress, under the recent instructions sent by me to the Government of Bombay.

12. The measures which you propose to take regarding the Indus Valley line are approved. It will suffice for the present to undertake by Government agency the upper section of this line from Mooltan to Sukkur, leaving for future inquiry and consideration the extension of the line to Hyderabad or Kotree. By limiting the work to be performed by the Indus flotilla to the navigation of the river between Sukkur and Kotree, the communication from Kurrachee to the north-west frontier will be greatly facilitated, pending the completion of the railway throughout the entire length.

13. Your proposal to take immediate measures for carrying on lines from Delhi and Agra to Jeypore and the Sambur Lake, and from Kulburga to Hyderabad are also approved.

14. No time should be lost in completing the surveys and investigations necessary for the preparation of complete and reliable estimates, which must be submitted to me in a condensed form before actual construction is commenced.

15. In the ultimate prosecution of these works, I consider it to be a matter of the first importance that the principle laid down in the 41st paragraph of your despatch, No. 25, should be carefully observed, viz., "that the actual expenditure on the several railways should be strictly limited year by year on a regularly-arranged budget estimate to a certain fixed aggregate amount."

16. The selection of the lines to be taken up in the first instance must be regulated by this consideration, as well as by the relative importance of the lines, and by supply of labour to be obtained without detriment to agriculture or to the progress of other public works.

17. I recognise the truth of your remark that it would be "a mistake to attempt to force on the construction of works of this class in a manner which will seriously increase their first cost;" but I am satisfied that it would be more advisable to confine your operations in the first instance to a few lines, and to carry them out to completion as fast as may be consistent with economy of construction, rather than to commence work on a large number, and so to limit unduly the funds available for each, and to prolong the time during which the capital would remain unproductive.

18. Speaking of the Rajpootana project, you observe that, whether the connection between Ajmere and Baroda be effected via Deesa and Ahmedabad or via Neemuch, a line from Indore to Neemuch and Ajmere may be indispensable. I am disposed to concur in this opinion, which leads me to the further conclusion that if this link in the communication between Bombay and Delhi be supplied, the extension of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway into Rajpootana, either by Deesa or by Rutlam, may well be deferred until several more important lines shall have been completed.

19. Railway communication between Carwar and the interior is, I observe, treated by you in connection with what is termed the northern section of the West Coast Railway, and as if there were to be lateral branches from Carwar north and south along the coast. The utility of such branches is not at all clear to me. I should rather have supposed that, if Carwar was connected by rail with the great cotton field beyond the Ghauts, the traffic of that district would naturally concentrate itself in Carwar, instead of being distributed, as at present, among a number of small river marts and ports.

20. Of the projects on your list recommended for construction by Government, the four specified above are the only ones on which immediate instructions are needed. Of those, however, which may be regarded as extensions of the works of existing companies, there are some on which it is inadvisable that decision should be needlessly delayed. Offers shall immediately be made, on the conditions recommended to you, to the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company of the proposed extension from Ahmedabad to Veerangaum and Wudwan. And similar offers will likewise be made to the Indian Tramway Company, and to the Great Southern of India Railway Company, respecting lines from Arcunum to Cuddalore, and from Trichinopoly to Tuticorin. With reference to your suggestion that lines running parallel to the coast might be preferable to those hitherto proposed, I will only say that it appears to me to be at least doubtful whether railways along either the eastern or western coasts can be among the number of those lines which press for early consideration. Railways running parallel with the coast must necessarily come more or less into competition with the route by sea, and it would therefore seem expedient that such lines should be deferred until the inland communications have been further developed.

21. Your Excellency considers that a railway in extension of the Eastern Bengal line from Kooshtee to Titalyah, at the foot of the Darjeeling Hills, is one which commends itself for early construction on many grounds of policy. Though believing that this line will ultimately be required, I am not satisfied of the priority of its claim to the attention of Government, especially as regards the upper half of the line; but I am prepared to sanction the preliminary survey and estimate of a line from Kooshtee to Bugwah on the Megna, which in itself would be of great commercial value, and would be a starting-point for future extensions to Darjeeling on the one hand, and into the valley of Assam on the other.

22. On the subject of a railway to the Kumaon Ironworks I addressed you some time ago in a separate despatch.

23. Regarded as a whole, I may observe generally that the arrangements proposed by you in despatches under acknowledgment appear to me well adapted for providing in India, gradually, regularly, and with all advisable rapidity, a fairly complete national system of railway communication. The success of the arrangements must, however, in great measure depend on the character of the machinery created for the purpose of giving them effect, and I shall be glad to be informed somewhat in detail how you propose to proceed in that essential particular.—I have, &c.,

THE ABYSSINIAN COMMITTEE.

The Committee reassembled on Friday morning, Mr. Candlish in the chair.

Captain Tryon wished to give some explanations of his former evidence. He handed in the corrected proof of the evidence, and the corrections on every page were very numerous.

In reply to the Chairman,

Captain Tryon directed attention to one or two of the questions referring to the number of ships which might have been discharged at Annesley Bay, to the number and names of the ships which were sent to Bombay, the nature of the charter parties, and the quantities of coal provided for the transports.

Sir S. Northcote suggested that all this might be made fresh evidence on the meeting of the Committee next session.

Admiral Mends also submitted a variety of alterations, which the Chairman remarked were very extensive. The Committee would be placed at a great disadvantage if the whole nature and structure of the examination was altered.

Some discussion amongst the members of the Committee took place, and the Chairman said [the Committee were of opinion that discretion might rest with him. He would therefore communicate with Admiral Mends if he wished for any further information. Some questions referring to the engagement of transports and various matters of detail were put to Admiral Mends, who then retired.

Mr. Dundas, late Surveyor of the Navy, was briefly re-examined on points connected with the coal contracts. All details, he said, could be obtained from the Admiralty. He thought it would have been very inadvisable to have opened any contracts after the Peninsular and Oriental Company had been communicated with. There were, he believed, tenders, but no inquiry, as far as he remembered, was made as to the responsibility of the parties tendering. He had no recollection of an offer being made to cover all the expenses of coal in the Red Sea at 50s. a ton. Tenders were refused on the principle he had mentioned—that public inquiries would have created an excitement which would have been injurious to the Government and the Peninsular and Oriental Company. It was a question of policy and not of price.

By Sir S. Northcote: It would have been a great injustice to the Peninsular and Oriental Company to have let in another contractor after an arrangement had been made.

By Major Anson: At first the Peninsular and Oriental Company were very reluctant to accept the contract at any fixed price. If the Admiralty had, in the first instance, not consulted the Peninsular and Oriental Company, the company would have been very content not to have had anything to do with the matter.

The Committee then adjourned till next session.

Miscellaneous.

ERRATUM.—In a former issue we spoke of the Nawab of Bengal as having made some very good shots at Wimbledon with a Jackson rifle. This was a mistake. The bull's eyes in question were made with a rifle obtained from the well-known Mr. C. Lancaster, although it is true that his Highness began shooting with the Jackson gun.

COMMERCIAL BANK CORPORATION OF INDIA AND THE EAST.—It is announced that the final dividend of 7s. in the pound (making, with the previous dividend, 17s. in the pound) is now in course of payment to the creditors of the Commercial Bank Corporation of India and the East, at the offices of the official liquidator.

WITHDRAWAL OF POSTAGE PRIVILEGES.—It is notified that the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury have decided upon the withdrawal, at the termination of the present year, of the privileges in respect to the postage accorded to officers of the army serving in the colonies or India, published in General Order 87 of 1867.

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—In addition to the recent large despatch of troops to India in the Clyde, chartered troop-ship, a notification has been received at Chatham that the Alumbagh has been taken up by the Council of India for the conveyance of reinforcements to Calcutta, and that she will be ready to embark several hundred cavalry and infantry troops at Gravesend by the middle of this month.

MOORE v. MOORE AND LEES.—In the Court of Divorce on Thursday the cause of Moore v. Moore and Lees was tried before Lord Penzance and a common jury. The petitioner is a captain in the Indian Cavalry. He married the respondent in 1865, and they had two children. Mrs. Moore returned from India in 1867, and shortly afterwards contracted an adulterous intercourse with the co-respondent, whose position in life could not be clearly ascertained. Captain Moore now prayed for a dissolution of the marriage, and also claimed damages against the co-respondent. There was no defence. The jury assessed the damages at £1,500, and the Court granted a decree nisi, with costs. Dr. Swabey and Mr. Tahourdin appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Searle for the co-respondent.

RAILWAYS AND COTTON.—An important conference on the subject of the Indian cotton supply was held on July 29 at the Westminster-Palace Hotel. Resolutions were agreed to approving of the policy of extending public works, and particularly railways, in India, as sketched in the House of Lords by the Duke of Argyll, affirming the desirability of the formation of Boards of Agriculture in India, and the importance of there being in the Council of India an adequate representation of the interests of trade and commerce.

COMMUNICATION WITH THE EAST.—The following extract from the Official Gazette of Florence has been published by direction of the Earl of Clarendon:—From the 1st of August next there will be each Sunday a special train from Susa to Brindisi, which, leaving Turin about midnight, will convey travellers to Brindisi, so that they may catch at 1 A.M. the steamer for Alexandria in the event that by any delay in the arrival of the international train at Susa the journey cannot be made by the ordinary train leaving Turin at 9.40. Upon the return journey, if the steamer from Alexandria should not arrive at Brindisi on the Thursday, about 4 A.M., a special train will convey the travellers to Turin and Susa in time to catch the international train from Susa to St. Michel.

SOLDIERS' STOCKS.—"In fact, the stock had been discontinued; some, however, still wore the old stock, but those who wore it were permitted, if they thought proper, to take it off." This is the conclusion of the reply of the Secretary of State for War on Thursday in last week to Lord E. Cecil, who asked "whether it was not the fact that regimental medical officers of the army had reported that the health and comfort of the soldier would be greatly increased if the wearing of the stock were altogether discontinued." Has Mr. Cardwell authorised the soldier to take off his stock? Has the soldier received the permission? We answer, "No." In some battalions a false stock is allowed to be worn—a piece of black silk or other material sown inside the collar of the tunic and carried across presenting the same neat appearance as a stock, and preventing the hook gadding the neck—a sensible plan, and one for many years adopted by officers for themselves. But there are "regulation" colonels who will not permit this innovation. The stock, say they, is a part of a soldier's necessities, and until an order is issued for its discontinuance it shall be worn. In the name of the British soldier, we ask for the publication of the order permitting its disuse as above noted.—Army and Navy Gazette.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.—The report of Mr. Juland Danvers to the Secretary of State for India, published on Friday, shows that the length of line now open is 4,096 miles, of which 175 miles were completed during the past year. About 1,830 miles of the system already determined on remain to be constructed; but a new scheme for additional railway communication throughout India is about to be commenced and to be executed, for the most part, through the direct instrumentality of Government. It is expected that the great trans-peninsula line which will connect Calcutta with Bombay will be completed and open for traffic in the autumn of next year. Last year was not a prosperous year for traffic; trade has been almost stagnant; certain districts have been threatened with famine, and there has been a general depression in all descriptions of business. This has, of course, told upon the internal communication of the country, and the railway receipts have suffered accordingly. The falling off, however, is confined to goods traffic. The passenger traffic shows an increase both in numbers and receipts. The number of passengers last year was 15,066,530, of whom 14,401,000 were third class. In 1866-67 the total number was 13,746,354. The train miles run were 11,042,251 and 11,980,319 respectively. Mr. Danvers observes that while the steady advance which has hitherto been made in the revenue receipts has not been sustained during the past year for reasons which have been explained, and while cause has been given for disappointment at the failure of some of the works and at the delay in completing others, the general results are not unsatisfactory, and there is much to inspire hope for the future.

BRITISH INDIAN TEA COMPANY.—The annual general meeting of the British Indian Tea Company (Limited) was called for July 26 at the offices of the company, Great Winchester-street-buildings. Owing to the quality and the great reduction in the market value of Indian teas generally, the result of the season has been unprofitable. Instead of the proceeds of the teas covering the outlay of the season, as was expected at the time of the last report, there is a balance against the company of £5,539. 2s. 9d. There is also a further amount of £1,231. 2s. 11d., on the closing of the accounts of the previous season, arising from interest and from the teas sold since the date of the last balance realising less than the estimate. The inferiority in the quality has not been confined to the company's teas, but has been general throughout the districts. Everything has been done to increase the production this season of teas of fine quality, and the valuation of the teas already arrived in Calcutta leads the board to believe that their hopes will be realised. Up to the latest date received the quantity made was 107,000 lbs., which showed some falling off from last year; but there is reason to believe that this will be compensated by the superiority of the quality. In consequence of the market in this country being so uncertain, the directors have determined, for the current year, to sell the bulk of the tea in Calcutta. The sanitary condition of the coolies is good, and there is now a full and adequate supply of labour. In consequence of there not being a sufficient number of shareholders to form a quorum, no formal business was transacted, but the meeting was adjourned till the next day (Tuesday), when the report was adopted.

THE LATE MAJOR-GENERAL FARQUHAR.—The death of Major-General Robert Farquhar, C.B., late of the Bombay Army, took place in Manchester-street, London, on the 22nd July. The deceased officer was appointed to a cadetship on the Bombay Establishment in 1821. He was posted on January 13 to the 6th Regiment of Bombay Native Infantry, and was engaged with a detachment of that corps at the capture of Kittoor, in 1824. He also served with the field-force in Sind and Afghanistan in 1841-42, having been present at the second engagement at Hykulsaye, and in several affairs in the vicinity of Kandahar. In May, 1853, Farquhar was appointed to the command of the 1st Belooch Regiment, one of the irregular infantry corps raised on the frontiers of Sind, and composed of the wild hillmen of Beloochistan. This corps, under Farquhar's command, attained a high state of discipline, and, having done good service during the Indian mutiny, it has since been incorporated with the regular infantry of the Bombay Army. When the mutiny raged round Delhi in 1857, Farquhar's Beloochees were one of the corps sent by the Bombay Government to the assistance of Sir John Lawrence, in the Punjab. The Beloochees arrived before Delhi soon after the capture of that place, and were immediately attached to the movable column, under General Penny; they served in the operations against the Futtehgur rebels, including the action of Gungeree, on December 14, 1857, and the advance on and the occupation of the enemy's position at Khasgungee. Farquhar also took part in the action against the Rohilcund rebels at Anopsur, and in various minor affairs on the banks of the Ganges. When the grand campaign for the final subjugation of Oude was opened by Lord Clyde in 1858, Colonel Farquhar and his Beloochees were attached to the brigade commanded by the late Brigadier Sir Edward Wetherall. At the attack on the enemy's fortified position of Rampore Kussia, which was considered the most brilliant exploit of the Oude campaign, Colonel Farquhar successfully commanded the storming party, but was desperately wounded, necessitating the amputation of one of his legs. This, of course, terminated his active military career, as he was compelled to return to Europe on furlough, and eventually retired from the Bombay Army in March, 1860, with the honorary rank of major-general. For his distinguished services in command of the Beloochees, Major-General Farquhar was created a Companion of the Bath in 1858, and has been for several years in receipt of a good-service pension from the Indian Government.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF LORDS, TUESDAY, July 27.—WEIGHTS AND MEASURES FOR INDIA.—Earl FORTESCUE, in moving an address on this subject, said that he wished to draw attention to the valuable report on this subject which had been laid upon the table of the House on July 20. He advocated the adoption of the metric system in India in preference to our complicated method of measuring, because then the people of India would have no difficulty in the way of trading with all the civilised world. He moved for the presentation of correspondence relating to weights and measures between the Secretary for India and the Indian Government, and between the Board of Trade and the India-office.—The Duke of ARGYLL said there was no objection to the presentation of the papers. A short time ago a despatch was received from the Government of India explaining that the weights there were in an extremely confused state, and recommending that the metric system should be adopted throughout India. He had much pleasure in sending out a despatch permitting the adoption of the metric system. One of the papers moved for consisted of a dissent from the course by Mr. Prinsep, member of the Indian Council, who had some time since taken a distinguished part in reforming Indian weights and measures; but he was alone in his opposition. The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, July 27.—RAILWAY EXTENSION IN INDIA.—Mr. KINNAIRD asked the Under-Secretary of State for India if the railway to Darjeeling had been recommended by the Government of India; and, if so, whether it was to be an extension of the East India Railway from Rajmahal, or of the Eastern Bengal line of railway from Kooshtea.—Mr. GRANT DUFF: In reply to my hon. friend I have to say that an extension of the Eastern Bengal Railway to Darjeeling has been recommended by the Government of India, and that the Secretary of State in Council has sanctioned a preliminary survey of that line from Kooshtea to Bugwah, on the Megna.

ROUTE TO CHINA, &c.—Mr. BAINES asked the Under-Secretary for India whether he objected to lay on the table of the House papers relating to the route of Captain W. C. M'Leod from Moultmein to the frontiers of China, and to the route of Dr. Richardson on his fourth mission to the Shan provinces of Burmah, or extracts from the same.—Mr. GRANT DUFF: My attention having been called to the documents by the hon. member for Wakefield, I found that, so far back as 1867, Colonel Yule wrote of them in the following terms:—"As the only modern records of visits to the obscure regions of which they treat, and the sole trustworthy materials for their geography, surely they ought to be published." I have little doubt that, if the events of the mutiny had not called off the attention of the Indian Government from the Indo-Chinese Peninsula, Colonel Yule's suggestion would have been followed up, and now, in happier times, I am glad to be able to show my respect for the opinion of that very distinguished man by laying the papers on the table of the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, FRIDAY, July 30.—PROMOTION IN THE NON-PURCHASE CORPS.—Mr. EYKYN asked the Secretary of State for War whether, in view of the existing and almost total stagnation in promotion in the non-purchase corps, as evidenced by the fact that in the (Old) Royal Artillery, numbering over one thousand officers, there had been only one step of promotion over a period of seven months, it was the intention during the present session to act upon the scheme for promotion in those corps by adopting the recommendations of the Select Committee of 1867, or by any other plan of which the Bill for the commutation of pensions might or might not form a part, or when they intended applying any remedy for the dead lock in promotion now existing.—Mr. CARDWELL said the Committee referred to made two recommendations, one of which was that the Government should have the power of purchasing retiring allowances for a capital sum, and the other was an alteration specified in the report of the date of retirement. The first of these recommendations had been carried into effect by a Bill which within the last few days had received the Royal assent, and become law, but there would not be time during the present session to carry out the remaining part of the plan.

BOXER AMMUNITION IN INDIA.—In reply to Mr. C. DENISON Captain VIVIAN said the condition of the Boxer ammunition in India was not so bad as had been represented. The ammunition, it appeared, suffered from the excessive heat and the moisture, which promoted corrosive action. The Government expected to have fuller reports, but in the meantime the subject had been considered by the Ordnance Committee, and steps had been taken which he hoped would prevent any recurrence of the evil.—In reply to Sir S. NORTHCOTE, Captain VIVIAN further stated that he believed the ammunition would be mainly, if not entirely, manufactured in this country.

THE ABYSSINIAN WAR.—Mr. CANDLISH brought up the report, of the Select Committee on the Abyssinian War.—The sitting was then suspended.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, August 2.—THE SUEZ CANAL.—In reply to Mr. GOURLAY, Mr. OTWAY said he would give all the information which the Foreign-office had upon the subject of the depth of water in the Suez Canal, but it was not of an official character. Mr. Fowler, the engineer, who was in Egypt at the beginning of the year, had reported that the canal was originally intended to be of a depth of twenty-eight feet, and he described its depth as twenty-six feet. The report stated that, with minute exceptions, the whole canal was being excavated and completed according to one or other of the following sections:—The first section, which was the most difficult of all, was 22 miles in length, 196 feet in width at the surface of the water, and 26 feet deep for a width of 72 feet at the bottom. The second section was 77 miles in length, 327 feet in width at the surface, and a similar depth of 26 feet for a width of 72 feet at the bottom. The Government had learned from other sources that the depth of the canal did not exceed 18 feet. The opening of the canal was fixed for the 17th of November, but it was very doubtful whether the work would be completed by that time.

ADVANCES TO AZEEM JAH.—In reply to Colonel SYKES, Mr. G. DUFF stated that two sums of £150,000 and £120,000 had been advanced to Azeem Jah, Nawab of the Carnatic, and that the Government had a telegram, of date the 13th July, stating that the liquidation of these sums was proceeding satisfactorily.

THE PORT DUES AT CALCUTTA.—In reply to Mr. ARMITSTEAD, Mr. G. DUFF stated that a Bill had been introduced into the Legislative Council of Bengal for raising the port dues at Calcutta, but they had not received any official communication from the Government of India on the subject. The Home Government had, in consequence of memorials received from various public bodies, communicated with the Indian Government on the matter.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE asked his hon. friend opposite a question, of which he had privately given him notice, whether there would be any objection to lay on the table any official correspondence with reference to the system of construction of railways in India, not included in the papers presented last week; and whether any dissents had been recorded by members of the Council to the despatch of the Duke of Argyll of the 15th of July. Mr. GRANT DUFF said there would be no objection to lay the correspondence upon the table. As at present advised, he believed that no such dissents had been recorded. He proposed, however, to answer the question to-morrow.

PETITIONS PRESENTED DURING THE PAST WEEK.—By Mr. Morley, from the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, in support of the Government of India Acts Amendment Bill, and especially the appointment of commercial members on the Council for India; by Mr. Dyke, from Lieut.-Colonel Pournall, Bengal Retired List, and from Lieut.-Colonel Gardner, Madras Army, for compensation for loss of regimental bonus.

SARSAPARILLA.

for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

QUINTESSANCE OF JAMAICA GINGER AND CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

NEVER at FAULT.—In all irritations of the skin, sores, ulcers, burns, and scrofulous enlargements of the glands, Holloway's Ointment presents a ready and easy means of cure which never disappoints the most favourable expectation. It manifests a peculiar power in restraining inflammation, removing stagnation, cooling the heated blood, and checking all acrimonious or unhealthy discharges. Whilst thus acting locally, the Pills are no less remarkable for their power in improving the general condition and habit of the body, which renders the cures complete and permanent. Under the general influence of these potent remedies the puny infant becomes the robust child, the pale and emaciated recovers colour and rotundity, and the dyspeptic eats freely without fear.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 329, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES.

PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, July 13; Agra, July 10; Calcutta, July 9; Madras, July 7.

Among the preparations already making for the Duke of Edinburgh's visit to India is the order to get up a grand Soldiers' Exhibition, open to the whole Indian army. Agra is the spot to which the gathered specimens of each man's skill, energy, and invention are to gravitate from all parts of the wide Peninsula. The Government will pay all expenses of carriage to and fro. Besides the thousand pounds which the Indian Government will lay out on prizes, Lord Mayo has offered two sums of forty and twenty pounds for the two best oil or water-colour paintings done by an officer or soldier now in India. A central committee will be formed at Agra, besides local committees in Madras and Bombay.

THE Government head quarters will return to Calcutta as usual early in November; but the Duke himself will hardly be due there before the middle of the ensuing month. The question of presents is already stirring the Anglo-Indian mind, not wholly satisfied with the way in which it was solved on the Duke's former visit to Australia. Presents to native chiefs and princes, of whom a great number will be summoned from all parts of India to the Agra durbar, will cost a good deal more than three or four thousand pounds. Will the Indian Treasury be saddled with all the outlay? In point of fairness England ought to pay her share at any rate; but we are not quite sanguine enough to believe that she will. Lord Mayo has a fine field for displaying tact on another question—the mode of selecting the native guests at the coming durbar. The wider the circle whence to choose, the greater the chances of giving mortal offence to a host of nobles differing from each other in everything but their sense of individual dignity.

ANOTHER problem little less significant is, how to preserve the health of Agra and its neighbourhood during the grand assemblage and after its dispersion. It is to be hoped that another season of high prices and short crops will not add to the perplexities already looming ahead. Rain had fallen plentifully in most parts of the country. Mr. Rivett Carnac gives a promising report of the cotton-fields of Central India. From Tirhoot we have improved accounts of the indigo crop, which will be "far better than was at one time expected." On the western coast however a lull in the monsoon had caused much fear for the rice crops, which might however be saved by the downpour that began again on the 12th July. A few days before that provisions in Baroda were very dear, and cholera was raging unchecked. So gloomy was at that time the prospect that the Gaikwar is said to have ordered his subjects out into the fields to pray for rain. In the North-West a fair harvest has been secured, and though prices were still high, there was no fear expressed for the immediate future.

THE unhealthy state of Simlah appears to grow worse every year. Want of proper drainage, which the municipality will not or cannot supply, is poisoning all the springs and thinning off the population at an abnormal rate. If the proper remedies are not soon applied, Simlah will rival parts of Lower Bengal, where every village, says Dr. Smith, is "literally a lair only fit for the wildest beasts of prey." After being but ten minutes in one of these villages, the same doctor and his colleague "both began to suffer from headache and to experience general discomfort," while the many vultures in the trees "were looking down unscared upon the festering scene below."

THERE was every reason to suppose that the handsome offer made by the Bombay Government, with the sanction of the Indian Minister, to the Elphinstone Land Company would be accepted by the shareholders at their next meeting. In exchange for all their rights and interests they are to receive par value for their paid-up capital in the shape of Four per Cent. Government stock at 93. In other words, they are invited to take four per cent. certain instead of three.

A TELEGRAM received at Bombay from Madras announces the stranding, near Covelong, on the 9th July, of the barque Alexandra, which sailed only the day before from Madras for Liverpool.

MORE coal has been found at Chanda, enough, it is said, to supply all the Indian railways for the next fifty years, if the coal be only of the right sort. On that if however much depends. Some of the coal, tried on a Bombay line, is described as too dirty for locomotive purposes. But on the Bombay lines they are used to the best English coal, and it was hoped that the East Indian Railway people, who were about to try the new coal on their Jubbulpore line, would pass on it a more favourable verdict. Dr. Oldham himself expects to find better coal in Chanda than this Googoo's seam.

THE reports from Mandalay are not encouraging. The King of Burmah still shirks his treaty obligations in the matter of the mixed Court under our Political Agent, and the popular feeling in Burmah is said to bode trouble for the English. We must hope that the Indian Government will stand firm.

WE observe that from two different quarters comes a contradiction of the charge recently taken up by a writer in the British Quarterly against Keshub Chunder Sen, the head of the Brahma Somaj or Unitarian Brahmins of India, as to his allowing some of his disciples to "prostrate themselves before him and worship him." The Brahmoist leader himself denies the impeachment in a letter to Miss Carpenter, and a correspondent of the Friend of India talks of the "ungrounded charges" brought against the Brahmos in this respect. The latter indeed admits the prostration, but denies the worship in the sense imputed by Mr. Sen's opponents. It does seem absurd to suppose that the leader of a sect which scouts the notion of any mediator between God and man would allow his followers to worship him as such a one. The charge apparently rests on the admitted fact, to which Mr. Chunder Sen makes no allusion, that some of his more ardent followers insist on falling at his feet and calling him "kind master," "resort of sinners," and so on. But to infer from this that kind of worship which most people understand by the term, is not more fair than it would be to charge Englishmen with worshipping her Majesty whenever they kneel to kiss her hand. All Eastern ceremonies might thus be misconstrued into acts of genuine worship, and it is not in the East alone that reverence towards a symbol is apt to degenerate into downright idolatry. In this instance there is no reason to accuse the Brahmoist leader of trying to surround himself with a sham divinity.

MR. C. U. AITCHISON, formerly Under Secretary in the Indian Foreign Department, and afterwards in the Punjab Commission, well-known also as compiler of the excellent series of Indian Treaties which has since become the text-book of all the Indian departments, went out to Bombay by last Friday's mail, to take up at Simlah the post of Officiating Secretary to Government in the Foreign Department; Mr. Seton-Karr, whom he replaces, being about to come home. Lord Mayo had telegraphed for Mr. Aitchison, who started off in hot haste, without loss of a day. With one exception, that of Mr. Wyllie, the acting Foreign Secretary is the youngest civilian who has ever held that high appointment; his service dating from 1856, when he passed out among the first batch of candidates elected by competition.

THE papers record the death on August 8 of the Hon. Emily Eden, sister of the Lord Auckland who governed India during the memorable campaign for the re-enthronement of Shah Soojah in Afghanistan. Miss Eden accompanied her brother to India, and kept house for him during his stay there. Her talent as an artist found scope, among other things, in the production of a handsome folio containing "Portraits of the People and Princes of India." Some of her cleverly-written letters home were published a few years ago in a volume called "Up the Country," the full interest of which could only be relished by those who knew the real persons whose names were indicated by blanks or initials. The best things in the volume were the accounts of visits exchanged with Runjit Singh and his party. Two of Miss Eden's novels, "The Semi-Attached Couple," and "The Semi-Detached House," evinced a certain cleverness in the delineation of social traits, which secured them a fair amount of passing popularity.

THE subsequent discussion, carried on from Tuesday to a late hour of Thursday night, was led off by Mr. Crawford with an able criticism of the financial policy of the Indian Government. He found special fault with the high export duties on all kinds of grain. Most of his speech was an elaborate defence of the guarantee system of railways, which had done its work, he maintained, with marvellous completeness, at a cheaper rate than the Government under the new system could ever do theirs. Sir S. Northcote chimed in with the last speaker on the subject of railways and export duties, and doubted how far the Public Works Department could meet the new demand on its powers. Sir Charles Wingfield liked the new railway scheme, but shook his head over the outlay on the new barracks, whose superior healthiness he greatly doubted, in comparison with mud walls and thatched roofs. Mr. Fowler and Sir W. Lawson ran a mad tilt at the disgraceful opium duty, which Indian statesmen will doubtless think of abolishing as soon as their English compeers refrain from taxing beer and spirits. A protest from Colonel Sykes against the undue strength of our British army in India closed the first night's debate.

INDIAN affairs have filled a pretty large space in the Parliamentary discussions of the past week. On Tuesday last Mr. Grant Duff made one of his clearest and most exhaustive speeches on the Indian Budget in the presence at one time of no fewer than seventy members. This alone was a wonderful event, considering the subject and the season. The Duke of Argyll in the Upper House had also taken some of the wind out of his Under Secretary's sails a fortnight before. Nevertheless Mr. Grant Duff made the best of his opportunity, and relieved his dense array of facts and figures with a telling accompaniment of clear explanations and suggestive remarks, which held the attention of a House that will always listen to an interesting speaker, whatever his theme. The steady productiveness of the forest department—another of Dalhousie's legacies—the superiority of Indian to Persian opium, the immense amount of work done by our countrymen in the East, the "enormous cost" of our Indian Army, the progress of education, the true financial theory of public works, the need of retrenchment in military outlay and in "ordinary" public works, were some of the more salient topics in Mr. Grant Duff's comprehensive speech. We should like to hear more of his plan for tempting natives of the non-mercantile classes to invest in Government securities, by means of "savings-banks and other devices." It will probably be news to many Anglo-Indians that the Indian Government subscribes £35,000 a-year towards the maintenance of an English mission in Persia, and of a consular and diplomatic service in China. From Mr. Grant Duff's reference to the demands of Manchester on behalf of Indian irrigation, it is pretty clear that the India-office has no idea of borrowing money too fast on too large a scale. It contents itself with asking for power to borrow eight millions, of which about £2,600,000 are to be raised in England for immediate use. The Under-Secretary's reasons for building the new barracks out of current revenue are no stronger than those advanced elsewhere. If the new barracks are aught better than splendid failures, they may surely claim to be classed among reproductive works, as tending to economise the lives of their destined inmates.

ON Thursday night Messrs. J. B. Smith and Bazley spoke up for the cotton interests, which the former reproached the Indian Government with having unduly neglected. Mr. C. Denison made some rational remarks about opium, which the Chinese, "if they would have it, might as well get first-rate from us as second-rate at home." He demurred to the new system of railway management, but hoped it would succeed better than the Ganges Canal and "other public works" had done, and that another year the Indian Budget might be discussed a good deal earlier in the season. Mr. Platt pleaded for railways in the cotton districts, and Sir D. Wedderburn urged the policy of massing our British garrisons in the hills. Mr. Kinnaird scolded right and left on behalf of the poor ill-used natives, who are liable to punishment "for scraping salt from the mud about their cottages." The tax on salt and the revenue from opium were his special aversion. But it was getting late, and at Mr. Bright's suggestion the Government were allowed to proceed with their Indian business. The Government of India Bill then passed through Committee after Mr. Dickenson had failed to limit the right of pension to those members of the India Council who should have served ten years. The Governor-general Bill was virtually dropped for this session, with the exception of two clauses enlarging the Viceroy's powers over native subjects, and a third empowering him to make laws against vagrancy.

WANT of space compels us to defer to our next issue any extended notice of Mr. Juland Danvers's Railway Report, as well as a review of books on Central Asia, and the list of awards made by the Indian Committees on the claims of officers for bonus compensation. We hope also in our next issue to comment on the official report on "The Moral and Material Progress of India in 1867-8."

POLICE.—The Deccan Herald understands that Government have sanctioned the appointment of a third Revenue and Police Commissioner for the Bombay Presidency, under the designation of Revenue and Police Commissioner, Central Division. This arrangement will necessitate a reduction in the Establishments of the Revenue and Police Commissioners, N. D. and S. D. Mr. L. A. Ashburner, Collector of Khandeish, and who officiated as Revenue Police Commissioner, S. D., during the recent absence of Mr. Havelock, is spoken of as likely to succeed to the new appointment.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, August 11, 1869.

THE SUPERSESSION OF ENGLISH COLONELS.

THERE seems at present to be small chance of overcoming the deadlock in the question at issue between the colonels of the English and the Indian army. It may indeed be overcome by the simple expedient of stopping all promotions of Indian colonels until the balance of advantage has once more been redressed. But, as the last promoted of the Indian generals passed over the heads of 230 English colonels, some of whom date as colonels from 1854, such an arrangement would inflict an enormous injustice on the colonels now heading the Indian list. The stoppage already decreed by the Indian Government can never be meant to continue many months. Why not, therefore, give an immediate step of rank to the superseded colonels on the British list? A plan to that effect has indeed been proposed, at a probable outlay of £12,000 a-year for the next five or six years. It would give early promotion to about a hundred and forty colonels of the British army and the Indian staff corps, thus greatly lessening the present inequalities. It has also been proposed to grant local rank to any British officer who would else be superseded by an Indian. To these and other like proposals, however, a deaf ear has been turned by the War Office, which refuses to sanction any remedy involving fresh demands on the Treasury. Of course the India Office declines to be mulcted for the benefit of officers in another service. It is declared to be impossible to do away with the Royal Warrant of 1864. It is evidently unjust to stop the promotion of Indian colonels for the benefit of their English rivals; and the War Office will endorse no scheme for righting matters which would add a penny to the charge on the English revenues. The labours of the last committee being thus rendered fruitless, Mr. Cardwell has agreed to appoint another, composed of general officers of the two services, with "an eminent lawyer," to give the casting vote. They will be free to recommend whatever solution they please, except the one which seems most practicable—namely, the granting of back rank to the superseded colonels. That would entail new burdens on the Exchequer. We are curious to see how the new committee will solve the riddle.

MILITARY ECONOMY.

It is very natural and quite proper that English statesmen should grumble at "the enormous cost" of maintaining in India an army of 64,704 Europeans and 122,984 natives. Sixteen millions in all takes a pretty large slice out of the forty-eight or forty-nine millions yearly discharged into the Indian exchequer. With reference to this, "the weak point of the system," as Mr. Grant Duff calls it, we are not surprised that the Secretary should have written out to India injunctions likely to "strengthen the hands of economists in that country." The Duke of Argyll hints at the possibility of saving a million now expended on items for which nobody seems able to account. We can only hope that the saving may be effected without harm to the public service; but there lies the danger against which economists in all countries have especially to guard. No one can say that an army of 190,000 men is too large a force for India's military and political needs; while most authorities agree in asserting that the present numbers are barely equal to the duties required of them. A further reduction of five or ten thousand Europeans, were it never so feasible, would have to be compensated by an addition of about twice their number to the native army. It is still a question how many natives should serve for each European; but whether the proportion should be two or three to one, the limit of increase would anyhow be soon reached, even if considerations of expense were to be wholly thrust aside. It seems hopeless to expect that any English Government will forbear from shifting to Anglo-Indian shoulders the burden of paying for the employment in other countries of troops borrowed from the Indian garrisons. The supply departments of the Indian army have been cut down to starving point, and no one would wish to lay niggard hands on a medical service which has already suffered from ill-considered thrift.

Nor is there any chance of saving money in the direction of the soldier's pay. Already that pay has had to be raised in partial offset to the steadily growing cost of food and other necessities. As for the commissioned ranks, no amount of clever conjuring will materially reduce for many years to come the heavy charges consequent on the need of finding pay and promotion for so many unemployed officers of the old Indian Army. Whether the present glut of field officers be remedied by the timely offer of retiring bonuses, or left to find its own remedy through lapse of time, the Indian Treasury must long continue to be burdened with the cost of their maintenance. And another claim which may yet be decided against the India-office, the demand once more raised by scores of officers for compensation for their lost regimental bonuses, threatens to add a few hundred thousands to the military outlay of the next few years.

Economy has also reached its limit with regard to the number of English officers in native regiments. In fact, there is very good ground for believing that the limit has already been overstept. It was once deemed a stroke of economic prudence to reorganise the whole native army on the old "irregular" pattern, so far as the number of English officers was concerned. But from all sides we are assured that the reform has proved a general failure. The old irregulars were picked men to begin with; their native officers were picked men of an age best suited to the toils and trials of active warfare; their English officers were virtually picked men, of high ambition, undoubted energy, and strong military instincts. They were proud of their regiments, and their regiments were proud of leaders whom they had time to know and appreciate. All this has been materially changed by the system established in 1861. In place of the old regular Sepoy army we have established a system which combines the form of an irregular service with the essential weaknesses of the old regular model. The native officers as a rule still rise by seniority instead of merit, and are therefore most useless when their services should be in prime request; while their personal influence over the men, wherever it mounts above zero, is not often of the wholesomest sort. Of its frequent barrenness for good we have a curious instance in the conduct of a company of Madras Sepoys, who lately refused to embark for the Andamans under the command of a native officer alone.

With such men at the head of the native companies, six or seven English officers, however able and zealous, must be too few for the work in times of pressure. And as a fact, the present system has hitherto proved unequal to the demands of active service. In Bhotan, Abyssinia, on the Punjab frontier, the troops on service have had to be strengthened with a supplement of officers drawn from other and sometimes distant parts of India. Sir W. Mansfield has more than once enlarged on the strain to which the Staff Corps has repeatedly been put to meet the exigencies of even a short campaign. And while one part of the army is thus liable to be weakened, the gain to the other is often of the smallest. The officers summoned for the occasion are new to their men, and often to their men's ways; a drawback many times more baneful with native than with English troops. Indeed it may be said that under the new system officers and men, even in times of peace, are prevented from knowing each other by the frequent changes going on among the former. Nor are these at present the picked men of the old irregular days. To them, as a rule, the native regiment offers a temporary resting-place on the way to preferment, rather than the basis of a distinct career. One virtue at least of the old regimental system was the interest that lay upon most of the officers in making the regiment their home. Even those who were away on staff duties kept up a certain connection with their regiment, and rejoined it from time to time not as absolute strangers, but as long absent comrades. In spite of some natural grumbling among their juniors, their presence imparted to those around them a feeling of added strength, a cheering conviction that two white officers to a company were better on the whole for fighting purposes than one.

Instead of two to each company, there is now not quite one; and it cannot of course be contended that officers under the new system are twice as good as the very same officers under the old. Nor are the younger recruits for the Staff Corps specially adapted by their previous training to rival the special excellences of the old irregular officers. As for the bulk of native subadars and jemadars, is it possible to compare them for a moment with the smart young high-bred native officers of the old irregular type, who could be trusted at a pinch to command their regiments in the absence of their white superiors? In Bombay, and even in Bengal, there are some, no doubt, who reach the higher standard; but the Madras Army, to judge not from the tirades of Calcutta journalists, but from the confessions of its own officers, furnishes a standing instance of the evils of a system which promotes sepoy to the commissioned ranks by strict routine, at an age when they are only fit to be pensioned off. Either we must eventually recur to some modification of the old system, or else some change must be made in the mode of appointing the native officers. In either case no saving of money can be looked for under this particular head. In what other quarter economy could be applied with safety is more than we can just now pretend to indicate. If the Duke of Argyll can see his way to saving a million, we shall be glad to hear of his success.

RE-ARMING OF THE NATIVE TROOPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I have only just seen your impression of the 28th ult., in which you mention that "the absurd injustice of keeping our native troops armed with an inferior musket to that of their English comrades is no longer tolerated at the India-office." Will you, with your usual liberality, allow one who takes an opposite view of this subject to your own to say a few words upon it? And first I would ask against whom are our native troops likely to use their muskets? Where are the "common foe" of whom you speak, and against whom "they are to take their place in line with white soldiers?" I do not hesitate to say there is no such "common foe" now existing. There is no army near us in India to fight with. The only force worthy the name of an army are the troops of Persia, and they are contemptible, and could be crushed by a division of British soldiers. Against whom then I again ask are we to arm the native soldiery with the Snider or Martini-Henry? There is but one foe against whom they can ever make use of these weapons, and that is their rulers and masters—the hated white-faced European! Do you suppose,

Sir, that these mercenary soldiers would not turn upon us to-morrow if they had a hope of success? And we cannot blame them; for we would do the same thing to-morrow were we under the sway of a foreign Power and had a chance of kicking him out. Who that knows anything of India does not know that the Mussulman is the slow match ever burning there, and always ready to fire the train when an opportunity offers? and who does not also know that the only section of India's people that can combine against us is that which composes our "native troops?" In your paper now under notice there is an extract from the Friend of India, headed "Indian Patriotism," and showing that caste and caste alone destroys all true patriotism, and leaves India without a hero. And this same caste is our sure safeguard against anything like a combined rising among the people of India. They never can so combine so long as caste exists. Our sole danger is from the native army. Men that never would and never could combine together for any common object, had they remained in their native village, even though they lived next door to each other, grow into a sort of brotherhood from being fellow-soldiers, and, as we know to our bitter cost, can and will combine and will act together, and will use the arms we place in their hands, in one common effort to expel or exterminate the white-faced intruder. And yet, forgetful of the past, we are about to place them as much on a par with our own soldiers as we can!—on a par with those who are there to overawe these very native soldiers, and prevent their turning us out and taking possession of their own again. Verily, we are a wise and generous, if not a far-seeing people. I ask, Sir, is it not so? who else have our British troops to protect us against? who else can they ever have to fight with? As I have said already, the people can never rise. There is no foreign foe to be overawed by a large British force. A good strong force of natives—like the Irish Constabulary—armed with Brown Bess, is all that is necessary to support the civil power; and with our railroads enabling us to mass in a moment, on almost any spot, our European troops, a small body of these would be sufficient to overawe this force or any unruly body of Mussulmans. But we choose to have a native army, just as if we still had a Hyder Ali and a Holkar on one side, with their large and disciplined armies, and a Runjeet Sing on the other, with his splendid Seikhs; and this compels us to keep 60,000 British soldiers in India to prevent their turning us out of it, and to give them somebody to fight with. And as Britishers love fair play, and would not like to take such a dirty advantage as to meet them with the Snider against their old rifles, we generously propose to arm these useful "native troops" with the best weapon we can—the Martini-Henry rifle. No doubt a good mutiny like that of 1857 affords great opportunities for gaining distinction and promotion, and that offers some recompense in the eyes of an old soldier for the encouragement to mutiny afforded by thus arming our "native troops."—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

J. H. MACDONALD, Lieut. Colonel.

A LOCAL EUROPEAN ARMY FOR INDIA.

The Madras Times holds that local European regiments would afford an excellent recruiting ground for officers of native corps, and, indeed, for the staff corps generally, there being no cause for discontent of Indian service in a local European regiment. It appears to us that it may safely be laid down as a general rule that officers of British regiments cordially detest Indian service, while the men are not averse to it. It is astonishing to officers sometimes what a number of men will volunteer to remain in India, when a regiment is ordered home. We have heard of one regiment in which the number of those who desired to enlist in regiments serving in India, amounted to 450 (a tolerably clear proof that we should have no difficulty in obtaining good men for local regiments), but when we come to consider that most of these volunteers were men who had served over five years in India, and had become accustomed to Indian life and Indian luxuries, such as they exist for the soldier in India, there is really nothing to be surprised at. For the officer, in the majority of instances, the Indian service becomes more hateful every day. For the soldier it improves every year as he becomes acclimatised, and settles down to it. In short, while we have to offer many inducements to a young officer to make India his home, we have merely to ask for soldiers and they will come to us readily. Under all these circumstances, then, we cannot perceive anything more serious than departmental difficulties in the way of our having a European local army for India upon the same model, but of greater strength than the local European forces of the East India Company. We should gain much from the organisation of such a force. In the first place, we should be assured, that in the event of a European war, India would not be denuded of troops, and allowed to a great extent to shift for itself. Secondly, we should save the vast cost of continually transporting troops from England to India and vice versa. Thirdly, we believe we should greatly diminish the death-rate in regiments, having reason to expect that the mortality in acclimatised regiments, whether due to climatic influences or dissipation, would be far below that in regiments new to India and fresh from home. Of course the formation of a local army would prove a very apple of discord to the graces of the India Office, the War Office, and the Horse Guards, each of whom would like to have the control of it. Still, allowing for the inevitable "muddles," which must always occur in our army reforms, there is no impossibility in raising once more for India a purely local European force. In fact, we think there is a more likely impossibility in matters military being permitted to continue as they are, more especially should a European war occur, in which we might possibly be engaged to the grave concern of our Empire in the East.

ANGLO-INDIAN PROVINCIALISM.

The Friend of India observes that the Anglo-Indian will generally be found to take a wider and more practical view of all public questions, whether social, political, or religious, and to be less biassed by considerations of sentiment and party than those observers whose experience of the world has been less extensive and varied. If a Tory he will probably end in Radicalism, like Sir C. Wingfield, while he criticises all parties without prejudice. However conventional in his views and habits, he will soon learn to look at social problems without English spectacles, and the climate, if nothing else, will teach him a new philosophy of the Sartor Resartus type. However narrow in his religious views he will soon throw off sectarianism, and if not a Ritualist he will learn and practise the most liberal toleration. He may be as erratic as he chooses in his opinions, and as eccentric as he pleases in his life. In truth the tendency of a man in India is to let toleration evaporate into indifference and breadth of view become identified with a want of faith in anything but himself. Yet in relation to India and Indian subjects the English resident is often bitterly provincial. In minor questions, affecting communities and localities with which he is connected, the Anglo-Indian is by no means always disposed to permit himself to be influenced by his liberal feelings. In the case of the soldier and civilian there is, owing to the territorial divisions of the Empire, an irresistible tendency to confound provincialism with esprit de corps. The period of our sojourn in India dates from such recent times that the traditions of the earlier services still exercise an active influence upon their members, who look upon themselves as the immediate heirs of the prestige gained by their predecessors in conquering and consolidating the country. It is owing to the existence of the Company's old arrangements that no one service is content to merge its glories in those of the others, and to boast of its share in dominating an empire rather than its single-handed subjection of a province. The young Englishman soon learns to believe that the province into which he has fallen must be in an exceptional state of advancement; that all other native races are inferior to that with which he has become familiar; and that progress can only be effected in the identical manner in which he himself is working it out. This is the reason why, with a few remarkable exceptions, the Madras civilians are to a man advocates of ryotwary tenures in land; that the Bombay officer is a firm believer in the virtues of a thirty years' settlement; and that the Anglo-Bengalee views all doubts regarding the principle of the Permanent Settlement with the intolerance which such heretical notions merit.

THE SUIT AGAINST THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONERS.

The Englishman comments on the legal proceedings which one of the young native gentlemen, who was rejected on the ground of age, has instituted against the Civil Service Commissioners. The action is an unusual one, and probably the very last thing that a young Englishman would have thought of under the circumstances. The truth is that the educated Bengali knows far better how to make use of our Courts than we do ourselves, and he is free from that wholesome terror of litigation to which most Englishmen are subject. We shall watch the proceedings with interest, and we shall sincerely rejoice if the young gentleman should establish his right to enjoy the honours he has so worthily won. We think it a pity that some of our native contemporaries should represent the English press as rejoicing in the misfortune of their two countrymen. We believe that they are altogether mistaken in such a supposition. For our own part, the only emotion with which we have viewed the case has been a painful repression of sympathy, until the personal good faith of the candidates can be established. It must be a most grievous disappointment to young men who have travelled so far and worked so hard to gain their position in life, and who had gained it so honourably, to see their whole career snatched away in the moment of victory. But it is infinitely of greater importance that the English people should be freed from the unpleasant suspicions which inevitably arise in such a case, and which are the more excusable as the same mistake has been made simultaneously by two natives of India. We shall be heartily glad if such surmises are rebutted and finally silenced by the course the young gentleman has now taken, even if he should fail to regain his place. Meanwhile we trust that the native press will see the inexpediency and the injustice of imputing ungenerous sentiment to the English lookers-on. It may be sure that want of sympathy with the unfortunate is not an English characteristic. Only let the question of good faith be cleared up, and sympathy will flow freely.

CHANDA.—No rain had fallen in the district during June. The people were put to very little trouble for want of water, as by digging a few feet below the surface of tanks, nullahs, and streams, they were able to supply themselves. In some places cattle had to be driven three or four miles to water, but continued healthy. In the Ghatkool pergunnah bison died by scores, and their carcasses furnished a welcome supply of meat to the poorer population. In almost every village in the rice tracts tanks had been deepened, and about 2,500 masonry wells cleaned out, which gave employment to thousands, while about 1,100 persons were employed on relief and local works. Another source of subsistence which has been much resorted to was cutting and selling wood and bamboos. Special measures were taken to ascertain village by village that sufficient seed-grain was obtainable by the ryots. Advances for this purpose have been made, and the people have sufficient seed rice for the approaching sowings. Prices of food grain are very high, and a large proportion of the poorer classes are now living upon mowah and other jungle produce.—Official Report.

THE INHABITANTS OF THE NICOBARS.—The men are very suspicious and reserved, and the women seldom seen, owing to the former being extremely jealous of them. Their huts are strongly built, elevated erections of one room only each, four or five huts making a hamlet; the savages generally going about naked within these hamlets, and clothing themselves only when they go towards the coast to meet strangers. Nearly all the men met with speak broken English, and very many call themselves after the captains who have visited their ports—Capt. Crisp, Capt. Hazlewood, Capt. Campbell, Capt. Cook, and so forth. The islanders are, of course, very evilly disposed to those who have taken possession of their islands; but no communication whatever is permitted between them and the convicts, and a strong European guard is always maintained. About two years ago, when a vessel was lost on the Nicobars, and a search expedition sent out, it was alleged that a woman had long been in captivity on them. This individual appears to have been met with, and she speaks of nineteen vessels, large and small, cut off by these pirates, and the crews murdered. Lieut. Randall, of the Madras establishment, will probably take charge of the settlement, under the Commissioner of the Andaman Islands.—Indian Daily News.

SANSKRIT MSS.—The Government of Bengal has asked the assistance of the Asiatic Society in drawing up lists of Sanskrit MSS. in native libraries, and, generally, in the discovery and preservation of Sanskrit works, according to the recent orders of the Government of India. The Philological Committee of the Society have appointed an efficient Pundit for this purpose, and the Rev. J. Long and Baboo Rajendralala Mitra have agreed to make frequent tours in search of MSS., as Dr. Bühler does in the Bombay Presidency. The Baboo's experiences during his tour in Orissa are thus told by himself, when urging that the Pundit employed be a Brahmin of the highest caste:—"Some priests and math keepers are jealous of their literary treasures, and do not allow them to be seen by other than Orthodox Hindoos. When at Puri lately I had to prove my Orthodoxy by leaving my shoes beyond the outer-gate, by drawing water from a well in the compound with my own hands to wash my hands and feet, by prostrating myself before the high priest, and by sitting on the bare ground of the compound before I was allowed to enter the library of Sankara math at Puri. The priest allows none to see the library who does not speak Sanskrit. At such places poor Brahmins will find readier favour than high paid Government officials, or men of wealth and position. How an enthusiast like Goldstucker would enjoy such experience and go through it without scruple. Baboo Rajendralala has urged the addition of two columns to the blank form of the Government of India according to which the catalogues are to be printed—one to contain the salutation in verse (after the usual Ganesayanamah, which should be omitted) and the first line, and the other the last line and the colophon of every manuscript. Without these the characters of portions of the Sanhitas, or the Bramanhas of the four Vedas, can never be so tabulated as to give the most distant idea of what they really are. It is curious to learn that copyists of Sanskrit MSS. are paid at the rate of four rupees the thousand slokas, or couplets, of 32,000 letters. When paid by the month the copyists waste their time and cost nearly four times this rate. The society's Pundit, having to amalgamate the several lists that will be received from time to time and to prepare copy for the press, is to be paid thirty rupees a month."—Friend of India.

THE HARVEST PROSPECTS IN CENTRAL INDIA.

The following letter from H. Rivett-Carnac, Esq., Cotton Commissioner for the Central Provinces and the Berars, to the Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay, is valuable as supplying the latest and most reliable information regarding the weather and harvest prospects of the Central Provinces :—

SIR,—As numerous inquiries have been addressed to me during the past week regarding the weather and the harvest prospects in Central India, it would appear desirable that, before the mail leaves, your Chamber should be in possession of the following information, received by telegraph last night, which will relieve the anxiety felt regarding the cotton crop of the Central Provinces and the Berars :—

The Assistant to the Cotton Commissioner, West Berar (Shegaum), telegraphs under date July 11, 4 P.M. :—

“Rain-fall 93 cents. within last three days. Crops narrowly saved. Prospects now good.”

The Assistant, East Berar (Oomrawuttee), reports, July 11, 10 A.M. :—

“Light, partial rain since Wednesday. Crops have not suffered yet.” From Hingunghat the following telegram was received, dated July 11, 10 A.M. :—

“Crop promises well here. Rain during week nearly two inches. Reports from Arvee and Wurdah not so good, but recent partial showers have saved the cotton.”

Previous to the week to which these reports refer the state of the weather had given occasion for some alarm. The monsoon broke on the 19th of June, and during the following days nearly three inches of rain fell at Shegaum and the neighbourhood, the fall at Oomrawuttee being about the same. Further east, at Hingunghat and throughout the Wurdah Valley, down as far as Chandah, sufficient rain fell, and the cultivators were satisfied with the weather. Cotton sowings were then commenced, and the greater part of the seed was soon got into the ground.

On the 24th, however, the rain cleared off, and from that date up to the period to which these telegrams refer, the days were hot and dry, and it was apprehended that a continuance of the unseasonable weather would scorch up the plants and render a second sowing necessary. The timely rain has saved the crop, and the prospects are now favourable.—I have, &c.,

H. RIVETT-CARNAC,

Bombay, July 12.

STATION TALK.

RANGOON, June 22.—“The mail that brought your paper containing my last effusion is reported to have brought General Fytche the instructions he has so long waited for in reference to the policy to be pursued towards the Court of Mandalay. These instructions, I am told, are decidedly stringent. The treaty is to be insisted on, in spirit and in letter; the Agency Court, as provided for by the treaty, is to be immediately opened, an agent is to be established at Bhamo, and the King of Burmah and his advisers are to be made to understand that the British Government is not in any way inclined to give up any advantages which may have been ceded to it by the treaty. These instructions are certainly plain enough and determined enough. The Chief Commissioner, who had been waiting for them with some impatience, not perhaps unmingled with anxiety, lost no time in transmitting them to Captain Sladen, the Political Agent at Mandalay. The General felt that delay only increases the doubts of the Burmese Government as to the attitude of the Government of India, and that it is chiefly to these doubts it is owing that that Government has ventured to exhibit signs of hostility.” The same correspondent, in enumerating these signs of hostilities, alludes to “the Puays, or popular entertainments, all over the city of Mandalay and the suburbs are made use of to instil a spirit of hatred and contempt for foreigners into the minds of the populace. The Burmese dramas or plays performed at these Puays are often interrupted by interpolations relating to passing events of general interest. At the present moment the burden of many of the songs, and the point of many of the most popular hits, is the coming of the day when the Kala, or foreigner, will be driven from the country. The audience is called upon to prepare for the moment when great deeds will be done, and the days of Burmese glory and power revived.”—Englishman Correspondent.

MYNPOORIE, June 30.—The weather keeps very hot here; the thermometer is 98 degrees in the shade. To-day it is cloudy, and I hope we shall have rain soon. A very heavy flight of locusts passed over this morning; the period of flight lasted upwards of an hour; the high wind ultimately blew them away; they came from the east and went westwards. Should this dreadfully hot weather continue, I fear many poor people will be dying from famine. Grain is selling, wheat at 12, and gram 13 seers for the rupee; ruinous prices for any one, especially the poor.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

ABSCONDED.—The agent of the Bank of Bengal at Akyab has offered the sum of Rs. 3,000 for the capture of Moung Galay, the late treasurer of the bank at that station.

VILLAGE SCHOOLS.—The Patchala or village system of schools is to be largely extended throughout Bengal.

THOUGHTFUL CONDUCT.—The Maharajah Sindiah has placed his Baradurree and another house at the disposal of the British troops suffering from cholera at Morar.

THE RACES.—The Calcutta races for 1869 have obtained large entries, owing to the encouragement given to the sport by the Viceroy.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The traffic receipts of the East Indian Railway for the first six months of 1869 show an increase over those of 1868 for the same period of upwards of £200,000.

PATNA.—The state of the Patna district still causes anxiety; 23,914 persons are still daily employed on relief works, and the distress is expected to last until September.

MANDALAY.—The British Agency Court is still unopened at Mandalay. The King continues his preparations for war, and has sent some guns towards the British frontier.

A STERN EXAMPLE.—A native paper says that Scindiah has sentenced a man to be hanged for imprisoning a pair of young people with a view to sacrificing them in some horrible religious rites.

DINAPORE.—It is said that the further arrests of Wahabees have been made at Dinapore, so that the detective police may now resume their work in the Punjab with a good clue.

BRITISH BURMAH.—The forest revenue from Burmah for the year 1868 amounted to a net sum of upwards of three lakhs. The Chief Commissioner has recommended a large outlay for the new plantations, and the improvement of the navigation of the rivers.

OPIMUM SALE.—The following is the result of the opium sale held on Wednesday, July 7 :—

	Chests.	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Proceeds.
Behar ...	2,200	1,300	1,290	Rs. 1,292-1-1	Rs. 25,42,550

THE MINT.—During the month of May the amounts of silver received and coined in the respective mints of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay were as follows :—Calcutta received Rs. 28,92,747 and coined Rs. 19,85,844; Madras received Rs. 15,555 and coined Rs. 54,323; and Bombay received Rs. 79,80,386 and coined Rs. 87,24,962.

ARRACAN.—The Arracan News reports that a raid has been made by the Khyens, on the village of Detchan. They succeeded in plundering the village (which they afterwards burnt) and in carrying off one woman. Three men and one woman were wounded in the attack.

A PRINCELY CULPRIT.—The fourth Prince of Nepaul, Birindra Bikrama Shah, has been found guilty of kidnapping by the Sessions Judge of Benares, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5,000, or a further term of one year's imprisonment in the event of the fine not being paid.

ALI RAJPORE.—The Governor-General in Council has just sanctioned an advance of Rs. 20,000 to the State of Ali Rajpore, the management of which was recently assumed by the British Government in consequence of its mal-administration. This advance has been granted in order to free the State from embarrassment; for while its treasury was exhausted, there were several pressing claims of mercenaries, &c, which called for immediate settlement. The loan bears interest at 5 per cent. per annum, and is to be repaid to the British Government within eighteen months from the date of issue.

MEDICAL RELIEF.—The Lieutenant Governor has approved of a scheme of medical relief for the sufferers by the epidemic fever in the Hooghly district submitted by Mr. Buckland, the Officiating Commissioner. The scheme involves an additional outlay of Rs. 1,149 per month for the establishment of new dispensaries and hospitals; but this will in some instances be met by local funds and subscriptions, supplemented by Government aid. The Inspector-General of Hospitals has been requested to supply the additional sub-assistant surgeons and native doctors required, as well as medicines for the dispensaries and hospitals.

CALCUTTA VOLUNTEERS.—From the report on the Calcutta Volunteers for the season 1868-69 it appears that the total strength of the corps on the muster rolls is 298, of whom 191 are effective members. The General commanding the presidency division and the Commander-in-Chief both inspected the regiment during the past season, and expressed themselves in flattering terms on the way in which they went through their manœuvres and on their general appearance. The value of the prizes offered for competition in shooting amounted to Rs. 4,803 and the Governor-General accepted the honorary colonelcy of the regiment. But few regiments in England can boast of so much encouragement.—Englishman, July 5.

POLICE IN BENGAL.—The officiating Commissioner of Police has been requested to submit a special report to the Government of Bengal regarding the employment of natives as inspectors of police, showing how many natives were appointed in 1868, and how many resigned; whether it is the nature of the duties, or their amount, which is supposed to be too arduous for natives. The Lieutenant-Governor would also be glad to have a sketch of the daily duties which devolve on a police inspector in Calcutta. His Honour found it difficult to understand how the police could be successfully worked among a large native population, such as that of Calcutta, without a considerable native element in the higher ranks of the force.

COMMERCIAL.—Mr. Robert Hardie has been appointed Deputy Secretary to the Bank of Bengal in the room of the late Mr. D. Woods.

WINE FROM THE JAMUN TREE.—We notice that a Sicilian missionary, Mr. John Joseph Varnier Miritello, has succeeded, after several experiments, in producing wine from the fruit of the Jamun tree, which is at the same time both palatable and medicinal. It has been submitted to several medical men, who have pronounced that the stronger kinds would "doubtless prove useful for patients suffering from dysentery and diarrhoea." The discoverer proposes to call the wine kenoinos, to distinguish it from the product of the grape, and as there are numerous species of jamun trees, and a different description of wine can be produced from each, it may ultimately become an article of large consumption in this country.

CATTLE-PLAGUE IN THE SUNDERBUNS.—Veterinary Surgeon Farrell pronounces the Gootee, which has made such sad havoc among the cattle in the Sunderbuns, to be the rinderpest or murrain of the Russian Steppes. He describes the disease as a low malignant fever of the typhoid type, capable of being propagated by inoculation, and similar to the variola of human beings. There appears to be no specific for the disease. Mr. Farrell considers that careful attention to sanitary arrangements, with good hygienic management, will be found more valuable in dealing with the disease than any medicinal agents. Mr. Farrell has, we observe, been again deputed to the Sunderbuns to investigate the nature of the Paschima, a cattle disease lately brought to the notice of the public by Mr. Rainey, through the Agricultural Society of Calcutta.—Pioneer.

DOVETON COLLEGE.—On Tuesday evening there was an adjourned meeting of the members of the society. The proceedings were of a somewhat stormy character, owing to a resolution being passed, expressive of a want of confidence in the committee, in consequence of their having undertaken to defend the masters at the cost of Rs. 1,000 in the late trial. Seven members of the committee thereupon resigned, including the Rev. Mr. Don, Dr. Mendes, Rev. Mr. Thompson, and Mr. Naylor. A new committee is in process of formation, on which, we understand, Mr. J. B. Roberts will be again elected. It appears that three masters, the defendants in the late trial, have resigned; Mr. Scott and Thompson have already left, and Mr. Dick will follow their example at the end of this month.—Englishman, July 7.

DOMESTIC HOSTILITIES.—We give the following curious notice, published as an advertisement in the Lucknow Times, the benefit of a gratis circulation:—"Whereas, my husband, Arthur Owen, a clerk in the office of the Judicial Commissioner, has advertised setting forth that I have left his protection, and that he is not responsible for any debt I may incur, I hereby notify that the said advertisement is false, inasmuch as I did not leave Arthur Owen's protection; but that he abandoned me at my mother's house (where he and I were residing), after having cruelly beaten me, and that he is responsible for any debts I may contract for necessities. On the 24th June Arthur Owen was bound down to keep the peace by J. W. Quinton, Esq., who remarked, 'Arthur Owen, I am convinced that you are a man in the habit of striking your wife, and that your conduct has been most disgraceful.'—HARRIET OWEN."

A SENSIBLE DISREGARD OF THE BRAHMINS.—Civilisation advances! A Lucknow paper tells us that "the Brahminical anathema on the use of the American ice is now scarcely respected by the orthodox Hindoos. The American ice, if we mistake not, was first introduced here by Hukeem Fokhr-ood-deen, when he was in the zenith of his mercantile grandeur. This year Goorpershad Shookul, a well-known Brahmin banker of Cawnpore, undertook to supply it to the residents of this city. It is considered now both by Hindoos and Mahomedans as a perfect luxury. All that they have to do before putting a piece into a cup is, to wash it with pure water, which process is calculated to remove its supposed impurity." But it needs something with the seductive charms of burruf to wile the Hindoos from obedience to their priests.

CINCHONA.—But little was done in the Cinchona plantations at Darjeeling during the month of April, beyond the planting out of upwards of 50,000 plants of C. Succirubra. The report, however, informs us that the Teesta low level plantations have been almost abandoned, as the plants were not found to thrive so well there as at other elevations, besides being some distance from the bazaar plantations, and subject to constant irruptions from deer. It must not, therefore, be conclusively accepted as proved that the plants will not flourish at these lower levels. Some of the plants of C. Calisaya had grown upwards of seven inches during the month. With the setting in of the rains in May operations commenced by planting out in the permanent plantations 180,000 plants that had been got ready during the cold weather. The total number of plants now amounts to 2,239,332.

TRADE OF CALCUTTA.—We learn from "Bonnaud's Commercial Guide" for June that there was a net increase in the imports to Calcutta during that month, as compared with the same month of last year, of Rs. 1,273,024. The principal items contributing to this increase were British cotton, piece goods, woollens, spelter, iron, and beer and porter. In cotton twist and yarn, patent metals, copper and wrought metals, there was, on the contrary, a considerable decrease, and the amount of specie imported decreased by Rs. 595,551. The net increase in exports amounted only to the sum of Rs. 217,774, attributable chiefly to opium, saltpetre, sugar, and mustard seed. The export of wheat, raw silk, cotton and specie had largely decreased. In the amount of Customs' duty collected in the month of May, as compared with the same month last year, there was a decrease of Rs. 74,435 only, after including the collections on imported salt. The increase in import tonnage during last month was no less than 26,859 tons.

THE MAHARAJAH OF KUPPURTHULLA.—We (Pioneer) learn that the estates in Oudh of the Maharajah of Kuppurthulla are soon to form the subject of litigation, his brother, Sirdar Bikrama Sing, being determined to contest his right to a portion of the property. It will be remembered that the Government of India conferred on the Maharajah the confiscated land of rebels in the district of Baraich, yielding an annual revenue of upwards of two lakhs, as a reward for the services rendered during the mutiny by the Kuppurthulla Contingent. The Maharajah has been, it appears, in undisturbed possession of these estates from the time of the grant, but since the late unfortunate family disputes between his Highness and his brothers, Sirdar Bikrama Sing has entertained the idea of suing for a share. The suit will be tried in the Settlement Courts of Oudh. The Maharajah has, we hear, retained as his counsel Mr. Theodore Thomas, barrister-at-law.

SANSKRIT RECORDS.—With reference to Government orders relative to the preservation of records of Sanskrit literature, we learn from a Calcutta paper that the Philological Committee have expressed their willingness to undertake to work up lists of Sanskrit manuscripts in the native libraries of Bengal. An efficient pundit has been appointed to carry out the wishes of Government under the superintendence of the Philological Committee, and Baboo Rajendralala Mitra and the Rev. J. Long have intimated their willingness to make tours during their vacations, and their reports, lists of manuscripts catalogued, and recommendations regarding manuscripts to be purchased or transcribed, will be submitted to Government in due course. With reference to this offer, the Lieutenant-Governor has accorded his thanks to the Philological Committee for the willingness they have evinced to assist Government in the discovery and preservation of records of ancient Sanskrit literature.

MILITARY.—Advices received from Nussseerabad, dated the 30th June, mention a fresh outbreak of cholera there of a fatal type. Up to the afternoon of that date there had been twelve cases in the Royals, with ten deaths. The Artillery remained free from the scourge, and the N.I. suffered comparatively little. The natives were suffering much. In the district of Azimgurh also the disease was prevailing. Medicines had been deposited at each police station for distribution to all applicants.—With the sanction of the Supreme Government, the following alterations in the relief of British troops for 1869-70 are ordered by the Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Forces:—her Majesty's 1-17th Foot, from England to Allahabad, via Nagpore and Jubbulpore; her Majesty's 58th Foot, from Allahabad to Lucknow, on relief by the 1-17th Foot.—Lieut.-Colonel Malleson left Simla on the 3rd July for Calcutta, en route to Mysore, to take up his appointment as guardian to the young Maharajah.

THE PUNJAB BANK.—We have before us an authenticated tabular statement of the working expenses and profits of the Punjab Bank for the year 1868. We observe with satisfaction that our institution, which has had many difficulties to contend against since the crisis of 1866, is now showing every sign of life and vigour, and, under the steady guidance of its head manager, Mr. Herbert, is doing an excellent business. A though, after making, as usual, a considerable addition to the reserve fund, and paying all expenses, only 7 per cent. was available last year for division amongst the shareholders out of a gross profit of nearly three lakhs, there is now every reason to expect an increased divisible surplus by the withdrawal from Kurrachee of capital which was too far removed from the efficient supervision of the head manager, and by concentrating the bank's whole resources within a much smaller radius, especially with reference to Lahore, where recent changes have considerably extended the field of operation of that branch.—Friend of India.

A FATAL ENCOUNTER WITH A TIGER.—The Central India Times publishes the following additional particulars of the death of Mr. Barrett, of the Revenue Survey at Chanda, who died from the effects of wounds received from a tiger:—"It appears that Mr. Barrett's camp followers had wounded the animal, and the following day Mr. Barrett determined to go in pursuit of it. On arriving at the place where the tiger had been wounded the beast sprang on Mr. Barrett before he was aware of its presence. He had only time to deliver one barrel, when the enraged brute closed on him, but was immediately shot dead by one of the attendants, Mr. Barrett escaping with some slight lacerations on his forearm. The wounds were by no means serious, and would have readily yielded to ordinary treatment. Instead, however, of applying the usual simple remedies, his stupid servants poured hot ghur over the wounds, and applied other equally absurd native remedies. As was to be expected, the arm rapidly became worse, and the camp native doctor was sent for. This unworthy, to complete what the others had begun, enjoined that the arm should be kept in a perpendicular position, to ensure which the arm was tied up to a point over the patient's head. The consequence was mortification set in, and though the unfortunate gentleman was at once removed to Chanda for treatment, all the skill of the medical officer there proved of no avail, so rapidly had the mortification advanced, entering the shoulder and eroding the subclavian artery, the hæmorrhage from which (chiefly internal) caused immediate death."

CABUL.—We have news from Cabul up to the middle of June. Though nothing of any great interest is reported, we gather that the Ameer was still absorbed in questions pertaining to army and administrative reform. His Highness has introduced the practice of invaliding men considered unfit for further active service, and apparently without what he may perhaps regard as the clumsy expedient of a "Medical Board." Probably Sir William Mansfield has given him a hint about these boards. Fifty of Sirdar Yacoob Khan's cavalry were pronounced unfit for duty by a certain Syud, so the order went forth that they should be discharged at once, and that in spite of his son Yacoob's desire to retain them, as they had been good men in their day. And the Ameer has an excellent way, too, of securing remounts; Yacoob Ali's force had to be made up, so Uslum Khan was "desired" to give from his stable the fifty horses needed. Uslum Khan did not quite appreciate the preference exhibited for his horses, "but, though unwilling to comply with the request, he did not resist it, knowing if he did the Ameer would have the horses, notwithstanding." The disarmament of the populace still continues; in fact, from hearing nothing of it in Cabul, we are inclined to believe that it has been completed at the capital; but an officer who was despatched to Kohistan to see the order obeyed there has not yet succeeded in enforcing it. Being a prudent man (at least we should think so), he reported how matters stood, in preference to resorting to extreme measures. He says:—"I did my best to persuade the Kohistanees to sell their arms, but without effect, as they are resolved to keep them. If any strict measures are adopted, they are ready to resist to the last. I thought it better, therefore, to do nothing for the present." Herat occupies his Highness's attention more than Turkistan; there is no important news however from either quarter. The latest canard was that British troops, consisting of two battalions of infantry and two regiments of cavalry, with twelve guns, were expected at Jellalabad from Peshawur.—Times of India.

Madras.

CIVIL.—The first examination for many years past, in Madras, of a Civil Servant in the Sanscrit language, was to be held early in July at the Presidency College, without any aid, as was formerly the case, from Calcutta.

ACCIDENT IN THE COCONADA ROAD.—We learn that on Sunday, the 27th instant, the captain and some of the crew of the barque Wellington, who were coming ashore in the ship's boat, met with an accident. As the sea was running high at the time, the boat capsized, and all those in it were precipitated into the water. The captain and the men, one of whom is missing, came ashore six hours after the accident, greatly exhausted, and they have been lodged in the seamen's hospital.—Madras Standard, July 5.

DEATH ON BOARD THE STEAMER "MEINAM."—A Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Fr. Tuffen, of the Bangalore Mission, died yesterday half an hour after he had embarked on the French steamer Meinam, by which he intended to proceed to Marseilles for the benefit of his health. The deceased had for some time back suffered from disease of the heart. His remains were brought ashore and conveyed to the Mission House in town. The flag at the French Steamer office floated half-mast high until evening.—Madras Standard, July 3.

DEATH OF AN AGED MISSIONARY.—We regret to hear of the death, on July 5th, of the Rev. T. Brotherton, M.A., one of the oldest missionaries of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. The Madras Mail tells us that he took part in three services on the preceding Sunday, and it was only in the night that he was attacked by the illness to which he rapidly succumbed. He had been thirty-five years engaged as a missionary in Tinnivelly, and his sudden loss is much deplored. He was close on sixty years of age.

BEER BOTTLES.—The beer bottles are getting worse and worse, and the sherry bottles are following their pernicious example. The pint bottle, from England, capsuled and labelled a la mode, now contains but a few drops more than half an imperial pint. Possibly the brewers have satisfied themselves that copious draughts of iced beer are bad for the liver, and on purely benevolent grounds are diminishing the supply. If they would reduce the price in proportion as they reduce the capacity of their bottle, no one would object to the solicitude that they show for Anglo-Indian stomachs.—Madras Mail.

LORD MAYO'S INTENDED VISIT.—Lord Mayo is determined that Madras, like the rest of India, shall move on. He has, the Mail tells us, decided upon paying a visit to that Presidency shortly after the Duke of Edinburgh has left India, or about April next. He is said to contemplate making some sojourn at Ootacamund, where in all probability he will occupy the "Cedars." It is not yet known whether his Excellency will be accompanied by his Council, but it is thought the members would not be sorry to visit the Neilgherries in preference to the less accessible, and less healthy, Himalayas. Lord Mayo will doubtless make a tour through the more important district of Southern India.

MILITARY.—Colonel J. G. C. Fraser, Madras Staff Corps, has retired. The colonel, says the Madras Mail, saw good service during the Mutiny, and was with Havelock in all those brilliant engagements which led to the first relief of Lucknow. He was afterwards besieged in that city until it was finally relieved by Lord Clyde. Colonel Fraser was severely wounded during the siege in a sortie from the Residency.—The 2nd (or Queen's) Dragoon Guards have given volunteers to the 16th Lancers and 18th Hussars; to the former nine, and to the latter twenty-two; the total number of volunteers, we believe, is about one hundred.—Bangalore Herald.—We regret to learn that Dr. Robert Aldren, of the Madras Army, has fallen a victim to jungle fever while employed on the Upper Godavery Works, which have caused so large an expenditure of human life. Dr. Aldren entered the medical service so recently as April 1867.

LEGAL.—The appointment of Mr. H. G. Prichard to be Solicitor to the Government of Madras, in succession to the late Mr. H. J. Brockman, has been approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS.—The Mail informs us that Lord Napier intends to leave Madras on the 14th inst., on a tour to the Salem District. His Excellency proceeds by night train to Salem town, where he will remain during the 15th and 16th, proceeding to the Shevaroyas on the 17th; whence, after a residence of four days, he will return to Salem, and go via Adamancottah and Royacottah to Oosoor, where he will arrive on the morning of the 25th instant. His recent tour through the arid North Arcot District, during the height of one of the hottest seasons on record in Indian meteorological annals, can scarcely fail to earn the thanks of the Secretary of State in Council. His Lordship's observations will probably form the burthen of a minute which will doubtless soon be before the public.

THE MADRAS MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The anniversary of this institution was celebrated at the Medical College, on Tuesday evening, June 29. The Hon. A. J. Arbuthnot occupied the chair, and there was a very large attendance of gentlemen, the medical profession especially being numerous. The proceedings were begun by the Principal, Dr. George Smith, reading the annual report. There had been considerable changes in the staff of the College during the past year. The different departments of the institution appeared to have acquitted themselves well. The students of the first department had done well at the examinations to which they had to submit themselves, and their conduct had been good. Twenty students of the second department had presented themselves for the final examination, and the whole had been successful. The examiners were fully satisfied with this batch of students who were passing out of the College as assistant apothecaries. The second class of the second department had acquitted itself fairly at the examinations, and the conduct of the students had been good. The third class had also done well. In the junior department twenty-four students had presented themselves for the final examinations, and the whole of them succeeded. This department had done satisfactorily. The Johnstone Medal was awarded to First-class Student S. E. Faulkner. The Government Medal was withheld. The Hon. Chairman then awarded the prizes and certificates. Dr. Harris then delivered the usual address.

Bombay.

CIVIL.—Colonel Lambert, Collector of Kurrachee, was expected to leave Kurrachee for England, on leave, some time during July.

SIR S. FITZGERALD.—His Excellency the Governor arrived at the Presidency from Poona on July 10, and was staying at Malabar Point. His Excellency would return to Poona on the 13th.

THE RECENT MURDER AT COLABA.—Private W. Green, of the 23rd Welsh Fusiliers, who was sentenced to death at the last criminal sessions by the Chief Justice for the murder of Sergeant Francis, would, it was believed, be executed on Friday, July 23.

THE TESTIMONIAL TO MR. DADABHOY NOWROJEE.—The Indu Prakash of July 5 said that about Rs. 23,000 had been already subscribed towards this testimonial. His Highness the Rao of Cutch has since been stated to have subscribed Rs. 2,000. A public meeting of native inhabitants of Bombay is expected to be held in a few days, for the purpose of presenting the testimonial.—Bombay Gazette.

MELANCHOLY DEATH OF A SHIP CAPTAIN.—On Friday morning about three o'clock the captain of the Catherine Rankin, now in Bombay harbour, jumped overboard and was drowned. He had appeared unwell for a few days past, and we hear that he had had a sunstroke. He was last seen alive on the previous night about eight o'clock.—Bombay Gazette, July 13.

THE SHIP "CITY OF LAHORE."—The ship City of Lahore, which left Bombay in the first week in June, put into Carwar ten days afterwards for repairs, having lost her foremast, bowsprit, and foreyard. Having been thoroughly repaired, the ship was towed out of Carwar on Thursday, July 9, by the B.I.S.N. Company's s.s. Oriental and proceeded on her voyage to Liverpool.

BOMBAY OMNIBUS COMPANY.—The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bombay Omnibus Company was held on Saturday (July 10), for the purpose of receiving and adopting the report and statement of accounts. According to the report, the capital remained as heretofore. There had been an increase in the capital expenditure under the head of buildings, owing to additions in the shed accommodation in the yard, and from their having a larger number of horses and carriages than last year. No dividend was declared. The report and statement of accounts having been received and adopted, the meeting resolved itself into an extraordinary general meeting.

IRON SHIPS AND THE COMPASS.—A paper read before the Royal Society by Dr. Archibald Smith, on the loss of the ship Glenorchy, shows how difficult it must be to secure a reliable action of the compass in iron ships. The ship seems to have been lost by what is called the heeling error. When a ship lies over a larger proportion of the hull is thrown to the weatherside of the compass's perpendicular, inducing a special deflection. It seems this error was allowed for on board the ship; but when she tacked it was forgotten that the error would be in another direction. Dr. Smith insists upon the importance of extending the usual process of "adjustment" of a compass to the ascertaining and (if necessary) the correcting of the heeling error.—Bombay Guardian, July 10.

THE JUDICIAL COMMISSIONERSHIP OF SIND.—We are glad to be able to announce (says the Sindian) that the appointment of Judicial Commissioner in Sind has been offered to Mr. Pinhey, C.S., now in England. This able officer distinguished himself greatly in Rutnagherry, during the Mutinies, by his presence of mind and discretion; and his numerous friends have been greatly disappointed in not seeing his name amongst those lately honoured by C.B.-ships or the Order of the Star of India. As a judge, his known ability and great patience have earned him an enduring good fame; and this province may be congratulated, if she secure, for the head of the Judicial Department, an officer so conspicuous, as being at once "brave," discreet, and impartial.

A SHOCK OF EARTHQUAKE.—It is rarely a shock of earthquake occurs without a number of scientific or excitable people letting the public know all about it. But a week has passed before we are told of a shock felt in Bombay. The Bombay Catholic Examiner has the following paragraph:—"A correspondent, writing to the Gazette from Dhoolia on Monday last, said: 'A slight shock of earthquake was felt at this station last night about a quarter to twelve, accompanied by a most peculiar noise, which I cannot describe.' A shock of earthquake was felt the same night here in Bombay; a friend of ours living in Kalbadavie was roused from sleep by it; the shaking of his door was so violent that he started up quickly and went out of his room to see if any one had been calling him. This we heard from him early on Monday."—Bombay Gazette, July 13.

THE BELOOCHEES.—Some hundred Beloochees are prowling about the deserted-like streets of Kaira, provoking suspicions and fears among the quiet townspeople. They are as physically daring and desperate as they are mentally sharp and matchless for such people as those of Kaira. They have already eased some traders of good round sums, being sensible enough to employ their subtle deceptive powers rather than their physical powers as marauders, which they have no doubt reserved for some more suitable places. These guests form a portion of that large party which once infested Bengal, but which was soon packed off to Cabul, whence they seem to have again set out for this country, being greatly impressed with the stories of its unbounded riches and the effeminate bundenawaz character of its inhabitants.—Gujarat Mitra, July 4.

COURT MARTIAL.—At a European general court-martial held at Poona, on Monday, the 28th June, Private Henry Thackeray, of her Majesty's 59th Regiment, was arraigned on the following charges:—"1st charge: Habitual drunkenness, in having been drunk in barracks at Poona on the 9th day of June, 1869, that being the fourth time of his being drunk within 365 days. 2nd charge: Insubordination, accompanied with personal violence, in having at the place and time stated in the first charge used violence against Corporal William Kerr, of her Majesty's 59th Regiment, by stabbing him in the thigh with a bayonet, the said Corporal William Kerr, of her Majesty's 59th Regiment, being his superior officer, and being in the execution of his office. The above being in breach of the Articles of War." The Court found the prisoner guilty of both charges, and sentenced him to be deprived of one penny a day of his pay for 672 days, and to be imprisoned with hard labour for 730 days. This sentence has been approved and confirmed by the Commander-in-Chief.

THE ELPHINSTONE PROPERTY.—PURCHASE BY GOVERNMENT.—The following public announcement has been made in Bombay:—"To the Secretaries and Treasurers, Elphinstone Land and Press Company (Limited). Gentlemen,—I am directed to propose to you on behalf of Government to purchase all the rights, interests, and estate of the Elphinstone Land and Press Company for a sum equal to the par value of the paid-up capital of the company, such value to be paid in four per cent. stock at the price of 93. 2. I am directed to add that, under the instructions of the Government of India this offer is a final one, and to intimate that a special meeting of the shareholders of the company should be called to consider the above proposal at as early date as the articles of association of the company will allow.—I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant, M. K. KENNEDY, Colonel, R.E., Secretary to Government.—Bombay Cas le, July 12, 1869."

MILITARY.—It is with deep regret we have to announce the death from dysentery of Major Daun, retired list, Bombay Army. Major Daun had been suffering in health for some time, and was recommended by his medical adviser to try the effect of change of air. He left this station for Bombay a short time ago, and died there on Saturday last, the 26th ultimo. It will be recollected that Major Daun held the post of Executive Engineer to the Nagpore Municipality and Local Funds, and owing to the straitened condition of the finances of these institutions, it was deemed advisable, among other retrenchments then made, to dispense with his services, about six months ago. It is believed that his having been thus unexpectedly thrown out of employment and having a large family dependent upon him, contributed in no small degree to induce and aggravate the bad state of health which culminated in the disease to which he eventually succumbed. The deceased gentleman was held in high esteem not only by his immediate friends, but by all classes of the community.—Central India Times, July 3.

THE WEATHER.—Very distressing accounts are being received from the interior of ravages of want and disease in consequence of the rains having held off so long. We are now far advanced in the sowing season, yet the soil remains parched up; and unless relief comes betimes, no one can contemplate the future without extreme anxiety. Cannot Government take measures to ascertain the real state of things in the various districts of the Presidency, and keep the public informed on the subject? We find detailed reports in the Calcutta and *N. W. P. Gazette*s of the state of the weather, crops, and agriculture in general. Some such thing is a desideratum on this side.—Native Opinion, July 11.—During the last fourteen days there has been no rain, and the weather is at times very exhausting. We understand that our native Christians are having Masses offered up for the safety of the rice crops, which will certainly suffer if the weather do not soon change.—Bombay Catholic Examiner, July 10.—It appears that the weather about Belgaum is as unpleasant as it is here; no rain falls. At Sholapore, on the contrary, the fall has been abundant. Yesterday the strength of the wind decreased considerably, and it is to be hoped may soon cease entirely, so that the clouds may have time to gather.—Poona Observer, July 8.—Unless there be—or have been—a cyclone going on somewhere, these strong, cold winds prevailing in Poona are almost unaccountable. Not one day only, but for many days past, and all day long, a strong breeze has been blowing, rising every now and again to the force of a gale. Of course, every particle of rain is driven off inland. Excepting a petty shower on Thursday week there has been no rain to speak of during the past three weeks. The fields and gardens are quite dried up, while, to use a pardonable paradox, everything outside one's house is blown inside, and everything inside is blown out. A good deal of sickness is prevalent, and more ill temper; neither of which is to be wondered at.—Poona Observer, July 6.—We are rejoiced to learn that very heavy rain fell, on the night of the 8th July, at Baroda and surrounding districts; and that there was every appearance of a further downpour.—Times of India.

BOMBAY MEDICAL FUND.

India-office, S.W., July 30, 1869.

Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to acquaint you that having had before him the report of Mr. Samuel Brown, on the Bombay Medical Retiring Fund, and the several letters addressed to Government by the late committee of management with respect to the claims of the members of that institution, the Duke of Argyll has sanctioned the following grants to the annuitants and subscribers of the fund, viz.:—

1. The restoration, with effect from April 30, 1867, of the annuities of present incumbents in Class I. to £300, the amount at which they stood in 1857.

2. The restoration, with effect from April 30, 1867, of present and prospective annuities of Classes II., III., and IV., to the amounts at which they stood in 1857, viz.:—

Class II. to £240.

Class III. to £200.

Class IV. to £160.

3. The addition of 5 per cent. to present and prospective annuities of £240, £200, and £160, with effect from May 1, 1869, from which date the annuities of present incumbents will be as follows, viz.:—

Class II., £252.

Class IV., £168.

Three annuities of £252, £210, and £168 being allotted annually for the future, and the annuities of £300 being continued only to the present incumbents in Class I.

4. The grant of three extra annuities of £252 in the present year taking effect from the 1st May, 1869.

DECORATION OF THE NEW COMPANIONS OF THE STAR OF INDIA.

On Friday the Duke of Argyll attended at the India Office to present to several of the gentlemen who have been recently enrolled in the Order of the Star of India the badges pertaining thereto. As a rule, the third degree of any Order is conferred without any ceremonial, but the present Secretary of State for India, departing from ordinary usage in such cases, resolved in this instance on distributing the decorations himself as representative of the Queen. A short time since, indeed, it was contemplated that the new Companions of the Star of India should receive their honours during the progress of an imposing State ceremony, but that intention was abandoned. Of those to whom the Companionship of the Order had been awarded, only five appeared in person to receive the symbols of Royal recognition from the Secretary of State for India. These were Syud Ahmed Khan, Captain Meadows Taylor, Mr. Richard Price Harrison, Mr. G. N. Barlow, and Mr. Richard Vicars Boyle. Syud Ahmed Khan, a native judicial officer in the North-West Provinces, has always been remarkable for his magisterial ability and his loyalty to the Crown. During the Indian mutiny he did the State eminent service by persuading his co-religionists to support the English in the contest. His son, it may be added, obtained a scholarship worth £200 a-year in Calcutta, and is now a student of Lincoln's-inn. Captain Meadows Taylor has been employed in the Hyderabad country. He has written many contributions to the literature of India. Mr. Richard Price Harrison, late Accountant-General in Bengal, served under Sir C. Trevelyan, by whom he has been strongly recommended. Colonel Broome, who was his colleague in matters of military finance, has received the honour of C.S.I. Mr. G. N. Barlow, of the Bengal service, was employed during the famine in Orissa by the Governor-General and the House of Commons. The Rajah of Parricood received the C.S.I. for his exertions in the same field of action. Mr. Richard Vicars Boyle is now known as "Boyle of Arrah," on account of the leading part he took in the defence of that famous bungalow. Of those Companions who are not in the public service, Mr. Boyle was the most distinguished.

Of the other gentlemen to whom the Companionship of the Order had been granted, some, though in England, were unable from various causes to receive their badges from the Duke of Argyll, and others being occupied in active service in India, or being natives resident in that country, were necessarily absent. The five recipients of the honour who, though in England, were prevented from attending at the India-office, were Lieut.-colonel George Hutchinson, Colonel John Blick Spurgin, Surgeon-major J. Arthur, Mr. J. W. S. Wyllie, and Mr. H. C. Hamilton. Lieutenant-colonel Hutchinson, of the Bengal Staff Corps, has been distinguished for his military and political capacity, and has been recommended by Sir John Lawrence and Sir Robert Montgomery. Colonel John Blick Spurgin, of the Madras army, served in the Burmese war and was distinguished in the Oudh cam-paing of 1858-1859. He was General Neil's staff officer, and was with that general at his death. He has been recommended by Sir John Lawrence. Surgeon-major J. Arthur, late of the Madras Fusiliers, did prominent and efficient service during the course of the Indian Mutiny. He was recommended for the Companionship of the Bath, but as at that time he had left the service, he was not qualified to receive the decoration. Mr. John William Shaw Wylie has been Under Secretary in the Foreign Department of the Government of India and a member of the Bombay Civil Service. Mr. Wylie is also known on account of his contributions to literature regarding the Central Asia question. Mr. Henry Charles Hamilton, of the Bengal Civil Service, as chief civil officer and agent, held the opium factory at Ghazeeport during the whole period of the Indian mutiny, and on frequent occasions successfully protected Government property. Mr. Wylie was Lord Dalhousie's able Foreign Secretary.

The other gentlemen who have been enrolled as Companions of the Order are Major-general Renny, Mr. W. J. Money, Mr. Court, Colonel M. G. Wood, Major G. Thompson, Major W. Dickenson, Colonel E. Webb, Colonel G. S. Montgomery, Mr. Cowasjee Jehangheer, and Meer Ali Akbar. Major-general Renny distinguished himself by disarming native regiments at the beginning of the rising in the Punjab. He was recommended by Sir Robert Montgomery and by the authorities at the Horse Guards. Mr. W. J. Money, of the Bengal Civil Service, served during the Mutiny in Oudh as secretary to Sir James Outram, from whom he received several testimonials. Mr. Court, of the Bengal Civil Service, was Commissioner of the Allahabad Division, in which he did eminent service during the Mutiny. He has been recommended by Sir John Lawrence. Colonel G. M. Woods, of the Madras Army, was adjutant in India during the crisis of 1857-1858, when he was an indefatigable labourer at his post. Captain Thompson, of the Bengal Staff Corps, served in the last Burmese War, and was at the taking of Pegu. He has since been a deputy commissioner in Oudh. Major William Dickenson, of the Bombay Staff Corps, has been recommended by Sir H. Green and Sir Bartle Frere, for services on the Sindh frontier. He also successfully administered the affairs of Beloochistan during the absence of Sir H. Green, and also served with distinction during the Abyssinian War. Colonel G. S. Montgomery, of the Bombay Native Infantry, suppressed the artillery mutiny in 1857 at Shikarpore, and was at that time wounded through the thigh. He has been recommended by Sir Bartle Frere. Mr. Cowasjee Jehangheer, a Parsee gentleman, has been recommended by Sir Seymour Fitzgerald on account of his many acts of benevolence. It may be here remarked that Mr. Cowasjee Jehangheer is the gentleman who presented the beautiful drinking fountain, inaugurated on Monday week by the Princess Mary of Teck, to the public of the metropolis. Meer Ali Akbar did useful diplomatic service during the Abyssinian War, and also in India. Colonel E. Webb, of the Madras Staff Corps, served in the Afghan War, and was once a prisoner in the Afghan territory.

The ceremony of distribution was exceedingly simple. The gentlemen who had been summoned to receive their honours from the Duke of Argyll proceeded one by one into the Council-room, where the Secretary of State handed them their badges, with a few words of congratulation. The Companions of the Star of India thus initiated lunched together subsequently in one of the rooms of the new India Office.

Miscellaneous.

EAST INDIA COTTON AGENCY.—A first dividend of 5s. in the pound has been declared in the East India Cotton Agency, in liquidation, and it was paid on August 3.

COMMERCIAL BANK CORPORATION.—It is announced that the final dividend of 7s. in the pound (making, with the previous dividend, 17s. in the pound) is in course of payment to the creditors of the Commercial Bank Corporation of India and the East.

TELEGRAPH TO INDIA COMPANY.—DIVIDEND.—At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Telegraph to India Company, held on Friday, a dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum for the half-year ending June 30, 1869, was declared.

EAST INDIA LOAN BILL.—The East India Loan Bill empowers the India Council to raise in the United Kingdom any sum not exceeding eight millions sterling, and stipulates that four millions of the amount "shall be applied for the purpose of the construction of railways in India, and for no other purpose whatever." The loan may be in the form of stock, bonds, debentures, or terminable annuities.

WILLS.—The will of Lady Auchmuty, widow of the late General Sir Samuel Benjamin Auchmuty, G.C.B., was proved in the London Court under £25,000 personalty in England. Her ladyship, whose maiden name was Buchanan, married in 1817, Sir Samuel, who died April 30, 1868. Her ladyship made her will on June 12 following, and died at Pau, in the Pyrenees, January 2 last, aged 69. She leaves the whole of her property, real and personal, to her niece and adopted child, Margaret Hatton, with a request that she takes the name of Isabella Auchmuty, to be added to her own. She has also appointed her sole executrix, to whom grant of probate was made on the 1st July.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The tenders for £325,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, the 4th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £224,800, and to Madras £100,200. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on those Presidencies at 1s. 11½d. received about 52 per cent.; those above that price in full. These terms differ but little from those noticed on the last occasion.

NEW COMMITTEE.—It has been decided to assemble a committee to inquire into the means by which the discrepancy which now exists between the promotion of Indian and British service colonels can be obviated, and matters placed upon a fair footing. The British Army in this committee is to be represented by General Sir Charles Yorke, G.C.B., and the Indian Army by Lieutenant-general Hancock, late Adjutant-general at Bombay. These two gallant officers, who, it will be seen, are of such rank as to have no personal bias in the subject, are to be aided in their investigations by a legal gentleman of ability.

INDIAN LOANS.—Mr. G. Nicholl, chairman of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, suggests, in a letter to the India Office, "that when powers of borrowing in England have been taken by the Secretary of State for India by special Acts of Parliament, due notice should thereafter be given to the public on every occasion on which use is actually to be made of such powers or any part of them, just as notice is now given to the public when tenders will be received for council bills on India; and I would also suggest that on occasion of each annual financial statement in Parliament the exact amount borrowed during the year in England, and the exact amount of the unexhausted reserve of borrowing power, should be set forth for the information of the public, as well as the amounts to be raised by separate loans in India. I take this opportunity also of suggesting whether steps should not be taken to consolidate as far as possible the several Indian loans now existing, or at all events the minor loans, into one uniform stock. It is believed that if such a consolidation could be made it would greatly promote the business carried on in Indian securities, and tend to enhance their value."

THE MAILED, &c.—SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 7.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's screw steamship Delhi, Captain C. G. Burne, sailed to-day for Gibraltar, Malta, and Alexandria, with the India, China, Japan and Australian mails, a large cargo, and 132 boxes of specie, &c., value £33,207. 7s., consigned as under:—For Bombay.—Jewellery, watches, &c., £238. For Madras.—Gold coin, £1,462. 10s.; silver coin, £1. 1s.; gold thread, &c., £269. For Calcutta.—Silver goods, £48. 16s. For Hong Kong.—Dollars, £25,105; watches, seed pearls, &c., £315. For Yokohama.—Watches, &c., £1,242. For King George's Sound.—Jewellery, £150. For Melbourne.—Watches, £245. For Hobson's Bay.—Jewellery, watches, &c., £2,286. For Adelaide.—Jewellery and fancy goods, £275. For Sydney.—Jewellery, watches, &c., £1,570. The Delhi takes out thirty-six first and twenty-five second-class passengers, and eleven proceed by the corresponding steamer from Marseilles, making a total of seventy-two, among whom are Lieutenant Roche, for Gibraltar; Captain Richmond, Sub-Lieutenant Buckle, R.N., for Malta; Captain Maule, Lieutenant D. Monro, for Ceylon; Major W. L. Briggs, for Bombay; Major and Mrs. Parratt, Lieutenant C. L. Allan, for Madras; Dr. Barker, Dr. Hughes, Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Ormsby, for Calcutta; Admiral Sir Henry Kellett, Flag-Lieutenant G. R. Thornhill, Secretary Lishman, and two sergeants, for Singapore; Dr. C. A. Lees and Mr. E. Wheeler, for Hong Kong.

SUICIDE OF AN INDIAN OFFICER.—On Monday Mr. Bedford, coroner for Westminster, held an inquest at the Charing-cross Hotel, respecting the suicide of Captain Frederick Bowker, aged twenty-nine. Dr. Arthur J. Grayham Cross, of Spring-gardens, said deceased was a captain in the 109th Regiment. He had served in India, and suffered from sunstroke, and was home on sick leave. Witness believed that the recent loss of a brother added to his depression of spirits, and that he had destroyed his life while labouring under sudden insanity. George W. Knight, timekeeper on the South-Eastern Railway, stated that on Friday at twenty minutes to four he was in his office, nearly opposite the Charing-cross Hotel, when he saw the deceased come out on the balcony of the smoking-room of the hotel. He then climbed up the iron railings of the balcony and threw himself over. He fell upon the pavement beneath, and then some of the hotel servants carried him to the hospital. George Tait, porter, said deceased fell from the balcony on his head. Dr. Cross, sen., said he believed deceased was suffering from inflammation of the brain, caused by sunstroke, and that when he saw the opportunity of leaping from the balcony he yielded to the impulse suddenly, and leaped over. Mr. F. C. Hudson, a retired officer, who had known him since 1866, said deceased had complained to him of giddiness and pains in his head. The jury returned a verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind."

THE NEW DRILL.—The Committee, of which Lieut.-General Sir Augustus Spencer is president, and Major-General Russell a member, and which has sat almost continuously during the summer months at the Horse Guards, to consider the changes necessary in the drill and tactics of the British infantry in consequence of the introduction of breech-loading arms, has nearly finished its labours, and the report may be expected to be published this week. The principal changes recommended will be that captains should always be posted in rear of the centres of their companies, and that the subaltern officers should guide the movements of their companies. Deployments and formations are to be made independently to either flank, without regard to whether the right or left may be in front. The rear rank is to be able to act as a front rank, so as to avoid all counter marching, and a wider interval is to be allowed between the ranks. It is curious that almost at the very time that these simplifications are being made in the field exercises of the infantry, the drill of the cavalry, which has been tried for some years, is to be abolished, and the old system of pivots also. Sir Augustus Spencer's committee lay great value on the use of the spade, and a special intrenching drill is to be proposed in their report. The drill is founded upon one lately inaugurated at the Royal Engineer Establishment at Chatham. It is to be hoped that Sir Augustus Spencer and his fellow-labourers will not be so hurried in concluding their report as not to have time to arrange some method of carrying intrenching tools for the infantry, so that they may at the same time be readily portable and easy to be got at when required.—Globe.

Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, TUESDAY, August 3.—BONUS COMPENSATION FOR INDIAN OFFICERS.—Colonel SYKES gave notice that he would next session call the attention of the House to the petition of the officers of the Indian army, complaining of the great loss they had sustained from their contributions to bonus funds, and would move the appointment of a committee to inquire and report.

BHOOTAN.—Sir R. ANSTRUTHER asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether the troops that served in Bhootan in 1864 and 1865 would receive the medal granted for frontier service in India; and, if not, the reasons for not giving it to them.—Mr. GRANT DUFF: I must repeat to my hon. friend the member for Fife the answer which I gave to my hon. friend the member for Perth some weeks ago—viz., that the North-West Frontier medal was conferred at the suggestion of the Government of India, but that the Government of India has not recommended the grant of any medal for Bhootan.

THE PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.—Mr. C. DENISON asked the Under-Secretary of State for India if he would lay upon the table the petition of the landed proprietors of the Punjab against the enforcement of the Punjab Tenancy Act, together with the minute of the lieutenant-governor, Sir T. Macleod, transmitting the said petition to the supreme Government; and whether he would state the substance of any resolution thereupon which may have been adopted by the Secretary of State.—Mr. GRANT DUFF: These papers cannot be laid at present on the table, as no resolution has yet been taken about them. The whole question is engaging the attention of the Secretary of State.

EAST INDIA REVENUE ACCOUNTS.—The House gave a morning sitting to the Indian Budget, and the annual statement of our Indian finances was made by Mr. GRANT DUFF, and it was necessarily to a great extent a repetition of the figures given by the Duke of Argyll in the House of Lords last week. He divided it into three parts, or epochs—1867-8, the latest year for which we had complete information; 1868-9, two-thirds actual results, and one-third estimate; and 1869-70, entirely estimate. In the first period there had been an income of £48,534,412, against an expenditure of £49,542,107; showing a deficit of more than £1,007,000, exclusive of £700,000 spent on reproductive works, and he gave some interesting details of the different items on both sides of the account. The largest source of revenue was land assessment—£19,000,000; and after this the chief items were—Opium, £9,000,000; salt, £5,700,000; Customs, £2,570,000; excise on spirits, &c., £2,238,000; stamps, £2,300,000. On the other side of the account the largest item of expenditure was due to the army—£16,000,000, of which £12,600,000 was spent in India. Next came public works, £5,800,000; interest on debt, £2,761,813 payable in India, and £1,498,000 in England; law and justice, £2,500,000; public departments, £1,000,000; diplomatic service, £240,000; and education and other civilising influences, £780,000. Passing to the following year, 1868-9, it showed an increase of £750,000 in the receipts, and of £3,750,000 in the expenditure, over the amounts stated in Mr. Massey's last estimates. The last increase was caused by the transfer to ordinary expenditure of works which had formerly been counted as extraordinary, the failure of crops, the increased price of stores, &c.; and the general result for the year, according to Sir R. Temple's calculations last March, was a deficit of over a million, though Mr. Duff added, he expected the actual result would be less satisfactory. For the coming year, 1869-70, Sir R. Temple had estimated a revenue of about £49,300,000. The opium yield, it was expected, would fall off, but Sir R. Temple proposed, and the Indian office approved the proposal, to redeem that falling off by changing the certificate tax into an income tax. The expenditure for the year was estimated at £49,250,000, showing a small surplus of £50,000, about the reality of which, however, Mr. Duff did not appear to be very sanguine. This estimate left out of sight a proposed extraordinary expenditure of £3,500,000 on remunerative public works, of which £2,750,000 would be on works of irrigation, and £360,800 on State railways, particularly the line from Lahore to Peshawar. This led Mr. Duff into a long dissertation on the principles which ought to govern expenditure on public works, and he stated that to carry out the programme of the year and at the same time to maintain the cash balances at their present pitch—over £10,000,000—a loan would be necessary. And as the borrowing powers of the Indian Government were on the point of expiring, there was a Bill now before the House to empower it to borrow £8,000,000. On the whole, Mr. Duff took a hopeful view of the condition of India. The revenue was rising, the exports and imports were on the increase, railways were expanding; but for further help we must look to the reduction of military expenditure, the confining of public works within reasonable limits, and the inculcation of economical habits of thought on the Indian public mind.—In the desultory discussion which followed Mr. CRAWFORD defended the Indian railway companies from the charges of extravagance made in recent despatches of the Indian Government. He did not object to the Government constructing political railways and lines through the native States, but he gave very good reasons for maintaining that it should not go further.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE expressed a general approval of the Budget, but exhorted the Government to proceed cautiously in its railway schemes. Taking a sanguine view of the future of India, he maintained that when a loan was raised for extraordinary expenditure, even on reproductive works, the necessity became greater for securing a working surplus on the ordinary expenditure; and he impressed on the Indian Government the importance of not overworking its departments and not overstraining its finances.—Sir C. WINGFIELD commented on the large barrack expenditure, and suggested two reforms—the separation of judicial from executive and fiscal functions, and the establishment of native consultative bodies.—Mr. R. N. FOWLER and Sir W. LAWSON joined in condemning the opium traffic, and Colonel SYKES protested against the maintenance of an unnecessarily large European force in India.—At this point the debate was adjourned, on the motion of Mr. J. B. SMITH, and it was fixed for Thursday, August 5.

INDIAN LOANS AND GOVERNMENT OF INDIA BILLS.—The House having gone into committee on the India Loans Bill, clauses up to 9 inclusive were agreed to, and the chairman was ordered to report progress.—The report of the Government of India Act Amendment (pension of the members of the Council of India) Bill was agreed to.—The sitting was then suspended till the evening.

THE INDIA BILLS.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE, before the House passed to the orders of the day, made an appeal to the Under-Secretary for India respecting the Governor-general of India Bill. That measure was one of considerable importance; it would certainly lead to considerable discussion; it had never been discussed in this House, and, considering the late period of the session, he would suggest its withdrawal during the present year. There was not really a chance of passing it.—Sir E. COLERBROKE begged the Under-Secretary for India to take also into consideration the Bill with respect to the Council of India. That measure was equally important. It must lead to considerable discussion, and could hardly be satisfactorily considered in the present session.

EAST INDIA (RAILWAYS).—Sir S. NORTHCOTE moved an address for copy or extracts of any correspondence on the subject of the extension of railways in India, and their future construction and management, previous to that presented to this House on the 23rd July.—Mr. GRAVES asked his right hon. friend to include in the return a map which had been published, showing the contemplated extension of railways and the dates at which they would probably be executed. He regretted to see that some of those works would not be executed till 1890 or even 1900, and if that were so the construction of railways in India would be entirely inadequate to the wants and requirements of India or of this country. As to the postponement of the discussion on India, he and other Lancashire members who felt deeply interested in the question would not be able to be present on Thursday to continue that discussion, and he expressed his deep regret that it should have been delayed till the last moment of the Session. (Hear, hear.) The questions dealt with were of the most vital importance, and so strongly did he feel on the subject that next Session he would move that the Indian Budget be taken earlier than it now was. (Hear, hear.) Another point of great importance was the construction of the Council of India. If more sympathy were shown for commerce in that body, there would be a more prompt extension of the railway system in India. He thought there should be a larger mercantile element in the council, but he should now be obliged to postpone any further reference to that subject till next session, when he would bring forward the whole question of the constitution of the council. The railway system of India was not a mere Indian question—it was an imperial question. For many years to come we should have to look to India for cotton, and every mile of railway opened there tapped new sources of production.—Mr. C. DENISON expressed great disappointment that the whole of the India Bills had not come on for discussion that day, and said that both the Governor-General and the Council Bills would meet with considerable opposition.—The motion for the correspondence was then agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, August 5.—PUBLIC WORKS (INDIA).—Mr. KINNAIRD gave notice that he would move next session for the appointment of a select committee on the subject of railway and irrigation works in India.

BANK OF BENGAL.—Mr. GILPIN asked the Under-Secretary for India whether there had been any change in the agency of the Bank of Bengal at Bombay. Mr. GRANT DUFF said that there had been no change whatever in the policy of the Government in this matter, as lately announced by himself in answer to the hon. member for East Sussex, and he might add that he thought it to the last degree improbable that there would be any change.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.—The debate upon the Indian Budget was resumed by Mr. J. B. SMITH, and carried on with vigour for some time; it was, indeed, only closed upon the appeal of Mr. BRIGHT, that the Government might be allowed to make some progress with the Indian measures which were upon the paper. This representation induced several hon. gentlemen, who had once or twice been upon their legs, to forego their intention of addressing the House, and the formal resolutions proposed by Mr. Grant Duff on Tuesday were adopted. Mr. KINNAIRD raised an objection to proceeding with the Government of India Act Amendment Bill; but he did not press his opposition so far as to divide against it; and after some discussion, the measure passed through Committee. The Government of India Bill made a similar progress—some contested clauses being withdrawn by the Government—and after disposing of the other orders, the House adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MONDAY, August 9.—THE INDIAN BUDGET.—Mr. J. B. SMITH gave notice that, next Session, he would call attention to the practice of bringing forward the Indian Budget in the last week of the Session, and move that the Indian finance accounts should be made up to the 31st December each year, and laid upon the table of the House as early as possible.

ARMY REFORM.—Mr. W. E. PRICE (Fewkesbury) has given notice to move, early next Session, "That this House is of opinion that no measure of army reform will be satisfactory which does not include a scheme for the abolition of the system of purchasing commissions in the army."

Spirit of the Home Journals.

INDIAN SAVINGS BANKS.

The Telegraph rejoices that in Mr. Grant Duff's speech has been pronounced for the first time in Parliament that word which for ten years has been vainly repeating in the ears of Indian statesmen. "By savings banks," Mr. Grant Duff said, "or other devices, we might succeed in tapping the hoards of the non-mercantile classes." There is no doubt that we might! The reason why the Hindoos hold nothing, or next to nothing, in Government stock, is, because the rich men put their money out at exorbitant usury, and the poor men melt theirs down into bangles and silver waist-belts. On the day that the Indian Government, by a large, bold, and comprehensive scheme, lends with one hand to the agriculturists at a moderate premium, and with the other receives the little deposits of the small trader and ryot at a somewhat lower rate, it will do the vastest and most legitimate banking business in the world. It will lift a crushing load of usury from the toiling millions under its sway; it will give a mighty impetus to enterprise and public works, by obliging the mahajuns and marwarries to invest in State undertakings; and it may then and ever afterwards declare the opium business immoral.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.

The Saturday Review deems it a pity that there should be no outlet for private families in India except through official channels; and the railway companies supply one. The inevitable tendency of the Indian Government will be to collect all its railway staff that has to come from England by competition, and to admit in India those only who know how to gain the favour of minor officials. Competition is all very well in its way, but a rival system by its side has great advantages. An able engineer or traffic manager who has had experience, and wants Indian pay, has a chance of employment from one of the companies whose chairman or secretary can see him and attend him, or inquire about him. But he could do nothing at the India Office, where he would be told that when he was ten years younger he ought to have passed an examination. And, in the next place, these companies, with independent boards, and with officials residing in London, afford an excellent means of keeping up the knowledge of India as to what is going on in the railway world here. Mr. Crawford on Tuesday went into an instructive comparison of the working of his line with that of the North-Western. It is a matter of personal satisfaction to a man of inquiring and organising mind to go into these comparisons, and a person in Mr. Crawford's position can make them with an ease and completeness which no Indian officer could rival. There are also improvements yet to be made in the construction and working of railways which, it is reasonable to believe, will make a revolution in the ideas of men on the subject. Experiments are being made even now, with every appearance of success, which promise to show that railways can be constructed and worked at a cost which would have been impossible a little while ago. India will soon hear of such improvements through companies which have London engineers and directors, and which outsiders can approach; but a staff of purely Indian officials, recruited by lads fresh from an examination, would be sure to disregard and laugh at them as long as possible, simply because they have never had an opportunity of seeing them, and of knowing what is going on in England. The disadvantage which the Government would be at in this respect, as compared with companies managed in England, is so obvious that it might possibly be wise to place on the Indian Council some person especially competent to counteract it, just as Lord Salisbury has so often contended that the Indian Council will never be what it ought to be until the English mercantile world is represented there.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S (Ex. Army Med. Staff)

C H L O R O D Y N E

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE. The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec. 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne: I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "109 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 60,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 14d., 2s. 9d., and 5s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI- MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal cough, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable
to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RUE-
BARB, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a weak, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

FIXING ARTIFICIAL TEETH, without springs or wires, or any painful operation, more natural and durable than any introduced, giving a facility in mastication and speech hitherto unattainable. To be had only of Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-Dentist to their late
R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester,
&c., 64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square. At home
from Eleven till Five.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often fatal in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness
and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

RHEUMATIC PAINS.—Many thousands of martyrs from rheumatism have found human life but one long disease, and a terrible suffering, the most eminent medical men in vain, and trying all sorts of supposed remedies without relief, have grown weary of existence, and have ceased to hope for comfort on this side of the grave, until some lucky accident has called their attention to Holloway's Pills and Ointment. These are genuine remedies indeed. Persons bedridden for months with rheumatic pains and swellings, after the Ointment has been well rubbed into the parts affected, and the blood purified by a course of these Pills, have found themselves restored in an incredibly short time to perfect health and ease.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, July 20; Agra, July 17; Calcutta, July 16; Madras, July 14.

Lord Mayo's hard work at Simlah has not interfered with the social amusements of that highly-favoured, if ill-smelling, Capua. Theatres, balls, dinner-parties, have furnished toil-worn officials with the usual relief from the cares of State. Lady Mayo gave her first ball on the 7th July, and a brilliant gathering it seems to have been. For a little while at any rate the Viceroy himself, accompanied by his countess, means to exchange the cares and pleasures of his hill capital, for the yet grander scenery, the welcome loneliness, and the abundant grapes of Chini, Lord Dalhousie's favourite shelter from the Simlah rains. Lying outside the monsoon, on the borders of the lofty tableland of Tibet, Chini at this season combines all the climatic excellences of Simlah without the wet sheet of cloud that enwraps the latter sanitarium from July to September.

It appears that the King of Burmah has recovered his senses in the nick of time. The firm attitude of the Indian Government has no doubt compelled him once more to smother his long-cherished hatred of the overbearing foreigner, and to make a show of carrying out his last treaty with Colonel Fyche. He has now "cheerfully agreed to all the proposed arrangements," which certainly looks like yielding to the British demands in respect of the mixed civil court his golden-footed majesty had bound himself to establish at Mandalay by the Treaty of 1867. Hitherto he had held out against empowering the court to settle claims between British and Burmese subjects, an evasion which, aggravated by many marks of insolence and bad faith, the Indian Government could not be supposed to tolerate. And yet the Times of India interprets the new arrangement, as reported from Simlah, in the light of a concession by the Viceroy on this very point. To us however this latter interpretation seems wholly at variance alike with the Simlah telegram and with manifest likelihoods.

THE Indian papers have only now heard of the Kirghiz and Turkoman revolts against Russian rule in Central Asia. It is many weeks since the tidings first reached this country. For purposes of intercourse therefore India and Central Asia must be very far apart indeed. For one reason only could we be tempted to look on this rising with any complacency; it will serve to show the alarmists how weak the Russian garrisons in Central Asia really are.

THE Khyberies were not to be coaxed or frightened into letting Shere Ali's new battery, the gift of the Indian Government, pass through their territory without paying toll. After much treating, backed by hints of the resentment likely to be shown by his British allies, the Ameer succeeded, it seems, in buying off his troublesome neighbours for £900. According to a telegram first published in the Delhi Gazette, Shere Ali has been wounded by an intending assassin. The story however needs confirmation.

WE understand that Mr. Knight, erewhile editor and still part-owner of the Times of India, has gone round to Calcutta with the view of starting there a rival paper to the Friend of India. It need hardly be remarked that the politics of the new journal are likely to be on all native questions the very opposite of those reflected in the Friend.

WE are glad to hear that Colonel Jervis, M.P., was well enough to receive a few days ago the handsome silver tankard which one hundred and fourteen officers of the Madras Army had subscribed to offer him in acknowledgment of his efforts to get their grievances redressed by the House of Commons.

THERE is something wrong, we fear, with the 35th Madras N.I., the regiment to which poor Lieut. Brooking belonged. According to the Madras Times, a havildar went up to an officer, and in language grossly insubordinate and positively menacing demanded his promotion. It was not till some hours later that he was placed in arrest. Two such cases within so short a time certainly look suspicious.

WE believe that we are right in saying that the statement in the Friend of India, that Colonel Haines was appointed guardian to the young Maharajah of Mysore by the Secretary of State, without communication with the Government of India, is essentially untrue. The Governor-general, we are informed, was communicated with by telegraph, not only with respect to the appointment, but to the salary also of Colonel Haines. He was selected because the late Maharajah had expressed a strong desire that the charge of his adopted son should be entrusted to that officer, whose long experience and high character in the province of Mysore were such as to secure the confidence of the inmates of the palace and of the community at large.

WE regret to hear that a telegram has been received in London announcing the death of Major-general Philip Harris, commanding the Allahabad Division. We understand he died at Allahabad of cholera on the 31st July. The deceased officer was a cadet of 1824. He was afterwards posted to the 70th Bengal N.I., and served on General Littler's staff during the brief Gwalior Campaign, obtaining a bronze star and his brevet majority for the Battle of Maharajpore. He was a major-general of 1865, and succeeded to the command of the Allahabad Division in March of this year.

ACCORDING to Dr. Smith's report on the district wasted by "Hooghly Fever," so great has been the havoc already done, that if means be not promptly taken to arrest it, the district will be unpeopled in another ten years. Sixty or seventy per cent. of the villagers and five-sixths of the children under eight years of age are suffering, he calculates, from enlarged spleen. "Uncouth, cadaverous men and women, surrounded by pitifully diseased children," move silently about in that stronghold of malaria, their village home, "where every draught of water and every breath of air inhaled, is poison." No wonder that with everything rotting around them, "an atmosphere of silent despair seems to hang over the worst villages." These are not all lumped together, but scattered more or less thickly throughout the district; and it is very likely that the present death-rate of sixty per cent., as reported of the eleven worst villages, will soon be rivalled by the remainder. According to Dr. Smith the endemic fever in the Hooghly district is the cumulative result of a poisoning process which has been going on for the last hundred years, ending in the utter corruption of both air and water.

COLONEL KIRKHAM's letter to Colonel Sykes, which has lately appeared in the daily papers, illustrates the simple undoubting earnestness of the writer, whose "heart and soul is in making Abyssinia a great country." His Chinese experiences—he did excellent service in China under the adventurous Colonel Gordon—have not quenched his zeal for new enterprises or his belief in the Englishman's faculty for founding new States. Prince Kassai having given him "control of all his army" he is now hard at work drilling soldiers and giving his new master good advice in the matter of European trade. Kassai has already taken the duty off "all merchandise carried on by Europeans," established a good market at Adowa, and promised to grant land to European companies for growing coffee, cotton, indigo, and sugar. Colonel Kirkham "hopes and trusts" he will be "able to do some good for this country in a year or so;" but at present he will have to "work hard and expose himself in the first and second fights," and after gaining one or two battles, he adds, "I shall have all my own way." He will be thankful for friendly advice too, as his one aim is to "make Abyssinia a great country and form a good government." We must hope that the rival Chiefs Gobazai and Menilek will not greatly hinder the fulfilment of these praiseworthy designs, so far as they can ever be fulfilled. But we fear that much fighting and many disappointments are in store for our sanguine and simple-hearted countryman.

In a letter published by us last week the writer argued with much force against the impolicy of arming our native troops in India with the choicer weapons ordained for their white comrades. Against whom, he asks, are we to arm the sepoy with the Snider or the Martini-Henry, seeing that "the hated white-faced European" is the one foe of any consequence whom he is ever likely to encounter in the future? That he will certainly do so on fit opportunity is our correspondent's firm belief; the principal safeguard against such a contingency being removed by the substitution of the newest rifle for the old Brown Bess. Such in brief is Colonel Macdonald's argument, and it is one which still has many friends. A wholesome remembrance of the lessons taught by the Mutiny will long continue, we trust, to guide our Indian policy in this and many other respects. In a certain degree our native army must always be regarded as a source of possible danger, and the strength of our British garrisons must ever be determined by the number of native troops in our service and in that of the native States. In the last resource it is British guns and British bayonets on which the maintenance of our rule must depend. But 1857 proved among other things that no native army unaided by a popular rising or a foreign invasion could drive us out of India, and it also proved that in a fearful crisis we could still ensure support from the loyalty or the self-interest of most of our chief native feudatories. In a climate like that of India some sort of native army must be kept up for the commonest military duties, and in times of war we have hitherto found our advantage in employing native along with English troops. In view of so many late campaigns it is only reasonable to infer that we may yet have further need for the sepoy's services. If so, neither for our sakes nor for his can we see the wisdom of arming him with worse weapons than his white-faced allies. He will do better service against the common enemy with a Martini-Henry than a Brown Bess, and we can employ at least two natives at the cost of one European. At the worst, if he turned against us, he would have no artillery, no strong forts or arsenals, and no means of obtaining fresh supplies of ammunition for the new rifles. So long therefore as excellent reasons can be shown for the maintenance of a native army, it seems to us from the mere precautionary point of view a matter of the smallest moment, whether that army shall be equipped with Brown Bess or the Martini-Henry. But from the standpoint of general efficiency we can discern no sort of reason why every white soldier should be armed with one kind of weapon, and every brown soldier in the same brigade, fighting otherwise under the same conditions, should be put off with another and very inferior kind. It is not a question of generosity, but of common justice and sound economy. One other consideration we would offer for the benefit of those whom it may concern. If there were no native army, would our English garrisons number a man the less?

We publish elsewhere Mr. W. P. Andrew's letter to the Secretary of State for India, on behalf of the Sindh Railway Company's claim to construct the line of railway from Mooltan to Sukkur and Kotree. Mr. Andrew certainly advances some good reasons for allowing the company of which he is chairman to carry out the programme of their own designing. The line between Mooltan and Kotree would fill up the present gap between two sections of what is virtually and will soon be formally one undertaking. It has been surveyed at the cost of the Sindh Railway Company, whose staff of trained engineers could begin the work at any moment. Its construction would ensure an early return for the money laid out on the Sindh and Punjab railways; and the Punjab Government has enforced this last argument by urging the concession of a guarantee for that purpose to the Sindh Company, on condition that the whole line from Kurrachee to Delhi should be placed under one agent dwelling in Lahore. To our thinking the demand is entirely reasonable, and accords with the spirit of the new rules proclaimed in the Indian Minister's recent despatch. The Indus Valley line may fairly be classed among the extensions which the Duke of Argyll proposed to leave in the first place at the disposal of the existing companies. If the Sindh Company is ready to begin work upon it under due conditions of time and outlay, we should think that the Government would act with equal fairness and wisdom in keeping under one management the several sections of what would practically be one line. There is open of course to Government the alternative of buying out the company altogether; but as that is probably out of the question, Mr. Andrew's claim deserves all attention, and his management of the existing lines forms an additional argument in his favour.

We regret to have to announce the liquidation of the Albert Life Assurance Company. But we hope the arrangements which are already in progress will be satisfactorily carried out, so that those insured in the office may not lose the entire benefits for which they have paid. Possibly there will be a depreciation in the value of the policies to the extent, say, of one-fourth the sum insured for.

MAGISTERIAL POWERS, CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Under section 445a of Act 8 of 1869, the officiating chief commissioner has invested the undermentioned deputy commissioners with the powers described in the above-named section:—Lieut. col. Denny, Hoshungabad district; and Lieut. Brooke, Seonee district.

SADDLERY AND HARNESS FOR MOUNTAIN BATTERIES.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 203, dated Feb. 19, laying down the establishment of mountain batteries, it is notified for general information that Government has sanctioned the following description of saddle for the officers, mounted non-commissioned officers, and trumpeters of those batteries, viz.:—Hunting saddle with Crimean holsters, and regimental bridle, with breast-plate and crupper.

REGIMENTAL BONUS FUND CLAIMS.

Return of all Officers of her Majesty's Indian Armies who have applied to the several Governments of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, for a Repayment of their individual Contributions to Regimental Bonus Funds, the Amount Claimed, the Sums Granted, and the Reasons for the Refusal or Diminution of the Claim.

BENGAL.

Capt. F. A. SAGE, late 11th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,800; granted nil.—He received by earlier promotion more than a full equivalent of the amount (Rs. 1,400) paid in the grade of ensign. His retirement being in effect compulsory, the Govt. decided that no grant should be made to him.

Capt. J. R. R. COOMBS, invalid establishment, claimed Rs. 2,044; granted nil.—Having been transferred to the invalid establishment in 1858, he was not borne on the strength of a regimental cadre on Feb. 17, 1861.

Col. R. G. EWART, late 30th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,250; granted nil.—He is in receipt of a special retiring annuity of £180, which, if capitalised, is more than fourfold the amount of the claim.

Lieut. col. R. CAMPBELL, late 47th N.I., claimed Rs. 7,025 8a.; granted nil.—As he was a substantive lieut. col. previous to retirement, his claim is inadmissible.

Capt. M. HALL, 101st fus., claimed Rs. 2,919; granted nil.—Claim inadmissible at present, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major J. HILLS, V.C., R.A., claimed Rs. 1,611 4a.; granted nil.—Claim inadmissible at present, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Capt. T. GORDON, late 65th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,264; granted nil.—His retirement was not voluntary, and therefore he would have received nothing from the officers of his regiment. Also he did not pay so much as he stated that he had paid.

Lieut. col. P. DRUMMOND, late 22nd N.I., claimed Rs. 4,140; granted nil.—He was a substantive lieut. col. when he retired, and therefore his claim is inadmissible.

Capt. R. T. H. BARBER, late 63rd N.I., claimed Rs. 4,818; granted Rs. 690.—For the amount paid in the grade of lieut. (Rs. 1,418) he received more than an equivalent by promotion. His claim on account of Rs. 2,710 paid to an officer to join the invalids is inadmissible.

Lieut. col. G. E. FORB, late 72nd N.I., claimed Rs. 10,504; granted Rs. 4,754.—For the amount paid in the grade of lieut. (1,100 rupees) he received more than an equivalent by promotion. His claim on account of 2,650 rupees paid to officers to join the invalids is inadmissible. He received 2,000 rupees from a junior officer when he retired.

Col. W. GRAYDON, late 16th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,856 14a. 8p.; granted Rs. 2,856 14a. 3p.

Lieut. col. J. H. BALMAIN, late 4th Eur. cav., claimed Rs. 12,750; granted Rs. 6,816 14a.—It was at first calculated that he had gained Rs. 7,673 8a. 1p. by accelerated promotion, but on re-examination it was found that the amount really gained was only Rs. 5,933 2a.

Major T. G. ST. GEORGE, late 17th N.I., claimed Rs. 6,300; granted nil.—He received a special retiring annuity of £220, whereas his payments only represent an annuity of £16.

Col. E. MARRIOTT, late 57th N.I., claimed Rs. 5,000; granted nil.—He received a special retiring annuity of £200, or nearly five times the value of his claim if converted into an annuity.

Lieut. col. G. NEWBOLD, late 31st N.I., claimed Rs. 2,090; granted nil.—He received a special retiring annuity of £120, whereas his payments only represent an annuity of £16.

Lieut. col. J. TICKELL, late 73rd N.I., claimed Rs. 5,055; granted Rs. 3,393 6a. 8p.—He gained Rs. 1,661 9a. 4p. by accelerated promotion.

Major J. A. H. MOORE, late 23rd N.I., claimed Rs. 1,078; granted Rs. 792 13a. 9p.—He gained Rs. 306 3a. 2p. by accelerated promotion. [Note.—There appears to be a slight inaccuracy in these figures.]

Major W. R. FITZGERALD, late royal Bengal artillery, claimed Rs. 4,410 13a. 9p.; granted Rs. 1,071 4a. 6p.—He gained by accelerated promotion more than the amount (Rs. 3,339 9a. 3p.) paid by him as lieutenant.

Capt. Sir C. W. A. OAKLEY, Bart., late 5th Eur. cav., claimed Rs. 3,549 4a.; granted Rs. 228 5a. 9p.—He gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 2,871 14a. 3p. He is entitled to no refund for 449 rupees paid to a colonel, who did not retire till Dec. 31, 1861.

Capt. P. M. SYME, late royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 3,284 9a. 9p.; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 963. 1a. 7p. by accelerated promotion, and he received 2,700 rupees from his juniors on retirement.

Capt. H. W. CHAPMAN, late 28th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,398; granted Rs. 1,730 13a. 11p.—He gained Rs. 2,667 2a. 1p. by accelerated promotion.

Major A. LE GALLAIS, late 46th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,524; granted nil.—He gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 7,285 13a. 10p., or 4,761 rupees more than he paid.

Lieut. col. H. S. GRIMES, late 46th N.I., claimed Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 16,000 (about); granted nil.—He received a special retiring annuity of £180, and also 5,200 rupees from his juniors. His payments represent an annuity of only £148.

Lieut. col. W. S. SHERWILL, late 66th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,335 6a.; granted nil.—He received a special retiring annuity of £180. His payments represent an annuity of only £36.

Lieut. col. A. PEARSON, late royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 4,205 11a. 8p.; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £50. His payments represent an annuity of only £26.

Col. E. SISSMORE, late 69th N.I., claimed Rs. 7,650; granted nil.—He was a regimental lieut. col. when he retired.

Lieut. col. W. S. FERRIS, late 12th N.I., claimed Rs. 5,000; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £200. His payments represent an annuity of only £32.

Lieut. col. J. C. PHILLIPS, late 3rd Eur. regt., claimed Rs. 10,686; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £150. His payments (including 3,110 rupees given to officers who joined the invalids) represent an annuity of only about half that value.

Major T. WATSON, late 33rd N.I., claimed Rs. 2,244; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120. His payments represent an annuity of only £16.

Major gen. C. H. BLUNT, late royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 4,502 0a. 6p.; granted Rs. 1,985 12a. 6p.—His payments as a lieut. amounted to Rs. 3,036 4a., and he gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 5,282 7a. 5p.

Capt. F. G. THELLUSSON, late 29th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,800; granted Rs. 2,800.

Major G. C. BLOOMFIELD, late 45th N.I., claimed Rs. 6,100; granted Rs. 1,000.—He paid Rs. 5,100 in the grades of ensign and lieut., and he gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 8,987 7a. 10p.

Major E. R. WIGGINS, late 35th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,185 8a.; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £50. His payments represent an annuity of only £13.

Lieut. col. E. HARVEY, late 4th European cav., claimed Rs. 9,350; granted Rs. 220.—He paid Rs. 2,550 in the grades of cornet and lieut., and gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 10,011 6a. 10p. He received a special annuity of £50, and his payments as capt. represent an annuity of £51. 12s. 6d. The difference, when capitalised, is £22.

Capt. J. Y. WORTHINGTON, late royal Bengal artillery, claimed Rs. 2,747 9a. 2p.; granted Rs. 2,497. 9a. 2p.—He received 250 rupees from his juniors on retirement.

Lieut. col. R. Ouseley, staff corps, late 34th N.I., claimed Rs. 7,000; granted nil.—He attained the substantive rank of lieut. col. in the staff corps before retiring.

Capt. D. W. BECHER, 104th foot, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major A. DARLING, royal Bengal artillery, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Capt. J. M. HEATH, 20th hussars, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Capt. E. L. HAWKINS, royal Bengal art., claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major W. D. HARRIS, 104th foot, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major A. FRASER, royal Bengal art., claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Lieut. col. E. C. WARNER, 20th hussars, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major N. T. PARSONS, 101st foot, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major A. C. GRANT, 11th hussars, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Capt. C. M. L. CLARKE, 101st foot, claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major J. S. FRITH, royal Bengal art., claim not stated.—Consideration of claim deferred, as he has not yet retired from the army.

Major J. A. GRANT, C.B., late 8th N.I., and 6th Eur. inf., claimed Rs. 2,632; granted Rs. 2,246 4a. 2p.—He paid 100 rupees as ensign, and gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 179 7a. 11p. As lieutenant he paid 600 rupees and gained Rs. 285 11a. 10p. The difference, Rs. 314 1a. 2p., together with the sum of 1,932 rupees paid as captain, is allowed.

Lieut. col. G. N. GREENE, late 70th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,500; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120. His payments represent an annuity of little more than £30.

Major gen. E. W. S. SCOTT, late royal Bengal artillery, claimed Rs. 15,545 9a.; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £200. On retirement he received from the Regimental Bonus Fund £577. 8s. 10d. His payments, after deducting this sum, represent an annuity of £77.

Lieut. col. P. A. P. BOUVERIE, late 35th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,250; granted Rs. 100.—His claim on account of 1,938 rupees, paid to an officer who joined the invalids, is inadmissible. Besides this he paid 2,212 rupees as lieut., and he gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 4,519 1a. 4p.

Capt. J. T. S. HALL, late 12th N.I., claimed Rs. 6,274; granted Rs. 844.—A payment of 1,000 rupees to an officer who was invalided is inadmissible. His other payments as a subaltern amount to 4,430 rupees, and he gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 1,770 2a. 8p.

Lieut. col. T. E. KENNION, royal Bengal artillery, claimed Rs. 5,876 11a. 6p.; granted Rs. 4,242 11a. 9p.—He gained Rs. 1,633 15a. 9p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. C. W. MAYNARD, late royal Bengal artillery, claimed Rs. 2,564 11a. 2p.; granted Rs. 843.—He paid as lieut. and 2nd capt. Rs. 1,681 11a. 2p., and gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 2,645 10a. The sum of 883 rupees paid as captain is allowed.

Lieut. col. J. G. GAITSKELL, late 26th N.I., claim not stated; granted nil.—His retirement took effect from an earlier date than 1861.

Major gen. S. A. ARBOIT, late 51st N.I., claimed Rs. 5,214 9a. 5p.; granted Rs. 1,010.—He paid Rs. 4,174 9a. 5p. as a lieutenant, and gained Rs. 6,107 11a. 5p. by accelerated promotion.

Major J. C. HARRIS, late royal Bengal engr., claimed Rs. 10,119 12a. 9p.; granted nil.—He received, on retirement, a bonus of 20,328 rupees from his regiment.

Capt. J. THOMPSON, late 58th N.I., claimed Rs. 490; granted Rs. 490.

Capt. W. DICKSON, late royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 3,457 14a. 2p., granted Rs. 2,169 10a. 9p.—He gained Rs. 1,288 3a. 5p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. G. A. GRAHAM, late 28th N.I., and 107th foot, claimed Rs. 5,200; granted Rs. 1,383 0a. 9p.—The amount paid was overstated by Rs. 595 8a. 11p. He gained Rs. 217 6a. 4p. by accelerated promotion, and received Rs. 3,000 from a junior officer on retirement.

Capt. W. O. RANIE, late 32nd N.I., claimed Rs. 810; granted Rs. 127 6a. 5p.—He gained Rs. 712 9a. 7p. by accelerated promotion.

Col. S. R. TICKELL, late 31st N.I., claimed Rs. 2,000; granted Rs. 1,200.—He paid 800 rupees as a lieutenant, and gained Rs. 6,228 4a. 8p. by accelerated promotion.

Late Capt. Rev. D. G. MANNING, late 52nd N.I., claimed Rs. 688 5a. 6p.; granted Rs. 688 5a. 6p.

Lieut. col. W. F. N. WALLACE, late 74th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,270; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 11,017 4a. by accelerated promotion.

Major E. TULLOCH, late 69th N.I., claimed Rs. 5,950; granted Rs. 1,500.—He paid 4,450 rupees as a subaltern, and gained Rs. 7,689 7a. 1p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. col. M. R. NIGHTINGALE, late staff corps and 2nd Bengal fusiliers, claimed Rs. 3,895 8a.; granted Rs. 171 8a.—He paid 2,194 rupees as a subaltern, and gained Rs. 3,815 4a. 8p. by accelerated promotion. The claim for 1,520 rupees, paid to officers who invalided, is inadmissible.

Lieut. col. C. R. BROWNE, late 60th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,600; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £180. His payments represent an annuity of only £21.

Capt. L. J. TROTTER, late 2nd Bengal fusiliers, claim not stated; granted nil.—He retired from a date prior to the reorganisation of the army.

Lieut. col. J. P. BRIGGS, Bengal army, late 40th N.I., claimed Rs. 8,000 (about); granted nil.—He holds the substantive rank of lieutenant col.

Lieut. col. C. W. NIGHTINGALE, late 18th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,140; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 16,622 6a. 10p. by accelerated promotion.

Second capt. H. M. CADELL, retired half-pay Royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 2,366 5a. 8p.; granted Rs. 532 13a. 8p.—He paid Rs. 1,833 8a. as a lieutenant, and gained Rs. 1,897 2a. 6p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. W. H. BURTENSHAW, late 5th Eur. inf., claimed Rs. 1,200; granted Rs. 909 3a. 6p.—He gained Rs. 290 12a. 6p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. W. W. AUBERT, invalid establishment, claim not stated; granted nil.—He applied for the bonus which he might have received if he had been transferred to the invalid establishment at his own request, and not compulsory. As he was not on a regimental cadre on Feb. 17, 1861, no claim from him could be entertained.

Capt. A. W. PIXLEY, late Royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 3,061 2a. 2p.; granted Rs. 2,847 14a. 2p.—He gained Rs. 213 4a. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. F. D. URQUIART, late Royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 4,037 0a. 6p.; granted Rs. 2,980 3a.—He gained Rs. 756 13a. 6p. by accelerated promotion, and he received £30 from his juniors on retirement.

Mrs. BEATSON, widow of Col. J. Beatson, late 4th Eur. cav., claimed Rs. 7,000 (about); granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £180. His payments represent an annuity of £56.

Lieut. col. H. LANE, late 5th L.C., claimed Rs. 24,421 0a. 7p.; granted Rs. 20,409 2a. 2p.—He is not entitled to compensation for 2,700 rupees paid to officers who were invalided, and he gained Rs. 1,311 14a. 5p. by accelerated promotion. The committee awarded compensation for the other payments, excepting that, in one case where, as a lieutenant, he paid Rs. 17,008 8a. 7p. for a single step, they considered that the Government should not be held liable for more than his share according to the regimental scale, i.e., 3,600 rupees. The Government of India considered that, under the circumstances, the above-mentioned sum of Rs. 1,311 14a. 5p. should not be deducted, and they therefore raised the award to Rs. 7,712 8a. The Secretary of State in Council decided that Col. Lane was entitled to receive the full amount of his payments (except 2,700 rupees paid to invalided officers), less Rs. 1,311 14a. 5p. gained by promotion.

Col. H. MILNE, late 21st N.I., claimed Rs. 30,000; granted nil.—He has obtained the substantive rank of lieutenant colonel.

Major E. CLOSE, late 32nd N.I., claimed Rs. 5,000; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £50. His payments represent an annuity of only £32.

Lieut. col. J. E. THOMSON, late 62nd N.I., claimed Rs. 3,479; granted Rs. 1,298 13a. 10p.—He gained Rs. 2,180 2a. 2p. by accelerated promotion. He also paid certain sums (not stated) to officers transferred to the invalids, but these cannot be considered in the claim.

Major C. S. WESTON, late 36th N.I., claimed Rs. 6,365 5a. 4p.; granted nil.—His retirement from the service is dated before 1861.

Lieut. col. N. W. ELPHINSTONE, late 4th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,500; granted Rs. 500.—He paid 1,000 rupees as ensign, and gained Rs. 1,129 0a. 5p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. col. G. F. F. VINCENT, late 30th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,000; granted nil.—His retirement was compulsory. A further sum (not stated) was paid to an officer who went to the invalids.

Capt. T. W. HILTON, late 65th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,500 4a.; granted nil.—His retirement took effect from an earlier date than 1861.

Capt. J. R. PEARSON, half-pay, royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 1,824 5a. 8p.; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 4,710 11a. 9p. by accelerated promotion.

Mrs. Law, widow of Lieut. col. C. P. St. J. Law, late 11th N.I., claimed (about) Rs. 4,400; granted nil.—The amount stated is an estimate of the probable payments made to officers who were bought out and did not join the invalids. He gained Rs. 6,678 1a. 4p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. L. P. FADDY, late 29th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,660; granted nil.—He paid 3,850 rupees as a lieutenant, and gained Rs. 5,625 0a. 7p. by accelerated promotion. He paid 800 rupees as a captain, representing an annuity of about £10, and he received a special annuity of £50.

Capt. J. M. EVANS, late 7th N.I. and 6th Eur. inf., claimed Rs. 2,103; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 6,719 6a. 8p. by accelerated promotion.

Major T. H. SHUM, late 33rd N.I., claimed (about) Rs. 500; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £50. His payments represent an annuity of only £12. 16s.

Capt. F. MACKENZIE, late 26th N.I., claim not stated; granted nil.—He retired with effect from an earlier date than 1861.

Capt. W. C. CLIFFON, late 67th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,410; granted Rs. 1,660.—He paid Rs. 1,750 as lieutenant, and gained Rs. 3,667 1a. 11p. by accelerated promotion.

Major J. MACDONAGALL, late 19th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,000; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 6,281 3a. 4p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. G. H. HALE, late 57th N.I., claimed Rs. 700; granted Rs. 617 7a.—He gained Rs. 82 9a. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. J. W. DANIELL, late 1st Eur. fus. and 101st foot, claimed Rs. 2,544; granted nil.—He received from his juniors £1,021 on retirement, and may possibly receive £223 more.

Major Baron F. A. VON MEYERN, late 53rd N.I., claimed Rs. 5,934; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £50. His payments represent an annuity of only £36. 17s.

Capt. G. G. GORDON, late royal Bengal art., claimed Rs. 945; granted Rs. 682 13a.—He gained Rs. 262 3a. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. R. D. GIBNEY, late 59th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,600; granted nil.—The claim for 350 rupees paid to an officer who was invalided is inadmissible. He gained Rs. 6,016 10a. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. H. J. ALLAN, late 9th N.I., claimed Rs. 970; granted Rs. 875 15a.—He gained Rs. 94 1a. by accelerated promotion. A further sum (amount not stated) paid to an officer who was invalided cannot be taken into consideration.

Capt. W. H. PHILLIPS, late 59th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,850; granted nil. He gained Rs. 2,823 14a. 1p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. col. F. W. LAMBERT, late 56th N.I., claimed Rs. 9,506 0a. 10p.; granted Rs. 8,491 0a. 2p.—He gained Rs. 1,015 0a. 8p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. col. J. T. DANIELL, late 47th N.I., claimed Rs. 8,800; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £80 on retirement. His payments represent an annuity of little more than a third of that amount.

Lieut. col. D. H. OSBORN, late 54th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,350; granted Rs. 962 6a. 8p.—250 rupees paid to an officer who invalided cannot be taken into consideration. He gained Rs. 137 9a. 4p. by accelerated promotion.

MADRAS.

Colonel J. BABINGTON, late royal Madras art., claimed Rs. 7,212 4a.; granted nil.—He received from his juniors on retirement a bonus of £4,000. He also obtained a special annuity of £50. His claim for 660 rupees paid to invalided officers is inadmissible.

Lieut. colonel A. GRANT, late 3rd cav., claimed Rs. 2,000; granted Rs. 1,700.—As a cornet he paid 300 rupees, and gained Rs. 1,360 6a. 8p. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. G. H. GRANVILLE, late 34th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,090; granted nil.—90 rupees paid to an officer who was invalided cannot be considered. The claim for 3,000 rupees promised by his juniors in 1866, but not given, is inadmissible as resulting from the measures taken in 1861.

Colonel G. CARR, late 16th N.I., claimed Rs. 16,000; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £180 on retirement.

Colonel C. H. HARRISON, late royal Madras art., claimed Rs. 8,140 8a.; granted Rs. 2,568 8a.—The claim for 480 rupees paid to invalided officers is inadmissible. As first lieutenant he paid 1,906 rupees (part of which was also to invalided officers), and he gained Rs. 3,956 2a. 8p. by accelerated promotion. The claim for 3,186 rupees paid subsequently to Feb. 18, 1861, is also inadmissible. Colonel Harrison subsequently withdrew his claim, preferring to accept an offer made by his juniors.

Colonel G. BRIGGS, late royal Madras art., claimed Rs. 16,041; granted Rs. 10,610. The claim for Rs. 1,919 12a. paid to invalided officers is inadmissible. As a lieutenant he paid Rs. 1,115 4a., and gained Rs. 1,574 6a. by accelerated promotion. Similarly, as a captain, he paid 2,396 rupees, and gained Rs. 13,673 10a. 6p. A claim for a bonus of 42,000 rupees, to which he might have been entitled from the retiring fund if he had become senior lieutenant-colonel, is considered inadmissible.

Lieut. col. R. GORDON, late 32nd N.I., claimed Rs. 12,665; granted nil.—He received a bonus of 2,400 rupees on retirement, and also a special annuity of £180, the value of which would be 23,000 rupees.

Lieut. col. C. GILL, late 17th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,824 13a.; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120, the value of which would be 17,000 rupees.

Capt. W. B. FELLOWES, late 3rd cavalry, claimed Rs. 2,850; granted Rs. 1,050.—The claim for 1,800 rupees to an invalided officer is inadmissible.

Capt. F. D'ARCY, late 32nd N.I., claimed Rs. 6,538; granted Rs. 5,117 14a. 8p.—The sum of Rs. 1,420 1a. 4p. for interest on his payments is inadmissible.

Lieut. col. P. T. SNOW, late 3rd N.I., claimed Rs. 6,000; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120, the value of which was 16,000 rs.

Lieut. col. E. P. ST. AUBYN, late 10th N.I., claim not stated; granted nil.—He received a bonus of 8,450 rupees on retirement, and a special annuity of £160, valued at 24,000 rupees.

Col. W. MIDDLETON, late 17th N.I., claimed Rs. 11,273; granted nil.—Besides the gain by accelerated promotion, he received a special annuity of £110, valued at 22,000 rupees.

Lieut. col. E. PEREIRA, late 26th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,625 12a.; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120, valued at 15,000 rupees.

Colonel W. SWINTON, late 6th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,688; granted Rs. 73 5a. 10p.—He paid 200 rupees as ensign, and gained Rs. 126 10a. 2p. by accelerated promotion. As lieut. he paid 1,488 rupees, and gained upwards of 2,700 rupees.

Major C. CAMERON, half-pay, Royal Madras Artillery, claimed Rs. 4,534 2a.; granted Rs. 2,291 4a. 6p.—The claim for 830 rupees paid subsequently to 17th February, 1861, and 335 rupees estimated to have been paid to invalided officers is inadmissible. He gained Rs. 232 13a. 6p. by accelerated promotion. The sum of 845 rupees was also disallowed for some reason not stated in the committee's report.

Capt. CORBETT, late 38th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,358 2a. 3p.; granted Rs. 2,540 9a. 5p.—His claim for Rs. 1,421 14a. 1p. for interest is inadmissible. He gained Rs. 392 10a. 9p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. PALMER, late 4th N.I., and staff corps, claimed Rs. 1,490; granted Rs. 811 14a. 6p.—He gained Rs. 538 1a. 6p. by accelerated promotion. The claim for Rs. 100 paid in aid of interest, &c., is disallowed.

Lieut. col. A. C. McNEILL, late 46th N.I., and staff corps, claimed Rs. 1,745 5a. 1p.; granted Rs. 1,748 5a. 1p.

Col. J. CADENHEAD, late 14th N.I., claimed Rs. 8,337; granted Rs. 6,037.—He paid Rs. 2,300 as lieutenant, and gained Rs. 3,411 3a. by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. col. C. BURTON, late 42nd N.I., claimed Rs. 7,822 3a. 7p.; granted nil.—He received a bonus of Rs. 3,000 on retirement, and a special annuity of £50, valued at Rs. 6,170 14a. 2p.

Col. R. TAYLOR, late 2nd cav., claimed Rs. 20,000; granted nil.—He received a bonus of Rs. 10,000 on retirement, and a special annuity of £150, valued at Rs. 17,700 5a.

Lieut. col. G. S. COTTER, late Royal Madras art., claimed Rs. 44,218; granted nil.—His claim for Rs. 35,500, which he might have received from the Madras Artillery Retiring Fund, is inadmissible. He received a bonus of Rs. 10,075 on retirement, and a special annuity of £50, valued at Rs. 6,180 6a. 2p.

Lieut. col. W. H. PAYNES, late 3rd N.I., claimed Rs. 750; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120, valued at Rs. 17,560.

Major W. BLOUNT, late 7th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,200; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 12,682 11a. 3p. by accelerated promotion. The claim for 250 rupees paid after Feb. 18, 1861, is disallowed.

Lieut. col. W. HORNIDGE, late 24th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,625; granted Rs. 2,241 1a.—He gained Rs. 383 15a. by accelerated promotion.

Col. H. W. RAWLINS, late 30th N.I., claimed Rs. 6,971 12a. 6p.; granted Rs. 1,771 12a. 6p.—He paid 5,200 rupees in the lower grades (including sums paid to invalided officers), and gained Rs. 6,557 14a. 8p. by accelerated promotion.

Col. G. BRIGGS, late royal Madras art. (amended decision), claimed Rs. 15,941; granted Rs. 7,700.—The claim for 1,170 rupees paid to invalided officers is disallowed. As a lieut. he paid 1,487 rupees, and gained Rs. 7,089 14a. 11p. by accelerated promotion. As a capt. he paid 5,584 rupees, and gained Rs. 13,887 12a. 1p. The committee subsequently renewed their original recommendation that a further award of 3,000 rupees should be made to Col. Briggs on account of his donation to the retiring fund as a major, without holding it to be extinguished by the gain in the grade of capt.

Col. A. ROBERTSON, late 48th N.I., claimed Rs. 8,407 4a. 9p.; granted Rs. 2,000.—The claim for Rs. 6,157 4a. 9p. is disallowed on account of payments to invalided officers. The sum of 250 rupees for interest is also inadmissible.

Capt. J. C. BURNETT, late 4th cav., claimed Rs. 7,540; granted Rs. 5,646 2a.—He gained Rs. 1,893 14a. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. H. THURBURN, late 42nd N.I., claimed Rs. 1,670 3a. 7p.; granted Rs. 1,670 3a. 7p.

Lieut. J. STONHOUSE, late 5th N.I., claimed Rs. 839 14a. 2p.; granted Rs. 44 10a. The sum of Rs. 795 4a. has to be deducted from the claim, for accelerated promotion or payment to invalided officers.

Capt. C. CLERK, late 2nd cav., claimed Rs. 16,044 12a.; granted Rs. 3,811 11a. 2p.—He gained Rs. 44 6a. 2p. by accelerated promotion. The claim for Rs. 12,188 10a. 8p. is disallowed, for reasons not stated in the committee's report.

Capt. H. M. FERGUSON, late 3rd Eur. regt. and 45th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,270 1a. 9p.; granted nil.—There is a set-off of Rs. 8,242 0a. 11p. on account of disallowances and gain by accelerated promotion. A claim for a further sum paid in the 45th N.I. is also inadmissible, as, having been transferred to the 3rd Eur. regt., his step would never have been purchased by his old corps.

Lieut.-colonel T. GREENWAY, late 50th N.I., claimed Rs. 3,000; granted nil.—The amount was paid to an officer who retired after Feb. 18, 1861.

Lieut. col. G. ATKINSON, late 6th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,000; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 2,186 14a. 10p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. R. L. PLAYFAIR, late royal (Madras) art. and staff corps, claimed Rs. 2,784 12a.; granted Rs. 375.—The claim for Rs. 379 paid to invalided officers is disallowed. He paid Rs. 2,030 12a. as a lieutenant, and gained Rs. 3,856 6a. 11p. by accelerated promotion.

Colonel H. DRURY, late staff corps and 45th N.I., claimed Rs. 20,405 8a. 6p.; granted nil.—He attained the rank of lieut.-colonel, both regimentally and in the staff corps, before retiring.

Colonel A. ROBERTSON, late 48th N.I. (amended decision), claimed Rs. 8,407 4a. 9p.; granted Rs. 3,000.—The disallowance for payments to invalided officers should have been only Rs. 5,157 4a. 9p. The sum of Rs. 250 for interest is inadmissible.

Lieut. col. A. H. N. CHESNEY, late 23rd N.I., claimed Rs. 2,400; granted nil.—He gained Rs. 4,975 10a. 3p. by accelerated promotion.

Mrs. SANDERS, widow of Capt. G. W. Sanders, late 9th N.I., claimed Rs. 4,748 13a. 9p.; granted nil.—It was found that the actual payments were only Rs. 3,265 15a. 5p., and that the whole of this sum had been absorbed in the charge for interest, amounting to Rs. 3,433 1a. 2p.

Capt. T. DREVER, late 2nd Eur. infantry, claimed Rs. 4,050; granted Rs. 3,061.—He paid 1,019 rupees as a subaltern, and gained by accelerated promotion Rs. 2,078 6a. 2p.

Major H. B. SWEET, late 39th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,700; granted nil.—He received a special annuity of £120 on retirement.

Lieut. col. L. M. MACKENZIE, late 33rd N.I., claimed Rs. 9,490; granted Rs. 5,578 5a. 7p.—He gained Rs. 3,911 10a. 5p. by accelerated promotion.

Capt. A. BROOME, late 28th N.I., claimed Rs. 2,000; granted Rs. 600.—The claim for 1,400 rupees paid to an officer who invalided is inadmissible.

Lieut. W. H. S. CLARKE, late 7th cavalry, claimed Rs. 1,000; granted Rs. 1,000.

Capt. R. CHURCH, late 47th N.I., claimed Rs. 1,006 4a.; granted Rs. 1,006 4a.—He also paid certain sums as a subaltern, but he was unable to say how much, or to substantiate the claim.

Capt. D. CAREY, late 2nd cav., claimed Rs. 10,159 1a. 4p.; granted nil.—He received a bonus of Rs. 5,104 8a. on retirement. The claim for Rs. 6,639 8a. 8p. paid after Feb. 17, 1861, is disallowed.

Capt. R. STEUART, late 49th N.I., claimed Rs. 5,677; granted Rs. 1,053 7a.—The claim for 812 rupees paid to officers who invalided, and 3,500 rupees paid after 1861, is disallowed. He gained Rs. 311 9a. by accelerated promotion.

BOMBAY.

Capt. R. G. WATSON, late 2nd Eur. inf., claimed Rs. 1,074; granted Rs. 708.—The claim for 323 rupees paid to officers invalided, &c., is disallowed. He gained 43 rupees by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. J. NODDING, late 4th N.I., claimed Rs. 600; granted Rs. 300.—He paid 300 rupees as ensign, and gained more than an equivalent amount. A further claim for payments to officers who invalided is inadmissible.

Capt. C. DOUGLAS, late 15th N.I., claimed Rs. 124; granted Rs. 124.

Lieut. W. LUMSDEN, late 22nd N.I., claimed Rs. 1,314; granted Rs. 1,019.—He gained 295 rupees by accelerated promotion.

Lieut. E. BELL, late 1st N.I., claimed Rs. 370; granted Rs. 125.—He paid 120 rupees as ensign, and gained 390 rupees by accelerated promotion. The sum of 125 rupees is disallowed, as paid to an officer who invalided.

Lieut. col. C. BUCKLE, late 3rd cav., claimed Rs. 11,000; granted nil.—A considerable portion of the sum stated to have been paid is inadmissible, being for interest. He received a bonus of 2,800 rupees on retirement, and gained 8,388 rupees by accelerated promotion.

Col. H. W. EVANS, late 9th N.I., claimed Rs. 26,262; granted nil.—He gained 15,822 rupees by accelerated promotion, and received a special annuity of £200, valued at 25,000 rupees. A claim for a bonus of 40,000 rupees which he might have received on retirement is inadmissible.

Capt. St. C. FORD, late 14th N.I., claimed Rs. 7,213; granted Rs. 1,436. The claim for 1,200 rupees paid to officers who invalided, and 233 rupees for interest, is disallowed. He gained 4,314 rupees by accelerated promotion.

Capt. R. L. BINGHAM, 1st fus., claimed Rs. 1,642; granted Rs. 570.—The claim for 482 rupees paid to two officers who invalided is inadmissible. He paid 590 rupees as an ensign, and gained 1,300 rupees by accelerated promotion.

Col. J. G. LIGHTFOOT, late Royal Bombay art., claimed Rs. 11,351; granted nil.—He gained 8,000 rupees by accelerated promotion, and received a special annuity of £50, valued at 6,250 rupees.

Lieut. H. J. HEISCH, late 28th N.I., claimed Rs. 195; granted Rs. 195.

Capt. W. N. DYETT, late 3rd European regiment, claimed Rs. 500; granted nil.—He gained 3,000 rupees by accelerated promotion.

NOTE.—This return is as complete a statement as can be prepared from the records in the India-office. A similar return was called for by the House of Commons on the 1st of June last, and a reference has been made to the several Governments in India for the information.

The amount "claimed" is the full amount stated, or presumed, to have been paid to the regimental retiring funds, or to senior officers on their retirement.

The amount "granted" is the full sum awarded by the Compensation Committees. In the case of a few artillery officers, the committee recommended that a portion should be withheld for the payment of debts due to the regimental funds, but the Secretary of State in Council has directed that the sum awarded be paid in full.—Home News.

MUNICIPAL.—The undermentioned gentlemen have been appointed municipal commissioners of Simla for the year 1869-70:—Mr. Peterson, Mr. Walker, Colonel Faddy, Mr. Carey, Major Goad, and Major gen. Innes.

COURTS-MARTIAL.

IN spite of many just complaints against the existing Court-martial procedure, it is satisfactory to find that some of those who have had the nearest acquaintance with its working have little fault to adduce therewith. The Court-martial Commission examined three privates, a bombardier, a corporal, and four sergeants, none of whose names were taken down. Their evidence, however biased in part by fear of personal consequences or other motives, tends to show that Courts-martial, even as they are, have few detractors among the lower ranks of the army. So far as a few privates and non-commissioned officers can speak for their comrades in general, such at least is the inference to be gathered from their replies to the Commissioners' queries. One of the witnesses declared his belief that soldiers tried by these courts had "very fair play," and felt that they had it, and that such was "the general feeling among the soldiers." A private soldier had "every opportunity afforded him of making his defence." The same witness never remembered a case in which a man deemed innocent by his comrades had been found guilty, nor had he ever heard any complaints about injustice. Further questioning on these points made no change in the meaning of his answers. The other witnesses spoke substantially to the same effect. One of them, a private who had been twice convicted by a Court-martial, "never had any fault to find with them himself," and had never known a man to be found guilty whom he knew to be innocent. He too believed that soldiers tried by these courts had no doubt of their having received a fair trial. On one point only does the expression of trust in these courts waver somewhat, and the waverers mainly belong to the more intelligent ranks. Several of the sergeants agree in admitting that regimental are less trusted than district courts, because of the influence which a commanding officer may wield in a court composed of officers of his own regiment. One of them in particular, a troop sergeant-major, has "heard say that a man put back for a regimental court-martial is a doomed man;" and another sergeant-major's evidence as to the general belief in a commanding officer's power for intimidation, is confirmed by Captain Harris's avowal that members of a regimental court have sometimes been made to suffer for disagreeing with the views of their commanding officer. This however is a defect which has often been charged against general Courts-martial, and the remedy is not very clear in either case. By giving "enlarged powers," as the Commission would do, to commanding officers, one bulwark against tyranny might be thrown down, for it is evident that sometimes a regimental court does screen the soldier from the consequences of personal ill-will. The other suggestion, that "a regimental court should only be had recourse to when a district court cannot conveniently be assembled," is better worth considering. In the case of general and district courts the evil of undue influence from above might be largely lessened by the adoption of more legal methods and the enforcement of a stricter legal training. There is room for any amount of reform in the processes of the superior courts at any rate, without wholly effacing the distinctive features of the present system. For purely military offences we must always have some kind of military tribunal. But it need not consist of very young officers, or of persons disqualified by general ignorance of legal rules and methods for administering justice in all but cases of the simplest kind. For quite ordinary purposes the present courts may work fairly enough. Privates tried for drunkenness, desertion, and so forth, are pretty sure to be found guilty on the clearest evidence; but when officers appear as prisoners, the weak points of the present system are almost equally certain to come uppermost. Evidence is taken or rejected on the narrowest or vaguest grounds; the witnesses are apt to be conveniently troubled with short memories, or to give answers more or less coloured with personal fears or prepossessions; the finding and the sentence have often but the slightest connection with the evidence adduced or with the charge itself; in short, it may often with truth be asserted that an officer has been tried for one offence and punished for another. That these things happen not once or twice, but very often, may be gathered from the trials which during the last fifteen years have come more prominently into public notice. The Crawley Court-martial was a crucial instance of almost every evil ascribed to the present system, and it especially brought out the tyranny of that old military delusion that discipline cannot be maintained if a subaltern or a sergeant can exact redress for the wrong done him by his colonel. The problem, how to improve the present system without making Courts-martial too purely legal, or its members too independent of military control, is one which the late Commission has done little to solve. The best of its recommendations, that which does away with the absurd old practice of trying a sergeant and reducing him to the ranks for any slight offence, was too obvious to demand an unusual outlay of corporate wisdom.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.

MR. JULAND DANVERS, Government Director of Indian Railways, has lately issued another of his annual reports on a subject of peculiar interest to all seekers after knowledge on Indian affairs. Of the 5,925 miles proposed by Lord Dalhousie, 4,096 have now been completed. Of the 174 opened last year, 120 belong to the Delhi line, opened last November up to Umballa. Seventy more of the same line will be opened during the present year, and thirty of the Madras line to its point of junction with the Great Indian Peninsula. The final junction of these two lines which will link Bombay with Madras, will hardly, it is feared, be made before 1872, but there is every reason to hope that the East Indian and Indian Peninsula lines joining Bombay and Calcutta will meet at Jubbulpore in the course of next year. In that year also the remaining 145 miles of the East Indian Railway, cutting off the wide circuit between Kahnore and Luckeserai, and so saving seventy miles on the through journey from Calcutta to Dinapore, will be opened for traffic. On the Delhi Railway the works are progressing so quickly, that all but a fraction of the 146 miles between Umballa and Lahore will perhaps be finished in the present year. A balance of six miles will depend for its completion on the progress made with the great bridge that will span the Sutlej near Loodianah. Thanks to the erratic course of Indian rivers, the bridge is already being lengthened from 4,000 to 6,200 feet, at a cost of £60,000. The Punjab and Sindh lines are in good working order. So is the East Indian Railway, which already shows a main line of 1,131 miles, and has completed its westward extension to Jubbulpore. In spite of a temporary decline in its cotton traffic, its net receipts for the year were £1,237,947, or nearly £200,000 above those of the year before.

The progress of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway has been less satisfactory. Its net receipts were a good deal below those of the previous year, and its working expenses still show a percentage of 63.11 on the gross receipts. Its works are very backward, owing in part to the need of large repairs on sections already open, and to cases of faulty construction elsewhere. The "disastrous failures" on this line are ascribed by Mr. Danvers to the imperfect manner in which the designs were originally prepared, to the use of inferior materials, and to "a lax system of supervision" while the works were in progress. Fresh instances of bad construction in some of the bridges have lately been reported. It is reckoned that about £1,300,000 will have to be spent in necessary repairs, including a wholesale substitution of iron bridge-girders for the original arches of brick and stone.

The line from Lahore to Peshawar has already been taken in hand by the Government. A branch line to the foot of the Nilgherries, undertaken by the thriving Madras Company, will soon place those pleasant hills within easy reach of tired workers in the plains. Like the Great Indian Peninsula, the Bombay and Baroda Railway has felt the influence of a stagnant commercial season. On the other hand, the Eastern Bengal Railway shows a steady improvement in its net receipts, and the Great Southern of India is following its example. On both these railways the working expenses are under 49 per cent., while those of the Bombay and Baroda line amount to nearly 68, and those of the Sindh Railway to 78 per cent. This is nothing however to the Delhi Railway, whose working expenses were 175 per cent. Against this we may set as a model of economy the Madras Railway Company, whose two lines show respectively a percentage of 34.66 and 44.38. It is only fair to say that the high percentage on the Delhi line, caused mainly by unusual floods and undeveloped traffic, forms no criterion of future possibilities.

The Sindh and Punjab lines again depend for their future on a due development of the railway system to which they now form a mere starting point. The Bombay and Baroda line has also had to pay largely for the damage caused by monsoon floods. On this line the maintenance charges amount to twenty-seven pence, the cost of rolling-stock to eleven, and the locomotive charges to thirty pence a mile; one half of the gross receipts, or 5s. 8d. out of 11s. a mile, being thus turned to nought. Another shilling a mile goes in "miscellaneous" items. In this way the net receipts of a line whose gross revenue per mile exceeds that of every other fall far short of the profits netted by the Madras, the East Indian, and the Eastern Bengal lines. On the last-named the maintenance and locomotive charges take respectively no more than tenpence and thirteen pence out of the eight shillings a mile of gross receipts. Even the Great Southern, whose gross receipts per mile are only four shillings, can show a balance in its favour of two shillings a mile, or one-half; while the net profits of the Bombay and Baroda are less than a third of its gross receipts. On the other hand, one of the Madras lines manages to save six shillings a mile out of the nine shillings actually received. But then its maintenance charges are only sevenpence a mile.

The year 1867-68 opened unpromisingly for the Indian railways. Towards the close however a change for the better took place, and the traffic returns for last winter surpassed those of any former season; two railways alone, the East Indian and the Great Peninsula, earning between them a hundred thousand a week for several weeks together. On an average of all the lines taken together, good and bad, there was a realisable dividend of three per cent. More than 15 million passengers were conveyed during the year, or a million and a quarter more than the total for the year before. Thus a loss of £360,000 on the goods traffic for the year was in some measure compensated by a gain of £214,000 in the receipts from passenger traffic, which amounted to £1,591,475, or about half the total receipts from goods.

One source of expense on the Western side of India is the high price, three and four pounds a ton, paid there for English coal. Australian coal is somewhat cheaper, but native coal is very much the cheapest, costing a pound a ton to the Bengal railways. Hitherto however no native coal has been found in the neighbourhood of the Bombay lines, for the Chanda coal-fields have yet to be opened out. On the Madras lines the want of cheap native coal has been largely compensated by the use of wood fuel, so that the locomotive charges on those lines are considerably lower than they are on the East Indian. Low wages however and lighter trains on the Madras side are disturbing elements in any calculation of comparative costs. Let us hope that some of the railway companies will take Mr. Danvers's hint on the connection between weight of rolling-stock and waste of fuel. A proper balance between the power employed and the results intended would certainly "make a great difference in a year's returns."

Notices of Books.

Colburn's New Monthly Magazine. August—1869. Chapman and Hall.

The last article in the August number of the New Monthly is a carefully-written narrative of the late Hazara campaign, by a writer evidently conversant both with the military and political bearings of his theme. Besides setting before us in clear detail the story of the campaign itself, he has dwelt, not without reason, on the connection between the movements of these restless hill tribes on the Punjab frontier and the doings of the Wahabie refugees from Hindustan. We commend the article to all readers interested in Indian topics.

Our Northern Frontier. By Capt. A. F. P. Harcourt. London: J. Madden. 1869.

The Cabul Question, &c. By Transindicus Olim. London: Strangeways and Walden. 1869.

A Letter to the Right Honourable Viscount Halifax. By H. L. Maw. 1869.

*The Russo-Indian Question, Historically, Strategically, and Politically Considered—*with Maps. By Capt. F. French, F.R.G.S. London: Macmillan and Co. 1869.

Are we at the beginning or the end of a new word-warfare about Central Asian politics? Pamphlet after pamphlet, book after book, leading article after leading article keeps tumbling forth from the press on this one question, and the cry is "still they come." One writer warns his countrymen against the policy of "masterly inaction;" another chides them for giving too ready a ear to those who would renew the policy that led up to the disasters of Jugdulluk and the Koord-Kabul; a third insists on the duty of planting our outposts somewhere beyond the Khaiber and the Bolan Passes; a fourth prefers the despatching of envoys and drill-officers to Kabul or Kandahar; while a fifth would have us treat directly with Russia for the limitation of her Central Asian Frontier. "Keep to the line of the Indus, and you need fear nothing"—says one counsellor. "Do so, and you are lost," declares another. "Look at the distance between Peshawar and Samarkand!" puts in a third. "Look rather"—warns a fourth—"at the leaps forward taken by Russia in the last three years." "But Herat, the key of India, remains unthreatened by Russian arms," somebody meekly points out. "Herat is not the key of India," replies some one else; "and even if it were, Russia can any moment get hold of the key." In the same way we are assured by one party that Russia's neighbourhood is a blessing, not a menace, for India; by another that Russia has no idea of coming to the south of the Himalayas; a third holds that she may attack us a hundred years hence, while a fourth regards the danger as very imminent indeed.

Many of these different shades of opinion are represented by the different works at the head of this article. Mr. Maw, in a letter largely made up of capitals, italics, and inverted commas, believes in Russian hostility, but scouts the notion of a successful invasion of India by Russian arms. He agrees with Sir S. Northcote that we ought to have not a Central Asian, but an Indian policy, and with Sir Vincent Eyre in preferring the line of the Indus to any other possible frontier. His strongest array of capitals and italics is brought to bear against the notion of entering into any treaty with Russia "as to any Russian frontier or territory in Central Asia," which would, he thinks, "be like Samson tying his own hands." Mr. Maw's opinions on the whole are sounder than his literary style. He may rest assured however that no English statesman would be silly enough to dream of guaranteeing to Russia her conquests in Central Asia.

Captain Harcourt, an Assistant Commissioner in the Punjab, has written a pamphlet of twenty-seven pages, full of information and sound advice. He is no alarmist, although he bids us take note of the rapid advance which Russia has lately made in Turkistan. She has no thought indeed of invading India, but her designs in the direction of Turkey impel her to make a feint of attacking England in that quarter. The best pages of Captain Harcourt's pamphlet are devoted to an interesting sketch of Central Asian Trade, a subject on which he is particularly well-informed. He has faith in Dr. Cayley's description of the Changchenmoo Pass, as the best road for our trade with Turkistan. As the valley itself lies 17,000 feet above the sea, is pretty well wooded, and inhabited by shepherds throughout the winter, the road through it ought to be easy enough for traders in the summer. Captain Harcourt would appoint a viceregal agent for the Cashmere frontier, who should live at the capital, with an assistant always, in winter as well as summer, resident at Leh.

"Transindicus" goes at some length into the history and politics of the "Cabul question," with special reference to Russian progress. The information is well compiled, and the writer's views, if based on a firm belief in Russian aggressiveness, do not transcend the atmosphere of practical considerations. He would not occupy Afghanistan, for the sufficient reason that it would cost too much to do so, although he rightly maintains that the mere occupation of all or any part of it would for England be nothing more than a question of money. Some of his recommendations, such as the extension of railways and the proper arming of our native troops, are already on the point of being carried out. The despatch of properly accredited envoys to Cabul is quite another affair, and we do not see that time has done aught as yet to remove the practical objections to a measure theoretically sound enough. How about the failure of Lumsden's mission in 1857? By all means however let us support Shere Ali in our own way, with arms and subsidies, for the purpose of strengthening the position he has already won, so long as he can help us to keep the peace on our frontier.

But the most complete work we have yet seen on this Russo-Indian question is the volume by Captain Trench, of the 20th Hussars. The "disjointed information," which has hitherto lain buried in all kinds of printed repertoires, has by him been raked together and wrought up into one readable volume of one hundred and eighty-three pages. The first chapter traces the origin, growth, and progress of Russophobia. This is followed by a good geographical sketch of Turkistan, as an introduction to an interesting narrative of recent events in both sections of that wide region. Another chapter deals in the same way with the recent history of Afghanistan. Our Afghan policy then passes under a calm review, which tends on the whole to justify the course pursued by Lord Lawrence, although the writer insists that our present support of Shere Ali must, both for honour and prudence sake, be continued to him "at all costs and hazards." With regard to the strategical aspect of the question, Capt. Trench goes carefully into a comparison of the probable extent of Russian and English resources in no distant future, and sums up on the whole against the alarmists, who talk as if it was the easiest thing in the world for 50,000 Russians, with a host of attendant Turkomans, to swoop down, heavy guns and all, upon the plains of India, merely because Alexander, Taimoor, and Nadir Shah did something of the kind under very different circumstances, against very different foes. A small Russian force might even take and hold Herat, so long as in time of crisis English troops garrisoned Kandahar. A few years hence however the odds against Russia will, he thinks, be somewhat reduced, unless we take early steps to thwart her advance, by pushing our Indian frontier forward towards Kandahar; a move which to us seems far less wise than standing still. In a final chapter on the politics of the question Captain Trench enlarges on the extent to which Russia is likely to make use of her influence in Central Asia, as a means of furthering her designs on Constantinople. This, no doubt, is one important key to her past and present proceedings, and it is well for us to remember that, apart from any deliberate purpose, which, to our thinking, Russia does not entertain, of invading India, we may some day be required to withstand her on the Punjab frontier, as a foe already arrayed against us in Europe. But such a moment, if ever it should come, need not find us wanting because meanwhile we prefer to treat Russia in Asia as a commercial rival rather than an assured political foe.

THE BENGALÉE COMPETITION WALLAHS.

The Pioneer thinks that the Civil Service Commissioners have acted precipitately in refusing a hearing to the Bengalee explanation of the discrepancy in their allegations as to age, and this is the more strange as the senior Commissioner, Sir Edward Ryan, was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court at Calcutta many years ago. In that position he ought to have learnt two things—one, that Hindoos do reckon their ages as alleged by these young gentlemen; another, that Courts of Justice could compel a public department to act fairly and legally; he might then have avoided the humiliation which the Queen's Bench has inflicted upon the Board of which he is a member. Four of his brother lawyers have in fact stated that the Board totally misapprehend the plea put forward in defence by Messrs. Banerjee and Thakur. Even if it were true that their present statement is irreconcilable with their former one at Calcutta and Bombay, the Commissioners have given the force of an estoppel to a fact which is only evidence which might be refuted. The papers have commented on the meanness of the Bengalee informer wholly without grounds; if these young men were really over twenty-one, as the Commissioners on the evidence before them believe, they were certainly guilty of falsehood; their fathers of perjury and forgery; and they obtained under a false pretence an appointment worth, if capitalised, at least a lakh, which was the rightful due of others. Under these circumstances it was the bounden duty of every Queen's subject, much more of those interested in the Indian Government, to denounce the fraud. But we have more to add. Admitting that Hindoos do commonly record their years by the age which they will have attained at the coming birthday, no discrepancy will be apparent between the ages recorded at the Indian Universities and before the English Board in the case of those who, like Mr. Thakur, were born between December 1st, date from which the former reckon, and March 1st, which the latter has selected. Mr. Thakur was born, he alleges, on the 26th February, 1849. On 1st December, 1863, when entering the University, he would have been fourteen and three-quarters. He should then have recorded himself, by his own reckoning, as fifteen; but if he had done so consistently with that record, his age might still have been made out nine months under twenty-one on the 1st of March, 1869, which would have passed. Now, he does not deny that his age, as recorded in India, does present an apparent discrepancy from that stated in London; therefore he must have put himself down as sixteen in India, although, even according to his own mode of reckoning, he was but fifteen. He can still urge, however, that he is telling the truth now, and that two years of London life will make a trustworthy man out of a genuine Hindoo. The broader question arises—how to guard against such manoeuvres in future? When we remember that the Government scholarships and others will yearly send to England a number of highly educated men, who, from the nature of things, must sometimes be of humble and obscure birth, there is reason to fear that men of mature years may be found competing with a great and fraudulent advantage against English boys of seventeen. It is certain to occur, in fact. Imagine the sharp son of a serishtadar or kanoongo hesitating at forging a horoscope which was to undergo a mere formal inspection by a clerk in Westminster. He could do it, if he pleased, without fear of detection, and the possibility that he would do so would deter some English candidates from the competition. Hamlet's skill of fence did not avail him against a poisoned rapier. The remedy is to enlarge the limit of age, and admit candidates, as formerly, up to twenty-four; there will be then no motive for fraud, and boys will know what they have to expect.

GENERAL HANNYNGTON'S FIGURES EXAMINED.

The Bombay Gazette remarks that the loss which, according to General Hannington, Government would suffer were the Viceroy's compromise accepted, is shown in his tables to be exactly £467,108. The General, moreover, remarks that this is the most hopeful view that he can take of the Indian proposals; "the values," he says, "are the greatest possible, and the apparent loss is the least that can be assigned." Let us look into this inclusive statement. It is quite evident that on one side of the table, that is to the debit of the Government of India's scheme, is placed every conceivable charge that would be incurred by its adoption. The value of the ordinary pensions, the amount of the bonus, and the aggregate liability for extra pensions make up the total—not simply the extra cost to the State of the immediate retirement of the two-hundred senior officers on the terms proposed by the Indian Government. It is at least consoling to rest assured that nothing has been suppressed on this side of the balance sheet, and that the military financier of the India Office has made out the strongest case possible against the retirement scheme. The other side of the table should of course be treated with similar arithmetical impartiality. Here we see only one item shown, namely, the value of the Colonels' allowances to which the said officers would become entitled after serving the usual qualifying term of years. Yet surely this solitary line cannot comprise every source of expenditure which Government would have to meet if persisting in present arrangements? Nor can the balance represent what would be lost were the two hundred to retire before the close of this year. Let us suppose that these two hundred officers do not retire, that they serve on in regular order, some succeeding to their colonels' allowances, others, not willing to risk their lives for the great prize, and so demanding their pensions at an earlier date, others again being removed by death. These are necessarily uncertain quantities; but for argument's sake we can afford to concede the supposition that only fifty per cent. are likely to attain to the rank of colonel with colonel's allowances and off-reckonings. But these men, this one hundred officers are not merely expectants, they do not "hold on" merely for the chance of drawing the coveted allowances at some future day; they are month by month receiving, in the aggregate, an enormous sum in the shape of Indian pay and allowances, and these they will continue to receive so long as they are retained. In any calculation which affects to show what is the financial result of the India-office decision, the net total of those two hundred officers' Indian pay and allowances ought to be shown or computed on some principle. And yet General Hannington, the financier on whom the Secretary of State has relied, has not given even an approximate estimate of this all-essential item! The debit side of the Indian Government's scheme has apparently been fairly treated, but the credit side has been starved. Thus General Hannington's bold assertion that the loss of £467,168 is "the least that could be assigned" falls to the ground. If but one thousand pounds would be absorbed in the Indian pay and allowances of those officers, the calculation is manifestly incorrect. It is not for us to say how this extraordinary oversight or sophistical marshalling of figures has been allowed to pass muster at the India-office—but, there is the blot.

STATION TALK.

SIMLA, July 11.—Should the intelligence which has reached this from Central Asia, of a general uprising of the Kirghiz tribes against the Russians, followed, or to be followed, by a Turkoman jihad against the Khanate forces of the same Power, prove correct—and there is no reason to think it will prove otherwise—those who have hitherto upheld the Central-Asian policy of the Government of India may well exult. Indeed, it would almost seem that the proceedings at the Umballa durbar have, somehow or other, caused their influence to be felt in Bokhara and the regions beyond the Hindoo-Khoosh; and that the tribes, from Aral to Tashkend, thoroughly convinced that they have nothing in the form of aggression or hostile advance to apprehend from the British, have at length resolved to make a grand united effort to drive back their common enemy, the hungry, absorbing Muscovite. Whoever set afloat the report that Lord Mayo intends to resign the Viceroyalty, and return to England immediately after the Agra durbar, gave currency to a rumour which had no foundation whatever in fact. Lady Mayo, it is said, will leave for England about the time indicated; but the Viceroy, as far as your correspondent can learn, has not the most remote idea or intention of prematurely abandoning the reins of empire. Rumour, however, has it that he and Lady Mayo soon leave for Chini, an isolated sanitarium of one house, and some splendid snowy range scenery, distant, in a north-easterly direction, some fourteen or fifteen marches, or 166 miles, from this place. Chini was the favourite abiding place of Lord Dalhousie, and is not far from the Tibetan frontier. The Viceroy's journey there will probably be but a very short one, for Lord Mayo is a worker, and the arena of gubernatorial labour is Simla. The trip may be regarded as one of well-earned relaxation. The Viceroy has for some time back practically held the portfolios of the Public Works and Foreign Departments, besides Viceroyally superintending the other great departments of the State. There has therefore been much burning of the midnight oil, and good judges say Lord Mayo is over-tasking himself. It is at least certain that he takes fully as lively an interest in the business of Government as did his illustrious predecessor, and that he exhibits all the characteristics of a ruler who has determined that nothing shall be wanting on his own part to render his reign a signally successful one. Your correspondent has by chance seen some specimens of the Viceroy's calligraphy, and a diabolically bad hand it is—big, sprawling, and about as decypherable as those inscriptions on ancient walls in ancient ruined cities which baffle everybody. It is lucky for Lord Mayo's colleagues, and for the departmental secretaries, that he is not much given to the recreation of penmanship. His minutes, orders, and despatches are nearly all, I believe, penned by an amanuensis, and that amanuensis is an expert shorthand writer whom his lordship brought out from England with him! The stenographer, on being summoned, takes his place at a table in the study or Cabinet Chamber of Peterhoff, with a grand array of well-pointed hard pencils and paper slips before him. Walking up and down this by no means extensive room, the Viceroy dictates orders, arguments, or queries, his every word being noted down with great rapidity. One subject, or a considerable division of one, thus stenographed, the stenographer immediately proceeds to reduce it to long hand, in which form it is promptly despatched to the proper department. And thus a great deal of work is got through in a comparatively short period of time. Though the Agra durbar is fixed for the 2nd January, the marking out of the ground for the several camps will probably be commenced within the next six weeks or two months at furthest. But if the year should prove such a year of scarcity as was last there will be no grand durbar at all. Rain however has fallen, and the probability is that there will be no dire necessity for countermanding the intended grand military and feudal pageant. The Duke of Edinburgh's movements however are sometimes rather erratic, and involve an element of uncertainty. It is considered that Mr. Fitz-James Stephen, whom the telegraph has informed us is to succeed the Hon. Mr. Sumner Maine, will prove an acquisition to the Council of the Viceroy of India. Mr. Maine himself is said to think and speak highly of him, and than the present law member there can be, your correspondent need hardly observe, no more competent judge. Mr. Fitz-James Stephen is the son of the late Sir James Stephen, for so many years a permanent Secretary of the Treasury. He is a recognised jurist, and has written legal and jurisprudential works of acknowledged merit. He it was who defended the "Essays and Reviews" in the Court of Arches, and his brilliant exploit on that occasion was what first won for him secure repute, both as a practical advocate and an expounder of the theory and principles of law. The article in Blackwood on Sir John Lawrence and his reign has attracted great attention, and elicited considerable admiration here. The writer must have had the command of the most complete information. He has mentioned not a few little incidents in the latter-day career of Lord Lawrence—incidents which, though known to a few members of the present Government of India, were known to no other; and Punjabee occurrences of which none but Punjab headquarters' officials of the time of Sir John's Lieutenant-Governorship could have come by a knowledge. Government, it is said, are rather impatiently expecting a communication from the Bank of Bengal, expository of the final determination of the directorate of that institution, with reference to the branch or agency at Bombay. It may safely be assumed that the Government of India has brought all its influence to bear on the said directorate to induce them to voluntarily close the agency. They are not likely to do this in a hurry. The Bengal shareholders are fully alive to the profit the agency has yielded, and to the still greater profit it might be made to yield if permitted to develop itself into a full-fledged arrowed branch bank. But they are also alive to the advantage of Government patronage and connection, and sensible that if Government were to disconnect itself from their institution, the shares would go down with a run. The probability is that if Government were to seriously threaten to cut the bank adrift in case the agency were not at once closed, the Bengal directors and shareholders would at once strike. There can be no honest doubt that the agency has been, and is, doing what is essentially banking business. The position and status which it really occupies is that of the chief and superintending branch of the branches of the Bank of Bengal in the Bombay presidency. No proof of this is necessary beyond the fact that it superintends, controls, and directly or indirectly aids with funds, the branch Bank of Bengal at Kurrachee; and if that be not banking business, no banking business has ever been transacted. Your late Commander-in-Chief, Sir William Mansfield, is said to be the most strenuous advocate of the equity and necessity of an immediate closure of the agency. All that prevents this is a doubt, originating in Mr. Advocate General Cowie's "opinion," whether Government, without resorting to legislation, can insist on the closure of the agency; but this curious dubiety can hardly endure long. The agency would probably have been withdrawn months ago, and without a murmur, but that Sir Richard Temple, who was much influenced by Mr. Dickson, never really desired its closure. The "Finances" are now in different charge.—Times of India Correspondent.

MUSSOORIE, July—There is little or no news here. There was a Ball at the Club on the evening of the 9th, which was well attended, and went off well. Poor General Burney has been dangerously ill, having very lately had two attacks of apoplexy. In the first of these he fell on his head and caused a slight concussion of the brain; but I am glad to say he is now much better. General Nash is also very seriously ill; he has been more than once given up, but I hope he will rally and recover. Very little rain here, which is most unusual for the hills at this time of the year.—Mofussilite Correspondent.

RANGOON, July 6.—Letters from Mandalay have just arrived. Captain Sladen is said to be leaving by the next steamer. I only now learn for the first time what may explain much of the puzzling delay about the Courts. My correspondent writes in reference to a complaint he had made:—"Captain Sladen will do nothing whatever; the fact is, the poor fellow is in such a miserable state of health that he can do nothing. One day he is well in mind, the next all the other way. His servants give out that all is to be sold by auction, and that he goes down by the first steamer. Marfels and Marks have said so too. I fear this will complicate matters, but hope his successor will soon arrive. By-the-bye, Marfels has to investigate the matter of the Dah (sword) stolen from Sladen. The woman who told Sladen that she stole the dah by the Myowoon's orders swore inside the palace that she had only said that because she was afraid of Sladen, and further that he had promised her Rs. 500 if she would accuse the Myowoon, and had guaranteed her protection from all consequences. The Rev. Mr. Marks has also had to examine into the case. His Majesty is very angry at having his favourite Myowoon accused of such a matter, and so sets Marfels to make up a true and correct account of the whole affair. The foundation of a new church is to be laid before Sladen goes." In reference to those matters of Messrs. H. J. Williams and Co., General Fytche said he had sent up orders to Captain Sladen to protect the property. The agent however wrote to the aggrieved parties that he saw nothing in the treaties which justified him in interfering.—Englishman Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

BURJORE SINGH.—The Delhi Gazette mentions a rumour that Burjore Singh has died of heat apoplexy in the jungles, but thinks the authorities should not credit it.

DR. NORMAN CHEYERS has accepted the presidentship of the Bengal Social Science Association for the current year, in succession to Mr. Justice Phear, who has resigned.

MAIL ROBBERIES.—The Pioneer hears from Morar that the Allahabad mail for that place and Gwalior was attacked by dacoits on the banks of the Chumbul and robbed on the 10th of July.

METEORIC STONES.—The Government of India is said to have requested that all Indian meteoric stones may in future be transmitted to the trustees of the Indian Museum in preference to sending them direct to England.

A RUMOUR.—It is said that General Fytche, Commissioner of Burmah, will take furlough next year, and may not return to India. Colonel Brown, Commissioner of the Tenasserim division, and now in England, is spoken of as a fit successor.

BURMAH.—We learn by telegram from Simla that the King of Burmah has cheerfully agreed to all the proposed arrangements in connection with the opening of Captain Sladen's Court at Mandalay. All difficulties in the way of opening that Court are now removed.—Times of India.

ADVERTISEMENTS.—An enterprising native firm in Calcutta are advertising a lamp that burns "without oil or any other substance." From another advertisement in a Calcutta paper it appears that a young man, a cultivator of indigo, is anxious to cultivate the acquaintance of a nice young lady—pretty—with money; and offers her in exchange a share of his bungalow in the jungle!

SAH BUNWARREE LALL.—In consideration of the loyalty of Sah Bunwarree Lall, of Chuprah, and of the liberality and public spirit lately evinced by him in devoting the sum of one lakh of rupees for the construction and endowment of a serai in that place, the Government of India has conferred upon him the title of Rai Bahadur, as a personal distinction.

GOORGAON.—The Pioneer hears that Major Boddam, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, has proceeded to Goorgaon to investigate the cause of a serious disturbance which has broken out there between some Meenas and the police. It is reported that a deputy-inspector of police and a constable have been killed, and several policemen wounded.

POLICE.—The Government of Bengal appears to be considering the propriety of increasing the native element in the higher grades of the much denounced Calcutta police. The Lieutenant-Governor has found it difficult to understand how the police could be successfully worked among a large native population, such as that of Calcutta, without a considerable native element in the higher ranks of the force.

THE BENGAL FEVER.—The report submitted to the Government of Bengal by Dr. Smith, on the endemic malarious fever raging in the districts of Hooghly and Burdwan has led to an increase of the establishment of sub assistant surgeons, native doctors, and dispensaries there. Dr. Smith recommended that the annual grant for this purpose should be Rs. 20,000. The amount sanctioned is, we believe, between Rs. 14,000 and Rs. 15,000.

CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.—There was a meeting of the Senate of the Calcutta University held on the 10th July to elect the Tagore Law Professor and to adopt a scheme of lectures. There were six candidates, and on a ballot being taken the majority of votes were in favour of Mr. Herbert Cowell, who had been nominated by the Law faculty. Mr. Cowell was, in consequence, declared to be duly elected as the first Tagore Law Professor. The appointment is tenable for three years. A scheme for the lectures, as previously published, was unanimously adopted.

VACCINATION.—Notwithstanding the vigorous efforts of the Vaccine Department, the inhabitants of Rajpootana do not seem to have much faith in the practice of vaccination. In Tonk however and some of the Marwar villages the vaccinator is welcomed and even sent for. In the hill villages around Aboo the people submit to the vaccinator readily enough; but everywhere else in Rajpootana the staff of vaccinators meet with very indifferent success.—Pioneer.

LAWRENCE MEMORIAL FUND.—The Sir John Lawrence Memorial Fund, which we noticed as having reached the total sum of Rs. 23,795, has had several additions lately. The Begum of Bhopal has given Rs. 500 towards it; the Maharajah Holkar, Rs. 600; and the Maharajah Scindia, Rs. 500; the Nawab of Jowrah has subscribed Rs. 300, and the Rajah of Rutlam Rs. 220. The whole amount subscribed up to date is Rs. 27,618.—Indian Volunteer Service Gazette.

SIR A. PHAYRE.—Sir Arthur Phayre has arrived in Calcutta, and is about to go to Simla and Cashmere. He will devote the cold season to a careful examination of the Buddhist antiquities on the frontier, in the prosecution of certain researches which promise to prove of great interest to scholars. His many friends in Burmah, that is the whole province, will welcome a visit from him early next year, as he goes home by China and the Pacific Railway. Sir Arthur Phayre desires no official employment, we understand, and Orientalism will be the gainer.—Friend of India.

SCHEME FOR UTILISING SEWAGE.—Some time ago a gentleman named Hickey devised a plan for ridding Darjeeling of its sewage and providing it with gas by one and the same process. A small sum had, if we remember rightly, been allowed by Government for the experiment. Now we learn that the experiment has concluded most successfully; the gas was brilliant, and the residuum in the retort was perfectly innocuous and inodorous. In so far as this experiment is concerned, therefore, Mr. Hickey has completely succeeded, but it yet remains to be proved whether the process is fitted, on account of its expense, for conservancy and lighting purposes.

GENERAL VANGHALY.—It is to be regretted that General Vanghaly, the Russian Minister at Peking, who lately passed across India from Calcutta to Bombay, was unable to accept Lord Mayo's invitation to visit Simla. The heat was so overpowering at Allahabad that he would not lose an hour in getting to sea. On this the Viceroy telegraphed instructions to show his Excellency every attention. The General was much pleased with the courtesy with which he met. He manifested a great interest, especially in the cotton culture of the Central Provinces, whence the Russians receive large supplies for their mills. He was impressed with the regularity and order of everything in the country, its peaceful state, and the apparent absence of soldiers.—Friend of India.

ITEMS FROM LAHORE.—We hear from Lahore (says the Delhi Gazette) that the question of selecting an outsider or a Punjabee for the third seat on the bench of the Chief Court has been decided against the outsider, but it had not transpired who was to be the new Judge. We learn also that a Deputy or first Assistant Secretary to Government is to be appointed on a salary of Rs. 1,200, and that Mr. Lepel Griffin is to be the first incumbent. A third item is that some action has at last been taken in the matter of the Northern "State" Railway, and that the first section to Rawul Pindies has actually been sanctioned, but nothing much can, after all, be done, as only £300,000 is available for this work out of this year's budget provisions.

CIVIL.—We learn from the Jubbulpore paper that ill-health has compelled Captain Warner, deputy commissioner of Dumoh, to apply for sick leave to Europe. Having only recently returned from furlough, he will forfeit his deputy commissionership by going on this sick leave.—It is confidently rumoured in well-informed circles at Murree and elsewhere in the Punjab, that Sir Richard Temple will succeed the present incumbent in the Government of that important province on the expiry of his period of service; so says the Delhi Gazette.—A Calcutta contemporary hears that Mr. A. Rivers Thomson is likely to succeed Mr. H. L. Dampier as secretary in the Revenue and General Departments to the Government of Bengal.—Mr. Robert James Leeds, C.S., has been appointed to officiate as Deputy Superintendent of the family estates of the Maharajah of Benares, during the absence, on leave, of Mr. William Duthoit, C.S.

THE POEMS OF CHAND.—The Bengal Asiatic Society have entrusted Mr. J. Beames, C.S., with the editing of the poems of Chand for the Bibliotheca Indica. There are three manuscripts in this country from which the work will be collated, the Benares, Agra and Baidlah copies. Mr. Beames will also embody the results of his collation of two manuscripts consulted in England. The Society is about to throw a fresh impetus into the Sanskrit part of the Bibliotheca, which has been in a rather languishing condition since the departure of Mr. Cowell and the death of Pundits Ram Narain Bidaratna and Premchand Bidiavagisa. The sanctioned expenditure is Rs. 6,000, and the amount spent has of late seldom exceeded Rs. 2,000. The new Government grant of Rs. 3,000 now renders the publication of such a number of works as will involve an annual expenditure of at least five or six thousand rupees obligatory; and a fresh staff of editors is to be employed on a new series of works. Six Sanskrit works are now announced for publication in the Bibliotheca.

SHERE ALI AND THE KHYBERES.—The chiefs of the Khyber evidently have not the fear of the Ameer before their eyes. A letter from Peshawur informs our Agra contemporary that the heavy battery presented to Shere Ali by the British Government had entered the Khyber Pass, but Shere Mard Khan had some difficulty in making arrangements with the Khyberes, and the battery was detained at the entrance of the Pass for some days. They were not allowed to proceed until black mail to the tune of Rs. 9,000 had been paid, and they would probably not have been allowed to go even then had not certain chiefs of the Khyber clan been warned by the Deputy-Commissioner of Peshawur that the guns were a gift from the British Government to the Ameer. A caravan that had travelled with the battery for protection was plundered.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—We regret to learn that there is no prospect of the completion of the Chord Line of the East Indian Railway at the end of the year, when the contract time expires. Government offered the contractors a large bonus if the line should be ready by this time, but it is not probable that trains will run through from Burrakur to Lukhee Serai for the next ten months. Then a distance of seventy miles and about three hours in time will be saved on the journey between Calcutta and all parts of Berar and Northern India above Patna. The contractors seem to have been more anxious to make a profit than to keep to their contract time. From the circumstance that much of the line entered as rock cutting has turned out to be earth, the profits of the contractors are estimated at £150,000. —Friend of India.

CAPTURE OF WAHABEES.—The Wahabees have fallen upon evil times. Weak as the detective branch of the police is in Bengal and India generally, they are securing the ringleaders one by one, and the police assist them greatly. Within a week Captain Birch, the Deputy Commissioner of Police in Calcutta, has arrested two Wahabee leaders in that city. Warrants, we are told, for their arrest had been issued by the Lieutenant-Governor. One of them is a very wealthy merchant, named Ameer Khan, of Colootollah, in Calcutta; and the name of the other is Hedaqut Khan, also a man of wealth. On being arrested both were removed from the city and sent to the goals, in which they are ordered to be detained. Bail was refused. These captures are considered very important, as there had been anxiety for some time for their apprehension.

RENAMING OF NATIVE PLACES.—The next absurdity in Punjabee nomenclature is the change of the name Sydnun Bowlie to "Lawrencepoor," another hybrid of most dubious taste. Next to the silly custom of baptising native converts by Biblical names, we know of no greater folly than that to which the Punjab Government is lending itself. In nine cases out of ten the native name is far more sonorous and expressive than any that official genius can invent, and the memory of our greatest administrators does not require to be perpetuated by the name of an out-of-the-way cantonment. Is Peshawur doomed to be one day known as Pollockpoor, or the grand Sikh city of Umritsur as Griffingunge? At the present rate of progress we may be told any morning that the official designation of the country of the Five Rivers will henceforth be Macleodland. —Friend of India.

MILITARY.—"It will be no news to you probably," says a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, "that the Jhansio cantonment is to be broken up, and the troops removed by the end of 1870, or in the early part of 1871. The civil station is also to be transferred to some other locality in the district, most likely Mow Raneepore, about thirty miles distant from here, on the Nowgong road."—Cholera, we learn from the Agra paper, has reappeared in the 40th N.I., at that station. There have been two or three cases. Those companies in which it has shown itself were promptly ordered into camp.—A telegram has been received in India announcing that the Secretary of State has sanctioned all the proposals of the Government of India with regard to the reform of the existing system of weights and measures.—We regret to learn that Lieutenant C. W. G. Perreau, of the 21st P.N.I., died on the 4th inst. at Meean Meer, very suddenly, of heart disease.—Assistant-Surgeon D. O'C. Ray, lately officiating in medical charge of the 17th Native Infantry, is stated to have been appointed Garrison Assistant Surgeon, Fort William.

THE "CHEDUBA."—There can be no doubt now as to the fate of the missing steamer Cheduba. The Englishman publishes the following extract from a letter written by Mr. Henry Morrell, of Morrell-gunge, who himself proceeded to the sea-face of the Sunderbuns to search for traces of the vessels missing since the cyclones:—"I made up my mind to go down and look myself. I went down the Baintmore river to the sea, and then crossed over to the chur at the mouth of the Baugrah river. I walked all along its sea-face and found pieces of ship's boats, cabin fittings, &c., &c. Subjoined is a list of what I saw:—An oar blade with Cheduba branded on it. A piece of wood, part of a doorway, with a brass plate with '2nd and 3rd officers' engraved on it. Pieces of a ship's boat painted white outside and chocolate inside. One was part of a life-boat with canvas floats fitted with cork. A jarool mast-piece with battens on each side, most likely belonging to the light-ship and being the mast on which the light was hoisted. It is forty-seven feet long. A harness cask painted white with iron hoops. From what I could make out there were portions of two wrecks mixed up together. I also found a teak plank, a portion of a steamer's bridge. I could not find any name painted on any part of the boats; they were smashed to pieces, and from the look of them I should fancy that it was impossible for any one to have been cast ashore alive. I examined, and walked along the sea shore from Tiger point to the Baugrah river, and did not see any signs of people having landed. This is all the information I can give."

Madras.

EXCHANGE ON MADRAS.—The rate of exchange in adjusting the accounts of regiments embarking for Europe or India has been fixed at 2s. 0½d. the rupee.—Madras Athenæum.

DEATH OF DR. MONTGOMERY.—We regret to announce the death of Dr. H. B. Montgomery, Secretary to the Sanitary Commissioner of Madras, and Professor of Hygiene in the Medical College. He died of diarrhoea on the 11th July after only a short illness. He entered the service in 1852, when about twenty-six years old.

THE GOVERNOR.—Lord Napier and the Chief Secretary left the Presidency on the evening of July 14, proceeding to Salem, Yercaud, Royacottah and Ossoor. From Ossoor his Lordship was to proceed about the end of the month on a short visit to Bangalore and Nundidroog, returning to Madras during the first week in August.

CHOLERA IN MADRAS.—Some cases of cholera have occurred in Pursawalkum and in a cart stand on the Poomaallee-road, a few of which have proved fatal. We are glad to learn that the Municipal Commissioners are endeavouring by precautionary measures to arrest the progress of the disease.

WEATHER.—We have had two or three very heavy showers, and the temperature is lower. Some cases of cholera have occurred in some of the suburbs of Madras, and the Government and Municipality are taking active steps to prevent the disease becoming epidemic. The city has been very healthy all the season up to this time. —Madras Times.

RAILWAYS.—We are glad to learn from the Mail that the Madras railway is to be opened to Gooty, to the public, on the 1st of August. Major Shaw Stewart, the Government Consulting Engineer, with Mr. Elwin the Agent and Manager, and Mr. Pinson, Acting Chief Engineer, have examined the whole of the extension from Tadpatry to Gooty, and passed it for traffic. The next section of the North West Line to be opened is from Gooty to Adoni, and we hear that this portion is already in an advanced state. It is asked when the Bombay line is to open from Sholapore to Goolburga. That section ought to have been finished by the end of last year.

SANSKRIT MSS.—The Royal Asiatic Society has thrown out the rather interested suggestion that the Sanskrit manuscripts which have for some time been rotting in the godowns of the Nungambakum College, Madras, should be sent home and added to the Sanskrit Library in the India Office. The Madras Government is hardly prepared to comply with this request. These manuscripts, which have sustained so much damage through the carelessness of former administrations, will soon be carefully put away in the new Public Library, and their names and contents be made known to the public by an elaborate Catalogue Raisonné. The Leyden collection lay for years in England unexamined and unnoticed; until in 1844, at the suggestion of Mr. Brown, they were sent back again to India, where a catalogue was made. These manuscripts constitute an important part of the collection which the Asiatic Society now wish to be sent home. Professor Pickford raises a valid objection to allowing these manuscripts to go out of the Presidency. Native gentlemen often publish editions of works which they have occasion to collate with the manuscripts in the library, and native scholars constantly refer to them on disputed points of law and religion. In such a case the claims of science must give place to the existing requirements of the people.

SUNSTROKE.—Mr. Thomas Arthur Zscherpel, an indexer in the Government office, fell a victim to sunstroke on July 11. The deceased went on business into the fort, and, while returning home walking about noon, he was struck down near one of the gates of the fort. He was picked up in an insensible state by a soldier on guard, and was conveyed to the General Hospital, where he received treatment until the evening, when he died.

Bombay.

KURRACHEE.—A Kurrachee paper states that Messrs. Leggett, Strong, and others have submitted applications for the post of public prosecutor at that place, rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Singleton Rochfort, barrister-at-law.

MR. RIVETT-CARNAC.—"We are glad to hear," says the Central India Times, "that on the joint recommendation of the Chief Commissioner and the Resident of Hyderabad, the Government have raised Mr. Harry Rivett-Carnac's salary to that of a first-class deputy commissioner, in recognition of the eminent services rendered by that officer as cotton commissioner."

A GOOD HIT FOR THE BRAHMIN.—The Brahmins of the city of Poona have been much delighted with the fall of rain, as it is attributed to the expedient of dipping their gods in the water up to the waist. Since Sunday last the gods it seems could bear no longer the state they were in, and consequently caused the rain to fall to obtain their release.—Poona Observer.

CHOLERA IN DAMAUN.—Cholera is prevailing fearfully in Damaun and causing awful destruction of life. The Governor, Mr. Silva Costa, an able and energetic person, is reported to be in personal attendance on the afflicted, with the medical staff. Dr. P. C. D'Souza, of Bombay, has been asked by his Excellency to render professional assistance to the afflicted, and otherwise report upon and suggest sanitary reforms.

THE NEW BANK OF BOMBAY.—The report of the New Bank of Bombay (Limited), which has been adopted, states that the profits for the half-year amounted to Rs. 3,22,460-8-7, being at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum. It was resolved that a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum should be declared, and that the surplus should be devoted to reduction of cost of premises, furniture, preliminary expenses, &c., and that Rs. 1,25,000 be transferred to the reserve fund, and the balance of Rs. 12,460-8-7 be carried forward to new account.

FRERE LAND COMPANY.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Frere Land Company (Limited) was held on the 14th July at the office of the company, when the resolutions for the winding up of the company and the appointing of liquidator, passed on the 26th June last, were confirmed. Mr. Ahmedbhoj Hubibbhoj proposed that the best thanks of the shareholders be given to Mr. Muncherjee Nowrojee Banajee, the secretary, for his able services in connection with the formation of the new company. This was carried, and the meeting broke up.

KURRACHEE SHIPPING.—The ship Malta, Captain G. Carrigill, which left London on the 24th March last, arrived in port on the 9th instant with a general cargo. The only passenger in her was Mrs. Carrigill. During the voyage it was found necessary to throw four cases of acid overboard. The ship William Lindsay, Captain Galloway, which sailed hence for London on Saturday, the 2nd instant, conveyed 933 chests of indigo—the largest quantity ever shipped at this port. The export duty, which the Custom House authorities levied on this article, amounted to upwards of ten thousand rupees.—Sind News, July 12.

JODHPORE.—His Highness the Maharajah of Jodhpore was lately attacked with cholera, at Tukht Bilund, one of his garden residences. The prayers of his subjects were not of sufficient avail to counteract the medicines administered, and Tukht Sing recovered. He returned to the fort at Jodhpore on the 5th instant, but was still weak and unable to attend to State affairs. Cholera has been very prevalent in Jodhpore; but, although the scourge has not entirely ceased, its violence has much abated, and any cases that now occur are of a mild type. Up to the 5th instant there had been no rain in Marwar, and the cultivators were sorely disappointed. No crops could be sown.—Times of India, July 20th.

MILITARY.—The Sind News of July 12 reports that five deaths from heat-apoplexy occurred at Hyderabad, amongst the detachment of Europeans of H.M.'s 82nd Regiment, during the previous fortnight.—We regret to learn from Aden that Assistant Surgeon Ffolliott, of the Bombay Medical Establishment, has died there. He left Bombay by the screw steamer Gunga on June 2, and was taken ashore at Aden in a hopeless state. We also hear that Captain Hawkins, the Cantonment Magistrate, came back from sick leave one mail, to return suffering from sunstroke by the next. The 82nd was wonderfully healthy, but there was some sickness among the artillery.

WEATHER.—A Correspondent writing from Surat, on July 10, to the Bombay Gazette, says:—"After a long close dry time of it, rain has at length fallen here in good quantity. Up till Tuesday we had had no rain, except some seven inches, and that did little good. The crops were not sown, and there was every prospect of a severe time among the natives. On Tuesday however and Wednesday there was rain nearly all day. On Thursday there was a rest again, with fine, cool weather, and to-day there is another heavy fall. A telegram from Ahmedabad however informs me that there had been no rain there up till that time, and from a letter from Rajpootana several days before that I had a doleful tale of a parched country, famine prices, and fears of a severe season for the people of that district. There has been rain all the way from Bombay to this place, and as far as Broach the country has had a plentiful supply."—During the past three or four days heavy and continuous rains have fallen throughout the whole of the country between Bombay and Sholapore. From Bombay to the foot of the ghauts the land is generally flooded, and the rain in the Deccan is most plentiful. At Poona the air is delightfully cool, and the downpour has been unusually heavy there.—Times of India, July 20.

COTTON IN THE SOUTHERN MAHARATTA COUNTRY.—For want of a railway to the coast, the Carwar cotton trade is now closed for the season. Notwithstanding all the great drawbacks with which Carwar has at present to contend, it has this year exported over 50,000 bales—no insignificant quantity for a port that, until the last season or two, was doing literally nothing. As much of this season's crops as can leave Carwar, till after the monsoon, has already left—the last of it being 3,878 bales in the Alice; 7,734 bales in the Mahableshwar; and 3,000 bales in the Scotia. No cotton now remains there. At Coompta also, only some 12,000 docras remain stored for the monsoon. The two places together have thus done an immense business this season, far more than they did last year, or indeed any previous year. Though the stock of cotton has been cleared out at the coast, a great deal yet remains in the country above the Ghauts. Careful inquiry and observation lead the best judges to the conclusion that "ten annas" (i.e. ten-sixteenths) yet await removal. It is too early to admit of any accurate estimate being formed as to the season's sowing but unless something at present unforeseen should occur, everything points to a very large area being taken up for cotton for 1869-70. The stocks of grain in the country are large, and we should not be surprised to find cotton cultivation of next season more extended than has ever yet been the case, more especially as there is now a strong demand from both Carwar and Coompta, instead of, as formerly, from the latter port only.—Times of India.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

Simla, June 28.—Read—Office memorandum from the Foreign Department, No. 213, dated June 5, regarding the application of the resolution of the Financial Department, No. 201, dated April 26, to the case of Mr. B. Burnham, a clerk on the establishment of the Foreign Secretariat, who is in receipt of a pension granted to him after he was discharged on a former occasion, on reduction, from the same office, where he was employed as a section writer :—

Resolution.—In accordance with the ruling of April 26, Mr. Burnham is entitled to both his pension and the salary of his present office, provided his aggregate receipts do not exceed the salary relinquished by him at the time of the reduction. But as Mr. Burnham, as a section writer, drew no fixed pay, the Governor-general in Council is pleased to direct that the amount of the pay relinquished by him at the time of the reduction be calculated on the average of his actual earnings for the six months preceding the date of his discharge. His Excellency in Council further resolves that the same principle be adopted in regard to the cases of all section writers, for the purposes of the resolution of April 26, No. 201.

ALLOWANCES.

Read the undermentioned letters :—

To the Accountant General, N.W. Provinces, dated Feb. 29, 1868, stating "that all extra allowances granted to medical officers for the medical charge of colleges and lunatic asylums, &c., should be forfeited by such officers when absent on leave, and be paid in full to the officer who actually performs the work."

From the Deputy Accountant General, N.W. Provinces, dated April 27 last, inquiring, with reference to the letter quoted above, "whether a medical officer on privilege leave may be permitted to draw his extra allowances in the event of their being available."

Resolution.—The above question is answered in the negative.

PENSION WITH SALARY.

Read—Resolution No. 3,078, passed in this department Oct. 24 last, extending the application to the cases of all pensioned servants of Government, civil and military, of the following decision of the Secretary of State :—"When an officer who has retired on a pension obtained not on medical certificate, but after a prescribed period of service, is subsequently employed in any public capacity, he shall be permitted to draw the pension in addition to the salary of the office to which he may be appointed; but in the event of the military officer resigning the service after he has been appointed to a civil office, he must at the same time vacate that office. He may, however, be re-appointed to the office, not as a matter of course, but only in the event of your considering it decidedly for the benefit of the public service."

Resolution.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to rule that whenever any good service pensioner is re-employed under the above order, the previous sanction of the Government of India must be obtained on a full report of the circumstances of the case.

RE-ARMING NATIVE CAVALRY.

No. 176.—With reference to G.O.C.C. dated May 3, 1864, page 84 of standing orders, of the following letter from the Govt. of India, military dept., No. 1,169, dated Feb. 25 last, to the Adt. gen., is published for information :—

"With reference to your letter No. 192C, dated Feb. 11 last, regarding the issue of new pattern carbines and pistols to native cavalry, I am directed to acquaint you, for the information of H.E. the C. in C., that the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to sanction their issue to all regiments armed with these weapons.

"2. The re-arming should, I am to observe, take place as early as may be practicable.

"3. The weapons will be issued free of cost to all who may give arms in exchange, and at half cost to all others.

"4. I am to request that you will move H.E. to cause it to be carefully explained to all the regiments, that on renewal the arms only will be issued at cost price."

2. The cost price of the arms are—

	Rs.	a.	p.
Carbines ... ..	15	12	0
Pistols ... ..	15	8	0

and where payment for them has to be made it will be by instalments of Rs. 2 per mensem, commencing from the issue of pay for the month in which the arms were received.

3. Commanding officers of native cavalry regiments will at once send indents to the Ordnance Office, Calcutta, for the new arms required to replace those in present use, and to complete their corps.

4. The bores of the new pistol and carbine are 65 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and a diameter of bullets the same as of the new Enfield pattern smooth-bore musket; the charges of powder are 1 and 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  drams, respectively.

5. Commanding officers indenting for these new arms should also include in their indents the quantity of ammunition to complete the authorised proportions, returning into store the ammunition now in possession belonging to their old arms which will no longer be required.

SALUTES—RAJAH OF JEYPORE.

No. 167.—In continuation of G.O. No. 224, of Sept. 16, 1867, the following extracts from the proceedings of the Foreign Department is, under instructions of the Government of India, Military Department, published for general information and guidance :—

Extract from the proceedings of the Government of India, in the Foreign Department (political), dated Simla, April 28 :—

Read a despatch from H.M.'s Secretary of State for India, dated Feb. 11 last, No. 18, sanctioning the addition of two guns to the salute of his Highness the Maharajah of Jeypore, as a personal distinction for the liberal measures adopted by his Highness in order to diminish the evil effects of the famine in Rajpootana.

HOME ORDERS—MUSKETRY AND AMMUNITION—STORES.

No. 170.—H.E. the C. in C. is pleased to direct that the provisions of clause 30 of Army Circulars, dated War-office, March 1 last, shall be followed in this country; all regiments, therefore, armed with breech-loaders are to return to the barrack department such of the stores enumerated therein as may be in their possession, the same being no longer required for instructional purposes.

SOLDIERS' EXHIBITION, AGRA.

Head Quarters, Simla, June 30.—H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. has been pleased to decide that a Soldiers' Exhibition, open to the whole army of India, shall be held at Agra during the visit of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh in January next.

2. Gratified by the success that has hitherto attended the local Exhibitions held at Lahore and Lucknow, the Government of India is desirous of enlarging the scope of the forthcoming Exhibition, which will take the place of the usual Annual Exhibition for 1870, and of affording to the whole army in India an opportunity of giving a practical exhibition of the results of the regimental industry which in many cases is now known only through report.

3. Every regiment and battery of artillery in the three Presidencies, whether British or Native, will accordingly be permitted to send to Agra articles aggregating a certain weight, which will be fixed and notified hereafter.

4. There will be no restriction as to the nature of the articles which will be received, whether the product of the regimental work-shops or of private industry, the only condition being that everything exhibited must be bona fide the work of officers or of soldiers and their families, actually serving at the time of the Exhibition in a military capacity in India.

5. The Government of India will arrange for the free carriage of all articles intended for exhibition, and such articles as may remain undisposed of will also be conveyed back to the corps free of cost. But in order to diminish, as far as possible, the charge under the latter head, as well as to prevent disappointment on the part of the exhibitors, the Government of India desires to impress upon commanding officers the necessity of seeing that moderate prices are placed on articles sent up, and that the fantastic value occasionally put on laboriously-made trifles is avoided.

6. It is not intended that everything exhibited shall necessarily be offered for sale, but such articles as the owner wishes to retain should be marked "not for sale;" and as the expense of returning them will be incurred, the proportion of these goods must be limited to 10 per cent. of the whole. This does not apply to works of art and industry sent up by officers, from whom also trophies of war or of the chase, and any articles of an ornamental nature, will be received on loan.

7. The Government of India have further been pleased to decide that a few non-commissioned officers and men, selected from among the exhibitors, shall be allowed to proceed to Agra. Each regiment of cavalry and battery of artillery will be permitted to send one man, and each regiment of infantry two men.

8. The Gov. gen. in Council will be ready to grant Rs. 10,000 to be distributed in prizes; and Lord Mayo is prepared to offer two prizes of the value of Rs. 400 and Rs. 200 respectively, for the two best oil or water-colour paintings painted in Hindostan, open to the officers and men entitled to exhibit.

9. Private contributions either for special prizes or in aid of the General Prize Fund are invited from the public.

10. A Central Committee, to be assisted by a Secretary, will forthwith be appointed at Agra under the orders of H.E. the C. in C. in India, and their Excellencies the C. in C. in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay are further requested to arrange for the formation of regimental committees, who will place themselves in communication with the central committee with regard to the matter of detail. All correspondence connected with the Exhibition should be addressed and subscriptions remitted to "The Secretary, Central Committee, Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition, Agra."

11. Further particulars regarding prizes and the classification, packing, and transmission of goods will be published and circulated hereafter for general information; but the Government of India desire that it may be notified that prizes will be given in all branches of industry, including—

1. Carpenters', coopers', cabinet-makers' and joiners' work of all descriptions.

2. Hardware and metal work in every variety.

3. Leather, rope, cane, and mat work.

4. Drawings and designs in oil, water-colours, ink and pencil, photography, lithography, and printers' work.

5. Models and designs of inventions and improvements.

6. Millinery, needlework of every description by soldiers, their wives and daughters.

PUBLIC WORKS IN ORISSA.

July 5.—No. 229.—In consequence of the separation of the ordinary irrigation (agricultural) works from the general branch of the Public Works Department, Bengal, the following revised arrangements are made, with effect from April 1 last, for the conduct of the ordinary public works in Orissa, which will consist in future of four divisions—Northern Cuttack, Central Cuttack, Tributary Mehals, and Southern Cuttack—under a superintending engineer, and will, as heretofore, be designated the Cuttack Circle.

The Northern Cuttack division will comprise the stations of Balasore and Bhuddruck, and the Cuttack trunk road from Rajghaut to the left bank of the Byturnee River, and the road from Ballighai to Jellasore.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.

The following letter has been addressed to the Secretary of State for India in Council by the Chairman of the Sind Railway Company in reference to the proposed Indus Valley Railway to connect the upper and lower portions of that company's line:—

Sind Railway Office, Gresham House, Old Broad-street,

The Under-Secretary of State for India.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Melvill's letter of the 1st inst., stating, in reply to my letter of the 23rd ult. (No. 3,284), that the question of constructing a railway through the Indus Valley, to connect the Sind and Punjab lines, is still under consideration. The subject being under consideration, the present appears a fitting opportunity for laying before the Secretary of State for India in Council the views of the directors regarding it, and for reminding him of the claims of the Sind Railway Company for the concession for its construction. The Indus Valley Railway forms a necessary and integral part of the trunk line between Kurrachee and Delhi, of which both extremities are in the hands of this company. The intervening portion of the route, moreover (from Kotree to Mooltan), has also been placed in the hands of this company, who at present conduct the traffic by means of the Indus Steam Flotilla, and the very necessity for completing the railway has in fact arisen out of the inadequacy of the flotilla to maintain an efficient connection between the upper and lower portions of the company's line. This company, who, it is to be observed, originally proposed the line, have already, with the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, and at considerable expense, taken surveys of the country through which it would pass; and they have the various plans and sections in their possession. They have in their service a chief engineer of great skill and experience, who enjoys the confidence alike of the directors and of the Government, and who might well be entrusted with the execution of the undertaking. Mr. Harrison, the engineer in question, is moreover supported by an efficient staff, the members of which have acquired considerable experience, some of them having taken part in the survey of the Indus Valley line itself, and whose services will be lost to the company after the completion of the Delhi Railway, unless it should in the meanwhile be decided to proceed with the construction of the Indus Valley line. I would here draw attention to an extract from a despatch from the Government of the Punjab to the Government of India, under date Oct. 13, 1868, in which it is stated that the Indus Valley line "is absolutely necessary as constituting what has been appropriately termed the 'missing link,' the fitting in of which alone can secure for the Sind and Punjab lines, already completed, the prospect of becoming ultimately remunerative, and enable them to fulfil efficiently the object for which they were formed; the navigation of the river Indus having been proved to be wholly inadequate to the object in view." The despatch concludes by observing that "if the concession of a guarantee is sanctioned, it should be given to the Sind Railway Company, and the construction be entrusted to one chief engineer, subordinate either to the Government of Bombay or to the government of this province as the supreme Government may be pleased to decide, but hereafter, to save the unnecessary expense of a double agency, the entire system of the Sind Railway Company from Kurrachee to Delhi, 1,129 miles long, should be managed by an agency with its head-quarters at Lahore." The arrangement thus recommended by the Punjab Government is in strict harmony with the policy adopted in regard to the proposal to amalgamate the company's several undertakings into one; and I may state that the strong encouragement which the Government has extended to that proposal had led the shareholders to believe that they would receive authority to construct the Indus Valley Railway to connect the upper and lower portions of their line so soon as the Secretary of State should be of opinion that the proper time for the commencement of active operations had arrived. The board are aware that a proposal has been made for the construction of some of the future extensions of the Indian railway system by the direct agency of Government, but they trust that the case of the Indus Valley Railway will not be considered one to which such an arrangement could with propriety be applied. The directors submit that under any circumstances the employment of any agency, other than the company's own, to connect the sections of the company's line already constructed, would injuriously affect the interests of the shareholders, and would otherwise entail considerable public inconvenience, but the inexpediency of such a course becomes still more apparent when regarded in connection with the proposal to merge the several undertakings in one, as all the arguments which have been so strongly urged both by Government authorities and by the directors in favour of an amalgamation are equally conclusive against the propriety of establishing an entirely separate agency in the very centre of the company's system. There is reason to believe, however, that a scheme for the irrigation of Scinde is being considered by the Government in connection with the construction of the lower portion of the Indus Valley Railway. If this be the case there may be, prima facie, a reason for delaying a decision as to the lower half of the undertaking, between Kotree and Sukkur, or for adopting, in the case of that part of the line, a principle different from that which would otherwise commend itself. But it does not appear to the board that the consideration of that question affects in any degree the upper half of the line between Mooltan and Roree, or that it need involve any delay in proceeding with that portion of the undertaking. If the upper half of the line were constructed the worst part of the navigation of the Indus would be avoided, as well as the necessity of making the passage of the rapids at Sukkur;

and the efficiency of the company's flotilla would thus be more than doubled; while the time when the Sind and Punjab lines will be sufficiently remunerative to relieve the State of further payments of guaranteed interest would be immeasurably hastened.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, (Signed) W. P. ANDREW, Chairman.

Miscellaneous.

ERRATUM.—In our account of the reception given at the India office to the new Companions of the Star of India the name of "Captain E. Thompson" was in one place inadvertently printed as "Major G. Thompson."

THE NEW COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF FOR BOMBAY.—Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Augustus A. Spencer, K.C.B., the newly appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Bombay, accompanied by Captain R. S. Liddell, 10th Hussars, aide-de-camp, and Captain S. V. Stephenson, Scots Fusilier Guards, Military Secretary, have left England for Bombay, to relieve Lieutenant-General Lord Napier, G.C.B., G.C.S.I. Lieutenant A. G. Spencer, 64th Regiment, has been appointed aide-de-camp to the new Commander-in-Chief in Bombay.

PISTOLS FOR THE SERVICE.—The introduction of Adams's breech-loading revolver into the service having been decided upon, the Deane and Adams' pistols, already in use, are now being converted by Mr. Adams; a number have been already finished. The converted pistol differs from the new in having five chambers instead of six. A central fire cartridge has been designed for it by Colonel Boxer, R.A., superintendent of the Royal Laboratory Department, Royal Arsenal.

MEDICAL SERVICE.—Inspector-General W. M. Muir, M.D., C.B., from India, will shortly assume the duties of his office at Netley, relieving Inspector-General Dr. Beatson, C.B., who will proceed for service in that country as Senior Inspector-General. Inspector-General Dr. Gordon, C.B., will, on the completion of three years' service in his present rank, in March next, retire on half pay, and will be succeeded by Inspector-General Dr. S. Currie, C.B., at present on the half-pay list.

STATE LOANS FOR RAILWAYS.—It is stated that the India Government propose to make all their further issues of railway capital on the basis of 4 per cent. interest, and that in the case of those railway companies which have already received powers to issue more capital at 5 per cent., there is to be attached to such issues no participation in future profits beyond the guaranteed rate. Should this statement be confirmed it must, by further establishing the peculiarly favourable character of the conditions enjoyed by the existing 5 per cent. guaranteed stocks, contribute to give these securities a still stronger and more exceptional position in the market.

DEATH OF AN INDIAN CHAPLAIN.—The death has been announced of the Rev. William James Jay, M.A., a gentleman whose name is familiarly known in the Presidency of Bengal. He was educated at St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, where he took his B.A. degree in 1847, and was ordained to the curacy of Goldhanger, near Maldon. Shortly afterwards he obtained from the East India Company the appointment of assistant chaplain, and was stationed at Laudour, in the diocese of Calcutta. Having served with much zeal in India, he returned to England, and was for a short time minister of the East India Chapel, at Poplar. In 1866 he was presented by the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh to the rectory of Elveden, near Thetford, and held it until his death.

DELHI AND LONDON BANK.—An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Delhi and London Bank (Limited) is convened for the 23rd August, for the following purposes, viz.:—For the purpose of submitting to the shareholders then present in person or by proxy, resolutions to the effect that the bank shall have power at any time, or from time to time by a special resolution or special resolutions, to reduce its capital, by reducing the nominal amount of its shares or otherwise, but so that the nominal amount of each share shall not be reduced below £25; and also to regulate the number of directors, so that there shall never be less than four nor more than twelve, and the quorum not less than three, unless otherwise determined at a general meeting of the shareholders; and also to regulate the time for holding the general meetings of the bank, and to authorise all such proceedings as may be necessary to give effect to such resolutions.

A NEW TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—It is stated that a prospectus of an "East India, Asiatic, and American Telegraph Company" will be issued shortly. This company will lay submarine cables along the coast of China and in the Chinese Seas south to Singapore, and via the North Pacific Ocean to North America, thereby completing the telegraphic circuit of the globe. The promoters are understood already to have obtained the assent of the Chinese authorities at Peking, and the promise of co-operation in aiding and protecting the work. The navy department of the United States Government have given instructions to their Asiatic squadron "to aid, assist, and protect" the undertaking, and similar directions are said to have been issued by the British Admiralty. The French and the Russian Governments will be solicited likewise to co-operate. The enterprise, it is added, "will be British, European, Asiatic, and American in character, and international in interest and protection."

CARRIAGE OF ARMS OVERLAND.—It having been decided that the arms of troops passing through Egypt on their way to or from India shall be in future carried across the Isthmus packed in cases, a General Order was promulgated on Friday by his Royal Highness the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, directing the following arrangements to be carried out, viz.:—"Regiments will embark with their arms in possession of the men, and the rifles will be placed in the racks prepared for them on board the troop ships. Previously to the arrival of a corps at Alexandria or Suez, as the case may be, at such fitting time as may be agreed upon by the officer commanding the troops and the captain of the ship, the arms will be packed in the chests provided for the purpose on board the troop ships, and conveyed across Egypt. These chests have been prepared expressly to enable the arms to be packed quickly, without the use of screws or nails. As soon as possible after the re-embarkation of the regiment at Suez or Alexandria, the arms will be unpacked and given to the men, and replaced in the racks for the rest of the voyage."

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—On August 10 the draft of the 1st battalion of the 14th Regiment from the depot stationed in Chatham embarked at Gravesend on board the Alumbagh for conveyance to India, where it will join the service company of the battalion in Bengal. Captain Mackinnon, of the 1st Battalion of the 3rd Regiment, who is proceeding to join his corps in Bengal, is in command of the draft, which consists of 110 non-commissioned officers and men, and two soldiers' wives, of the 1st battalion of the 14th Regiment; 30 men of all ranks, 10 soldiers' wives, and 10 children of the 62nd Regiment; 70 non-commissioned officers and privates of the 96th Regiment; four armourer sergeants and wives and two soldiers' wives of the 26th Cameronians, from Dundee; the whole numbering 214 non-commissioned officers and men, 20 soldiers' wives, and 20 children. The undermentioned officers embarked with the troops:—Captain Walter C. Mackinnon (wife and child), 1st battalion of the 3rd Buffs; Captain Louis P. Gould, 96th Regiment; Captain John George Skene, 77th Regiment; Lieutenant John William Buckle, Royal Artillery; Ensign William Adams Ridgeway, 1st battalion of the 14th Regiment; Ensign Robert Hayne, 62nd Regiment; Ensign Charles R. Macgregor, 96 Regiment; and Staff Assistant-Surgeon George Ryan, in medical charge.

WILL OF THE LATE LORD BROUGHTON.—The will of the Right Hon. Sir John Cam Hobhouse, Baron Broughton, G.C.B., P.C., F.R.S. of Broughton Gifford, Wiltshire, and 42, Berkeley-square, was proved in London on the 29th ult., and the personality sworn under £250,000. The executors are the Right Hon. Wm. Nathaniel Massey, one of the members of the Supreme Council of India; Mr. Henry Danby Seymour, M.P.; and Mr. William Phelps, solicitor, London. To Mr. Massey he leaves £500; Mr. Seymour and Mr. Phelps, each £200; and to Mr. Phelps a further legacy of £3,000. The will bears date April 11, 1865; a codicil July 28 following; and a second codicil Jan. 28, 1867. His lordship died, June 3 last, aged 83, without male issue; and the Barony becomes extinct. He is succeeded in the Baronetcy by his nephew, now Sir Charles Parry Hobhouse, Bart. His lordship had held many Ministerial appointments. He has, by his will, directed that his diaries, manuscripts, correspondence, and other papers, both official and private, may be delivered to the trustees of the British Museum, to be kept without examination until the year 1900, when, if desirable, they may be published; and, by a codicil, he desires that such as relate to the business of the State, and more particularly to the Sovereign under whose orders they were written, shall not be made public without the sanction of the reigning Sovereign. The testator has made a liberal provision for his two daughters—Charlotte, wife of Colonel Dudley Wilmot Carleton (Coldstream Guards), and Sophia, wife of the Hon. John Strange Jocelyn, second son of the present Earl of Roden. His books and plate and the residue of his property are to be held as heirlooms by the person beneficially entitled to the real estate.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—Between the performance of "Maritana" and the grand display of fireworks Saturday was a memorable day at the Crystal Palace. Miss Edith Wynne's first appearance on the operatic stage furnished her admirers with a new illustration of her undoubted vocal powers. As the heroine of Wallace's best known opera she did ample justice alike to the musical and the dramatic requirements of her part. Like the music of the piece, her rendering of it grew on the listener, until in the third act there was little left to desire. Nervous at the outset, and therefore somewhat spasmodic, she improved as she went on, and her sweet expressive singing imparted a fresh charm to the tender tunefulness of "Scenes that are brightest." Very pretty too was the duet she sang with Lazarillo, alias Miss Annie Goodall, a contralto singer of great promise, with a sweet powerful voice that filled the large theatre as if it were a small room. We hope to hear more of Miss Goodall ere long. It will not be want of musical or histrionic talent that will keep her in the background. Mr. Perren as Don Caesar sang tolerably and acted carelessly. The other parts were decently rendered; the choruses were well given; and the orchestra was worthy of the conductor. As for the fireworks, they were better than ever, and that is saying a good deal. The Triumphal Arch, copied from the one at the top of the Champs Elysées, delighted all beholders, especially those who saw its close resemblance to the original. The magnesium balloons went up their highest; the rockets burst with unwonted brilliance in very quick succession; and the fountains never rose more weirdly to the antics of the Roman candles and the light of many-coloured fires. We are glad to see that the display which gave so much delight last Saturday is to be repeated on an early occasion.

QUINTESENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER AND CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raging fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

USEFUL SYMPATHY.—Let all who sympathise with the afflicted whom by their kind attentions bestowed in a mild and gentle manner they seek to soothe, and, if possible, to save, remember that Professor Holloway has enabled their good deeds to prevail beyond their hopeful words. With his remedies many have restored vigour to the failing memory, cheerfulness to the exhausted mind, and health to the wan cheek. Every visitor of the sick may without fear safely and effectively use Holloway's world-renowned Ointment and Pills. Appropriate instructions envelop every pot and box. Under Holloway's benign treatment condolence is not long desirable, for convalescence comes apace, and soon gives place to joyous health.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, July 27; Agra, July 22; Calcutta, July 23; Madras, July 21.

A project long entertained by the Indian Government is at length announced for early execution. The first of the annual fairs to be held at Peshawar will be opened this year on the 1st November, on a fine open plain about two miles from cantonments and a mile from the city, to the right of the Murdan-road, and between that and the Grand Trunk-road. The fair will last on to the 10th December, and will enjoy whatever advantages the countenance of Shere Ali Khan may assure it. The needful arrangements are already in hand. The place is being drained and divided into streets and squares. Programmes in five languages are being printed off in large numbers. Our Indian merchants are invited to come thither with cloths of all kinds, indigo, drugs, spices, pottery, knives, copper wares, sugar, pushmeena goods, sheep, and cattle. From the Central Asian side will be brought raw silk, skins, horses, mules, sheep, Persian and Turkoman rugs and carpets, chogas, puttoo, "posteens," shot silk, dried and fresh fruits, "churrus," tobacco from Candahar, &c. The fair will probably give a new impulse to the tea trade between India and Turkistan, the value of which in 1867 was reckoned at £180,000. Its success, of which there is very little doubt, will do much to strengthen the new relations between India and Afghanistan. It is a pity that the Lahore and Peshawar Railway could not have been carried through in time for the opening of so important a fair.

THE shareholders of the Elphinstone Land Company have agreed by a very large majority to regard the Government offer as tending to their advantage, and have resolved to call another meeting as soon as possible, in order to pass such detailed resolutions as may give legal force to their conclusions. A counter resolution postponing action for the present, found no more than twenty supporters.

WE are glad to hear from an Indian contemporary that the money-order system is really about to be established between England and India. Its introduction will probably date from the beginning of next year. Such a concession has long been called for, and it seems impossible that the system should not work well. It is said that orders on this country for £10 will cost the sender Rs. 10½, while orders on India for Rs. 100 will be granted here on payment of £10. 2s. As Rs. 100 in India represents a market value of little more than £9. 13s. 6d., the difference of commission between the two countries will tell rather against the English than the Indian drawer.

MR. ROBERTSON, our Consul at Canton, declares in an official note that the opium now grown in China will some day, in all likelihood, enter into serious rivalry with the Indian drug. In quality, we are told, the Chinese opium already equals that of Malwa, but is weaker in flavour. In Canton they use a mixture of seven parts Malwa and three of Chinese opium. At present the want of labour checks the cultivation of the Chinese poppy, but an increased demand would soon make up for that defect. Even now the industry yields a profit of two to three hundred per cent.; and the introduction of Indian seed would ensure yet larger outturns. In the southern provinces of China the climatic conditions are much the same as in India, while "labour is cheaper and more plentiful." The imperial decree against growing opium remains a dead letter. If Indian opium is to stand its ground against that of Persia and China, it must be sold to the Chinese at reduced rates. The prospect, we must say, is not agreeable. If we grow more opium and lower the excise, Exeter-hall will shriek with horror at the wicked deed. If nothing is done, one rich source of revenue will gradually dry up.

CALCUTTA has followed close on the heels of Bombay in one particular assault on time-honoured usage. The first civil marriage of a Hindu widow has lately been performed on the banks of the Hooghly, and the religious ceremony was afterwards carried out. In Bombay the leading Brahmins talk of excommunicating all who took any part in the marriage of a Hindu widow with the eccentric Mr. Moroba Cannoba.

It is said that the King of Burmah has followed up his late concession by appointing a noble of the highest rank to act jointly with our Political Agent as a Court for trying suits between Burman and British subjects.

IN England we have lately had some bitter practical comments on the absurdity of leaving balled ammunition always accessible to soldiers in barracks. The last mail from India brings home two tragical stories pointing the same moral. A sergeant in the 55th Foot deliberately shot himself with one of the cartridges served out to his company. A drunken soldier of the 26th Cameronians, having missed a pair of boots from his cot, rushed out and shot apparently the first person he came across. It was "only a native," but it might have been the commandant of the fort or somebody even more important. When will the authorities take the rational precaution of keeping the ammunition as much as possible out of harm's way? A wilful suicide will of course find some way of ending his existence, and a furious drunkard will cause trouble enough with no other weapon than his own hands, feet, and teeth. But why place needless temptation in the way of either, or of the man impelled to slay another by a sudden thirst for revenge? There is absolutely no excuse for leaving balled cartridges in the hands of any soldier off duty. The present practice is known to be wasteful, is certainly conducive to bloodshed, and in others ways can hardly be considered safe. Wherever the ammunition is kept, and of course it must be kept handy for the men using it, the charge of it should be consigned to one sergeant or corporal in each company, and its distribution should take place only just before parade time. It is rather too good a joke that many lives should be imperilled in order that pouches may "sit well" on soldiers' backs.

LAST Friday an interesting discussion on Central Asia took place in the Geographical Section of the British Association. Sir Bartle Frere showed how much the world was once indebted to the civilising energies of a region now for the most wild and thinly peopled. A Russian geographer, M. de Chikatcheff, taking up the theme, maintained that from that same region no conquerors could ever again invade and overrun India. If a Turkoman horde now tried to pour through the mountain passes it would simply be scattered like dust before the solid array of England. If the invader approached in a more civilised form, the very requirements of a modern army would turn the project to naught. In fact, no army fit to meet that of British India could be brought successfully on Indian ground, any more than Lord Napier could have taken Magdala as he did, had his enemy been armed with all the appliances of modern warfare. Such an opinion, coming from a Russian mouth, may have some weight with those who have hitherto rejected the equally sound arguments of Sir Vincent Eyre.

The Pall Mall Gazette, in a recent "Note," seems to ascribe the suppression of Suttee to Sir Charles Napier, who was Governor of Sindh for a few years after its conquest. The victor of Meeanee may have helped in his energetic way to put down Suttee as well as suicide in that particular province, but it sounds somewhat strange to hear him lauded for an achievement usually fathered on Lord William Bentinck. In pointing out the mistake, the Spectator treats us to a statement not less surprising. It ascribes the practice of widow-burning to the terror which every Hindoo feels of being poisoned by the wife of his bosom, who also cooks his dinners, and, but for the fear of being burnt before her time, would be tempted to cook him one dinner too much. Our imaginative contemporary has surpassed himself on this occasion. We shall some day be told that Hindoos burn their dead lest the spirits of the departed should reappear in the flesh to their surviving friends.

THE failure of the Albert Life Assurance Company, to which we made brief reference last week, has proved a very godsend to the London press in these early days of the annual "silly season." All this week it has served as a standing dish to all the daily journals, and largely have they helped themselves to the inviting food. The subject has been handled from every conceivable point of view, and if there were safety in a multitude of counsellors we ought by this time to have got a pretty clear insight into the causes of the disaster and the proper safeguards against its recurrence. We are still some way however from either consummation. On the former point much light will probably be thrown by the meeting that comes off on Thursday; but for the present all that is known seems to be that the company has from time to time taken over at a ruinous loss the unsound business of many other companies, whose chief managers have been paid extravagant sums for their goodwill. On the other point opinions differ widely between two main divisions of combatants. The Times on the one hand may be said to represent the views of those who deprecate State interference with insurance companies as an encroachment on private liberties. On the other side are the journals that agree with the Pall Mall Gazette in demanding some kind of protection for the great body of investors whose insurances furnish the companies with the bulk of their trading capital. What shape that protection ought to assume is a separate question, on which the advocates of a common principle differ among themselves, from those who would bring the insurance system under the sole management of the State itself to those who merely call for periodical returns of the business done by the assurance companies. As a question of principle, we are not sure that the demand for State control over these companies rests on grounds essentially different from those which might warrant a like interference with many other branches of commercial enterprise. Ought the State for instance to protect the public entirely against mismanagement on the part of joint-stock banks and other trading concerns of the like character? Railway, gas, and water companies fall of course into a separate category, as virtual monopolies on which the State is bound to keep a tight hand. In practice however the State does already interfere with all kinds of private industries; and if Mr. Tidd Pratt can legally overlook the doings of benefit societies in the interests of the poor, it is possible that a like control might with equal advantage be wielded over the accounts of assurance companies. In America an official superintendent has long ruled with pretty summary powers over the insurance business of the country, and if English policy-holders were to combine for a similar purpose, there is no doubt that a like supervision would soon be adopted here also. But are they ripe for such a movement?

THE fate of the Albert Life Assurance Company seems to point a similar moral to the fate of Overend and Gurney, the Agra and Masterman's Bank, and other such institutions which have come to ruin by trying too much or taking over business already unsound. In the thirty years of its existence the company seem to have absorbed some twenty-two other concerns. In so doing it has evidently enlarged its business at the expense of its old securities. Strange tales are abroad of the handsome "compensation" granted to the managers of various absorbed companies. It is now asserted that wise people have for years been shaking their heads over the prospects of a company which could boast a yearly income of £357,594, and a constituency of 22,000 policyholders. Be that as it may, it appears that to meet future claims of more than £8,000,000, the whole of the company's invested capital amounted to only £600,000, or less than a third of what ought to be available against ordinary needs. How much the policyholders will save out of the wreck must depend on the predominant character of the lives insured. If these prove to be mostly young and healthy, ranging, let us say from twenty to forty years, the ultimate loss may be no greater than we said last week. But till after the meeting of Thursday next it is idle to speculate on such questions. For the sake of so many Anglo-Indians concerned in the fate of a company which had branches in Bombay and Calcutta, we must hope that the damage done will not prove so great as many fear it will.

By some unaccountable oversight on the part of somebody unknown, the death of an officer of the Indian army was inserted in our columns last week instead of that of his daughter. Lieut.-colonel A. J. Sinclair is still alive and well, we believe; but his second daughter, Edith Grace, died of whooping-cough at Edinburgh on August 12.

TROOPS HOMEWARD BOUND.—It may be interesting to our military readers to have some information as to the arrangements determined upon for the departure of troops from India during the season 1869-70. We are enabled to state that the following may be relied upon as the programme:—90th Foot, from Kamptec, will leave Bombay by transport on 1st October; 1-23rd Foot, from Bombay, on the 12th ditto; A, B, and C batteries 14th Brigade, from the Madras Presidency, and headquarters, D, E, and G batteries ditto, R.A., from Bombay on the 16th November; F-14th Brigade R.A., from Nussereabad on the 27th November; 2nd Dragoon Guards from Mhow on the 1st January; 93rd Highlanders from Jhansie on the 27th February; and the 102nd Foot from Lucknow on the 28th February. Invalids and time-expired men will be sent on each of these occasions. Scarcely any of the regiments going home number half their proper strength. The 90th Foot are 498 strong; 23rd Foot, 478; 2nd Dragoon Guards, 368; 82nd Foot, 497; 93rd Highlanders, 500; and 102nd Foot 568.—Indian Volunteer Service Gazette.

SATAN REBUKING SIN.

AT length the Sultan of Turkey has let out the secret of his wrath—if it be wrath, and not a mere burst of politic stageplay—against his feudatory, the Khediv of Egypt. In the scolding letter sent to this latter personage by the Grand Vizier, we find how greatly the Sultan has taken to heart his Viceroy's recent doings, from his ill-timed visit to the King of Greece down to his extravagant order for arms and ironclad men-of-war. After the Sultan had granted his Highness so many ungrudging favours, after he had forgiven and forgotten the Viceroy's suspicious attitude during the Cretan rebellion, it was exceedingly improper of the Khediv to start off from Alexandria on a visit, first of all to the King of Greece, and then to the other European sovereigns, without letting his liege lord know, or deigning to answer his subsequent inquiries. And he not only did this, but he actually invited those sovereigns to attend the opening of the Suez Canal, forgetting that "the inviting of an independent sovereign to a foreign country should be done by the independent sovereign of the country." And to crown the impropriety, his Highness seems to have dispensed with the agency of the Sultan's proper representatives at the several Courts, and to have kept them at an unbecoming distance; as if, with a few exceptions, Egypt was governed on different terms from "the other Provinces." This ignoring of the paramount Power "can no longer be tolerated," and his aim therein is obvious, if unsuccessful. At home too "the untold and crushing outlay on orders for ironclads, firearms, and the like, subjects the inhabitants of that part of the empire to burdens far beyond their means, and inspires them with discontent against the Government." His Majesty, out of his deep concern for the welfare of his Egyptian subjects, will not allow of extravagance so inexcusable, so pernicious, and so contrary to the principles of "true progress." Ironclads in short are a luxury, and true progress consists in accomplishing the reforms that lead to civilisation, the parent of luxury; not in seeking after the luxuries first. His Highness therefore will do well to know his place in the Ottoman system, and to promote his subjects' well-being, on pain of the Sultan's asserting against his vassal the powers reserved to himself in former Firmans. The Grand Vizier waits for a "clear and categorical reply," which, it seems, has since been given, if it be true that the Viceroy's answer has been found "quite satisfactory" at Constantinople. It is amusing to hear Satan rebuking Sin in respect of luxury and laying burdens on the people. We should like to know something of the spells employed by the Viceroy to allay his master's resentment. How much of the money borrowed for ironclads has been devoted to propitiatory uses instead? Was the Sultan in want of another loan, or have the groans of the overburdened fellahs really roused to action a heart already heaving with a sense of wounded dignity?

THE INDIAN LAND LAWS AND THE "PALL MALL GAZETTE."

THE Pall Mall Gazette has recently published two articles, in which, while discussing the Irish land question, the writer refers, by way of showing how a similar question has been treated in India, to certain Acts of the Indian Legislature passed in the years 1793, 1859, and 1868, for the contemplated protection and welfare of the cultivators of the soil. The leading features of the difficulties of the Irish land question are concisely stated. In Ireland, the writer says, two conflicting views are struggling for the mastery, and one of these views has incontestably the law in its favour. The Irish landlord exercises at times the legal right of evicting his tenants, in order that he may benefit by increased rent. In so doing he acts consistently with the law, and irrespective of the cause which produced the increase. The Irish peasant, resisting what he considers an act of oppression, looks upon his landlord as his natural enemy, and when eviction takes place he shoots him. This, the legal right on the one hand, and the determination to resist it on the other, forms, as the writer says, the real difficulty of the case, and Indian legislation does not show us the way out of it. We quite agree with him, and do not propose to follow the Pall Mall Gazette in its further comprehensive treatment of this subject. We feel constrained however to take exception to some of its remarks on the condition of the ancient agricultural laws of India at the time when the British Government thought proper to try its 'prentice hand upon them. The Pall Mall Gazette says, "In India the law was, so to speak, in a fluid state, being composed, in so far as it could be said to exist at all, of vague customs and usages, differing from time to time, and village to village." And further: "In India order had to be evolved out of chaos." These observations forcibly illustrate the fearless self-sufficiency with which not only English writers, but Anglo-Indian legislators of the present day, treat all questions having reference to the ancient laws, prescriptive rights, and institutions of a now conquered and subject race. On these matters Englishmen are wont to cherish erroneous impressions and foster fond conceits. So far from the affairs of the agricultural classes of India being at the time of our advent regulated by mere "vague custom and usage," history teaches us that they were subject to precise, humane, and well-considered laws. Under the ancient Hindoo system, the different Governments were careful not to exact more than one-sixth—at most one fourth—of the gross produce of the land. Under the Mohammedan system the Government claimed to be entitled to half the gross produce. The "Hidaya" says:—"This tax ought not to exceed what the land can afford to pay. Our jurists have declared that the utmost the land can afford to pay is one-half the produce, and more than this cannot be taken. If the land cannot afford to pay one-half, the Prince must take less—for to take less is lawful, but to take more than one-half is unlawful." The perusal of a law such as this scarcely conveys the idea of chaos. The native Governments that preceded ours were ever prompt, moreover, to assist their landholders and peasantry with advances in cash, seed, corn, and cattle, whenever calamities had befallen them from drought, murrain, and other visitations. In truth the laws of both Hindoo and Mahomedan Governments were exact and well-defined, and by no means, at least on this subject, in a "fluid" state, till we, in profound ignorance of the customs, habits, and established practice of the people, made it so by mischievous meddling, touting for grievances, and ill-timed legislation.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I scarcely like to trouble you with any further remarks upon the proposal of the Home Government to arm the native troops in India with the Martini-Henry rifle, but the subject is in many ways so very important, that I am induced to ask for space in your columns for a second letter on the subject.

It is not only important in a military point of view, and as a question of policy, but equally so as one of finance and economy. The cost of our army in India is enormous, and in relation to our revenue most serious, if not alarming. Having no longer any powerful independent States in the heart of our kingdom, or closely adjoining it, and with the development of railways—affording as they do new and great facilities for massing a force on any point where required—we might reasonably have expected a considerable reduction in our European army in India. But on the contrary, our European force is more than double what it was before the Mutiny, and the native army more numerous than in the days of Tippoo and the Peishwah, when we were surrounded by independent native States with large and well-disciplined armies of horse, foot, and artillery. What on earth can 65,000 European troops have to do now in India, except, as I said before, to overawe our Sepoy army?

You conclude your observations in yesterday's Mail upon my letter of the 3rd, by asking the question, "If there were no native army, would our English garrisons number a man the less?" But this, I think, is rather beyond the question, seeing that we must have a native soldiery of some sort to carry on certain duties from which it is desirable to spare the European soldier. But I do say, and say it advisedly, that with an amply sufficient native army for all such work, armed even with the Enfield rifle, 35,000 European soldiers armed with the breech-loader would be sufficient for every purpose for which they are now there.

You observe that, "in view of so many late campaigns, it is only reasonable to infer that we may yet have further use for the sepoy's services," and, if so, neither for our sakes nor his own, can you see the wisdom of arming him with worse weapons than his white-faced allies. But surely, Sir, for all such wars as we have had since the Punjab was conquered the Enfield rifle would prove all sufficient against such contemptible foes? And if so, surely there is both wisdom and prudence in giving the European soldier, who is there mainly to protect us against this native army, a weapon superior so far only that from its rapidity of fire a small number of white soldiers would be a match for a larger number of natives?

When, as you truly say, "our native army must always be regarded as a source of possible danger," surely it is desirable to reduce that danger to the smallest point compatible with the efficiency of that army in acting against the "common foe" of which you speak? And no one will tell me that, armed with the Enfield rifle—a weapon capable of carrying a bullet with deadly precision up to eight hundred yards—the native troops would not be efficiently armed against any force with whom they are likely to come into contact. To arm them with the Martini-Henry rifle is, as I have said before, only to arm them against yourself, and to encourage them to try the issue some day. But apart from this, I consider the breech-loader ill-adapted to the native soldier. Even with the young British soldier there will be difficulty in preventing him from firing too fast and throwing away his ammunition. And from my experience of natives in action and under fire, I fear they would be beyond control in this way.

I have thus hastily endeavoured to give you some reasons why the white soldier in India should be armed with one kind of weapon and the "brown soldier" put off with a somewhat inferior one; and I confess I see neither injustice nor want of "sound economy" in such an arrangement, situated as we are in India.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

J. H. MACDONALD, Lieutenant-Colonel.

REGIMENTS OFFICERED BY NATIVE GENTLEMEN.

The Madras Times deems it very desirable that we should attach the great native noblemen and landowners to our rule as much as possible, and that we should offer their sons facilities for education and a more extended acquaintance with the civilised world than they are likely to obtain on their fathers' estates. To effect these objects no plan appears more simple than to induce the highest class of natives to place their sons in regiments of the Indian Army. It is, of course, out of the question to expect a young native nobleman to enter one of our sepoy regiments as it is at present constituted. He would be compelled to enlist as a private sepoy, and if fortunate, at the end of thirty or forty years, he would be promoted to the rank of native officer on a salary of forty rupees a-month—he possibly being all the time heir to some £100,000 per annum! He would further be expected to associate with other native officers who commenced life in the humblest capacities, and he would be expected to endure other indignities, which it is unnecessary to recount, the idea on the whole being so preposterous. We must have different regiments if we desire to have the highest class of natives in the country for their officers. As an experiment, which might lead to very valuable results, we think the Government of India might organise a brigade of choice troops for general service in the three Presidencies. The brigade might consist of three cavalry regiments, three infantry regiments, and possibly (but we are doubtful on this point) of two batteries of horse artillery, all natives, with the exception of three European officers to each regiment. The soldiers for these regiments should be picked men from various parts of India. They should wear a handsome uniform, and enjoy better pay and allowances than the ordinary native regiments. In these corps we would propose to give commissions as officers to the sons and near relatives of native noblemen and zemindars, in precisely the same manner as obtains in the British army, with the exception that we should make the preliminary examination for a commission a very simple one. Each corps to be fully officered upon the model of a British regiment, but we would give to each a European commandant, a European adjutant, a European quartermaster, and a European surgeon. Such regiments, with their attractive adjuncts of fine bands, fine uniforms, and all the pomp and circumstance of glorious war, might, we imagine, induce many native noblemen of high birth and position in the country to serve her Majesty as gallant soldiers instead of as (in too many instances) at present, frittering away their lives in debauchery and petty intrigues on their private estates. No doubt there are objections to the plan. In the first place, it may be objected that we would organise a costly and well-disciplined brigade of some four or five thousand men to fight—perhaps against us. Secondly, it may be objected that it would be unwise to encourage native noblemen and men of influence from all parts of India, to meet together possibly to hatch conspiracies against us. Thirdly, that the experiment would be an excessively costly one. Fourthly, that the Mussulman and Hindoo officers would not agree with each other. With respect to the first objection, it may be answered that 5,000 men scattered in the three presidencies could not do us much harm, even if they took it into their heads to fight against us and against their own interests. To the second objection it may be said, that conspiracies are easier hatched anywhere than under strict military discipline. To the third, that the experiment would not be very costly if we got rid of some of our present sepoy regiments to make way for better corps. To the fourth, that there is no place in which "caste" prejudices are so likely to be forgotten as in a military society. Were such a force as we now hint at organised, and two or three native Princes to obtain commissions for their sons in it, there is probably not a Mussulman or Hindoo noble in India who would not incline to follow their example, and a very judicious stimulant would be given to the at present, generally speaking, idle and purposeless Indian aristocracy. It is difficult to find fault with many native noblemen and landed proprietors, that their lives are aimless, and that they live in unbecoming seclusion. Our "raj" is more to blame for such apathy than they are, for it offers them but few inducements to activity. Political life is virtually closed to them, and the army, that best outlet for their pent-up energies, is an army which they cannot enter.

THE SUPERSESSION OF BRITISH BY INDIAN COLONELS.

The Times of India holds that when the matter is fairly looked into, we think it will be found that the fact of a few British colonels being overpassed by Indian veterans many years their seniors in service does not afford substantial ground for Parliamentary agitation. The former have, in nearly all cases, enjoyed more rapid promotion through the lower ranks, while the Indian officer has had to face risks to life which are in time of peace almost as serious as the chances of war in the temperate zone. It is true the Queen's officer has occasionally to serve in climates even worse than that of India; but that is seldom more than a very few years at a time, and at other times the lines of the British officer fall in pleasant places. Military rank as such is always entitled to due deference, and not the less so if it has been gained by meritorious service "i' the imminent and deadly breach;" but this principle obtains in both cases. The British colonel who after wearing his honours for some years in the front rank of precedence finds step before him some venerable brigadier grey or gaunt after forty years' service in this torrid clime, must be willing to take all the circumstances into account, and make the most of the early precedence which he has already enjoyed. There is no fear but that the British colonels' case will be forcibly stated on the occasion of Colonel North's motion being introduced, but there is some danger lest the Indian officers may not find an influential and effective spokesman. We say "Indian officers," for if new regulations be introduced to correct the supposed grievance of a score or so of British colonels those changes may affect the whole course of promotion in H.M.'s Indian forces.

TEA ON THE NEILGHERRIES.

The Madras Athenæum allows that the tea plantations of the Neilgherries have certainly gone through the ordeal of misfortune. How they have emerged therefrom is what we wish to draw attention to, as the dawn of a brighter day seems about to break on them. We are not in a position to speak positively as to the exact yield of the several estates, but we believe that, in putting it down as varying from 200 to 300 lbs. of made tea per acre from plants in their sixth year we are considerably within the bounds of the actual results of the pickings. The estimation in which the produce of the plantations is held both in this country and at home is attested by the increasing demand there is for it; and the last reports on Indian teas from the home market are of a most encouraging character, showing that they are making as steady and as sure progress in the estimation of the dealers there as they are amongst the consumers in this country. So long as these teas maintain their high price, it can scarcely be expected that they will to any considerable extent displace the China produce, but with an increase in the production, and a consequent fall in price, it may be fairly anticipated that the foreign article will retire. At present the only effect the Neilgherry teas has had on the China has been to cause an increased demand for the inferior qualities, as by the addition of a small proportion of the former the mixture has passed current for a tea of superior quality. We have pictured the disadvantages under which the Neilgherry tea planter has laboured, we will now point to a few of the advantages he enjoys. In the first place, labour is cheap, and in almost all parts plentiful, and the market from which more may be obtained is neither distant nor difficult of access. The people are tractable and on their own account hard working, and with management and kindness may be made hard working on behalf of their masters. Many of the difficulties that beset those who first entered the field are removed, and the luxuriant growth of the plant is a fact established beyond doubt. The burghers have shown themselves apt to learn the manufacture of tea, and in its manipulation and management they leave but little room for improvement. If the cultivation of tea is slower than coffee, and a return is longer in coming in, it appears more sure. Up till now the plant has shown itself particularly hardy, and not liable to those attacks which have so much injured coffee. The crop is sure. Let the rain fall early or late, light or heavy, it flushes the tea planters' trees all the same, and he gathers his crop of tender leaves as they come, with little anxiety on the score of weather. And then, look at the planter's own position on these hills. Moderate work in a splendid climate, lovely scenery, and agreeable society within easy reach. What more agreeable or healthy occupation could a man wish for? But we have said enough. We conclude with the same question we commenced with:—Will tea planting on the Neilgherry Hills pay? Let Government remove some of the disabilities that not only impede the settler in his attempt to acquire land, but press heavily on him after he has obtained it; and let those who have an inclination to try the experiment make themselves thoroughly acquainted with the present condition of the Neilgherry tea plantations, and we shall not have to wait long for a reply.

THE JAGGANATH FESTIVAL.—The Jagganath Festival at Serampore closed on the 19th July after a pitiable fashion. The two great cars still stand on the roadside, half in the ditch, because the people will not pull them back to their places. In spite of the numbers hired to pull and to applaud, the cars were moved on the first occasion only half the usual distance, and there they lie in the mud, with the idols on them and flags flying. As usual, the Brahmins applied to the authorities to order the people to pull, but of course in vain. The common peasantry were heard to reply to the miserable creatures who from the car urged them to pull, "It is all very well, but come and give a hand yourselves." The crowd, of which a rough census was taken, was never more than 75,000 at the highest, and rarely exceeded 35,000—a third of what it used to be. For one man there were fifty women and children. The police, under Mr. Rochefort, the energetic district superintendent, kept order well. There were no accidents, and only three cases of drunkenness. The spectacle presented by the cars and idols on the Trunk-road, outside of Serampore, may be regarded as typical of the state of idolatry at least in and near the great cities—tottering, but still defiant, with no enthusiasm and little faith.—Friend of India.

STATION TALK.

CAWNPORE, July 18.—A flight of locusts passed over this place towards the West on the 5th, and on the 8th instant a much greater swarm passed over towards the South. Gram is selling here at eleven, twelve and thirteen seers per rupee, in consequence of which horse-flesh is to be had for a mere song. I heard that a man of the wing 19th Hussars here attempted suicide, his adjutant having found fault with him on guard-mounting parade. It is believed he is a clean, good soldier, but people in every station in life are liable to mistakes, and this foolish man is no exception. The bullet entered the wall above his head. On the report being heard, he was immediately taken up and sent to the hospital. Nobody could suppose a Scotchman to be such a fool! There is a lazy lot of Post-office peons here. I fancy they smoke at each place they go to with letters. I know for fact that parcels through the railway company arrive one or two days before the advice or invoice dated the same day, and made over to the railway and post-office respectively. I enclose a letter from a Calcutta firm, showing what they think of the Post-office of these provinces.

CHUKRATA, July 16.—You will be sorry to hear that Major C. M. S. N. Gwynne, of H.M.'s 62nd Regiment, met with a serious accident yesterday when travelling between this and Mussoorie. Major Gwynne and Captain Fraser were on their way back to Mussoorie from Simla; when at a point about two miles to the east of Pokri bungalow the road gave way, and Major Gwynne and his horse were precipitated down a steep cliff; half way down the Major was caught in a bush or tree, but his horse went down to the bottom. Captain Fraser, with the assistance of some natives, got him up again and sent to this station for medical aid, which was promptly sent to the sufferer, who was found to have fractured his thigh bone, and is otherwise much contused and hurt. He is not, however, considered in any great danger, and is now under the care of Dr. Farmer, of the 55th Regiment, in a room in the married quarters at Kylana belonging to the Sappers. The roads in these parts are in a very dangerous state, having been constructed by the natives of the place under contract with the Forest Department, who know just as much about road making as they do about their more legitimate duties of forest conservancy, and the consequence is that large sums of public money are paid away yearly, and the roads are now in a worse state than they were twenty years ago. Travellers and tax-payers are not only put to great inconvenience, but their lives are in jeopardy. Such a state of things should be made public, and those in charge held responsible.

GHAZEEPORE, July 13.—Clouds of locusts have been passing over this station since Saturday, the 10th instant. I heard that a part of the swarms settled down in Zumanah and in some other places of this district; but that they have done very little or no damage to the people, as there is no corn just now in the ground. I believe they were totally destroyed by the heavy rains of yesterday. Thieves are gradually becoming troublesome in this station. The other night in Gora Bazaar a petty merchant was deprived of the whole of his property, which is estimated at the value of Rs. 400. Will this reflect credit on the police? On my way to Ghazee-pore from Morar I witnessed something wrong among the servants of the Government bullock trains. It does not lie with the post-office employees in charge, but with their subordinates, who are commonly called guards. They often take passengers coming a little way out from Gwalior, and make them alight a mile or two before they reach the Agra post-office. I hope the officer in charge of the department will try to put a stop to such nefarious practices. A medical committee was held here this morning. I will let you know the result in my next. Some gentlemen of this station have formed another committee, the object of which is to render relief to the poor in this time of scarcity. The operation is going on satisfactorily, and a large number of the helpless and needy are fed every day at the opium factory.

MOOLTAN, July 15.—There is little to chronicle from this place. The station, I am glad to say, is healthy, a consolation which I hope is appreciated by us. I hear complaints against that most recent and insane practice of starting the trains for Lahore at 3 P.M., when exposure to the sun must be severely felt by passengers en route to the station, and having the cool prospect of being cooped up in a hot train must really be beyond endurance. For the sake of humanity I think an alteration to a more reasonable hour should be made, otherwise the probability is that the employees of the Punjab Railway will suffer in like manner as their brethren of the East Indian Railway, among whom, I am given to understand, many deaths from heat apoplexy have taken place; indeed, the wonder is that deaths from the above cause have not already been reported among them. The immunity which this station has hitherto enjoyed from that scourge of the East, cholera, was broken into some little while back by a sporadic case in the ranks of the 109th Regiment; the patient however recovered. No other cases occurred, and as it was this single case caused a little sensation among the military. It is said that the man indulged somewhat freely into melons and other kindred fruits, which perhaps will account for this solitary case making its appearance. I believe sites for cholera camps have been or are about to be taken, but that they will ever become occupied is a consummation devoutly not to be wished. This dodging away from the terrible disease is, I fancy, but little saving of life, for the necessary exposure to the sun and to wet weather, having to occupy damp places and wetted tents, must add to the death rate, not considering that in some constitutions it sows the seeds of lasting disease, a very fruitful source from which a well-filled invaliding roll is kept up.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CHANGE OF PLACE.—The Mofussilite newspaper will in future be published at Umballah, whither the press has been removed from Delhi.—Pioneer.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. David, the pilot, who was accidentally shot in the chest by Captain Vonburger, is still in a precarious state, and up to the present time the ball has not been extracted.—Rangoon Gazette.

ALLAHABAD.—Allahabad is to have a "Cathedral," if there can be such a thing without a bishop. The designs of Mr. Emerson, of Bombay, have been accepted, and it is said that this architect will carry out his own plans.—Friend of India.

MONETARY.—The United Bank of India has declared an ad interim dividend for the half-year ending 30th June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. The Mussorie Savings Bank (Limited) has declared a dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum.

THE WEATHER.—The rains at Bhundara, Balaghat, and Chunda have been much heavier than at Nagpore; but they have, as yet, been exceedingly light at Wurdah and Oomrawuttee. The total rainfall here up to to-day has been eleven inches nearly.—Central India Times, July 25.

ADMINISTRATIVE.—We hear that Mr. Noble Taylor returns to India from England on the commencement of the cold weather, and resumes his place in the Supreme Council, retiring for good in the ensuing spring. Mr. Ellis, who at present officiates in Council for Mr. Taylor, will take six months' leave to England on that gentleman's arrival in India, returning about the expiration of Mr. Taylor's term of service.

MAULED BY A TIGER.—We regret to hear that Mr. Malcolm Low, Commissioner of the Nerbudda division of the Central Provinces, has been severely mauled by a tiger. Our Nagpore contemporary gives no particulars beyond that the beast sprang on Mr. Low and seized him by the right shoulder, inflicting several severe wounds. Fortunately, Mr. Low had the presence of mind to draw his hunting knife, and plunging it into his antagonist, ripped it completely open, and thus saved his own life.

CATTLE PLAGUE.—Captain Heyadut Ally, A.D.C. to Sir William Mansfield, has written a letter to the Cantonment Magistrate of Dinapore, expressing his conviction that the so-called cattle disease raging in many districts of Lower Bengal is simply the working of poison administered to the cattle by persons on the outlook for their skins. He gives details of the practices of these professional cattle poisoners, and suggests means whereby the nefarious trade may be put a stop to, and its extent discovered.

THE WAHABEE PLOTTERS.—"We hear," says the Englishman, "that shortly after the arrest of Ameer Khan and Asmutdad Khan for complicity in the Wahabee conspiracy, an application was made to the police authorities to set them at large on a cash deposit of Rs. 50,000 and bail to the amount of Rs. 200,000. As they had been removed beyond the jurisdiction, the application could not be entertained. These arrests have caused quite a sensation amongst the Mahomedan community."

A SUICIDE IN THE 55TH REGIMENT.—The Lucknow Times records a case of suicide in H.M.'s 55th Regiment at Chukrata. On Sunday, the 11th, a colour sergeant of the regiment was seen taking out some rounds of ammunition, and on being asked what he was going to do, replied he was going to give it to some of the men. He went to a place somewhat lower down, and having loaded his rifle, took off his stocking, tied it to the trigger, and then to his foot, and placing the rifle to his head, deliberately blew out his brains; the bullet, travelling in the direction of another man, was very nearly hitting him also, but fortunately he escaped. The cause of this sad deed is not yet known.

BREEDING OF HORSES.—We (Times of India) hear that a committee is to be appointed, consisting of an officer from Bengal, one from Bombay and one from Madras, for the purpose of reporting on the breeding establishments throughout India. Bengal sends a well-known Light Cavalry officer, Major Frere; Bombay makes an equally good choice in Lieut.-Colonel Thornhill; and Madras sends Captain Napier Campbell, of the Royal Horse Artillery. As the object of the committee is to find out the best description of horse for Native Cavalry, and to regulate the breeding of such animals, it is thought a Light Cavalry officer, of whom Madras has many, ought to have been selected in place of Captain Campbell.

LORD MAYO AT SIMLA.—As it has often been said of late that Lord Mayo was disappointed with Simla and not at all disposed to return to it, assertions which the disclosures made about the sanitary state of the greatest Indian "sanitarium" tended to bear out, it is worth noting a fact mentioned by a Simla paper, which says:—"It looks very like a probability that Lord Mayo's present intention is to revisit Simla next year, when he has determined upon having a very necessary addition made to Government-house here. A spacious apartment is to be built, wherein he can hold his levees, durbars, councils, dinners, concerts, and all public assemblages. This room is to be ready by the time the Viceroy comes up in spring."

GAOLS IN THE NORTH-WEST.—Sir Walter Morgan's minute on the insufficiency of accommodation for European prisoners in the gaols of the North-West has borne fruit. After a thorough investigation, Sir William Muir has declared his satisfaction with the arrangement in the central gaol at Allahabad for short-term European prisoners, which will be still more perfect when the artificial ventilation has been completed. For European prisoners under trial an additional number of rooms with punkas and proper convenience is needed, and arrangements for female prisoners are also required. Long-term European prisoners are at present sent to Hazareebaugh, but Dr. Clarke's suggestion regarding the erection of a small prison at Raneekhet or Chukrata is worthy of consideration. The statements of the European who had been detained in the Mirzapore Gaol, which led to this investigation, appear to have been exaggerated; but this is hardly to be regretted since the whole question of prison accommodation for Europeans has been opened up with such favourable results.

ANTIQUITIES.—Mr. Baden Powell, the curator of the Lahore Museum, is of opinion that the remarkable archaeological remains lately discovered in the Akra mound at Rokri on the Indus, are not, as was at first surmised, Buddhist relics. They consist of some small figures rudely executed in baked clay, the figures bearing the high black skin "calpac" worn in Herat at the present day. Some few are grotesque figures of apes, some relics of ornamented pottery, and two carved stones complete the series. The other sculptures from the same ruins have been distinguished by the objectionable and meaningless epithet Græco-Buddhist. During the past year several valuable Buddhist sculptures have been added to the Lahore Museum from the Yusufzye, in which the figure of Buddha frequently occurs, often as engaged in teaching his disciples. Prince Frederick of Schleswig Holstein has carried off the earliest sculpture of the series. It represents the immaculate conception of Buddha, a beautifully carved figure of the mother being represented with a cloud hovering above, on which is delineated the white elephant of the myth.

CALCUTTA DEFENCES.—It is satisfactory to notice that Government are taking measures to calm the fears of our good citizens who felt alarm some time ago as to the possibility of a Yankee frigate rushing up the Hooghly some day and taking Fort William, or of a Russian invasion by way of Port Canning. During the past week some of Sir William Armstrong's "pocket pistols" have arrived at the fort. Each one is drawn by about sixteen pairs of bullocks, not hackery wallahs, but heavy powerful commissariat animals. The guns have severely tested the tackle at the dockyard; and some of the jetties have not proved equal to the support of the ponderous weapons. We understand that four of them are intended for the new battery at Diamond Harbour, four for the Mutlah, and four for Rangoon. In due course twelve more guns will be sent out; and it is to be hoped the people of Lower Bengal will feel a little more secure, and pay the income-tax with a good grace.—Indian Daily News.

A EUROPEAN DACOIT.—Rather a startling case of dacoity came on for hearing on the 19th July in the Court of Mr. F. W. J. Rees, joint magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs. The principal prisoner concerned is a European, said to be the manager of an estate belonging also to another European, who owns one of the clearings, or abads, in the Soonderbuns, and the offence was committed on the 4th June, on the Joymungul river, in the Busseerhaut sub-division of the 24-Pergunnahs. A boat laden with a large quantity of rice and other property, valued at Rs. 3,000, was plundered by a large gang of robbers, of whom forty-four are in custody, including the European. Most of these people are Sikhs, and their European leader goes among them by the name of Pootee Ghazee. A large portion of the plunder, valued at Rs. 2,500, has been recovered by Inspector McDowell, of the Watgunge section, in a boat on the river Hooghly, off the Government Dockyard. The Bengalee naib employed under the manager, Pootee Ghazee, has made a full confession. Should the case against the European be committed to the High Court it will prove most interesting.

ATTEMPTED RAID IN HUZARA.—We (Pioneer) are enabled now to give full particulars of the last attempted raid in Huzara. On the 10th of July some partisans of the deposed Khan of Agrore, of whom the least insignificant were Kudrat, Shah of Pharari, Atta Mahomed Khan Hussunzye, and Jarcof Khan Akazyee, did their best to burn two hamlets in Agrore, but the attempt was abortive. They had at first tried to enter Agrore by the route taken last year by the assailants of the Oghee Thannah; but our worst enemies of that period, the villagers of Shahtool and some of the chowkedar villagers, turned out and prevented their passing. The raiders then made a detour, and descended by another path to a hamlet called Godherce, and set some huts on fire. The inhabitants, however, of the adjacent village, Jascote, assembled in force, promptly extinguished the flames at Godherce and drove off the assailants, wounding a couple of them. The latter then dispersed, and have been no more heard of. No movement whatever of police was requisite, the villagers of the district having taken the restoration of order into their own hands with a promptitude and energy which perhaps might not have been shown in Hertfordshire.

TRACTION ENGINES.—A scheme has recently been strongly pressed upon the Punjab Government for employing Thompson's (of Edinburgh) traction engines, with india-rubber wheel tires, on the better class of ordinary Indian roads. Sir Donald McLeod is understood to view the question as one which deserves to, and can only, be settled by experiment. Accordingly, we believe that the Post-office Department will actually, before long, make trial of the working of one of these engines, either on the road between Loodiana and Ferozepore, or on that between Ferozepore and Lahore. The experiment will be made on behalf of the Government bullock train, and its cost defrayed from the profits of that department. We hear that opinion is much divided among experts as to the adaptability of Thompson's engines to Indian roads; but where the success of the experiment is so desirable, and at the same time fairly probable, it is much to the credit of the postal authorities that they have so promptly resolved to bring the question to a conclusive test.—Pioneer.

CIVIL.—Mr. R. N. Cust, whom the Pioneer considers one of the ablest men who ever entered the Civil Service, has just resigned it.—It is stated that Mr. Thomas Jones has been appointed Inspector-General of Printing-offices in Bengal, on a salary of 1,000 rising to 1,500 rupees.—We hear that Captain Fox, of the Bengal Staff Corps, has been appointed a Deputy Conservator of Forests in these provinces.—Central India Times.—Mr. George Campbell has applied to have his leave extended to a period not exceeding two years, and to be allowed to reckon the entire period as furlough under the new rules.—Our Central India contemporary states that Major George Warner, Deputy Commissioner of Dumoh, has, from failing health, and at the earnest request of his medical adviser, been obliged to apply for two years' sick leave to Europe, thereby forfeiting his appointment in the Central Provinces Commission; but a hope is expressed that in consideration of Major Warner's ten years' continuous good service under this administration, which in itself served perhaps to precipitate the ill health from which he now suffers, the Chief Commissioner will see fit to move the Government of India to relax in his favour the rule which deprives him of his appointment.

WRECKS OF 1867.—Among the vessels lost in the cyclone that swept over the Bay of Bengal in 1867 were the steamer Thunder and the ship Morayshire. Search was professed to be made for these and other missing vessels among the Soonderbuns, but no trace of them was discovered, and till last week it was taken for granted that both had gone down at sea. But a party of fishermen being driven for shelter into an out of the way creek some four miles inland, found there the hull of a large ship, and reported the circumstance. Persons sent to verify the statement returned with the name Morayshire distinctly copied from the hull, and reported that, having made search further inland, they found a large steamer with masts and funnels still standing, answering in description to the ill-fated Thunder. Steps have been taken to place the question beyond doubt, as the steamer had 16½ lakhs (£165,000) on board, which is doubtless yet in her bullion hold. Painful speculations are of course called up as to the fate of her crew and passengers. What that fate was may never be discovered; certainly, they could not have lived long, even if they survived the cyclone, as the place is malarious in the extreme, and infested with tigers. The wrecks lie some two miles inland on Tiger Island, one of the group to the east of Saugor Island. If these tidings are confirmed, what a testimony to the utter loneliness of these places, which are but a few miles east of the Hooghly mouth. But why were these out of the way creeks not examined years ago? This is a question for the Bankshall authorities at Calcutta to answer.—Times of India.

MILITARY.—We regret to hear of the sudden death, at Beawr, of Captain Knyvett, formerly of the Agra police.—We regret to observe that the Sergeant-Major of Captain Manderson's Battery, the A-22, has died of the injuries he received by his mule falling over a cliff with him at Jutogh. He was a fine young soldier, and is much regretted by all ranks in the battery.—A private of the 79th Highlanders, quartered at Delhi, was killed by a fall from the balcony of a double-storied barracks in the fort. The cause of the fatal leap is not known; the man may have thrown himself over while walking in his sleep, or he may have precipitated himself over with a view to commit suicide.—The Stud Committee have for some time been sitting in Simla. Their report, it is expected, will be a very interesting paper, and will probably elicit from Lord Mayo an able practical minute on the supply of the armies of India with remounts, and generally on the improvement of the breed in India. The Committee's report is now being printed.—The uniform of the Native Infantry is to be subjected to another change. The clothing due in 1870-71 will be issued in the form of Zouave tunics with slashed cuffs and pyjamas. This seems an improvement, and will make the sepoy rather less of a scarecrow than he is at present. The uniform of the native soldier is picturesque and commodious in proportion to its looseness. He is never, under any circumstances, at home in trousers.—We learn that Lieutenant-Colonel J. E. Fraser, Bengal Staff Corps, who has just returned from twenty months' leave to Europe on medical certificate, has been appointed Assistant Adjutant General of the Allahabad division, and ordered by telegram to join his appointment.—The Jubbulpore Chronicle reports the appearance of cholera in the 2nd Battalion 12th Regiment at that station. Three fatal cases are said to have occurred on the 20th.—We observe that it is the wife of Captain Hopkins, of Saugor, who has instituted a suit for a divorce, and for the custody of her two children, in the High Court at Allahabad.

MAGISTERIAL.—The following officers are vested with the powers of a subordinate magistrate in Bengal, viz.:—Mr. J. E. B. Jeffrey, assistant magistrate and collector, Moorshedabad, Mr. E. A. Bradbury, assistant magistrate and collector, Moorshedabad.

Digitized by Google

will, we suppose, be but one opinion in Bombay as to the fitness of the new incumbent, whose impartiality, firmness, and professional qualifications mark him out as the right man for the responsible appointment of chief magistrate of Bombay.

EARTHQUAKE.—A slight shock of an earthquake was felt at Nassick on the 4th July, at about 11.45 P.M. It lasted, as reported by Mr. J. Macfarlane, Collector, for about ten minutes and the wave appeared to be travelling from east to west. I did not myself feel the shock, but am told that persons in the upper stories of houses felt the house move and heard a noise as of persons running across the room above them. The shock was also experienced at Chandore, at about midnight, but I have no details from these.

COURAGEOUS CONDUCT.—We understand that on Tuesday of last week five natives were saved from drowning by a soldier of H.M.'s 23rd Regiment stationed at Colaba. The men belonged to a boat which was swamped at some distance from the shore. Cooper, the man who saved them, was in the water two hours and a-half, bringing them one after another ashore at the peril of his own life. He was formerly a sailor; he belongs to the band. Lance Corporal Andrews also saved the life of a man.—Bombay Guardian July 24.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS.—A few criminal statistics in reference to the second largest city (speaking as to population) in the British Empire may not be without interest. We gather them from the Chief Magistrate's report for the year ending on the 31st March last. It appears that 25,993 persons were brought before the police magistrates in Bombay during that year. Of these 197 were committed to the High Court, 14,080 were convicted, 4,080 were acquitted, and the charges against 7,624 withdrawn. Of the number committed to the High Court 133 were convicted and 64 acquitted. Compared with the previous year, in which 17,620 persons were brought up, the increase is very large indeed, but it is considered that this is probably in a great measure owing to the large number of persons who came back to Bombay with the return of the Abyssinian Expedition. The offences, however, do not appear generally to be of the graver kinds. A very marked improvement is noted in the proportion of convictions by the magistrates. From 58 per cent. of convictions in the year 1867-68 the proportion has risen to 77 per cent.; and the proportion of convictions in cases brought up by the executive police reached 87 per cent., against 62 last year.

CARWAR.—We pointed out the other day the immense advantages that the development of the port of Carwar and a railway to the coast would confer upon the Southern Mahratta country, leaving its cotton trade out of the question. Besides cotton, the Southern Mahratta country produces grain—more grain than it can at present get a market for. Tons upon tons of this produce might be sold in Poona or Bombay, if it could only be conveyed to these ever-craving markets at a price it will bear. This has been impossible hitherto, so Poona and Bombay have been the losers equally with the Dharwar districts. As confirming our views on this point, we quote the following from a private letter received the other day by a gentleman in Bombay:—"And now one word about that extraordinary petition. The Bombay people might as well think to petition Calcutta out of existence as to stop the Carwar Railway. But railway or not, the trade must and will go by Carwar. All the natives in the districts are strongly in favour of the route, and they can tell you an excellent reason why. Their return carts can, and do, bring up a very large quantity of piece-goods and copper; moreover, a cart to Poona costs them 36 rupees, and one to Carwar only 12 rupees or 15 rupees, and on the return trip it can be got for 10 rupees. And, were a railway constructed, I believe an immense amount of grain would find its way to Bombay. As a rule it is very cheap here. Only last December you could buy as much jowaree for one rupee as two men could carry. There is no mistake about these districts being the garden of the Bombay Presidency."—Times of India.

PRIZE READINGS AT POONA.—The competition for prizes given by his Excellency Lord Napier of Magdala, for the best selected and best delivered readings on military subjects, took place in the Soldiers' Institute, in presence of his lordship, on Friday evening, the 16th inst. The competitors, twelve in number, read before a committee composed of the undermentioned officers:—Brigadier General Pratt, C.B., president; Colonel Addison, C.B., 2nd Queen's Regiment; Colonel Kirby, Adjutant General, members. There was also a sub-committee of non-commissioned officers, consisting of quartermaster-sergeants of the Royal Engineers, 2nd Queen's Regiment, 8th King's, and a colour-sergeant of the 59th Regiment. The prizes were open to the non-commissioned officers and men of the Poona Division of the army; and the following are the corps to which the competitors belong:—Royal Engineers, 1 man; 2nd Queen's, 1 man; 8th King's, 8 men; and 59th Regiment, 2 men. The readings commenced at four o'clock P.M. The time to each competitor being limited to fifteen minutes, each person read in turn, according to the number he drew by lottery. Number 12 having completed his subject, the committees retired to separate rooms to consider their decision; and, after a short space of time, a member of the sub-committee informed the committee of the conclusion to which they had come, and it being exactly the same as their own, it was laid before his Excellency. The competitors were then assembled and informed by his Excellency that Colour-Sergeant Power, 59th Regiment, was the winner of the first prize, and Colour-Sergeant Radford, 8th King's Regiment, winner of the second. He then said: "I am highly pleased with the readings throughout; it has given me great satisfaction to see that men of regiments under my command possess such an amount of intelligence. The subjects have been well selected by all, and particularly well delivered by the winners of prizes. It is, indeed, creditable to the corps to which you belong, and I shall be most happy to hear you read on a public night, which will be selected by the Brigadier." His Excellency then thanked the committee and sub-committee for the creditable manner in which they had performed their work. The prizes were, first, 30 rupees; second, 20.—Deccan Herald, July 19.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

ARTILLERY—SADDLERY AND HARNESS.

Head Quarters, Simla, June 29.—No. 187.—With reference to Government General Order No. 203, dated Feb. 19 last (G.O. No. 80 of 1869), laying down the establishment of mountain batteries, it is notified for general information that Government has sanctioned the following description of saddle for the officers, mounted non-commissioned officers, and trumpeters of these batteries, viz.:—Hunting saddle with Crimean holsters, and regimental bridle with breast-plate and crupper.

CONVALESCENT DEPOTS—ARTILLERY.

No. 189.—In cancellation of Adjutant-general's circular, No. 96c, of Sept. 12, 1863, page 92, S.O., the Commander-in-Chief is pleased to direct that officers of the royal artillery are not to be detached to convalescent depots unless under sanction from army head quarters.

In future, therefore, when it is proposed to detach such officers for depots, their names must be submitted for approval.

VOLUNTEER CORPS IN INDIA.

July 8.—No. 733.—The Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following order, which is to be included in the rules of all existing volunteer corps in India, and in those of corps which may be hereafter formed:—

When one commanding officer receives charge of a volunteer corps from another, there should be an inspection of the arms and accoutrements which have been supplied, and the incoming officer should give a receipt or certificate as to the quantities and condition of those for which he becomes responsible.

The inspection shall be made, in the first instance, by a board consisting of three members of the corps, whose report shall be submitted to the relieving officer.

REORGANISATION OF THE FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

July 9.—No. 1,705.—Read: Financial resolution No. 6r, dated Aug. 29, 1862, reclassifying the officers in the financial secretariat of the Govt. of India, and the account department.

Resolution.—The complement of classified officers employed under the financial dept. of the Govt. of India, which was fixed by the Resolution of Aug. 29, 1862, having been since that date from time to time modified, the Governor gen. in Council is pleased, in supersession of all former orders, to declare that the dept. shall, from this date, consist of the following offices:—

MONTHLY SALARIES.

			Minimum	Annual increase.	Maximum.
In the 1st class	... 6 offices	Rs. 1,500	... 100	... 2,000
" 2nd "	... 7 "	... 1,000	... 75	... 1,500
" 3rd "	... 10 "	... 800	... 50	... 1,000
" 4th "	... 10 "	... 600	... 50	... 800
" 5th "	... 17 "	... 400	... 50	... 600

With a 6th class, consisting of 10 probationers or supernumeraries on a fixed salary of ... 200 each.

2. Vacancies in the higher classes, whether temporary or permanent, will, as a general rule, be filled up by the promotion of qualified officers from the lower classes with the usual preferential regard to seniority; and the service will, ordinarily be recruited by admission at the bottom of the sixth class only. It is, however, to be clearly understood that the Govt. of India reserves to itself the freest discretion to promote officers in the department, upon public grounds, without reference to seniority, and, if it be considered necessary, to admit recruits to the service otherwise than at the bottom.

3. Officers will be appointed or promoted temporarily to the first five classes to fill temporary vacancies in sufficient numbers to maintain the sanctioned strength of each class. But there will be no temporary appointments to the 6th class, and no substantive appointment will be made to any class otherwise than to fill an absolute vacancy caused by death or retirement.

4. The salary of an officer will depend upon the class to which he belongs, whether temporarily or permanently, without reference to the particular office which he may hold. But the offices will eventually be ordinarily classified as in the annexed schedule; and, as a rule, an officer will not be appointed permanently to a higher class than that in which the office which he fills is, according to that schedule, included.

5. As opportunities occur, the strength of each class and the distribution of officers among the several classes will be assimilated with the scale and distribution now sanctioned. Meanwhile covenanted officers who entered the Account Department before May, 1862, will continue eligible for promotion to the seven salaries shown below, and no uncovenanted officer will be deprived by this order of allowances which have already been assigned to him:—Two of Rs. 3,000 each; three of Rs. 2,500; two of Rs. 2,000.

Order.—Ordered that this resolution, and the schedule therein referred to, be published in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the Foreign Department, the Comptroller-general of Accounts, the several Accountants-general, and the Deputy Accountants-general in independent charge.

Schedule.—First Class—Six Officers.

Accountants-general in Madras, Bombay, Bengal, and the N.W. Provinces; Inspector of local offices of Account; Deputy Controller-general of Accounts, or Assistant Secretary to the Government of India.

SECOND CLASS.—Seven Officers.

Deputy Comptroller General of Accounts, or Assistant Secretary to the Government of India; Accountants General in the Punjab and British Burmah; Deputy Accountants General in Madras, Bombay, Bengal and the North-Western Provinces.

THIRD CLASS.—Ten Officers.

First Assistant Comptroller General of Accounts; first Assistant Accountants General in Madras and Bombay; Deputy Accountants General in Mysore, Hyderabad, the Central Provinces and the Punjab; Controller General of Money Order Offices; first Assistant Commissioners of Paper Currency in Calcutta and Bombay.

FOURTH CLASS.—Ten Officers.

THE NEW MILITARY FURLOUGH RULES.

Simla, July 14.—No. 747.—The following military letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 115, dated India-office, London, June 10, 1869, is published:—

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor-general of India in Council.

My Lord,—I forward, with reference to the 6th paragraph of your despatch in the military department, No. 239, dated June 3, 1868, copy of correspondence with the War-office [letters to War-office dated Nov. 10 last, No. 6,271-990w; March 17 last; April 9 last, No. 1,900-335w] on the subject of the extent to which the furlough rules of 1868 should be extended to officers of her Majesty's British forces serving in India, and I have to inform your lordship that her Majesty's Government have decided, for reasons given in the letter to the War-office, dated April 9 last, that the new rules can only be made applicable to officers of her Majesty's British forces in the sense in which the rules of 1851 were made applicable—viz., as regulating the amount of absentee allowance to be granted to such officers while holding staff appointments.—I have, &c., (Signed) ARGYLL.

DRESS OF OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN STAFF CORPS.

Simla, July 14.—No. 748.—With the sanction of H.M.'s Secretary of State for India, concurred in by H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C., the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct, in supersession of all previous orders on the subject, the adoption of the following modifications in the dress of officers of the Indian Staff Corps.

2. The uniform of officers of the Indian staff corps is as follows:—Tunic, scarlet cloth, single-breasted, eight buttons in front at equal distances with a fly, one inch and three-quarters wide, thus buttoning well over; collar and cuffs of blue cloth, the collar rounded off in front, and one and a-quarter to one and a-half inch high; the cuffs pointed; for lieutenants, laced with one bar of the staff pattern, half-inch wide, up to a point, seven and a-half inches in height; traced outside with gold Russia braid, finishing with an Austrian knot at top, making it nine and a-half inches high, and showing a light of three-sixteenths of an inch of scarlet cloth between the lace and braid, also traced inside with gold Russia braid, finishing down the cuff with crow's foot and eye, showing a light of three-sixteenths of an inch of the facing cloth between the lace and braid. Captains to have two bars of lace showing a quarter of an inch light of the facing cloth between each, the top bar coming to a point eight inches high, traced and finished at top and bottom of the lace bars as the lieutenants, the top tracing and knot extending ten inches high. Majors with the round eyes on the top of lace showing three-sixteenths of scarlet cloth between the lace and eyes. Colonel and lieutenant-colonel have the eyes also below the lower bar of lace, showing three-sixteenths of the facing cloth between the braid and lace. The skirt ten inches deep for an officer five feet nine inches in height, with a variation of a quarter of an inch longer or shorter for every inch difference in the height of the wearer; two plaits on skirts behind edged white, with two buttons at waist; the skirt closed behind quite plain; the collar and front of coat edged with white a quarter of an inch wide; the skirts lined with white, on the shoulders a plain double gold square cord to button at top of shoulder with a small staff corps button at bottom sewn on to the shoulder seam; the collar laced round top with staff pattern lace and gold braid on the collar seam (gold braided eyes inside the lace for field officers only). Relative collar badges thus:—for colonel, a crown and star; lieutenant-colonel, a crown; major, a star (other ranks omitting the braided eyes); captain, a crown and star; lieutenant, a crown (size of eyes half an inch exterior measurement, one-sixteenth of an inch apart).

Lace—Staff pattern.

Button—Gilt convex, frosted, with scalloped edge; cipher V.R. in a garter, surmounted by a crown; the words Bengal, Madras, or Bombay Staff Corps in the garter.

Hat—Cocked; the fan or back part 7 inches deep, the front 5½ inches, each corner 5 inches; gold lace loop, and tassels of gold crape fringe, with crimson crape fringe underneath.

Feather—White upright hackle, 5 inches long.

Trowsers—As prescribed for officers of infantry.

Boots—Wellington.

Spurs—For field officers and officers ranking with field officers, yellow metal; for other mounted officers, steel.

Sword—The same as for officers of infantry.

Scabbard—Brass.

Sword-knot—Crimson and gold, with acorn tassel.

Sword-belt—White enamelled leather, with slings, worn over the coat.

Plate—A round gilt clasp, with the cipher V.R. and a crown on the centre piece, and the words Bengal, Madras, or Bombay Staff Corps on the outer circle.

Sash—Crimson silk net with fringe ends, and a crimson runner worn diagonally over the left shoulder.

Blue Patrol Jacket—As prescribed for officers of infantry.

Stock—Black silk (in India a black silk neckerchief).

Gloves—White leather.

Forage Cap—Same as for infantry officers, to have a band of gold lace 1½ inch wide, with stripe of crimson silk in centre ½ inch wide.

Dress Sash—Two and a-half inches wide; three stripes of half-inch gold, and two between of half-inch crimson silk; gold and crimson flat tassels.

Dress Trowsers—To have a stripe of gold and crimson lace down each outward seam 1½ inch wide; crimson in centre ½ inch wide.

Dress Sword-belt—Gold, with crimson stripe in centre, of the same lace as on trowsers, with carriages of similar lace ½ inch wide.

The dress sash, trowsers, and sword-belt are only to be worn at levees, balls, &c., and their provision is optional with officers.

Officers of the staff corps are permitted to wear as an undress mess or evening dress—

Shell Jacket—Scarlet, edged with white, with rounded collar and pointed cuffs, five inches in height, of blue cloth; and ten small staff corps buttons down the front at equal distances, and two on each sleeve; lining, scarlet. No lace or gold cord. Field officers distinguished by crown and star crown, or star in gold on collar.

Waistcoat—White linen roll collar, with four small staff corps buttons.

POLITICAL.—H.E. the Viceroy and Governor General in Council is pleased to recognise the Court of the Political Superintendent of Akulote as a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purposes of Act I. of 1849 (being an Act to provide more effectually for the punishment of offences committed in foreign States).

DEPARTURES.—The undermentioned officers have reported their departure on the date specified:—Major E. J. Spilsbury, Bengal staff corps, G.G.O. No. 708; Capt. Minto, Bengal staff corps, G.G.O. No. 671; Capt. Chambers, Bengal staff corps, G.G.O. No. 720; Lieut. Cumming, Bengal staff corps, G.G.O. No. 653—per Simla, July 5.

MILITARY FURLONGS.—The following furloughs have been granted (July) on m.c., unless otherwise expressed, under the rules of 1868:—The undermentioned officers are permitted to proceed to Europe on furlough on private affairs as a special case:—Lieut. col. Iremonger, Bengal staff corps, assistant adjutant-general, Allahabad division, for two years; Lieut. col. Furneaux, 103rd foot, to England, overland.

CONVALESCENT DEPOTS.—In cancellation of Adjutant-general's circular, No. 96E, Sept. 12, 1863, the Commander-in-Chief directs that officers of the Royal Artillery are not to be detached to convalescent depots unless under sanction from army head quarters. In future, when it is proposed to detail such officers for depots, their names must be submitted to the Adjutant-general for his Excellency's orders.

NATIVE LANGUAGES.—The Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council has ordered that Pushtu be added to the languages which, under Rule 10 of G.G.O. No. 734 of 1864, entitle a candidate on passing an examination in them under Rule 8 to receive a donation of Rs. 800. H.E. in Council is pleased also to direct the modification of Rule 17 of the same order, as respects Pushtu only, by sanctioning the grant of Rs. 800 to those only whose period of actual residence in the Punjab does not exceed ten years, without reference to the time they may have passed in other parts of India.

PRINTING ON THE PUBLIC SERVICE.—It having been brought to the notice of the Government of India that heads of departments under the Supreme Government occasionally incur expenditure for printing on the public service at private presses, the Right Hon. the Governor-general in Council is pleased absolutely to prohibit the practice. All printing that cannot be done by the office presses will be executed at the Government Central Press only, and no charges will be admitted for printing at private presses executed after the date of this notification. It follows, of course, that no estimate on account of such charges must be made in the office budgets. Heads of departments should simply communicate to the superintendent of Government printing in time for his budget, and in such form as he may desire, the best estimate they can make of their demands upon the Central Press during the year.

JUDICIAL POWERS OF DEPUTY COMMISSIONERS, N.W.P.—The powers conferred on the undermentioned officers, under Act XV. of 1862, are continued to them under the provisions of Section 445a of Act VIII. of 1869, with effect from June 1:—Lieut. col. A. H. Ternan, deputy commissioner, Jaloun; Lieut. col. J. Davidson, deputy commissioner, Lullutpore; Mr. G. L. Lang, deputy commissioner, Jhansie; Capt. J. Liston, officiating deputy commissioner, Lullutpore; and Capt. H. M. Repton, deputy commissioner, Ajmere.

EDUCATIONAL.—Under section 12 of Act II. of 1857, the Governor General in Council is pleased to authorise the affiliation in law of the Cuttack School to the Calcutta University, with effect from Jan. 1, 1869.

REWARD OF NATIVE LOYALTY.—In consideration of the loyalty of Sah Bunwaree Lall, of Chuprah, and of the liberality and public spirit lately evinced by him in devoting the sum of one lakh of rupees for the construction and endowment of a serais in the place, H.E. the Viceroy and Governor-general in Council has been pleased to confer upon him the title of "Rai Bahadoor" as a personal distinction.

ARRIVALS FROM EUROPE.—The undermentioned officers have reported their return from England:—Lieut. col. D. C. Vanrenen, of the Royal Artillery, deputy surveyor general, with the superintendence of the revenue surveys in the Lower Provinces; Lieut. A. C. B. ## HOME ACCOUNTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

The House of Commons' Committee on Public Accounts have examined the home accounts of the Government of India. They observe that the first of these accounts, relating to the receipts and disbursements of the Home Treasury of the Government of India, appears in the form of a summary of a cash account for the year. It has appended to it the certificate of the auditor of the India-office, that no sums of money arising out of the revenues of India have been appropriated to any other purposes than those of the Government of India, to which they are declared by the Act of 21 and 22 Vic., cap. 106, to be applicable, and that they have been expended under the proper authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council, and that the vouchers, documents, and receipts relating thereto are complete and satisfactory. But as the sums entered under the head of receipts comprise incomings arising from sources of various natures, some of which appear to the committee to have been applicable only to specific purposes, and the sums brought to charge comprise disbursements for equally miscellaneous objects, the committee are of opinion that they do not afford to the public sufficient facility of forming a judgment upon the administration of the finances of India by the Government at home. The accounts show that the balance at the beginning of the year, amounting to £4,098,779, was greater than that of £2,833,009 remaining at the end of the year by the sum of £1,265,770, and that the sums received from what may be called the capital account by the Indian Government amount to £1,224,406, while that brought to charge as spent on capital account was only £500. Thus, if the capital account had been kept distinct from the revenue account, there would have been a further diminution of the balance equivalent to £1,223,906, making its total reduction £2,489,676. The committee further observe that £1,000,000, granted by her Majesty's Treasury for the Abyssinian expedition has been entered among the receipts, while the disbursements for the said expedition brought to charge amount to £965,446. The instalments of capital received from Indian railway and other guaranteed companies are £9,085,467, while the sum spent on store and establishment charges is £4,225,044, being £4,860,423 less than that received on account of capital. It is true that an additional sum of £3,494,316, paid for guaranteed interest of railway and other companies, has been brought to charge in the disbursements, but money paid for this purpose is not intended to be set against instalments on account of capital received from the same companies. If the accounts relating to the Abyssinian expedition and railways had been kept separate from the other accounts, the balances in the latter would have shown a still further diminution of £1,400,661, amounting to £3,899,337 in all. The committee observe that by these operations the amount of bills which had been estimated to be drawn on India was diminished by £3,062,705, and the Government of India was thereby left in funds for the construction of barracks and other purposes, so as to render it unnecessary to raise a considerable sum by means of a loan in India. The committee have been furnished with a summary of the receipts and payments of the Government on account of the capital funds of the railway companies both in England and in India, and of their revenues and guaranteed interest, but the India-office has been unable to furnish the committee with a similar account of the operations of the Indian Government respecting its telegraphs, in consequence of the unsatisfactory condition of the accounts of that service; and for the same reason the committee were unable to obtain a statement of accounts of the steam transport service between England and India via Egypt. The committee recommend that in future years separate accounts of the receipts and disbursements for these several services be appended to the general account laid before the House, and that in such accounts the items in respect of them appearing in the general account of the receipts and disbursements of the Home Government of India should be capable of identification. The committee also concur in the opinion expressed by the auditor of the Indian-office, that the accounts relating to such extraordinary occurrences as the Abyssinian expedition be kept separate from that of the ordinary receipts and disbursements. The committee are glad to find that the auditor of the Indian-office has been altogether relieved of the duties of departmental examiner of accounts, and is now enabled to carry out an entirely independent audit. It appears that some of the accounts kept in the Indian-office are not in such a state as to admit of their being submitted to him for audit, but as arrangements appear to be in progress to effect this desirable object, the committee did not think it necessary to make any specific recommendation on the subject.

INDIAN INDUSTRIES.

We extract the following from a corrected report of Mr. J. B. Smith's speech in the House of Commons, on Thursday, Aug. 5:—

Mr. J. B. Smith had for years past advocated the construction of public works by borrowed money, and ventured to assert that India might be covered with every necessary public work without cost. The Erie Canal, one of the greatest works in the world, had been made without costing the State a shilling; it had been constructed for small vessels in the first place with borrowed money; the tolls had paid off the loan and enlarged the canal, and now it was proposed to make a ship canal of it; and all through the transaction the policy of the State had been to attract traffic by a reduction of toll. Manchester, in like manner, had been supplied with water and gas without costing the people a farthing in taxation; and the whole of the Liverpool Docks had been constructed on the same principle. The advantages to the inhabitants in each case were, of course, immense; and India might be similarly benefited without cost to the taxpayers if public works were constructed with money borrowed on State credit and the security of tolls; for while the outlay on public works would be repaid by the revenue derived from them, wealth would be a thousand times increased by increased production. In the course of an interesting discussion a short time ago, by the Society of Engineers, upon irrigation in India and Spain, Mr. Allan Wilson, from the Madras Presidency, described the extraordinary magnitude of the works in that part of India before our conquest. It has been estimated there were in fourteen of the principal irrigated districts of the Madras Presidency upwards of 43,000 tanks and channels in repair, besides about 10,000 out of repair, having probably 30,000 miles of embankments and 300,000 separate masonry works. Col. Baird Smith states that the Ponacry tank in Trichinopoly has an embankment of thirty miles long, and an area of sixty to eighty square miles; and Mr. Wilson expresses surprise that the Government had neglected these great works, and allowed large rivers to flow into the sea unused for agricultural purposes. Besides the profit to the State in the way of increased commercial prosperity, canals were accounted valuable for sanitary purposes. Mr. Login, an engineer of the Ganges Canal, said the strong argument in favour of canals is, that they are calculated to prevent those awful visitations which sweep off hundreds of thousands by starvation. It was estimated that the Ganges Canal prevented the death of as many thousands as perished in Orissa, and in the next year, 1866-7, the canal repaid to the country more than its total cost, while it was the means of feeding little short of two and a-half millions of people. In proof of the benefits derived from irrigation he instanced the large profits yielded by several works of that kind, and he thought that such results ought to encourage the Indian Government to persevere in making works of irrigation. Sir A. Cotton says the opinion has been expressed that no great profit can be gained on works of irrigation for many years to come. His experience of profits is—

	Cost.	Profits.	Per Cent.
Godavery ... ..	£337,000	£160,000	45
Kistreeh ... ..	191,000	29,000	15
Upper Calleroon Anicut ...	24,000	64,000	270
Lower Calleroon ... ..	84,000	52,000	150

The total aggregate profits on the Madras works, over and above 4 per cent. interest, is £2,820,000 on a total cost of £560,000, or five times the cost of the works after paying interest and cost of repairs. The Indian Government wanted revenue, and it was very clear that the most effectual mode of obtaining it was by irrigating their lands and thereby increasing their rental. Mr. Allan Wilson, contrasting the difference between dry and irrigated land, states that of fourteen Ryotwar districts of Madras, two million acres irrigated yielded a revenue of £1,500,000; twenty-five million acres of dry land, only £2,000,000, while if it had been irrigated it would have produced upwards of eighteen millions. As regards the gain to the cultivator, independently of the certainty of reaping a crop, irrigated lands yield a crop of Rs. 20 an acre; dry land, Rs. 6 an acre. So that the ryot is better able to pay Rs. 3 per acre for irrigated land than 1 rupee for dry land. If the Government want to increase the revenue and at the same time benefit the cultivator, they have only to promote irrigation. He was glad to learn that the Government of India were taking measures to promote the growth of forests in their territory, for the manure which ought to be used to enrich the land was to a great extent dried and used as fuel. In alluding to the growth of cotton, he observed that twenty-five years ago certain persons in the manufacturing districts of this country entertained great apprehensions in consequence of those districts being mainly dependent for the cotton they needed upon one source of supply. At that time 75 per cent. of the raw cotton used in this country came from America, and at the time of the occurrence of the civil war the proportion supplied by America had increased to 85 per cent. In 1848 the present President of the Board of Trade moved for a select committee to inquire into the growth of cotton, and the committee, after investigating the matter, were satisfied that a large quantity of excellent cotton could be obtained from India. In the following year his right hon. friend moved that a commission should be sent out to India further to inquire into the subject, but the East India Company refused to afford any assistance in prosecuting the inquiry. However, the manufacturers of Lancashire felt the importance of obtaining information on that head so greatly that the Manchester Chamber of Commerce sent out a commissioner of their own, who, though he unfortunately died, left behind him sufficient evidence to prove that the desired object of procuring supplies of cotton from India might be attained. It was represented to the Government from time to time that without Government assistance it was impossible for India to produce what was wanted—namely, a good quality of cotton; but the reply made to that representation was that it was contrary to the principles of political economy for the Government to interfere in such a matter, and that when there was a demand there would be a supply. That statement was true as regards most countries, but it did not apply to India. In America the cotton was produced by men of capital, but in India it was the production of a miserable set of ryots; and one might as well look for improvements in agriculture from Irish cottiers as expect improvements in the cultivation of cotton from the class of cultivators he had referred to. The Government said it was contrary to political economy to do anything in this matter. But there was as great a demand for tea as cotton, yet that demand brought no tea from India until the Government, acting upon the economical principle, wisely tried the experiment of planting tea gardens, and exhibiting to the natives the practicability of extensively growing it; and now they succeeded in growing tea of better quality than was grown in China. There was now a large growth of tea in India, and very probably it would be exceedingly extended. Then there was the article of quinine; it fetched fabulous prices; but no one ever thought of growing it till, on Lord Stanley's recommendation, plants were introduced in large quantities, and now India not only supplied itself, but in all probability quinine would become an article of considerable export. If the Government could do all this, why not try experiments in the growth of cotton? But Government had always treated Lancashire people as merely seeking their own interests. Now, they did seek their own interests undoubtedly, but they could not do so without seeking also the interests of India. During the American war the total exports from India amounted to £67,000,000, and of that £24,000,000 consisted of cotton. The total exports now were £50,000,000, and he supposed they would have to pay some £30,000,000 this year for cotton. Was not India, then, interested in the growth of cotton, seeing that one-half her exports consisted of that article? They had been imploring the Government for years, and at length they had got a Cotton Commissioner. They were very fortunate in his appointment, for the gentleman appointed had his heart in the work. He went to the province of Candehish and saw they were using a very inferior kind of seed. He imported seed from Berar, where the best cotton in India was grown. The very first year after sowing this seed the sowers obtained so much more for it as paid the price of their rent twice over. He said, then, that the Cotton Commissioner had been a great benefit to India. But he must warn the India Government that they would have competition to encounter. America would still grow cotton, and of a better quality than India, unless India bestirred herself. America was about to import large numbers of Chinese labourers, and India could not keep the valuable cotton trade she possessed unless she bestirred herself. The great disadvantage of India was that, while America grew 500 lbs. per acre, India grew only 50 lb. per acre. India had also this disadvantage, that, for want of roads, the cotton had formerly to be carried on the backs of bullocks from Berar to Bombay for shipment, a distance of 500 miles. India had now railways and the finest rivers in the world. The expense of the conveyance of cotton from Berar to Bombay on bullocks was 2d. per lb., by railway 1d. per lb., and by the Godavery, which flowed through the centre of the best cotton-fields, half a farthing per lb. The Government of India must, therefore, bestir themselves.

Miscellaneous.

A RUMOURD MARRIAGE.—The Standard says it is reported in fashionable circles that the Rajah of Sarawak intends taking to himself a Rancee. The young lady who is to fill this elevated station is a Miss de Windt, daughter of the late Clayton De Windt, Esq., of Blunsden-hall, near Swindon, and Mrs. De Windt, who is now residing at Wornford-place, Wilts.

A NEW TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—A prospectus has been issued of the India, Australia, and China Submarine Telegraphs (Limited), with a capital of £350,000, in shares of £20. The object is to connect the telegraphic system of British India at Point de Galle with the Straits Settlements, Australia, and China, and the capital now asked is for the first section, from Ceylon to Penang. The cable, 1,500 miles in length, is proposed to be of the light kind invented and patented by Mr. Varley, and is to be constructed and laid by the Indian-rubber, Gutta-percha, and Telegraph Works Company for £325,000. The amount of the shares is to be paid up between now and the 1st of February next.

WAR-OFFICE.—We understand that it has been finally settled that in the re-organisation of the War-office the respective branches of the Accountant-general and the Chief Auditor shall not be amalgamated. Lord Northbrook's Committee will resume its labours in October, and will then have to begin from a different basis for the reorganisation of the War-office.—Broad Arrow.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The tenders for £325,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, the 18th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta £311,500, and to Madras £13,500. The minimum price was fixed as before—viz., at 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on the above precedencies at 1s. 11½d. received about 39 per cent.; those above that price in full. These results indicate a slight increase in the demand for remittance to the East.

INDIAN RELIEFS.—As regards the Indian reliefs of 1870-71, the 7th Hussars, 77th, 95th, 88th, 1st battalion 7th, and 103rd Regiments will come home. The relieving cavalry regiment will be the 10th Hussars, and among the five infantry regiments to go out the 63rd and 65th may be put down as certain to be included. After them the three next regiments for foreign service are the 72nd, 56th, and 44th, which returned home early in 1866, but it is likely that a battalion or two from the Mediterranean may be selected, and it may be presumed that the selection will lie among those that went out in 1868, and did not spend the whole of their last period of foreign service in India. They are the 28th and 71st at Gibraltar, and the 48th at Malta. It is understood that some of the Mediterranean battalions are anxious for service in India.—Army and Navy Gazette.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.—The Albert Assurance Office, which was established more than 30 years ago, and which often subsequently enlarged its connections by means of amalgamations with other offices, has suspended payment, and the event has caused serious alarm to all interested. This office had an income of £300,000 a-year, and upwards, and it had assured upwards of £8,000,000, so that probably no fewer than 16,000 heads of families see the provision they had made for their benefit well nigh dissipated, as little more than two years' income is in hand. Nothing of a specific character has hitherto transpired in the case, beyond the fact that an application was made on the 16th of August to the vacation judge in Chancery for the appointment of a provisional liquidator. The application was made on the part of the directors, who were stated to be preparing a scheme for submission to the policy-holders, whereby the serious consequences of an unqualified liquidation might be mitigated if they consented to sacrifice some proportion of their policies, so that the company might be hereafter reconstructed upon a stable basis. Mr. S. L. Price, of the firm of Messrs. Price, Holyland, and Waterhouse, is appointed provisional liquidator, and the policy-holders are forming themselves into committees, and so forth, to protect their interests. The deficit under any circumstances must be something enormous, and it is said that unless vigorous measures are adopted without delay, the consequences will be ruinous in the extreme. Although the company is not registered under the Limited Liability Act, the liability of the shareholders appears to be restricted by certain clauses in the policies. Thus it may turn out that the policy-holders have scarcely any security at all, seeing that the uncalled capital is very small compared to the liabilities of the company.

INDIAN COTTON.—A correspondent of the Times, long connected with the Cotton Department in Western India, writes on the question of the cotton supply:—"Western India has very great advantages in the great race of supplying England with cotton. Wonders have been done for the desired end, but very much remains to be done, and nearly all that 'much' is in the hands of Government. Dharwar, with its beautiful 'American,' is placed at a shameful disadvantage as long as it is deprived of its natural high road to the coast—i.e., the rail to Carwar, via the Arbye Ghat. Kulludghee and Belgaum—in which districts large quantities of excellent cotton is grown, and where the cultivation might be vastly increased—wait only for the rail to connect them with the Great Indian Peninsula line at Sholapore, or the Dharwar and Carwar line, to double the area under cotton cultivation. The Bombay, Baroda, and Central India line, if supplied with 'feeders,' in the shape of cheap railways or tramways, would have full work for several months in bringing cotton to Bombay, instead of, as at present, depending for about two months only on the cotton ginned at Broach, and about Surat, and from some of his Highness the Gaicowar's districts, close to the line. If supplemented by a line to tap Kattywar, via Veerungam and Wudwan, I am quite convinced the cotton exports via Guynath would in a few years be nearly doubled. His Highness the Gaicowar has, I believe, under construction a cheap railway through part of his territory, as a feeder to the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India line. Our Government would do well to follow the example of his Highness. Good means of communication are the great wants in Western India, and until they are provided your cotton supply will be restricted. Cheap railways, roads, good and safe ferries, and good piers from which cotton can be embarked without being rolled in the mud, are urgently required, and would benefit the cotton trade more, and meet the views of that useful institution, the Cotton Supply Association, better than fifty companies, if they could be introduced. The works would be remunerative, and should therefore be at once undertaken and paid for out of a public works loan. The present cotton department in Bombay should be re-cast, so as to take both in the duty of leading the ryots to improve their cultivation of the plant, and to prevent fraudulent adulteration of the staple before it is exported from India. The department costs the State nothing, is very inexpensive to those concerned in the cotton trade, and is capable of being made a most useful agency for rendering Manchester—i.e., England—independent, or nearly so, of American-grown cotton."

Spirit of the Home Journals.

THE ALBERT LIFE OFFICE.

The Sar calls attention to the fact that the Albert Life Office, in the course of its history, absorbed no fewer than twenty-two other companies. But when a life-office is willing to be absorbed, it is not usually in a very prosperous condition, and the Albert probably increased its responsibilities without much improving its resources. Quite lately there was a return to Parliament which revealed several very curious facts as to the financial situation of this company. The annual income of the office was £357,594, so that there was nothing beggarly or desperate in its case; but then it had only £647,075 invested; that is, a company which had traded for thirty years had only two years' income in hand. These figures may not convey any very clear idea of the state of things to persons not familiar with insurance business; but the condition of the Albert Office is unfortunately capable of very simple and cogent illustration. The Albert Office was pledged to pay, in sums assured and bonuses, £11,057,130. Now, what sum ought a company which has been thirty years in business to have in hand in order to be safe? Something like £1,900,000. Instead of this the Albert Office had in hand only some £647,000, as mentioned above, just a third of the proper sum. Surely it is a most extraordinary circumstance that facts like these should appear in a parliamentary paper and make no sensation. Though no public commotion ensued, however, the return probably contributed to produce the crisis which is now acknowledged to have arrived.

The Spectator points out that the policyholders can make it an absolute condition of any agreement, or arrangement, or composition, that the office shall obtain a private Act, authorising, or rather compelling, the Board of Trade to appoint an auditor at their own expense, with right of veto on every act of the directors, and with orders to publish half-yearly accounts intended to explain, and not merely to state, still less to conceal, the precise position of their affairs. Such an Act, with the pressure they could exert, would be readily obtainable, and once obtained would enable them to commence afresh with a tolerable assurance that they would never again become insolvent; that their new sacrifices for their families would not be ineffectual; that somebody whose interest was not directly adverse to theirs was looking after their affairs. Under that condition, such an office may revive; without it, the policyholders will be just where the majority of them are now, namely, depositors in a bank whose affairs they can by no possibility know anything whatever about. But, we shall be asked, if we once admit of interference from the Government, where is it to end? The State might take the monopoly of life assurance upon itself. That is quite a possibility. Supposing the householders ever to be educated enough to discern their right hands from their left, to see that the great monopolising corporations are public enemies, who must either be controlled by the multitude, or which would be far better, absorbed in the one corporation which represents that multitude, that would, we should say, be a very near contingency; but supposing it to occur, how would matters stand then? A few dozen directors would be deprived of a good deal of emolument and some consideration, but the immense body of persons who are, or who wish to be, policyholders, would be able to deposit their savings in a bank which could never perish, or be insolvent, or cheat them, which would make their prudence as fructuous as nature does when sowers sow seed, and which, if it overcharged them, would overcharge them not to fill its own purse, but to reduce taxation upon them and everybody else. And the general body of the people would be able to apply the credit their industry builds up to the relief of the taxes which they pay. And the statesmen would at last have found their ideal, an income-tax which could be made to reach all men, yet which no man would object to pay, because while paying it he was ensuring safety to his wife and the "weans." Compulsory deferred annuities, guaranteed and controlled by the State, —there is the substitute one day for the Poor-rate. Compulsory Life Assurance, in proportion to income, guaranteed and controlled by the State, —there one day will be found the substitute for all forms of direct taxation. It is all a "dream" now, of course, to the wise men of the City; but still, little incidents like the breakdown of Irish Railways and the suspension of a Life Office with a few millions of liabilities, help the dream rapidly on.

AMMUNITION IN BARRACKS.

The Broad Arrow observes that practice with ball cartridge once a-year cannot make it necessary to keep every individual soldier constantly supplied with twenty rounds of ball. An officer writing from Aldershot states that two similar attempts at murder have been made at that station since Corporal Brett fell a victim to the deliberate malice of William Dixon. Ball-cartridge is not used on field days, but has to be collected with considerable trouble and handed over to the quartermaster, in exchange for blank ammunition, to be again returned to the men on the return of the regiment from the field. It is so injured by these frequent changes, that at the end of the year it is hardly serviceable, and the men object to use it in that part of their annual course which counts for prizes. It is also an extra weight for the men to carry, and is so rarely wanted for actual use in the suppression of riot that no good reason can be alleged on this ground for including it in a soldier's daily equipment. The discontinuance of the practice of wearing side arms has saved, at a moderate computation, some hundreds of lives, and has resulted in no practical inconvenience whatever to the service. We see no reason, with this experience to guide us, why the soldier's pouch should not be filled with blank charges, and if he does not "sit well," as some allege, without the additional weight of ball, why the army accoutrement maker should not be called upon to furnish an improved pattern. In this, as in so many other instances, red tape itself has been cruelly victimised by a smaller species of tapeworm, the minuteness of which has enabled it to escape observation.

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "108 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

Price 6s., by post, 6s. 6d.,

THE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA.

FROM THE

APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE

TO THE

POLITICAL EXTINCTION OF THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,

Late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

The first volume of this History embraces the period from Lord Hardinge's appointment in 1844 to the retirement of the Marquis of Dalhousie in 1856.

The second volume commences with the arrival of Lord Canning in India in 1856, and closes with his lordship's death in 1862. This being the most eventful period in the annals of the East India Company, including the Mutiny, great pains have been taken in its narration.

"Captain Trotter has done good service in providing the public with a sequel to a standard work. . . . And in every way his performance is worthy to take rank with that of his predecessor. . . . The thoroughly satisfactory manner in which the task has been performed is greatly to the author's credit. . . . We take our leave of the work, congratulating its author upon having produced an addition to the 'History of India' at once permanent in purpose and popular in execution; acceptable in every way to the wants of the public, and especially adapted for the enlightenment of young members of the local service, to whom the modern annals of the country which they help to administer are of far more importance than the history of remote periods having little or no relation to the present day."—Standard.

"Both the plan and execution of the work are deserving of high praise. Full of interest and animation, and narrates with clearness and brevity all that took place during the period of which it treats. . . . The second volume of Mr. Trotter's history possesses the same merits by which the first was distinguished. It is written with great animation, and often with considerable graphic power. It tells its story with perspicuity and without needless or tiresome digressions. It avoids as far as possible that controversial vein into which Indian politicians and historians are alike prone to fall, and it is as impartial as any work is likely to be which deals with times so near our own. . . . The narrative of the spirit-stirring events of the mutiny will of course have the greatest attraction for most readers, and it is in truth the best, as it is the principal part of the present volume. . . . It appears to us that Mr. Trotter has been eminently successful in his treatment of a very exciting and interesting period of recent history."—London Review.

"The volume is full of interesting matter, comprising every event of importance during the exciting period of the rebellion, told in a concise, straightforward, and impartial manner, unincumbered by those copious extracts from documentary evidence which often serve no other purpose than increasing the bulk without adding to the usefulness of a work of this description."—Observer.

"Captain Trotter's reflections are few. . . . He has his own views, though he does not force them upon us in detail. . . . All this proves him to be far above the narrowness of the average Anglo-Indian. He speaks out boldly, too, in defence of Lord Gough. . . . A word as to our author's descriptive powers; they are such as his lighter writings would lead us to expect. . . . Whatever he has to tell Captain Trotter tells it in an animated and picturesque style. The night on the field at Ferozeehur . . . is admirably painted; so is the grand success of Goojat. The disarming of the veterans of the Khalsa . . . is a striking scene. Captain Trotter's book opens up many other interesting questions; it is full of notices of social changes; it points out the specially unfortunate way in which the annexation of Oudh was managed."—Fortnightly Review.

"Here we have before us the first volume of an eminently readable history. . . . The arrangement of the matter, the style, and, above all, the spirit which pervades his pages, are worthy of great commendation. Mr. Trotter is singularly free from the faults of a partisan writer. . . . The volume concludes with a masterly criticism on Lord Dalhousie's character and services."—Calcutta Englishman.

"We cannot say that he has dealt unjustly by Lord Canning's memory. . . . A well-considered volume, in which the heartiest acknowledgments are paid to Lord Canning for his temperate wisdom at a time when there was no man more abused than he. . . . He writes thoughtfully, yet with a soldier's sense of the stir of a brisk military narrative. His history of this great struggle is full and impartial. . . . We need not follow him through his vigorous rehearsal of the well-known incidents. It forms a very lucid history, the several parts being well planned and well grouped, and no important point being omitted or misrepresented."—Examiner.

THE TEXTILE MANUFACTURES AND THE COSTUMES OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA

Prepared under the Authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

By J. FORBES WATSON, Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial quarto, morocco back, cloth, with numerous coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

THE TIMES.—"On no point, perhaps, in regard to India, has greater ignorance prevailed in England than in respect to the clothing of her vast population. Late as it is, and for the first time within the last hundred years of our Indian domination, the work just completed by Dr. Forbes Watson supplies this great and almost unaccountable want of information, and supplies it, too, in a most complete and intelligible manner. It would be impossible to follow Dr. Watson's work in detail; but, whether to the manufacturer or to the general reader, the interest throughout will continue unbroken. This book is written in a clear and thoroughly intelligible style throughout; it is handsomely got up, and embellished by numerous coloured photographs, from which the various styles of costumes and portions of clothing, male and female, will be more readily understood than from mere descriptions."

THE ATHENÆUM.—"We may safely say that a more important work on the manufactures of India has never been given to the public, than the Industrial Museum, and this Commentary by Dr. Forbes Watson. Advantages are sometimes slow to follow, even when the channel for them has been skillfully made and clearly marked out, but we certainly do anticipate very great results from this work, and that before long its author will be acknowledged to deserve a place amongst the real benefactors of India."

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW.—"It is a matter of national importance to study and ascertain what the traditions of India in respect to dress really are. This task has been most ably performed by Dr. Forbes Watson in the volume before us. We call attention to the work and to the subject, not as a matter of mere curiosity, but as an inquiry of direct interest to the manufacturing industry of Europe. Dr. Watson has evidently brought his personal Indian experience to bear upon a mass of materials which, in less skilled hands, would most likely have proved wearisome and unintelligible. As he has arranged his details, they are as entertaining to the general reader as they are full of information and instruction to the manufacturer."

THE MORNING POST.—"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains, and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce."

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI- MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO- THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable
to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RU-
BARB, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.
Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SASSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

"INDIAN BAEL," for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, &c. Imported by J. G. GOULD, Pharmaceutical Chemist, 198, Oxford-street, corner of Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.

AN ENTIRELY NEW METHOD OF FIXING ARTIFICIAL TEETH, without springs or wires, or any painful operation, more natural and durable than any introduced, giving a facility in mastication and speech hitherto unattained. To be had only of Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-Dentist to their late
R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester,
&c., 64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square. At home

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 6d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.;
postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness
and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY,

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 23, 1869.
Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India,
I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Have been for years, and still are, renowned as a safe and salutary remedy for indigestion, liver complaints, and all manner of eruptions and skin diseases. Pains in the stomach after eating, eructations of wind, pain in the back, aching of the right shoulder, weakness, languor, and tawny hue of the skin, all disappear under the purifying powers of these admirable Pills. They contain no ingredient which by possibility could hurt the most feeble frame. They effect a salutary though momentous change throughout the system, by thoroughly expelling all impurities, and imposing on every organ its natural functions. Many testimonials of their efficacy can be produced, received from all parts of the world.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES.

| PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.
